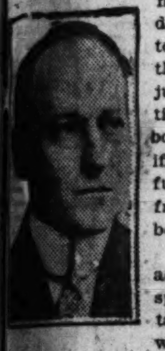
FUNDS ASSURED N SCHOOL QUIZ; RUNDAGE ACTS

Names Three Aids to Push Inquiry.

Declining offers of huge sums to be [illegible] by private subscription, Attorney General Brundage has decided to take charge of the special grand jury's investigation of the school board and its ramifications with the funds in prospect from the county board.



ATTY. GENERAL BRUNDAGE.

His decision to accept the responsibility and take full charge was signalized yesterday by his appointment of three attorneys as the nucleus of his legal staff and his issuance of an order that adequate quarters be found for the housing of a large organization of investigators, accountants, stenographers and similar employes to be selected later.

He did this on the statements of representatives of the Chicago Bar association that enough members of the new county board have promised to vote appropriations sufficient to guarantee [illegible] the opportunity to make a complete investigation and to carry the [illegible] prosecutions to a final conclusion.

He Opposes Private Donations.

Several offers to raise large sums by public "drives" and similar means have been made to the attorney general by men considered capable of carrying out their promises. One of them was an offer to raise $500,000 by popular subscriptions ranging from $1 upward. The proponent was a man who has been identified with successful "drives" in the past and he proposed to underwrite his offer.

But the bar association took the position that the work contemplated is one that should be supported by regular governmental agencies, established for that purpose, and that the county board was the body that should appropriate for the prosecuting machinery. Its representatives opposed suggestions of private contributions in principle.

Under these circumstances Attorney General Brundage delayed positive action in the matter until representatives of the association reported to him that they had binding assurances of the money from the county. He has declared $150,000 will be needed and he has been told that this much and more if necessary can be counted upon with certainty.

One Obstacle to Speed.

The only obstacle in the way of his developing his special organization to full strength at once is that the county appropriations cannot be made available until the opening of the fiscal year. And it has been suggested that some of the men who have offered to raise funds by subscription might undertake to underwrite the expenses for the next two or three months so that some of the banks would furnish funds for immediate use.

The attorney general's first appointments were those of Frederick A. Brown, Charles M. Haft, and Marvin A. Barnhart. Attorney Brown is a former president of the Illinois Bar association, and has served as special assistant attorney general.

Haft Former Assistant.

Attorney Haft was an assistant corporation counsel under Mr. Brundage during the Busse administration, remaining in that position under Harrison. Attorney Barnhart was first assistant state's attorney under Maclay Hoyne.

In addition to these the attorney general authorized Assistant State's Attorney George E. Gorman and Special Assistant Thomas J. Symmes to represent him in the case of William A. Bither and Louis Piquet tomorrow. The Bither case is not a result of the special grand jury's work, the indictment having been voted by a previous regular grand jury, but the attorney general agreed to take it over as it is more or less part of the special inquiry.

FACES PERJURY CHARGE

Acting in the name of Attorney General Brundage, Attorney I. T. Greenacre announced that a perjury indictment will be sought against Milton [illegible] as a result of the day's hearing of the contempt charges against him in Chief Justice McKinley's court.

Four witnesses flatly contradicted the school printer's denial that he had

VALOR IN BATTLE WINS A $1,458,752 ESTATE FOR HERO

Minneapolis, Nov. 18.—Battle scars and awards for bravery won with the British army in France earned for Capt. George Camp Douglas a one-third interest, valued at $1,458,752, in his father's estate.

Trustees considered his war record equivalent to complying with a provision in his father's will that he demonstrate his ability to earn his own living for ten years and Judge W. C. Leary granted a petition in which they asked that it be officially recorded that he had complied with the terms of the will.

His father, the late Walter D. Douglas of Minneapolis, lost his life on the Titanic in 1912. He was chairman of the board of directors of the Quaker Oats company and left an estate valued at $4,376,886.

U. S. AND JAPAN OBEY NAVY PACT

Washington Treaty Fixes Size of Budgets.

TOKIO, Nov. 18.—[By the Associated Press.]—Naval budgets of Japan and the United States have been framed on the basis of a mutual understanding that they would not exceed the terms of the Washington conference agreement, pending final ratification of those pacts, according to a statement today by an official of the Japanese foreign office.

C. B. WARREN.

Before the framing of Japan's naval budget, which shows a decrease of 117,000,000 yen [$58,000,000] as compared with that of the current year, the foreign office had received assurance from the American government that the United States naval budget would be drawn up in the spirit of the Washington conference, the official said.

U. S. Envoy Aids Negotiations.

Japan gave similar assurances. The conversations which brought about the understandings were carried on by Charles B. Warren, American ambassador at Tokio, and Foreign Minister Uchida. Both expressed the desire of their governments that the budgets should accord with the naval treaty of Washington.

Mr. Warren's letter confirming the conversations, according to the Japanese foreign office authority, assured the Tokio government that pending ratification of the naval treaty and the deposit of the ratifications at Washington, the naval budget of the United States would be based upon the naval limitations treaty of Washington.

No New Pacific Forts.

The letter is said to have stated further that no construction would be undertaken contrary to the terms of the treaty and that the status quo of American fortifications in the Pacific would be maintained.

Competent officials here are satisfied that Japan's budget for the coming year complies with these assurances. The budget for the year which will end in March, 1923, is 393,662,000 yen [$196,831,000].

That for the next fiscal year is 276,000,000 [$138,000,000]. Eight thousand men have been dropped from the rolls.

FOOTBALL

Princeton grabbed the football championship of the "Big 3" by defeating Yale 3 to 0 in what is described as one of the most sensational games of the season. It is estimated that more than 500,000 attended the "headliner" games throughout the country. Details of all games will be found on the sporting pages.

GIRL BRIDE SEEKS TO SET VOIDING OF WEDDING ASIDE

Annulment of the marriage of Jack Norman Woodington, son of John C. Woodington, president of the United States Slicing Machine company, and his girl bride was ordered set aside and the case reopened yesterday by the Circuit court at Michigan City.

This action resulted from the plea of the girl, who was Miss Rita Frances Winbur, that she had not been notified when her husband sought to have their marriage annulled.

Mrs. Woodington, through Attorneys Charles Erbstein and J. B. Fruechtl, has filed suit for separate maintenance against her husband and is suing her mother-in-law for $50,000 damages for alleged alienation of his affections. Woodington and Miss Winbur eloped and were married at Waukegan while he was a student at Culver Military academy.

Sir Thomas Lipton, Ill, Unable to Sail for England

New York, Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Taken ill suddenly with a cold, Sir Thomas Lipton was forced to cancel his passage on the steamship Celtic, which sailed for Liverpool yesterday. Sir Thomas expects to be sufficiently recovered to sail next week. Although he conferred with officials of the New York Yacht club, no arrangements have been made for a renewal of the challenge races. The British yachtsman expects to challenge next year for races in 1924.

KLIMEK POISON LIST IS TWENTY; ARREST 1 MORE

Sister of Mrs. Koulik Latest Accused.

Twenty poison victims—fourteen dead and six still living—were totaled last night in the Klimek mystery when two more women were taken into custody. In the state's attorney's office the investigation continued far into the night.

The latest development was the disclosure that Nicholas Micke, 2035 West Superior street, a nephew by marriage of Mrs. Nellie Stermer-Koulik, was a victim of arsenical poisoning.

Mrs. Micke and her mother, Mrs. Cornelia Kozlowski, 1410 West Division street, were both arrested. Mrs. Kozlowski is the sister of Mrs. Koulik, therefore both she and her daughter are cousins of Mrs. Klimek, believed by the state's attorney to be the high priestess of the "Bluebeard clique."

Three Women in Custody.

There are now being held three women:

Mrs. Tillie Klimek, three of whose husbands have met sudden and mysterious death, while a fourth is now reported dying at the West Side hospital.

Mrs. Nellie Stermer-Koulik, cousin of Mrs. Klimek, implicated by her in a confession made after her arrest, but later retracted. Mrs. Koulik has given birth to fifteen children in the last thirty years. Six of them are dead.

Mrs. Cornelia Kozlowski, sister of Mrs. Koulik, whose daughter is the wife of Nicholas Micke, latest of the alleged victim plot.

Mrs. Nicholas Micke, daughter of Mrs. Kozlowski and niece of Mrs. Koulik, was kept under surveillance but released from custody.

Two Women Grilled.

Mrs. Kozlowski and her daughter were grilled severely by Assistant State's Attorney William F. McLaughlin last night.

Remarks made by Mrs. Kozlowski, however, led the state's attorney to the belief that she may give important evidence. While alone with her daughter in his office she was overheard to say by Detective Sergeant William G. Swanson that she hoped Micke would die. "I hate him. I hope the hand of God takes him tonight," she declared. "I didn't poison him, but I hope he dies."

The state's attorney's suspicions were strengthened when he was told by Mrs. Micke that her mother had said Micke would be dead inside a year. "He's no match for my daughter," Mrs. Kozlowski said of Micke, his wife declared. "He's a dying looking bird."

Discovery that Micke was suffering from the effects of arsenic was the result of his curiosity. A week ago he went to the West Chicago avenue police station to learn what progress was being made in the investigation. There it was noticed that he was not normal, and Lieut. Willard Malone, in charge of the police investigation, sent him to Coroner's Chemist Edward D. McNally. Chemical analysis showed him also probably to be a victim of the gruesome plot.

Policy Taken Out Secretly.

Arrest of Mrs. Micke and Mrs. Kozlowski was ordered by the assistant state's attorney as soon as he learned that Micke had told the police that Mrs. Kozlowski had taken out a $1,000 insurance policy on him. The policy was obtained, Micke told police, without his knowledge and was made payable to Mrs. Kozlowski.

Micke also told of purchasing a quantity of moonshine liquor from Mrs. Klimek some time ago. He drank the last of it three weeks ago, he said. According to Chemist McNally, the poison could have passed through his system in that time, and the police are also following this lead.

Following discovery of large quantities of arsenic in the bodies of Joseph Ruskowski and Joseph Mitkiewitz, second and first husbands, respectively, of Mrs. Klimek, Coroner Peter M. Hoffman announced yesterday that he would seek orders for exhumation of the bodies of five children in Mrs. Klimek's family who have died in mysterious circumstances.

"This is the most startling and intricate poison case to come to my attention in the eighteen years I have been coroner," said Mr. Hoffman yesterday. "There is no question that Mrs. Klimek poisoned every one she wished to get out of the way. Her victims may total a score."

Dog Poisoned, Belief.

The net of evidence being drawn about Mrs. Klimek was strengthened yesterday by discovery that a neighbor's dog, to the barking of which she had voiced objections, had died of arsenical poisoning. The animal be-

Lloyd Ready to Enter 'Stir' in Few Days

William Bross Lloyd will give himself up "to the proper authorities on or before next Thursday night." He said so to a TRIBUNE representative last evening. A reporter spent three-quarters of an hour with Mr. Lloyd, who is under mandate of the Supreme court sending him to Joliet prison for from one to five years for a violation of the state espionage act.

"My one big regret," he said, "is that I have two perfectly good tickets for the Yale-Harvard game next Saturday, and I'll be in the 'stir,' as they call it, by that time."

Mr. Lloyd is a Harvard man. He spoke philosophically about going to the penitentiary, but charged that "a certain group of very wealthy and influential persons in Chicago" had much to do with what has befallen him.

Rushing Business Affairs.

"You may tell the Chicago authorities," he said, "that I give my word of honor—and that is as good as my bond, or my common, ordinary word, for that matter—it has never been broken—that I will give myself up on or before next Thursday night.

"I would be more exact if I could, but I can't. I have certain matters to attend to, and while the jail is a very nice place and all that, I cannot transact business there. I have been hurrying the people I have to deal with, so as to give myself up just as quickly as possible. I have to go to prison; why delay it?"

How He Views Prospect.

"How do you feel about going to the penitentiary?" he was asked. He laughed.

"Well," he replied, "I wouldn't exactly choose the place as a winter home; but so long as I have to go, why not take a philosophical view of it.

"You know, I'm going to the best penitentiary in the country. I know that because I met Charley Ashley just after he was released from Leavenworth. Charlie said: 'Bill, you're going to the best "stir" in the United States; an old burglar friend of mine, who had done time in every "long-house" in the country, and who was in Leavenworth with me, told me that.'

Easy for Him to Flee.

"What's all this stuff about my fleeing the country? If I were going to do that I would have done it long ago. I have a boat—have had for two years—especially fitted out to go to sea; and for a long time I wasn't even under bond. And if I were under bond and wanted to go, I wouldn't let $5,000 stand in my way.

"On the other hand, if I did go away, I would go to some foreign land and claim I was a political offender seeking refuge there. Then I would promptly let the state's attorney of Cook county know I was there and say 'Come and get me.' And if he failed I would come back to Chicago and give him a contest."

Out "To Get Him."

Then he made his charge that "a certain group of very wealthy and influential men in Chicago went out to get me."

"They financed the whole business," he said; "put up a lot of money to get me."

"Why?"

"Because," he replied, "I am one of those blunt, outspoken fellows. Because I say exactly what I think. Put it this way: I am a scab on my class.

"I think the Supreme court might have showed me the common courtesy to give me a little time—to treat my case as they might have treated a homicide, a crime at least as desperate as mine."

OBREGON BARES "MEDDLING" TO LATIN AMERICA

Hughes Says Aid on Laws Was Invited.

Mexico City, Nov. 18.—[By the Associated Press.]—All South and Central American republics were being informed today that Mexico resented any censorship of its legislation by the United States or other powers and that President Obregon's statement to that effect had secured for him a virtual vote of confidence in the chamber of deputies.

GEN. OBREGON.

This action grew out of a heated debate in the chamber last night following the disclosure of a series of communications which are said to have recently passed between Foreign Secretary Pani and George T. Summerlin, the American chargé d'affaires.

In these communications, Mr. Summerlin, speaking for the American state department, is alleged to have offered suggestions concerning the prospective petroleum law which is to be considered by congress. The Mexican government is represented as holding the opinion that these suggestions were intrusive.

Vindictive Against U. S.

Seldom has there been such an outburst of oratory and vindictive speeches against the United States as was witnessed in the chamber last evening when communications dating back to last October were read. These letters, some of which were mere personal notes between Foreign Secretary Pani and Mr. Summerlin, were interpreted as an encroachment upon the national sovereignty, and the lower house, unanimously approving President Obregon's attitude, voted to inform all Latin-American countries of "the Yankee attempts at imperialism."

According to the communications as published here, Mr. Summerlin on Oct. 19 last wrote a personal note to Secretary Pani enclosing a copy of a draft of a proposed petroleum law and requesting a copy of the official bill as soon as it was prepared. On Oct. 21 Secretary Pani acknowledged the note and on Nov. 15, according to the published memoranda, he received another communication from the American chargé in which the latter said he had received instructions from the state department to inform the Mexican minister "that the proposed petroleum law is entirely inadequate for the protection of rights legally acquired by North Americans."

Obregon Sends Tart Reply.

On Nov. 16 Secretary Pani replied that both he and President Obregon had not been informed of the text of such a law and that President Obregon had sent no such project to congress.

"President Obregon wishes to inform you," the note added, "that the decorum and sovereignty of the nation totally incapacitates it to accept a suggestion that its laws, which are wholly legislative matters, should receive previous censure from the governments of other countries."

This declaration, when read in the chamber, provoked a storm of applause and the discussion resulted in the adoption of a resolution commending the president for his "patriotic sentiment."

Favors Thanking America.

Alvarez Del Castillo, president of the Coöperatista party, which is dominant in the lower house, declared that a vote of thanks was due the United States "for uniting all parties in Mexico against this aggression on the part of the United States."

The newspapers treat the incident as the most sensational news in several months.

Mr. Summerlin declined to make a statement on any phase of the incident.

In some quarters it was said that the text of the communication did not reveal any intention on the part of the United States government to dictate Mexican legislative matters, but were rather intended to constitute helpful suggestions relative to matters of mutual interest to both countries.

Hughes Replies to Obregon.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—[By the Associated Press.]—Charges that the United States has interfered unduly in the drafting of internal legislation in Mexico, which have culminated in an outburst of anti-American sentiment in the Mexican chamber of deputies, were declared by the state department tonight to be wholly unsubstantiated by the facts.

The statement, authorized by Secretary Hughes, follows:

"The officers of the department of state were much surprised to learn of the expressions in Mexico that the United States government was seeking to interfere in Mexico's internal affairs. This government has not the slightest desire to do so. As Secretary Hughes said in his recent speech at Boston, it is not for us to suggest what laws Mexico shall have relating to the future for, of course, Mexico must be the judge of her own domestic policy. What we have said as to the proposed legislation was with the understanding that the Mexican authorities would welcome an expression of our views.

Recognition Depends on It.

"The Mexican régime desires recognition by the United States. The confiscatory policy of Mexico has stood in the way. We have said that when a nation has invited intercourse with other nations, has established laws under which investments have been lawfully made, contracts entered into, and property rights acquired by citizens of other jurisdictions, it is an essential condition of international intercourse that international obligations should be met and that there shall be no resort to confiscation and repudiation.

"We have repeatedly said that we are not particular as to the form of the assurance against confiscation. We desire the fact.

"The Mexican authorities have said that they could not make a treaty to give this assurance against confiscation. They have said that the proper course was for the Mexican congress to regulate the application of the constitution of 1917 as as to preclude confiscation. We have said that we have not stood in the way of such legislation and should be glad to see it.

Proposed Bill Not Satisfactory.

"Recently we were informed that a bill for this purpose had been drafted. But the provisions of this bill, according to our advices, were utterly inadequate to protect against confiscation of valid titles acquired under Mexican law prior to the constitution of 1917.

"Of course we did not desire to rest apparently satisfied with such procedure and permit Mexican authorities to assume that recognition by this government would follow the passage of such an inadequate measure.

"We were given to understand that the department's comment on the proposed measure would not be unwelcome.

Desires Mexico's Friendship.

"We had not the slightest intention of interfering in Mexican affairs and have not done so. The Mexican congress, of course, is entitled to pass its laws. But if they resort to legislation to interpret the constitution of 1917 with the idea of precluding confiscation and obtaining recognition by this government, it is only fair that they should know the views of this government as to the efficacy of the legislation for that purpose.

"Had this government in no way intimated its view before the legislation had been passed there doubtless would have been complaint.

"We desired to maintain friendly relations with the Mexican people and it is in the interest of that friendship that we have hoped they would find a way of giving protection against confiscation.

"Upon that fundamental question the position of this government remains precisely what it has been."

MEXICAN ENVOY PRAISES U. S. FOR ACTION IN TEXAS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—The Mexican embassy is "fully satisfied and very much gratified" with the prompt and energetic action taken by the American state department in response to representations that the Mexican colony at Breckenridge, Tex., was in danger of violence at the hands of armed mobs.

Chargé d'Affaires Manuel C. Tellez said that according to his information the danger of a clash between Mexicans and Americans in the Texas oil belt town seems to have disappeared for the present at least, with the arrival of three Texas rangers dispatched by Gov. Neff.

"The American people do not approve of the promiscuous killing of Mexicans living in this country," he declared. "Nor do the good people of Texas look with friendly eyes upon such events."

Health Restored By Radium

The wonderful curative power of Radium has been known for years. However, the benefits of this precious health-giving substance have in the past been only within the means of persons of wealth.

Since the invention of Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad, any man or woman, poor or rich, can afford this treatment which offers so much relief from suffering and disease.

Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad is worn next to the body day and night. It pours a constant stream of radio-active energy into the system while you work, play or sleep, helping to build up weakened nerves and tissues to a strong, healthy condition. It creates a vigorous circulation of blood, thus removing congestion, which is the real cause of most diseases.

To prove just what this remarkable treatment can do for you, we will send our appliance on trial with the understanding that we will not charge you a cent if it fails to give satisfactory results. This offer is open to any person who has pain of any kind, nerve weakness, high blood pressure, stomach, kidney or liver complaint, bladder trouble, or disease of the lungs or heart.

No matter what your ailment or how long you have had it, we will gladly let you try the appliance at our risk. Write today for free literature giving complete information.

Statesmen Point to Laws Creating Paternalism.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

ARTICLE I.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Is our union of free and independent states in danger of being swamped by a rising tide of paternalism?

The tendency to let Uncle Sam do what the framers of the American constitution intended the states should do, without interference, is increasing admittedly, and whether this is a beneficial or an evil tendency is becoming one of the great issues of the hour.

The tendency also toward federal coöperation with and assistance to the states in developing their resources, to the benefit alike of the state and nation, is equally viewed with alarm in some quarters, while in others it is regarded as a natural and desirable exercise of constitutional powers to meet the changing needs of the country.

State Rights Resurrected.

The century old controversy over state sovereignty, which our fathers and grandfathers thought settled by a war in which the nation was born again, now reappears to trouble the present generation. But the old battle lines have given way to new ones our forebears would not recognize.

Now northerners call to southerners to rise again in defense of state rights from federal encroachments, while southerners join with northerners in justifying a greater centralization of government in the name of progress.

Some there are who think the issue destined to figure prominently in the 1924 presidential election, while others conjure forth a vision of the new state rights question splitting the old parties and forming new ones.

A great many statesmen and other eminent public men view with the gravest misgivings the transfer to the central government of the functions of local self-government which the nation's fundamental charter lodged with the states.

Point to Three Amendments.

Looking backward, they note the prohibition, Negro enfranchisement, and woman suffrage amendments to the constitution, the Mann white slave, public health, anti-lottery, pure food, anti-narcotic drug, trade commission, oleomargarine, meat inspection, packing house control, farm loan, grain exchange regulation, and Adamson railway labor acts and declare that we already have gone far along the road leading away from the division of authority between the national and state governments conceived by the fathers.

They see indirect but insidious federal encroachment in laws providing for national participation in the construction of highways, for protection of children, for coöperative vocational education, and rehabilitation of persons disabled in industry, for aids to agriculture, for maternity and infancy care, for promotion of social hygiene, for protection of women in industry, and for other local purposes.

They perceive with apprehension efforts to obtain national legislation to suppress child labor, to promote education, to compel local enforcement of anti-lynching laws, to regulate marriage and divorce, to censor moving pictures, books and newspapers, to suppress gun toting, to enforce observance of the Sabbath day, to suppress gambling, and to achieve numerous other purposes falling within the province of state regulation.

How Far Will We Go?

How far, they ask, do we intend to go in the direction of the centralization of government? If we keep on, the fundamental principle of the constitution will be destroyed, the distinction between federal and state powers will be wiped out, the state governments will grow weak and flabby through disuse of their powers, and at last the states will "fade from the picture."

"A government from Washington by commission," says Senator Borah [Idaho], "reduced to its last analysis is no different from a government by satrapies from Rome. And simply because the people of the states do not see fit at any particular time to exercise the powers reserved for them, that is in itself no justification for the government to exercise those powers."

Borah and Root Agree.

Mr. Borah sees the danger of the obliteration of the states, but he is not sure it can be wholly averted. If the states fail to exercise their functions the national government more and more will invade the province of local self government and the senator takes his stand with Elihu Root, who said:

"The governmental control which they [the people] deem just and necessary, they will have; maybe such control will be better exercised in particular instances by the governments of the states, but the people will have the control they need either from the states or from the national government; and if the states fail to furnish it in due measure, sooner or later constructions of the constitution will be found to vest the power where it will be exercised—in the national government.

"The true and only way to preserve state authority is to be found in the awakened conscience of the states, their broadened views and higher standard of responsibility to the general public; in effective legislation by the states, in conformity to the general moral sense of the country; and in the vigorous exercise for the general public good of the state authority which is to be preserved."

See Passing of States.

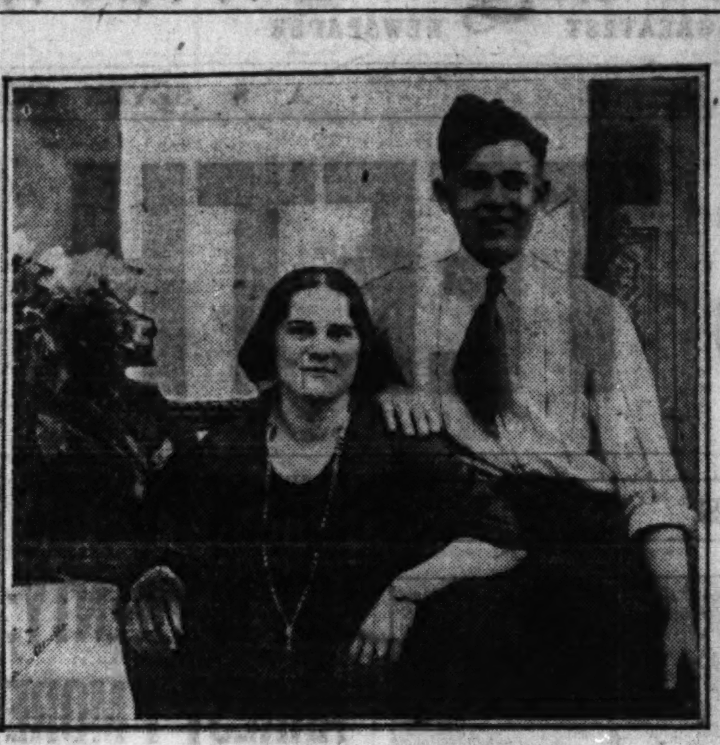
Representative Burton [Ohio] thinks the passing of the states as the entities originally conceived is inevitable.

"Whatever our views of state rights may be we must recognize that under present day conditions in the solution of national questions state boundaries are becoming vanishing traces on the map," he said. "I count myself as one who deplores that tendency.

"We must face conditions as they are. The growth of federal jurisdiction is very much accentuated not merely by interstate relations, but by the limitations and occasional inefficiency of state governments.

"We are all familiar with the interstate commerce laws, the anti-trust laws, the pure food laws. Then there are the Mann white slave act and the Adamson law, which go to the very verge. All these indicate change of jurisdiction nad change of conditions. Measures which would have been regarded as utterly unconstitutional 100 years ago have been approved by practically a unanimous decision."

NEW POISONING FIGURES



MR. AND MRS. NICK MICKE.

The husband is suffering from arsenical poisoning and his wife and mother-in-law, Mrs. Mazorka, the latter a sister of Mrs. Nellie Stermer Koulik, have been arrested. Micke says his mother-in-law recently took out insurance on his life without his knowledge.

FORMER CASHIER AT BLACKSTONE GOES TO PRISON

Found guilty of embezzling $1,950 from the Blackstone hotel by a jury in Judge John A. Swanson's court yesterday, James Boyd, former cashier, was sentenced to from one to ten years in prison.

Checks sent to the cashier in payment of hotel bills, according to prominent guests who testified, had been converted to Boyd's own use.

Among those who testified were John B. Drake and Tracy Drake, owners of the Drake hotel; L. A. Clarke, machinery manufacturer, and L. Myers, civil engineer and contractor.

A Wilson and a Harding Exchange Compliments

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 18.—When the army transport Cambria docked here, Maj. Lewis C. Wilson, cousin of Woodrow Wilson, came gallantly down the gangplank carrying the luggage of Miss Elizabeth Harding, army nurse and cousin of President Harding.

"You bet, we are good friends," said Maj. Wilson.

"Maj. Wilson certainly is a nice man," commented Miss Harding.

MAKES THE DEAF HEAR.

Remarkable Invention Enables the Deaf to Hear All Sounds Clearly.

Every one who is troubled with deafness in any form will be interested in the announcement of the Dictograph Products Corporation, Suite 1301, No. 220 West 42d street, New York, that they have at last perfected a device which will enable every one whose auditory nerve is not entirely destroyed to hear as perfectly as one whose hearing is normal. To test it thoroughly they sent it to a number of people who had been deaf for years and they report most gratifying results. Many state that they hear the slightest sound with perfect ease and that their natural hearing has been greatly improved.

The manufacturers are so proud of their achievement and so confident that every deaf person will be amazed and delighted with it that they offer to send it to any one by prepaid parcel post on ten days' free trial. They do not ship C. O. D., nor do they require any deposit, but send it entirely at their own risk and expense, allowing the user ten full days to try it and decide whether they want to keep it or not. As there is no obligation whatever, every one who is troubled with deafness in any form should take advantage of this liberal free trial offer. Just send them your name and address for descriptive literature and free trial request blank.—Adv.

KLIMEK POISON LIST PUT AT 20; ARREST ONE MORE

Sister of Mrs. Koulik the Latest Accused.

longed to Mrs. Walter Biering, living at 924 North Winchester avenue, in the rear of Mrs. Klimek's home. When the dog became ill, it was taken to the veterinary hospital of W. E. Hunse, 1904 West North avenue, where it lingered two weeks before dying. Dr. Hunse declares the dog displayed all of the symptoms of arsenical poisoning seen in human beings, and is convinced that this was the cause of its death.

Indictments to Be Asked.

The state's attorney's office, on being apprised of the findings of Chemist William D. McNally, began preparations to go before the grand jury tomorrow to ask that indictments charging murder be returned against Mrs. Klimek and her cousin, Mrs. Nellie Stermer Koulik. It was stated that there is now plenty of evidence to show that husbands were gained through matrimonial agencies and that, after they had taken out insurance, were poisoned with arsenic.

Bodies to Be Exhumed.

The other bodies to be taken from their graves are those of Dorothy Spera, 2 year old granddaughter of Mrs. Koulik; Sophia and Benjamin Stermer, children of Mrs. Koulik, who died in 1907; Helen and Stanley Zakrzewski, relatives of Mrs. Klimek, who died three years apart.

Illness of Mrs. Klimek's present husband, found to be due to arsenic, led to her arrest. It was then discovered that her third husband had been poisoned and his body, exhumed by Coroner Hoffman, was found to contain arsenic, making a total of four husbands alleged to have been poisoned by the 40 year old woman.

H. G. Wells Last in Contest for Seat in Parliament

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 18.—[By Tribune Wireless.]—H. G. Wells, famous author, has failed in his effort to enter parliament as a representative of London university. The returns issued today show him at the bottom of the poll with 1,427 votes, compared with 3,833 for the winner, Sir Sydney Russell-Wells, a Conservative, and 2,180 for Prof. A. F. Pollard, a Liberal.

100 Killed, Many Wounded in Ecuador Strike Battle

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 18.—Private dispatches from Guayaquil, Ecuador, given out by La Prensa, report that 100 persons were killed and many wounded in a battle between strikers and regular troops at Guayaquil yesterday. The dispatches say that political complications are threatened.

Court Paroles Dog Which Once Saved a Life

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 18.—On the owner's tearful plea that the dog be spared because it had saved his baby's life during a fire, Police Magistrate Frank Hall reversed a death penalty and paroled the dog, which had bitten a colored man on the leg, the victim asking that the animal be shot.

'Mrs. Bluebeards' of Klimek Case and 20 Alleged Victims

Three women are now held and one is under surveillance for participation in what Assistant State's Attorney William F. McLaughlin says is the most astounding wholesale poisoning plot ever uncovered. They are:

MRS. TILLIE KLIMEK, 1453 Tell place, who was arrested on Oct. 26, after the illness of her husband, Joseph Klimek, had been reported by a physician to Coroner's Chemist William D. McNally, who found that he was seriously ill of arsenical poisoning. On Oct. 27, Mrs. Klimek is said to have confessed to the police that she poisoned her husband because of jealousy. This confession later was retracted. Klimek is recovering slowly.

MRS. NELLIE STERMER-KOULIK, 1419 Wade street, cousin of Mrs. Klimek, arrested on Oct. 27, after being implicated by alleged confession of Mrs. Klimek. Mrs. Klimek said she was given the poison by Mrs. Koulik.

MRS. CORNELIA KOZLOWSKI, 1410 West Division street, sister of Mrs. Koulik and likewise cousin of Mrs. Klimek, who was taken into custory last night, when Nick Micke, 2035 West Superior street, a victim of arsenical poisoning, told the police that she had taken out a $1,000 insurance policy on him.

MRS. NICK MICKE, 2035 West Superior street, wife of the latest victim and daughter of Mrs. Kozlowski, who is said by her husband to have paid visits to Mrs. Klimek. She was released, but is watched.

Alleged Poisoning Victims.

A list of the victims of the alleged plot, which Lieut. Willard Malone, in charge of the police investigation, declares is incomplete, includes:

1. Joseph Mitkiewitz. First husband of Mrs. Klimek. Died Jan. 13, 1914. One thousand dollars insurance. Body exhumed Nov. 11; found to contain arsenic.
2. Joseph Ruskowski. Mrs. Klimek's second husband. Married Feb. 17, 1914. Died three months later. Left $1,200 cash and $722 insurance. Body exhumed Nov. 11; contained arsenic.
3. Frank Kupczyk. Third husband of Mrs. Klimek. Married March, 1919. Died April 25, 1921. Left $1,000 insurance. Arsenic found in body; exhumed on Oct. 31.
4. Joseph Klimek. Present husband of Mrs. Klimek, whom she married in 1921. Insured for small amount, which Mrs. Klimek urged him to increase. Reported dying of arsenical poisoning at West Side hospital.
5. Joseph Grantkowski, 2031 Homer street. Former sweetheart of Mrs. Klimek, who jilted her. Died in fall of 1914. Body exhumed Nov. 13; analysis under way.
6. Mrs. Rose Chudzinski, 2241 Lister street. Cousin of Mrs. Klimek. Died in 1919, soon after attending wedding supper of Frank Kupczyk and Mrs. Klimek. Body exhumed Nov. 11; analysis under way.
7. Miss Helen Zakrzewski. Cousin of Mrs. Klimek. Died in 1915, at age of 15.
8. Stanley Zakrzewski. Mrs. Klimek's cousin. Died in 1912, age 16.
9. Stella Zakrzewski. Cousin of Mrs. Klimek. Died in 1913 when 23 years old.

[The above three are children of Mrs. Francis Zakrzewski, 2013 Carolina street, an aunt of Mrs. Klimek, with whom she lived for several years. They quarreled, but became reconciled, and Mrs. Klimek attended the three children while they were ill. Exhumation orders for the three bodies have been asked.]

10. "Meyers." A husband or sweetheart of Mrs. Klimek concerning whom little is known. Missing.
11. Wojcik Stermer. First husband of Mrs. Koulik. Died in 1918. Body exhumed Nov. 4; contained arsenic.
12. Dorothy Spera. Granddaughter of Mrs. Koulik. Died at age of 2 years. Was attended by Mrs. Koulik while ill. Order signed for exhumation.
13. Sophie Stermer. Daughter of Mrs. Koulik. Died 1917. Body ordered exhumed.
14. Benjamin Stermer. Son of Mrs. Koulik and twin brother of Sophie, who died one month after his sister. The twins were born during the life of Stermer, but were said by him to be the children of Koulik, present husband, at that time a roomer with the Stermers.
15. John Stermer. Son of Mrs. Koulik. Taken ill at time of father's death in 1918, but recovered. Says illness was caused by arsenic administered by mother. Is aiding police.
16. Mrs. Rose Splitt. Says she was poisoned by candy given to her by Mrs. Klimek and believes Mrs. Klimek was jealous because she had been talking to Mr. Klimek, who then lived in the same building.
17. Miss Stella Grantkowski. Sister of Joseph Grantkowski, former sweetheart of Mrs. Klimek. Told assistant state's attorney Mrs. Klimek had confessed to her brother that she poisoned her first two husbands. Given candy by Mrs. Klimek after a quarrel and became ill.
18. Nick Micke, 2035 West Superior street. Son-in-law of Mrs. Cornelia Kozlowski, sister of Mrs. Koulik and cousin of Mrs. Klimek, whose life was insured by Mrs. Kozlowski. Found yesterday to be suffering from arsenical poisoning.
19. Mrs. Bessie Kupczyk, 1316 Wade street, wife of Vincent Kupczyk, brother of Frank Kupczyk, former husband of Mrs. Klimek. Told TRIBUNE reporter she was taken ill after eating at Mrs. Klimek's. Under care of doctor.
20. Miss Lillian Stermer, 15 years old, daughter of Mrs. Koulik. Lived at Mrs. Klimek's home for one year when 13 years old. Made deathly sick by food. Suffering from heart trouble and under doctor's care. Lieut. Malone desires examination by Chemist McNally.

Post-War Subway Work to Cost London $74,800,000

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 19.—[By Tribune Wireless.]—Extensive subway extensions to cost more than £6,000,000 (about $26,400,000) were announced by the subway company today. The improvements will take the form of a long extension southward to almost the open country beyond the limits of the city. When all done, the work will represent an outlay of more than £17,000,000 (about $74,800,000) in subway improvements, spent since the close of the war.

Seek Queer Auto Thief Who Dislikes Own Choice

A thief who has been operating on the north side for ten days, stealing automobile parts and spare tires, which he subsequently left in other garages where other parts have been stolen, is being sought by the police and private detectives. Recently the man stole a spare wheel, with a tire on it, and then threw it over a fence a few blocks from the spot where he had taken it, it is said. He operates, according to the police, in a district bounded by Thorndale avenue, Clark street, Devon avenue, and Broadway.

CO-EDS BUSY SPREADING CHEER

TIGER COMES TO CEMENT AMITY OF U. S., FRANCE

Denies French Militarism; Sees Coming Crisis.

New York, Nov. 18.—[By the Associated Press.]—Georges Clemenceau, wartime premier of France, came to America today on a mission of peace.

The fiery old Tiger earnestly voiced the purpose of his tour in a brief response at city hall to an address of welcome by Acting Mayor Hulbert.

"In the world at this time," he declared, "is a crisis which hasn't been settled. How it will end, nobody knows. If you take the wrong side—well, the war counts for nothing and we may have to go to war again. If it turns out right, and the right thing is done at the right time, then it will be the greatest step for the civilization of mankind."

Welcomed as a Diplomat.

Although he came as a private citizen, the famous French statesman was accorded the honors of a diplomat. Red tape was cut by Washington to facilitate his landing. A personal representative of President Harding—Assistant Secretary of State Bliss—went down the bay to welcome him and invite him to the White House. Jules J. Jusserand, the French ambassador to the United States, was on hand to put the stamp of his government's approval on the visit.

Clemenceau had scarcely set foot on shore when a telegram from another famous world war figure was handed him. The message from Woodrow Wilson read:

"Allow me to bid you wlecome to America where you will find none but friends."

The Tiger, who had worked at Versailles with Wilson, for the league of nations, hastened to scribble this reply:

Answers Wilson's Message.

"Deeply touched by your kind message. Please accept my kindest regards and wishes. Am looking forward with great pleasure to seeing you in Washington."

The rest of the day was one of madcap adventure for the aged statesman, and he went to it with a vim that belied his 81 years.

The keen eyes beneath the shaggy brows were sparkling and snapping with excitement when the committee that went down the bay to greet him first caught sight of him, high up on the promenade deck of the Paris.

Followed a swift trip up the bay, with Clemenceau jesting and chatting and craning over the shoulders of the group that surrounded him for a glimpse of the Statue of Liberty.

Woman Gives Him Rose.

"Really magnificent," was his verdict.

A few minutes later he was whirled up the cañon of lower Broadway behinde a brass band and an escort of mounted police. A woman tossed him a red rose, and he waved it smilingly to the cheering thousands.

The cavalcade stopped at the city hall long enough for Acting Mayor Hulbert to welcome the distinguished visitor and for Clemenceau to outline the purpose of his visit.

Then he was taken to the Gibson home, where he consented to lie down for a brief rest, but soon was up demanding to be taken to the American Museum of Natural History. He wanted to see the hall of mastodons.

In vain did Col. House expostulate that it would be too tiring. Clemenceau wanted to see the mastadons, and see the mastadons he did—for forty-five minutes, darting eagerly from one exhibit to another.

Then he had another exciting careen through Central park, down 7th avenue to the Metropolitan opera house to hear Chaliapin as Mephistopheles.

Sing the Marseillaise.

The act stopped and the Metropolitan orchestra swung into the strains of the "Marseillaise" as he entered. Cries of "Vive le Tiger!" and "Vive la France!" rose from the pit. He stepped into the box smiling and bowing. Then he retired to a seat in the rear.

He was brought back for a moment, however, when the orchestra started "The Star-Spangled Banner" and the great audience, with its faces upturned toward his box, sang the anthem for him.

Tomorrow will be a relatively quiet day for the "Tiger." The only thing planned for him is a ride down Long Island. He will take luncheon at the Cold Springs Harbor home of Otto H. Kahn, banker. Then he will motor to Oyster Bay to lay a wreath on the grave of Theodore Roosevelt.

Address at City Hall.

At the city hall M. Clemenceau was hailed by Acting Mayor Hulbert as "the most distinguished citizen of our sister republic."

In his reply M. Clemenceau paid tribute to America's part in the world war, saying:

"We have had a terrific, the greatest war that ever was in the world. Men fell by hundreds of thousands in that war, and we waited very long sometimes and we looked around to see if some help would not come.

"Help did come, and it came magnificently, I must say, in the shape of the American soldier. I can speak of it as having seen it on the fields, and I have seen it, too, on the farm. Very often I met at the peasants' homes a big, huge American with two children on his knees, telling stories to them and trying to understand the questions that the old men and women would ask about America.

They All Were Friends.

"Of course he did not speak French more than the other spoke English. Some way or other they made themselves understood. Very soon we discovered they were all friends.

"I have seen them—the Americans—in the fight, and I have seen them in the field when the Americans, under the command of Gen. Pershing, took hold marvelously at St. Mihiel, releasing a great many people. When I arrived the next day what did I see? All the American motors in the old city full of French women and children and flowers. These poor people who had not been allowed to get out of their dens for three years were rescued by the Americans.

"One day in the highway I met a troop of soldiers going home and they made me feel sad when they spoke of the old country.

"They said: 'Won't you come to America some day?' I said: 'No, I am too old; I cannot think of going there.' I said, 'You make me make speeches and it tires my lungs. I have very few of them left, poor, miserable things.' They said, 'You do come.' 'I won't go,' I said, and for years and years I said, 'I won't go.'

France Called Imperialistic.

"One morning I was in my private house bordering on the sea on the other side of the water, when I received bad news from America. I heard bad names. We were called imperalists and militarists. I think that is horrid and I thought I had better go and tell them how things happened to pass and to show them that their judgment was not correct.

"One day a British newspaper arrived. It contained criticisms from an American of very high standing, calling France bad names. At that moment I decided I had better go to America. That is the reason why I am here. I do not make sentences. I don't promise anything. I come, as you very well know, on a mission.

World Faces Crisis.

"It is necessary, because in the world at this time, there is a crisis that hasn't been settled yet. How it will end nobody knows. If you take the wrong side—well, then the war counts for nothing and we may have to go to war again. If it turns out right, and the right thing is done at the right time, then it will be one of the greatest steps for the civilization of mankind.

"That is the question I have come to put to America. I will ask them for great freedom of thought and great freedom of speech. I must be allowed to speak as a free man to free men who are not afraid of anything. Your greetings encourage me to believe that I will get access to American minds. It will be a great satisfaction to me.

"I looked at this country from the Battery. It has not changed as much as it seems. The young ladies look exactly the same, and that is the first message I am going to send to my country. I am going to tell my countrymen to come here because there are beautiful ladies to look at.

Seen France Invaded Twice.

"During over fifty years I have been mixed up with all of the worst crises of France—think of that. In my own life I have seen my country invaded twice by Germans. I am the only survivor of those who protested at the assembly at Bordeaux against the act of invasion. I do not want to see that invasion repeated.

"I will not permit any one to tell me that we have too many soldiers or too few soldiers, unless they succeed in some way in giving us our guarantees. Then only, with the greatest of pleasure, will we dissolve the French army.

"Will you Americans show us the similar feeling? We must defend ourselves."

NO OPEN SEASON ON CAMERA MEN, TIGER FINDS, SO HE POSES

New York, Nov. 18.—[By the Associated Press.] — Former Premier Georges Clemenceau seemed bewildered when he saw the army of newspaper reporters, photographers and movie men, more than seventy-five strong, which had come down the harbor to greet him. He met a broadside of questions with the statement that he was prepared to respond with a certain number of "yeses" and an equal number of "noes," which the reporters could distribute in their copy as they saw fit.

Then came a rush of photographers.

"O, isn't there somebody to kill these photographers?" cried the Tiger, plaintively. "Is it not permissible in your country?"

But he posed.

On Kindness Bent

Members of eighteen sororities of Northwestern university who have abjured dances to devote the money that would be spent on their pleasure to promote a campaign of kindness are now well on their way to realize their hopes to the fullest.

Yesterday they had their guests for this week-end twenty-five employed girls who make their home at Y. W. C. A. residences, at the football game between Northwestern and Monmouth, and the visitors enjoyed the scrimmages fully as heartily as the co-eds who had them in tow.

Following the game dinner was served in Willard hall, and after this dancing was indulged in, when the guests were the center of interest of the evening. This morning the girls will be taken to churches in Evanston, and this afternoon at 3 o'clock will assemble in Willard hall.

The sororities will turn $2,500, raised each year in $3 individual assessments for the annual "hops," into a Christmas fund for poor children of Evanston.

VENISON TO ADD ZEST TO ADDRESS OF GOV. BLAINE

Guests of the Chicago Association of Commerce at the luncheon next Wednesday afternoon at Hotel La Salle, when Gov. John J. Blaine of Wisconsin will speak on the merits of Wisconsin products, will be treated to real Wisconsin venison steaks and chops.

W. E. Barber of the Wisconsin state conservation commission announced yesterday that he had shipped two large deer and three doe to this city as the state's contribution to the special Wisconsin menu. The deer were confiscated by the state commission from hunters who had shot them illegally.

Gov. Blaine will be escorted by a committee of fifty prominent Wisconsin farmers and manufacturers.

Nearly All Seats Taken for Clemenceau's Speech

So many persons want to hear the speech to be made by Georges Clemenceau when he arrives here Nov. 28 that all seats in the Auditorium have been reserved excepting some in the gallery and a few boxes, it was said yesterday. The remaining gallery tickets can be obtained free at the headquarters of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations, under auspices of which the meeting to be addressed by the "Tiger of France" will be held.

BRITAIN RETURNS TO PROSPERITY, FIGURES SHOW

Great Revival in Trade Is Reported.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Nov. 18.—[By Tribune Wireless.]—Remarkable figures, proving a revival in British trade and a return to prosperity, were published today by the London Daily Express, which declares the slump is now definitely over.

London clearing banks increased loans to customers by £12,000,000 (about $52,800,000) in October over September, which is an infallible sign of increasing business activity, says the Express. The postoffice income, which it had been estimated would show a deficit for the year of £5,000,000 (about $22,000,000), already shows an increase of £2,500,000 (about $11,000,000), although charges descreased, while stamps for commercial documents, instead of the estimated decrease of £2,750,000 (about $12,100,000), shows an increase of £1,800,000 ($7,920,000).

Income Taxes Increase.

Customs receipts were £6,000,000 (about $26,400,000) in excess of budget estimates and corporations tax receipts were £3,500,000 (about $15,400,000) over last year, instead of the estimated fall of £10,000,000 (about $44,000,000). Income tax receipts went up £7,000,000 (about $30,800,000) compared with the same period last year, although it was estimated there would be a drop of £81,000,000 (about $356,400,000) for the year.

Unemployment is decreasing, the number out of work now being 1,300,000, as compared with 1,837,0000 last February.

The shipping test also is good. Ships entering and clearing with cargoes in British ports during the last ten months carried 85,000,000 tons, or 25,000,000 tons more than last year.

Big Order from United States.

The coal production for the last week was 5,500,000 tons, which was up to pre-war records. About 1,113,000 men are now employed in the mines.

It was also announced that Richard Thomas, South Wales tinplate makers, received an order for 150,000 boxes from the Standard Oil company. This is the first important American order for Welsh plate.

HYLAN PRAISES PARKS HERE, BUT TRAFFIC— ! ! !

Mayor John F. Hylan of New York, who came to Chicago last Tuesday for a post-election rest, last night lolled back in an easy chair of his apartment at the Edgewater Beach hotel and discoursed on the bounties and beauties of the "second most wonderful city in this country."

"I have been here several days," said Mr. Hylan, "and, in an effort to recuperate from the strain of the recent campaign, I have done little but loaf about the hotel here and drive in and near Chicago. The city's park system is a challenge to the nation."

By way of tempering an effusion of praise, perhaps, Mayor Hylan said the traffic congestion here is "deplorable," urging Chicago to fall in line with New York's plan to "rip surface line tracks from the streets, particularly in crowded portions of the city."

This afternoon New York's mayor, escorted by Edward Hines, will inspect Speedway hospital. He will return to New York tomorrow evening, with Grover A. Whelan, a member of his cabinet, who accompanied Mr. Hylan here.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR.

Beats Electric or Gas.

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and thirty-five leading universities and found to be superior to ten ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke, or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, L. P. Johnson, 609 West Lake street, Chicago, is offering to send a lamp on ten days' FREE trial, or even to give one to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.—Adv.

La Follette Bugle at Capital Calls Progressive Meeting

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Brandishing the sword of progressivism and shouting defiance to the administration, Senator Robert M. La Follette [Wis.], reënthused by the greatest vote he ever received, returned to Washington today issuing a call in the name of the people's legislative service, for a conference here Friday, Dec. 1, of all Progressive senators and representatives and progressives recently elected for the organization of an active working group in congress.

This conference will be followed the next day by an assemblage of influential progressive men and women of the country to discuss a program of constructive policies and measures.

Progressives, Senator La Follette announced, were advancing to Washington to "translate the results of the elections into legislation."

Silent on Third Party.

Asserting that the "time has now come for the organization of a well defined group, coöperating in support of accepted Progressive principles and policies," the militant Wisconsin senator declared that he was prepared to discuss definite plans of action with other progressive members of the house and senate. He shied, however, at talk of a third party at this time admitting, however, the possibility of such a development.

Senator La Follette proclaimed his intention to fight to the end the administration ship subsidy bill and proposed amendments to strengthen the Esch-Cummins transportation act.

"I am near sighted when it comes to looking for a third party," he said when asked if such course might be necessary to meet the political situation. "No group of men getting together and adopting a resolution can successfully launch a new party. When the time is ripe a new party may be born, but it will come through a resistless demand of the people."

"People Have Given Mandate."

"As a result of the elections, a situation has been created which, to my mind, calls for definite action on the part of progressives in congress. The people have given them a mandate which cannot be ignored.

"For several years a small number of progressives in both parties have been in disagreement with the most important policies of those who have been for the time in positions of party leadership.

"Although it has been apparent that the broad aims and purposes of these progressives were in harmony, the necessary elements have not been present for the formation of an aggressive group, united upon a program of positive action.

"Nevertheless, in a time of great reaction, the progressives in congress, acting without any concerted plan, have defeated many vicious pieces of legislation and have presented alternative policies which have commanded general public confidence.

"The time has now come for the organization of a well-defined group, coöperating in support of accepted progressive principles and policies."

Capper Fights Subsidy Bill.

Coincident with Senator La Follette's announcement, Senator Capper [Kas.], leader of the bi-partisan farm bloc in the senate, announced the farm bloc's program for the next two years. It is plainly hostile to the Harding administration.

Mr. Capper put out a list of things which he says the Republican party must do in order to insure its retention in power. It must pass legislation helpful to the farmers, repeal the guarantee section of the Esch-Cummins act, provide adoption of a constitutional amendment prohibiting tax-exempt securities, "put the development of the Muscle Shoals projects in the hands of Henry Ford, tax stock dividends, reduce freight charges and make greater economies in the administration of government."

There is not a word about the tariff. One interesting feature is a declaration that the Republican party "must do whatever this nation can do to promote European recovery and the restoration of a foreign market for the surplus products of our farms and factories."

Senator Capper declared that the Republican party lost the labor vote on Nov. 7. and was saved by the farmers.

Woman Knocked Down but Hangs On to Purse Snatcher

There was an excited surge of shopping pedestrians yesterday afternoon as Mrs. Augusta Knott, 58 years old, fell to the sidewalk from a blow struck by a robust young man. But, despite her years, Mrs. Knott, who lives at 2637 Armitage avenue, had not "taken the count." Before the crowd could close in on her assailant, an alleged pickpocket, she was on her feet and one William Murray, 23 South Halsted street, was in her clutch. Mrs. Knott told police Murray, who was arrested, had attempted to wrest from her a purse, and, failing, had knocked her down.

WOMAN LIKELY TO BE SENATOR FOR DAY ONLY

Precedent Could Bar Mrs. Felton; May Not.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—Mrs. W. H. Felton came to Washington today from her home in Georgia with the announced intention of seeking the distinction of being the first woman to sit in the United States senate. Whether her ambition will be realized, however, apparently will not be determined until after congress convenes at noon next Monday.

Mrs. Felton was appointed on Oct. 2 by Gov. Hardwick to the place made vacant by the death of Senator Thomas E. Watson. Since that time, however, Walter F. George has been elected to fill out Mr. Watson's unexpired term and he, too, holds a commission for the seat Mrs. Felton seeks.

Senate leaders agree with Gov. Hardwick that Mrs. Felton has no legal right to a senate place, but said today they were not disposed to interpose objection unless Mr. George should make demand for his seat Monday. Mr. George has announced he will do all he can legally to aid Mrs. Felton in fulfilling her desire to sit in the senate, if only for a day.

However, it was agreed at a conference today between Vice President Coolidge and Chairman Curtis of the senate rules committee that, irrespective of Mr. George's attitude, if any individual senator offered objection, Mrs. Felton could not be sworn in if precedent were followed. This precedent was made by former Vice President Marshall in the case of former Senator Benet of South Carolina, appointed to succeed the late Senator Tillman.

GERMAN PARTY QUARRELS BALK CUNO'S CABINET

Ebert Begs Leaders to Join Coalition.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

WILHELM CUNO.
[U. & U. Photo.]

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—Twice today Wilhelm Cuno, president of the Hamburg-American line, discouraged by obstacles of interparty jealousy, informed President Ebert it was impossible for him to form a cabinet, and twice the latter begged him to continue his efforts. The last time, late this evening, President Ebert promised he personally would appeal to the party leaders to drop their squabbles.

President Ebert immediately called a conference of all party leaders and begged them to allow any member invited to participate in the new cabinet to accept regardless of party interest. He declared Germany is facing a crisis and it is the patriotic duty of every party to sacrifice personal interests for the good of the nation.

Three Parties Agree.

The leaders of the Center or Catholic party, which threw the first monkey wrench into Herr Cuno's efforts by refusing to permit Herr Hermes, a member of their party, to participate owing to his row with former Chancellor Wirth, immediately withdrew their opposition. The Industrials and Democrats also consented to help.

The Socialists, who, although demanding a representation in the cabinet, refuse to allow the Industrials the same right, are holding their answer in abeyance until a meeting of the entire party can be held Monday.

Newspapers are extremely pessimistic. The situation reacted on the bourse, shooting the mark down from 6,700 to 7,300 to the dollar.

Disbands Military Societies.

In issuing orders today dissolving the Nationalist Socialist German Workers' union and the so-called Rosbach organization in Prussia, which corresponds somewhat to the Italian Fascisti, Herr Severing, Prussian minister of the interior, gives a detailed exposé of their secret activities for a coup d'etat and a military dictatorship.

He declared both were secret military organizations coöperating with Herr Hittler's "Gray Shirts" in Bavaria. All three organizations are formed in "storm troop" units and are said to have 500,000 members.

INDIAN SCALPERS

Two "wild westers" whose expedition to hunt pesky redskins was marred yesterday.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Hunt Goes Awry

An expedition to scalp Indians in the wild and woolly west came to a premature end yesterday morning when Arthur McKiel Jr., 8 years old (at right), and his brother, Robert, 7 years old, 2216 North Kimball avenue, and William Peterson, 9 years old, 3334 Palmer street, were found by the Shakespeare avenue police.

The lads disappeared Friday, according to police, taking with them a few kitchen knives and small hatchets to aid in their warlike mission. After walking as far as the Healy station on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad they made camp for the night.

Rain and cold made the night unpropitious for camping, according to their story, so they went into the station to sleep. There they were found by police.

DRAWS THREE MONTHS AS ROBBER.

A sentence of three months in the house of correction and a fine of $1 and costs were imposed by Judge La Buy on Joseph Lyam, 1108 South Leavitt street, arrested in the act of robbing a watchman in the Sunset garage, 2130 Ogden avenue.

World's Biggest Highball Sent to Davy Jones' Locker

New York, Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Capt. Tawes of the Hahn, of the prohibition navy, mixed a mighty highball Thursday, of the capacity of about a cubic acre, twelve miles off the Long island shore, it became known today. With the aid of a depth bomb he mixed 9,600 quarts of Scotch with the surrounding sea water. The whisky, 800 cases of it, was in a launch whisky runner starting shoreward last week. It was overwhelmed by heavy seas and sank.

HALL DEATH LAID TO JOHN DOE AND THE 2 ROE BOYS

New Brunswick, N. J., Nov. 18.—The first official step in the roundup of witnesses to appear before the grand jury on Monday to testify in the Hall-Mills murder case was taken up today when a writ of habeas corpus for Raymond Schneider, who found the bodies of the minister and the sexton's wife, was given to the sheriff of Middlesex county.

Schneider is in the local jail on charges of perjury in connection with his pseudo confession several weeks ago, and also on a charge of impairing the morals of Pearl Bahmer, who was with him when the bodies were found. A writ of habeas corpus was necessary for this reason.

In the legal wording of the writ demanding Schneider's appearance before the grand jury observers perceive an indication of a change in the plans for indictments.

"To testify against John Doe, Richard Roe and Thomas Roe," is the phrase used.

Although it has been previously believed that indictments would be asked for two men and a woman, the legal fictitious name for a woman, "Jane Doe," is not used in the writ. Whether this was through oversight or because the prosecution has decided to ask indictments for three men was not made known.

As the preparations are being completed for the presentation of evidence to the grand jury, without any official announcement of the number or names of witnesses to be called, unofficial tabulations show that fifty-two persons have been mentioned in connection with the case in the nine weeks since the finding of the bodies.

The grand jury which will weigh the evidence has three women among its members.

SAFETY COUNCIL OFFICIALS PLAN TO EXTEND WORK

Organization and financing of safety councils in the big cities of the country was discussed yesterday at a luncheon given forty-four secretaries of as many organizations by the national body in Chicago. The conference is a preliminary to the meeting of the executive committee and directors of the national council which opens tomorrow. It was held in room 1144 of the Continental and Commercial National Bank building.

L. A. De Blois, vice president of the national council, presided at the conference and led the discussion concerning the continued organization of schools, churches, and civic bodies in the educational campaign for prevention of accidents in cities.

Representatives from Detroit, St. Louis, Kansas City, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Boston, New York, Buffalo, and other cities will attend the general meeting tomorrow.

DOCTOR NABBED AS SWINDLER OF POLISH TOILERS

Dr. Adam Kasparek, who fled Chicago last April after swindling hundreds of stockyards Polish people out of their life's savings, according to the police, was arrested yesterday in Minneapolis, thus ending a man hunt which extended through several states. Sergts. Edward Birmingham and John J. McGinnis of the detective bureau will leave tomorrow for Minneapolis to bring Kasparek to Chicago.

Police say Dr. Kasparek posed as a journalist and claimed to be influential with the Polish and Russian governments. In this manner he gained the confidence of the Polish working people who wanted to bring relatives from the old country. They would intrust the doctor with the money for railroad and steamship tickets. This he pocketed for his personal use, the police claim.

HARBORD QUITS ARMY TO HEAD RADIO COMPANY

General Began Striking Career as Private.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

MAJ. GEN. J. G. HARBORD.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Maj. Gen. J. G. Harbord, deputy chief of staff of the army, will retire from active service Dec. 29 to become president of the Radio Corporation of America, to which post he has just been elected by the board of directors, succeeding Edward J. Nally.

In making public Gen. Harbord's retirement the war department announced that he will be succeeded as deputy chief of staff by Maj. Gen. John L. Hines, now commanding the Eighth army corps area at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

Makes Room for Youth.

In his letter to the secretary of war asking for retirement Gen. Harbord said:

"Whenever occasion has offered during nearly thirty-four years of service, I have been an advocate of opportunity for the younger men of the army. At his time of elimination, by congressional action, of hundreds of officers from the career to which they had dedicated themselves, I feel that my retirement, thus saving some man to the army who would otherwise be lost to it, and affording promotion to younger officers for whom I step aside, is but consistent.

In approving the application of Gen. Harbord for retirement, the secretary of war made the following comments:

"Gen. Harbord's retirement is a loss to the active forces of the army which cannot be adequately expressed. We have not had in our military service, or in our government service in any capacity, a man of higher qualities or one who has inspired in others a greater degree of confidence."

Pershing Praises Harbord.

In a routine report concerning the retirement, Gen. Pershing paid the highest praise to the retiring officer:

"A superior officer in all respects," the report reads, "able, efficient, loyal, His ability as a commander is without limitation. Has a most thorough knowledge of both staff and command duty. The ablest officer I know."

Gen. Harbord's military career has been striking. He enlisted as a private in the 4th infantry in 1889 and has held every rank up to and including major general.

When Gen. Pershing went to France in 1917 he chose Gen. Harbord as his chief of staff and later placed him in command of the marine brigade.

50 DRY AGENTS IN NEW YORK FIRED

New York, Nov. 18.—State prohibition headquarters made known tonight that fifty agents had been dropped from the force on instructions of Acting State Director E. C. Yellowley, now in Washington. Twenty-two of the men were employed in New York City and the remainder upstate.

No charges against the men dismissed were made public, but it was indicated that Mr. Yellowley's action was the first step in a reconstruction of the whole force, which has consisted of 250 men.

NEW LAMP HAS NO WICK OR CHIMNEY.

Most Brilliant Home Light Known—Costs One Cent a Night.

A new lamp which has no wick or chimney, yet, according to experts, gives the most powerful home light in the world, is the latest achievement of W. H. Hoffstot, 515 Factory building, Kansas City, Mo. This remarkable new lamp beats gas or electricity—gives more light than 300 candles, 18 ordinary lamps, or 10 brilliant electric lights, and costs only one cent a night. A blessing to every home, especially on farm or in small town. It is absolutely safe and gives universal satisfaction. No dirt, no smoke, no odor. A child can carry it. It is the ambition of Mr. Hoffstot to have every home, store, hall, or church enjoy the increased comfort of this powerful, pleasing, brilliant white light, and he will send one of his new lamps on free trial to any reader of THE TRIBUNE who writes him. He wants one person to whom he can refer new customers. Take advantage of his free offer. Agents wanted. Write him today.—Adv.

NEW SCHOOL SCANDAL SIFTERS AND ONE OF SIFTED

threatened to sue all members of the grand jury that indicted him and witnesses who testified against him. Attorney Greenacre said Severinghaus' denial was insufficient and that the question whether he had attempted to intimidate jurors and witnesses was something for the court to decide.

Judge Rules Against Him.

"Whatever his purpose was is not material," Attorney Greenacre argued. "His duty is to act in a legal and lawful manner. I ask permission of the court to call witnesses."

"I object," said Attorney J. K. McMahon for Severinghaus. "The court has not the right to go back of the sworn answer."

"There isn't any law that precludes the court from inquiring into the truth or falsity of the answer," Judge McKinley ruled. "You don't grasp the situation. The witnesses will determine if perjury has been committed."

Over a series of objections and a motion by counsel for Severinghaus for his discharge, Judge McKinley permitted Peter A. Mortenson, superintendent of schools, to be sworn as a witness. After preliminary questions, Mr. Mortenson's testimony was as follows:

Q.—Professor, were you present in the board of education rooms on Clark street on Nov. 13? A.—Yes, about 2:30 p. m. I was waiting in the president's office for the committee on finance to be present.

Severinghaus Present.

Q.—Are you acquainted with the defendant, Milton Severinghaus? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you see him there on that occasion? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you hear him say he would sue the grand jurors who indicted him? A.—Yes, that was part of a fragmentary conservation in my presence. It was based on the theory that the grand jury was illegal.

Mr. Mortenson said he had heard only part of the conservation and did not hear anything about the other allegations in Greenacre's petition. He gave names of others present.

Charles B. Wilson, 717 Briar place, testified he has been secretary to the successive president of the board of education for the last twenty years. Asked if he saw Milton Severinghaus in the board rooms on the occasion mentioned he said he did. Part of his examination follows:

Q.—Did you hear him say he was going to sue the jurors for $100,000 each and that he had already sued two newspapers? A.—I did.

Q.—Did you hear him say he was going to sue the witnesses? A.—He said nothing about suing witnesses in my hearing. He was talking about "If this thing is illegal I'll sue the grand jury."

Milton Severinghaus, who yesterday faced judge on contempt of court charge for threatening to sue grand jurors who indicted him. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

THE COURT—To what was he referring by "this thing?" Did he mean the grand jury inquiry? A.—I don't remember what led up to it.

Lillian B. Clement, committee clerk, testified she saw Severinghaus on the occasion of the alleged remarks. Her testimony in part was:

Q.—Did you hear him say he would sue each of the twenty-three members of the grand jury. A.—Yes, his words were to that effect. I had come up while he was talking. I heard one statement that he was going to sue the grand jury.

THE COURT—Go ahead, tell all about it A.—Dr. Adair sent for me and I came up. She was engaged in conversation with Mr. Severinghaus. He was speaking pleasantly and any one within a radius of several feet could have heard him. He was saying something about "It would probably be in the papers that evening."

THE COURT—What was being discussed—the present school board grand jury? A.—I presume so.

Dr. Sadie Bay Adair, school trustee, under indictment for malfeasance in office, testified she was conversing with Severinghaus at the time of the discussion. She appeared reluctant to give direct answers. Her testimony in part follows:

Q.—Did he mention the grand jury investigation? A.—Yes; he said he would, or rather could, sue the grand jurors if he were found not guilty.

Q.—Did he say he would sue each of the twenty-three grand jurors and the witnesses? A.—No, sir; he said he could.

Dr. Adair Reluctant.

Dr. Adair then failed to answer directly several questions and Judge McKinley moved his chair closer to the witness stand and directed the examination.

THE COURT—The sooner you answer these questions the better for all concerned. Now tell who was present and how long you were there before Severinghaus came up. A.—I was there about fifteen or twenty minutes. I walked out and he was at the desk.

Q.—Alone. A.—I think so.

Q.—How did the conversation begin? A.—About the contracts supposed to have been let to him. He said there were never any contracts let. "I could sue them if I am found not guilty," he said. The conversation was interrupted several times. I did not hear all that was said.

Q.—Did you hear him say he would sue for $100,000? A.—No, sir.

Coath Tells of Bad Effect.

Trustee Coath testified he did not hear the statements regarding the suits, but was told of them while "checking up."

"All the people indicted in this investigation," he said, "make it a point to congregate daily in the board rooms where their brazenness, their sneers, and their making fun of everything the board attempts creates a bad morale for honest employés of the board of education. They are continually showing themselves, sneering and radiating that 'don't care' feeling to discredit what the board is doing."

The hearing was continued to permit Attorney Greenacre to have the testimony prepared in affidavit form and to prepare interrogatories to be propounded to Severinghaus on Monday.

BIRTH CONTROL ON RIGHT LINES URGED BY BAER

Physician Would Limit in Unfit; More in Fit.

"Intelligent, harmless, and constructive birth control; limitation especially among the destitute, the debilitated, and the mental defectives, and encouragement among all those families of one or two children, which are qualified to rear more"—were urged a few days ago before the family limitation committee of the public welfare department of the Chicago Woman's club, by Dr. Joseph L. Baer, gynecologist and obstetrician.

Reporters were barred from the meeting, but Dr. Baer yesterday gave out the text of his address.

"I make this public and base my opinion that it is time to consider this question openly," he said, "on two concrete propositions: that the majority of women in this community is using some form of birth control, and that hunrreds of physicians and midwives are known to be doing criminal abortions in Chicago."

Physicians Teach It, He Says.

"Physicians," Dr. Baer said in his address, "are permitted to terminate conception in certain well defined cases, such as incipient tuberculosis, kidney disease, progressive heart failure, recurrent insanity, and similar severe complaints; and physicians do not hesitate to teach such patients methods of birth control.

"Criminal abortions are often as fatal as any of the diseases mentioned. Until women shall have learned the intelligent use of safe contraceptives, the likelihood is that abortions will not diminish."

He then told of his experiences at the Michael Reese free dispensary and of the many destitute women of large families who came there.

Instructed Secretly.

"For a time," he continued, "the clinic nurse furtively taught these women prevention methods—until in recent years, with the development of social service work, we evolved a plan whereby the social service workers select the cases and these wives with their husbands are brought to us for instructions.

"Famine, disease, and war are the three great checks on overpopulation. We are fighting to remove these and to offset the removal, the obvious means seems to be regulation of conception. Regulation, however, in both directions, limitation among the very poor, the debilitated and defectives, and encouragement among the better endowed classes.

"Safe and harmless methods are known whereby either husband or wife—of those classes where they should be applied—may prevent conception. People should be taught to want to know these; for if we must have birth control—and as I say, we have attempts at it in the vast majority—let us have safe and harmless and constructive birth control."

FRENCH ACE TO TRY FOR NEW RECORD IN EGG SHAPED PLANE

CAPT. NUNGESSER. [K. & H. (C.) Photo.]

PARIS, Nov. 18.—[By the Associated Press.]—Capt. Charles Nungesser, French ace, is building a great egg shaped airplane, equipped with 700 horse power motors, in which he intends to seek the world's speed record. His monoplane is described as of an entirely new design, with wings forming a V, at an angle of 120 degrees, and extending forward. Experts assert that the plane will easily make 250 miles per hour.

Urge Arrest of Husband and Wife in Murder Case

Recommendations that Mike Savitch, 8918 Green Bay avenue, be held to the grand jury on a charge of murder, and that his wife, Sara, be held as an accessory after the fact, were returned yesterday by a coroner's jury which held an inquest into the death of Joseph Sinayko. Two witnesses testified that Savitch had threatened Sinayko unless attentions to his wife ceased.

PULPIT SHERIFF TO HANG SLAYER AS PUBLIC DUTY

Cowardly to Evade; "Love Exacts Penalties."

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 18.—[By the Associated Press.]—Sheriff W. E. Robb, former A. E. F. chaplain, issued a statement here today announcing that he would spring the trap hanging Orrie Cross, condemned slayer of George Fosdick, Des Moines grocer, at 7:30 o'clock next Friday morning.

In his statement the sheriff declared hanging is "a clumsy method," the act is "gruesome and the effect not permanent," and that "it accomplishes its purpose only for the day," adding: "It is not a thing of high motive, but it is the only way that the state has yet devised to deal effectively with the crime of murder. It is the people's own effort to deal justly with themselves."

"The state has established that the man is guilty beyond a reasonable doubt," the sheriff's statement says, "that he murdered without cause; that he showed no mercy; that he was a menace to life—therefore it has decreed he must die, for that is the law of the state as passed by the will of the people. The law is the will of the majority and the death penalty for murder the people have imposed upon themselves as a method of restraint.

Love Is Also Exacting.

"Brainless men and women who have no ability to think, who believe free license and rebel abainst all law—those will condemn and race and spout as usual.

"Unthinking religious fanatics will plead and pray and forget that God is a God of justice and mercy and that judgment is as much a duty of love as mercy is the delight of love. They forget that love, while the greatest of all laws, is the most perfect in its working and the most exacting in its demands.

"America is cursed today with a lot of spineless, unthinking, cowardly, would-be reformers, editors, speakers, who crave approval more than they crave to be right.

"Will Hang as a Duty."

"They with one accord will all condemn a minister of the gospel for performing the duties of the state. They think of a minister as a sexless, spineless creature.

"Taking another's life, hurling some one over the precipice into eternity, is the most terrible of all tasks. I am going to hang Orrie Cross because it is my duty and because there is no way to evade that terrible task except the way of the coward. The memory of it will be with me always. I would to God there were some way out of it, but there is none."

"DIRECTOR" HELD ON CHECK CHARGE —WIFE PENNILESS

Albert Williamson, alias Lynne Stanley, 1717 North La Salle street, who says he is a San Francisco (Cal.) musical director, was arrested Friday night by Sergts. John Cartan and John Quinn of the central detail and is being held for the San Francisco authorities, where he is wanted on a charge of passing worthless checks.

In the Columbus hospital lies Mrs. Hazel Stanley of Pocahontas, Ark., who was married to Williamson, posing as Lynne Stanley, in Waxahachie, Tex., on Oct. 2. They met in Dallas, Tex., according to Williamson's story, last June. Mrs. Stanley has no funds with which to pay her hospital bills, police say. They also charge that Williamson has a wife and child in San Francisco and that he was arrested in 1907 under the name of Teddy Lee and convicted of larceny.

Describes New Invention That Burns Oil in Any Stove, Range or Furnace.

At a recent stockholders' meeting of the Standard Oil Burner Company of St. Louis, Mr. William King, President, and inventor of the new improved Standard Oil Burner, described his marvelous invention.

Mr. King explained how this remarkable device burns 96% air and 4% ordinary coal oil, producing a tremendous heat at less than one-half the cost of coal or wood. He explained that the large number of sales were due to the simplicity and efficiency of this burner, which fits in any stove, range or furnace.

In order to introduce these burners the manufacturers are willing to send one on 30 days' trial to the first user in each community at a special low price. They are also looking for agents. Write them today for free booklet, Dept. 35, 318 North Second-st., St. Louis, Missouri.

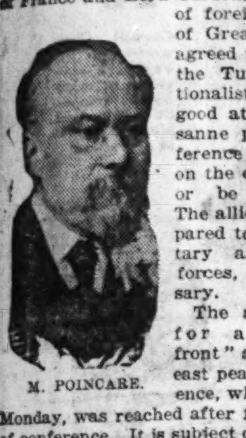
ALLIES AGREE TO SPANK TURK IF PEACE FAILS

British and French Unite on Eve of Parley.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Nov. 18.—Premier Poincare of France and Lord Curzon, secretary of foreign affairs of Great Britain, agreed today that the Turkish Nationalists must be good at the Lausanne peace conference and sign on the dotted line or be spanked. The allies are prepared to use military and naval forces, if necessary.



M. POINCARE.

The agreement for a "united front" at the near east peace conference, which opens Monday, was reached after four hours of conference. It is subject only to the final approval of Premier Mussolini of Italy, whom Premier Poincare and Lord Curzon will meet tomorrow in Switzerland. Baron Avezzano, Italian ambassador, participated in today's conferences.

Call in Military Chiefs.

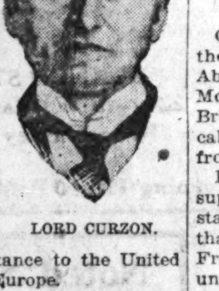
Marshal Foch, Gen. Weygand and Admiral Lacaze were called in consultation by M. Poincare frequently, while Lord Curzon called in Gen. Burnett Stuart and Capt. Pound of the navy.

The British were entirely willing to use their forces for pressure against the Turks, but the French were hesitant, partly on account of the cost and partly because they wish to safeguard the extensive French commercial interests in Turkey.

Marshal Foch proposed using Roumanian and Serbian troops instead of French, which plan the British welcomed. M. Poincare accepted the proposal with reservations. The Roumainian and Serbian troops would be massed on the eastern Thracian frontier. Roumania is particularly willing to participate in military demonstrations in the neighborhood of the straits to counterbalance Russian pressure on the Bessarabian frontier.

Open Parley Tomorrow.

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, Nov. 18.—[By the Associated Press.]—Another attempt to stabilize the peace of Europe will be undertaken here Monday with the inauguration of the near eastern conference attended by practically all the powers of western and southeastern Europe.



LORD CURZON.

Primarily summoned to establish peace between victorious Turkey and defeated Greece, the conference possesses vast importance to the United States and to all Europe.

It must settle the various problems that have grown out of the Turks' return to the continent from which they were expelled after the great war, as well as the all-dominant question of the freedom of the Dardanelles, in which America has a natural interest.

Will Fix New Frontiers.

The conference must lay down Turkey's new frontiers and take up the delicate question of Turkey's capitulations, or concessions, whereby foreigners in Turkey, like those living in China, have been exempt from Turkish laws and free from taxation. Turkey demands freedom from these restrictions and clamors for national administrative liberty.

BARON AVEZZANO.
[(C.) Harris & Ewing]

Without departing from her traditional policy of nonintervention in European politics the United States has shown her interest in the forthcoming developments of the conference by designating three observers: Richard Washburn Child, American ambassador to Italy, and Joseph C. Grew, minister to Switzerland, who arrived here today, and Rear Admiral Mark L. Bristol, official American representative at Constantinople.

Choose New Caliph.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 18.—[By the Associated Press.]—Crown Prince Abdul Medjid Effendi, cousin of Sultan Mohammed VI., who fled to Malta in a British warship, has been elected caliph, according to an announcement from Angora.

Rafet Pasha has asked the allies to suppress all foreign postoffices in Constantinople. He has requested also that proposed American, British, and French colleges and schools be placed under the Angora government's regulations.

The sultan's wives and ladies of the harem are overwhelmed with grief and dismay over the flight of the sultan. They did not know he was going.

The sultan's youngest wife, whom he married only nine weeks ago and who is the 22 year old daughter of his gardener, became hysterical when the fact of the sultan's flight was confirmed, and the seven faithful eunuchs, who had acted as personal body guards to the Moslem ruler for the last five years, gave themselves up to despair, fearing the sultan had been kidnaped by the Kemalists. The other eunuchs and the ladies of the palace, numbering 300, wept bitterly, and soon the whole palace was in a state of commotion.

The sultan's departure was not known to his household until 9 o'clock yesterday morning, when his aid-de-camp entered his sleeping chamber. When he gave the news that the sultan was missing the palace was searched from top to bottom for the monarch.

Score "British Connivance."

Mohammed's departure on the British dreadnaught Malaya, in the face of threatened trial for treason by the Angora government, was compared by Rafet Pasha to the flight of Damad Ferid Pasha, former grand vizier, and the other "members of the opposition who by their acts were compromised in the eyes of the whole Turkish nation."

"Great Britain's connivance in the escape," he added, "is flagrant interference in Turkey's internal affairs."

Sultan to Have Malta Palace.

MALTA, Nov. 18.—[By the Associated Press.]—The British dreadnaught Malaya, which is conveying the sultan of Turkey to Malta, is expected to arrive Monday. The sultan's aid has been here for several days. Although officials refuse definite information, it is believed that Mohammed VI. will occupy the governor's country palace.

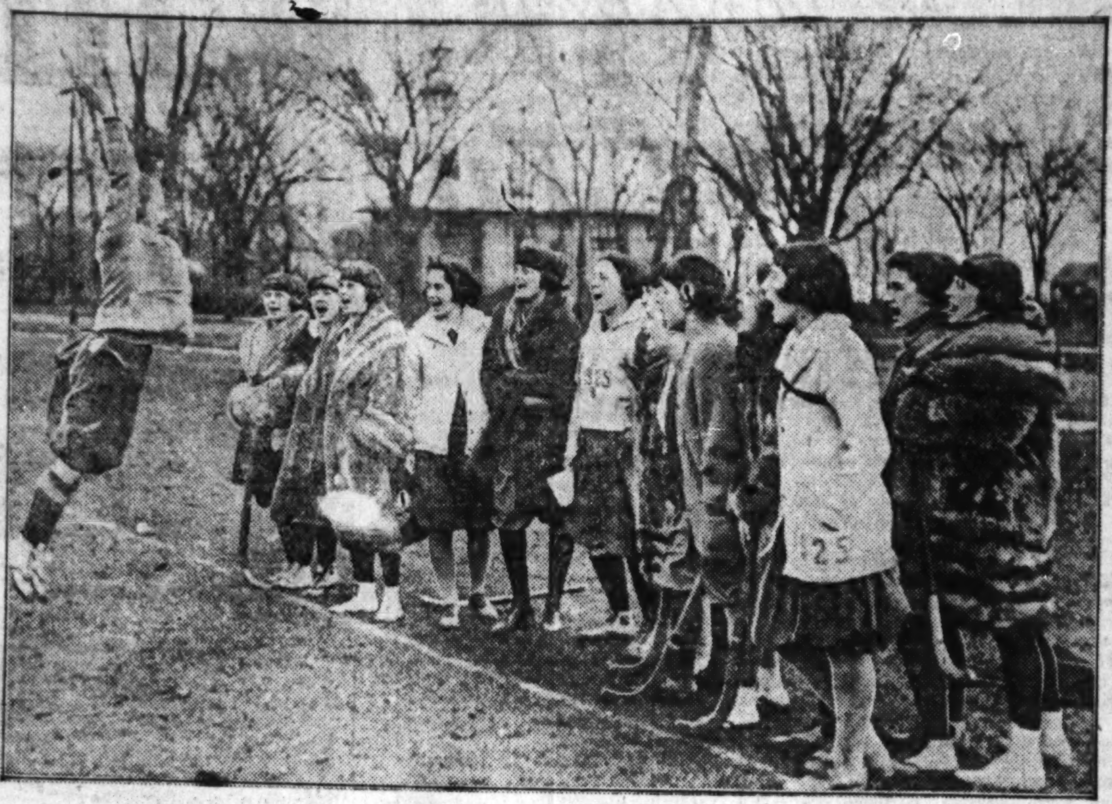
Invited to Mecca.

CAIRO, Nov. 18.—The newspaper El Mokattam says King Hussein of the Hedjas has invited Sultan Mohammed VI. to take sanctuary in Mecca, assuring him an honorable reception.

WOMAN HELD AS SHOPLIFTER.

Alleged to have attempted to steal a silk dress valued at $225 from a loop store, Mrs. Helen Murphy, 28 years old, who refused to give her address, was arrested yesterday. According to the police, she has previously been arrested for shoplifting.

HOCH THE HOCKEY!



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Herewith is one of the lively preliminaries that marked the hockey game between the senior and sophomore teams at Northwestern university. Miss Marion Youngquist is the gymnastic cheer leader, although at first sight one might think she is a pole vaulter on the downward drift, and her enthusiastic cheermates assert that she never fails to bring out the utmost in their voices.

APPEAL TO U. S. FOR DELEGATES AT LAUSANNE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—On the eve of the Lausanne conference, representatives of the great church bodies and organizations interested in near east problems, made a final appeal to Secretary of State Hughes today to appoint the observers of the meeting as accredited delegates. This action was taken at a meeting called by the federal council of churches.

In the resolution the committee assured President Harding and Secretary Hughes that they welcomed the government's intention to stand for the freedom of the straits, the protection of religious minorities in the near east, the protection of American property rights and the lives of American citizens, and freedom to carry on religious and educational work. But they pointed out that even more important than property rights were human rights involving other people than ourselves, and laying upon us inescapable moral obligation.

MRS. KEITH IS LAKE FOREST FIRE HEROINE

Mrs. Stanley Keith, leading a flying squadron of Lake Forest society, was the particular heroine at a fire which partly destroyed the east dormitory of Lake Forest academy yesterday.

Trailing the fire apparatus in her car, Mrs. Keith was among the first on the scene. In a moment she was in a swirl of youths carrying hockey sticks, tuxedo suits, pictures of "the girl" and others to safety on the campus. This throng of salvagers she joined and directed her efforts to bearing out more substantial objects in the burning building.

To add to the excitement, the fire came just before the whistle blew for the Lake Forest-Culver Military academy football game, to which many grads had returned.

Other society women who were spectators of the fire were Mrs. Lester Armour, Miss Barbara Thompson, Miss Jane Morton, Mrs. J. C. Meacham, Mrs. Thomas H. Cowles, Mrs. Philip W. Peck, Mrs. A. C. Carpenter, Mrs. Noble Judah, Mrs. Volney Foster, Mrs. E. L. Baker and Mrs. George A. Seaverns.

Farmer's Three Sons Break Through Ice and Drown

Regina, Sask., Nov. 18.—Grasping each other in a struggle to reach safety when the thin ice they were playing on gave way, the three young sons of John Dutczsyzyn, farmer, were drowned in a slough near Veregin, Sask., it was reported here today.

DOWNERS GROVE PAYS ITS TRIBUTE TO MRS. O'NEILL

Downers Grove, Ill., Nov. 18.—This village was in gala attire all through the day. Stores were closed and all parking spaces filled with flivvers and other vehicles of surrounding residents who came early to help celebrate.

Occasion—"Hooray for the first citizen, Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, elected to the state legislature."

Tonight all the populace marched in a torchlight parade up and down the main pike and to the Public library, on the front steps of which stood the woman representative, who spoke thus:

"I would rather it had been some other woman, and so would my husband. I didn't file my candidacy until two hours before closing time, hoping some other woman would run. But I and several stanch supporters were determined that a woman must fill the place. A woman should be in Springfield to work for things that affect the home."

NOTED NEW YORK DOCTORS UNITE; FIGHT DRY LAWS

New York, Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Suit filed in the federal court today revealed that more than 100 of the foremost physicians in this city have formed an organization to test the constitutionality of the Volstead act and the supplemental act of November, 1921, as it applies to physicians through limiting the amount of liquor they may prescribe to patients. The organization is called the Association for the Protection of Constitutional Rights.

It was formed last February, but so quietly have its members worked that few outside their ranks knew of its existence.

At the head is Samuel W. Lambert, chief of the group of physicians who treated Enrico Caruso.

THE STATE CONSTITUTION.

There is now before the people of Illinois a draft for a new state constitution. This document has been formulated by a convention of delegates chosen by the voters, Nov. 4, 1919, and is the result of the deliberations of that body, with some interruption, during a period of more than two years since the organization of the convention in January, 1920.

It is presented to the people for adoption or rejection as a whole, and the question is, therefore, whether as a whole it is to be preferred to the existing constitution. The decision is to be made at an election to be held Dec. 12.

It is evident that no more important duty could be imposed upon a self-governing people than the adoption of a constitution. The draft proposed is voluminous and in parts highly technical. In its essentials, however, its provisions are of a form and character with which the citizen may deal in the light of his own judgment and, in fact, must determine for himself if there is to be reality in our system of self-government. Public discussion and private deliberation of the most thorough kind are therefore needed and, if they are given, it may be hoped that a wise decision will be reached.

A constitution is the organic or fundamental law of an organized society or state. It contains the principles upon which the government is founded. It regulates the division of the powers of government. It directs to what persons or agencies each of these powers is to be confided and the manner in which it is to be exercised.

In the United States there is a general or federal constitution reaching all citizens and the constitutions of the several states, which affect only the citizens and inhabitants of their respective states. Differing in this and other respects, the federal constitution and all the constitutions of the states have this in common, that they may be said to have two principal aspects or functions: First, they establish the structure of government; second, they define fundamental principles and guaranties of individual rights.

Thus the federal constitution and all the state constitutions provide for an executive, a legislative, and a judicial department, defining the function and powers of each. Each constitution also enumerates certain rights and privileges, provisions which limit the sovereign power of the nation or state so as to protect the individual and shield him from assumptions of arbitrary power. These latter provisions are referred to as our bill of rights and in the federal constitution appear partly in the body of the instrument, but chiefly in amendments added, such as the provision that no state shall pass any bill of attainder, ex post facto or retroactive law, nor impair the obligation of contracts, nor deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the law, nor base discriminations in suffrage on race, color, or previous condition of servitude.

The federal constitution also lays down certain prohibitions based on general policy and these are of the utmost importance. In the first amendment congress is forbidden to make any law establishing a religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

Most of these provisions and guaranties for the protection of the individual from oppression have been reproduced in the constitutions of the states where they act as checks or limitations on the power of the state governments.

This, in roughest outline, is the constitutional system under which the American people live. It is not merely a system created on paper by a body of statesmen. It is rather the evolution of centuries. We talk of a new constitution, but no constitution which the American people would accept is new in essentials. Even the great edifice of the federal constitution was founded deep in the past and was in the main but a masterly fabrication, the application of ancient principles to the conditions of a new land and age. And there is not a state constitution that has not taken its chief institutions and its chief principles from that richest of all political legacies, the accumulated experience and accomplishment of our race. Our constitutional system, represented by our federal and state constitutions, is not the political invention of the conventions which formulated them from time to time. It is an organic evolution, expressing a struggle persisting through centuries. It is a precious inheritance of experience, of sacrifice, and of aspiration.

If we realize this we shall look upon our heritage with a wise reverence and we shall be careful how we deal with it.

Our constitutional system is the product of the effort through centuries for popular self-government. Its roots run into the northern forests where the Teutonic tribes had created their rude communities, their simple representative counsels, and rules of individual right. These they brought with them to Britain and there freedom moved forward in experiment, with many diversions and perversions, through the long course of centuries to this day and hour. The Anglo-Saxons laid the foundations of parliament whose children are our own legislatures, and even when they adopted monarchy and vested executive power in a hereditary ruler, they retained the check of popular will over his authority. Here, already, more than a thousand years ago, was the germ of the principle of separate powers of government, of check and balance between them, and of final power in the people.

English political history, which is our history up to the end of the eighteenth century, is the story of an unending struggle to retain, defend, and perfect government by the people. Sometimes the monarch was its ally, sometimes an oligarchy of privilege, the barons or the church. When king and baronage and lords spiritual fell out, popular liberty gained a little, slowly at first, but with increasing momentum. When the Norman conquered England the comparatively democratic system of the Saxon was displaced by a military people, but the struggle went on. William Rufus, at war with his barons, bought the people's support with promises of justice and better laws. The promises were broken, but the people's will was not. The old English laws and customs did not die. They were in abeyance, but here and there, because they lived in the political conscience of the people, they returned.

Parliament, which was in essential nature a restoration of the ancient Saxon witanagemot, appeared and gradually became the instrument by which the people established control over government and recovered sovereignty. The history of parliament is two-fold. In one aspect it is the history of resistance to the will of the king, the executive, as we should call it; in another aspect it is the history of the development of the composition of parliament itself, from its beginnings when it was made up of privileged classes to its present makeup of direct representatives of the people, chosen by universal and equal suffrage, without discrimination based on race, color, previous condition of servitude, property, or sex.

With this evolution of the institutions of popular government went the evolution of rights and privileges of the individual citizen of a free society, such as his right to the election of representatives, to trial by jury of his equals, to freedom of conscience, of expression, of assembly. All of these rights or privileges are the fruit of struggle, of forethought, of sacrifice, and they form an essential part of our system of constitutional liberty, embodied in our constitutions, laws, and judicial decisions.

There is much in the composition of our modern constitutions which is properly and necessarily alterable with the changing conditions of a progressive society. But there are elements which are a part of the political genius of our race and cannot be removed, or even materially infringed, without the gravest consequences. Revolution would change them and there is a process of deterioration which is even more to be feared because it is almost unconscious. We who have not fought for our institutions or our rights, as our predecessors were called upon to do, are likely to lack appreciation of their value and, like spendthrift heirs, to waste our inheritance. It is indeed the first duty of the freeman to know and defend the institutions and principles upon which his freedom is founded, and this is especially important when he is called upon to embody them in new laws or constitutions.

The state constitution which it is proposed to replace with the new draft has not been criticized in respect of its provisions for the protection of the civil rights of the people. The demand for revision is based on the fact that conditions have changed in the half century since the adoption of the existing constitution and that our fundamental law should be adjusted to them so far as it deals with the conduct of government business, the raising of revenue, the administration of justice, and development of new agencies or methods to meet new public needs. We shall therefore discuss first the proposals of the draft which deal with these administrative problems, and later with those which affect the rights of the citizen.

THE LURE OF THE CITY.

When Horace Greeley advised the young men of imagination, ambition, and ability in this country to "go west" the west was a comparatively undeveloped land of opportunity and romance. Vast deposits of gold and silver and copper awaited discovery and exploitation. Great plains awaited the plow and the cattle man. Forests awaited the ax of the pioneer and the builder. Deserts cried for irrigation to blossom into fields of wealth. Long stretches of plain and mountain beckoned to the railroad builder. Life was rough but alluring, and opportunities and rewards were rich.

Young men, and some not so young, went west. They recognized the opportunities and developed them. Today the open spaces of the west differ from the rural districts of the east chiefly in extent and climate. Good roads, automobiles, movie shows, public libraries, schools, running hot and cold water, bathtubs, and similar accessories of modern civilization are everywhere in this country. The lure and advantages of the west are now largely the lure and advantages of scenery, climate, and imagination. Today opportunity and adventure lie in the cities.

The swing back from the open spaces to the cities was becoming evident more than a decade ago. The war gave it tremendous impetus. This country was called upon to supply a large part of the civilized world not only with the munitions of war but with food and clothing and other necessaries. We not only supplied the fighting allies but many neutral lands cut off from their old European sources of supply. Factories sprang up everywhere. Factories mean cities, and cities mean the concentration of population. The sons and the grandsons of the young men who went west in Horace Greeley's day have come back with a rush to the cities.

It is a movement as natural as the original movement to the open spaces. Where wealth, adventure, and opportunity and romance once awaited young men there is now the routine of ordered life. One can farm, or run a sawmill, or carry a transit with no more thrill than one can run a grocery store or an elevator, and with less contact with life and opportunity. Life in the open may be freer, and in some ways pleasanter, than life in a city, but its opportunities for advancement are more limited.

So men nowadays tend to gather in the cities if they seek adventure and material success. They thus meet the clash of competitive life and struggle, just as their ancestors met the forces of nature. They can build great businesses, rise high in professions, develop epoch making inventions, and match their wits and their courage against their fellow men in the rush and turmoil of a great city. They can do so much less interestingly in the milder, simpler life of rural communities.

So our cities grow, and our young men rise to greatness. It is nothing to be disturbed about. There will always be enough who prefer the simple life to populate the open spaces. And always the law of supply and demand will restore the balance.

THE COMMUTER'S TICKET

The gate is closed on the garden in the November dusk and the dead leaves are blown against it. It is locked for the night of winter. Tools are gathered up and put away. The pleasant activities with them are done and the kitchen light beckons down the lane.

Later in the night Orion strides into the sky with Sirius, that portent of snow, which, we hope, shall be the brilliant of a Christmas eve when all the land is still in white, when the evergreens are white, and bells sound from far away.

Illusion and expectancy arise with Sirius. That sun must make its winter way across the sky while our sun crawls south on the western rim, turns, and comes back again. Days must be clipped off and meanwhile life is as the white narcissus at the south window in a gray day.

THE FLOOD OF BOOKS.

Some British statisticians have figured that about 16,500,000 separate books have been printed since the invention of movable type. In the first sixty years after the invention there was an average of less than 700 a year. Nowadays publishers are turning out about 300,000 new works annually, exclusive of newspapers, magazines, pamphlets, etc.

In mass this would destroy us. Theoretically it is a cumulative flood. The present generation is first struck by the combined weight of 16,500,000 volumes, and if it withstands the wave, finds itself breasting a torrent fed by 300,000 new volumes each year. It is staggering and discouraging. No human brain could withstand such a flood.

But the fact is that the human brain is superior to even this weight of printed words. The lower the quality of the individual brain, the less is it concerned with reading. To the illiterate this weight of printed words is nothing. The higher the quality of the brain, the greater its faculty of discrimination. To the discriminating the weight of literature is so distinctly marked as to relative values that it is no menace. The good things in literature stand out so clearly above the bad that sheer weight is eliminated.

We can jot down in a short time most of the authors who have survived the test of time. Only hundreds, or perhaps only scores, still live. And we have the judgment of many wise predecessors in the enjoyment of literature as an efficient guide. Occasionally we may overlook a worthy author or a worthy volume out of the past, but not often.

The task of discriminating between the moderns is more difficult. But even among them there are enough outstanding to make us certain we can occupy our time to good advantage. The process of elimination is simple. If we read all that time permits among those we know are good, the bad will take care of themselves. A flood of 16,500,000 different volumes of writing is demoralizing, but we do not have to stand and be engulfed by it. We can swim it, with enjoyment and profit.

The one essential is to learn to swim. It can best be taught in childhood, and on long winter evenings.

JOLLY MR. LENIN.

Mr. Lenin is a despot with wit and humor. In speaking to the delegates of the third international at Moscow he said that the soviets had made mistakes but had not been as stupid as the capitalist governments. It was a mistake not to begin with state capitalism. It ought to have been tried before communism instead of as a retreat from communistic failure.

The peasants nearly got him because of that mistake, but he retreated in time. He had learned that two and two did not make five, but he was indulgent with soviet error. It converted Russia into a desert. It brought in starvation and plague. It almost struck the nation dead in its tracks. It gave the country a currency which, as Lenin says, has figures fantastically astronomical. The rubles in circulation have to be measured by light years.

It filled Russia with disease, filth, and despair, murdered its finest citizenship, and tortured women and children. "My mistake," says Lenin. He returns to capitalism, but the land does not return from its suffering. Another such mistake and it would cease to exist.

He proposes to deal simply with the million billion rubles—by striking off the zeros. When he has made a thing worthless he repudiates it, as he repudiates the whole scheme which drove Russia to starvation and even to cannibalism. His warning to Europe and America is that he will repudiate anything. He will repudiate any agreements made with them. "The prospects of a world revolution are excellent."

The soviet government is the enemy of all other existing governments. It would destroy any capitalistic society which it was strong enough to attack. It will attack all in any way it can. Lenin is not content with maintaining a despotic and now capitalistic as well as murderous and fanatical government in Russia. The disaster is not complete until it is universal.

He says America, England, and France were stupid in supporting Kolchak and other White leaders. He probably means that they were stupid in not so supporting the Whites that he could be overthrown before he could carry out plans of attacking them.

Editorial of the Day

WHAT THE RICHEST BABY DID.

[Rock Island Argus.]

About twenty years ago the newspapers were full of stories about "the richest baby in the world." At the age of nine weeks the child inherited $5,000,000 from his father and ten days later he got another $5,000,000 from the estate of his father's brother. Later on other millions poured in, and at the age of 4 he had a steam yacht, a farm where chickens and milk were raised especially for his consumption, two trained nurses, three maids, a personal physician, a valet, and a governess.

Now, according to all of the traditions of a rough and Spartan democracy, this pampered baby ought to have come to some bad end, for every one knows that the only way to reach true greatness in America is to be born poor, to split rails, study Webster's spelling book by the light of a pine knot, and wear blue jeans, one gallus, and no stockings.

However, it is a painful duty at this point to confess that the baby of twenty years ago, whose name is John Nichols Brown, has just won a John Harvard fellowship for travel and study in Harvard university, and the dispatches say that he gained the honor by plain hard work. It appears, therefore, to be true that you cannot keep a good man down even by smothering his infancy in needless luxury and, perhaps, on the whole, that is the better American doctrine.

How to Keep Well. By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, if matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit, or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations, and where a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease. Requests for such service cannot be answered.

WHY WINTER IS UNHEALTHFUL.

The more science delves into the subject, the more reason we find for the unhealthfulness of winter.

The latest turns on the study of rickets. This long ignored disease is at least in a fair way to be understood. In the course of the investigation they have found that sunlight somehow causes the blood to contain just the proper proportions of phosporus and calcium for the normal growth of bone. Lack of sunlight interferes with these proportions, and results in rickets.

Rickets can be cured by exposure to sunlight, even without any change in diet or other factor in the disease. A closer study of the sun's rays shows that it is that part of the ray at the violet end of the spectrum and beyond which does the work. It has been found that ordinary lead glass will filter out this part of the ray. Sun's rays that have passed through lead glass will not cure nor prevent rickets. Sun's rays, reflected from a white surface, retain some part of these curative portions, but not all.

The black skin of the negro filters out this ultra violet portion, in great measure at least. That is the reason practically all city raised negro babies have some rickets, why negro children require more sunlight, need to be in the open air and under the open light more than do white children. Also, why rickets begins to be more prevalent in November, and increases in prevalence until April, and then begins to subside.

The amount of blood phosporus in the blood of babies 6 to 18 months of age reaches its maximum in July. By December it has dropped materially. The decline continues uninterruptedly until March. In April, there is a slight rise. In May, a greater one. The ascent continues until July.

So much for that part of the case against winter.

Studies of the sunlight, made when the rays are unimpeded, show that the summer ray contains more violet and ultraviolet in summer than in winter.

To make matters worse, the air is cloudier, sootier and generally dirtier in winter. These impurities filter out the violet and ultraviolet.

It is in winter that the sun for days or hours will appear as a red ball at which man can look directly without being blinded. Such sunlight is very poor in violet and ultraviolet. In the winter, the period between one hour after sunup and one hour before sundown, the period of some disinfection, is short.

So much for evidence of that character.

The weekly report sent out by the bureau of vital statistics shows that the death rate is amounting steadily. It is about as high now as it was last May. The curve of previous years indicates that it will mount steadily until March.

The pneumonia, bronchitis and coryza rates are mounting daily and will continue to do so until early spring.

When the sunlight is as inefficient as it is in winter, if we are wise we will help out all we can by staying in the open and by avoiding infections.

REDUCING ON MILK.

P. H. writes: Will you kindly tell me if I carefully keep on a milk diet, drinking milk only when I am hungry, about three or four times a day, will I get down to normal weight?

A friend told me that you published an article (that is, advised a reader through your column) on this subject.

REPLY.

If you mean that you will take no food but milk, and will only take a small quantity of that, you will lose weight.

The Karrell treatment consists in eating six ounces of milk four times a day and no other food. After a few weeks, the diet is gradually broadened.

CONSANGUINITY SUCCESSFUL.

J. A. W. writes: I have seen a great deal in your column in regard to the marriage of cousins. I am writing you of my experience.

I married my first cousin, who was a double first cousin, our mothers having been twins. My wife has borne eight children; five girls and three boys. One girl died at 5 years of age of malaria. All the rest are strong and healthy men and women.

Our older girl is married and the mother of two healthy boys, three and two years old respectively. Our second girl died as above stated. Our next girl is married and has three girl children, all strong and healthy—8, 5, and 2 years old.

CARE OF TEETH.

E. W. writes: Will you please publish in your column a simple mouth wash, and the time for using same to prevent decaying of teeth?

At present I am not in a position to see a dentist, and any help from you will be sincerely appreciated.

REPLY.

A watery solution of permanganate of potash is about as good a mouth wash as there is. The solution should be a pale wine color.

To preserve your teeth against decay, clean them well. Clean after each meal with a toothpick.

Once or twice a day clean each tooth individually, using for the purpose either a towel wrapped around the finger, or paper, or a brush.

Eat proper food.

Cut down on starches and sweets.

FOOD FOR INFANT.

Mrs. J. B. writes: "I have a 7 month old baby.

"Would it hurt him to feed him anything besides the breast?"

REPLY.

A baby 7 months old, in addition to breast milk, should have fruit juice, tomato juice, cereal and vegetable soup.

HOLLOW CHEST.

Miss D. O. writes:

"1. What is meant by a hollow chest?
"2. Is it hereditary?"

REPLY.

1. In hollow chest, the shoulders are moved forward [stooped]; the shoulder blades stick out; the chest is narrow and deep. It is the position of the shoulders which gives the hollow chest appearance in the man.
2. To a certain extent.

AMMONIA IN URINE.

T. D. A., M. D., writes: In regard to odor of ammonia in the urine of a baby, we had considerable trouble with our first boy; changed his diet, fed him citrates and other medicaments, etc—to no avail.

We were advised then that it might be due to improper rinsing of diapers. Since acting on this advice, we have had absolutely no trouble with either of our boys in this regard.

MARRIAGE BY JUSTICE OF PEACE.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I was married in 1901 in Chicago by a justice of the peace, without witnesses. I have no children. I have made a will, making my wife sole beneficiary and executrix. 1. Is our marriage legal? 2. Would a remarriage require a new will? 3. Would the fact that the license clerk refuses to issue a license under my wife's maiden name make any difference? J. C. Y.

1. Yes.
2. Yes.
3. We do not understand this question.

REFUSING LESS THAN AMOUNT DUE.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I have not been able to adhere to the agreement I made with a store in connection with the purchase of goods, but in good faith I offered them what money I could spare at this time. They, however, refused my money, saying they would accept only the full amount of the balance I owed them. Can this firm refuse this money when it is the best I can do? H. J. O.

They are under no legal obligations to accept less the the full amount due. Their remedies depend on the wording of the agreement. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LOSS OF COAT.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—One month ago I took my fur coat to a cleaner and dyer to have some repairing and cleaning done. After he had same about two weeks, he notified me that it was stolen, that he sent it out to be cleaned and while in the other shop (which does not belong to him), it was stolen. He advised me to name a reasonable amount and he would settle with me in three days. Instead of settling, he bought a coat which is not as good as the one I had and he wants me to give him $50.00 more to close the deal, which I have refused to do, otherwise he will give me $40.00 in cash, which I refused to take.

Have I grounds to fight this case in court, and are they responsible for my coat, when they are supposed to be a reliable concern? M. T. S.

He is not legally liable if he can prove that the loss occurred without his fault.

DEPRIVING MOTHER OF CHILDREN.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Can outsiders interfere to have children taken away from the custody of their mother, who has permitted attentions from a man other than her husband? T. B. N.

If their mother wishes to keep them you would have to make a strong showing of unfitness in order to take them away from her. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

WIDOW'S SHARE.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A will reads, "All personal property shall be divided among my four sons." If one of the sons dies, leaving a widow, and then the maker of the will dies, would this son's widow inherit her deceased husband's share? J. A. P.

It would be divided among the three surviving sons.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MEMORY TESTS

1. Who wrote "Childe Harold"? Lord Byron.

2. What monarch of France built the grand palace of Versailles? What was its cost? Louis XIV. Over $80,000,000.

3. How long have the tin mines of Cornwall, England, been worked? Their establishment antedates recorded history. All we know is that tin was imported from Cornwall into Italy shortly after, and probably before, the invasion of Britain by Julius Cæsar.

4. Who was the first mayor of Chicago? William B. Ogden (Democrat), elected in 1837.

5. What noted operatic soprano died Nov. 22, 1921? What was her real name? What was her greatest success? When was she born? When did she make her first American tour? Christine Nilsson. Countess de Casa Miranda. Her greatest success was as Marguerite in "Faust." Aug. 20, 1843. In 1870-'72, when she appeared in Chicago.

THE PRESS CLUB.

Meeting of the Executive Committee—Arrangements for a Series of Cosmopolitan Press Banquets.

Yesterday evening the Executive Committee of the Chicago Press Club held a meeting at the Times office. This institution, that is, the club, like an underground drain, is useful and obscure. It furnishes to reporters an opportunity to relieve themselves, while alive, of certain perilous stuff which they are unable to get rid of in the newspapers to which they belong; it gives them resolutions when dead; and, once a year, sometimes, it enables them to make speeches at a press banquet.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

THE ADVOCATE OF RACIAL EQUALITY.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Please accept my sincere thanks for the publication in today's TRIBUNE in the Voice of the People of the letter of one Frank St. Claire, obnoxious member and hypocritical defender of the dark skinned race, unlearned exponent and ignorant advocate of racial and social equality.

The letter was written in all seriousness, of course, by the aggrieved St. Claire, but it is really very ludicrous. He stays at a "place that has the honor (?) of never allowing THE TRIBUNE to cross its threshold, yet he notices that it (THE TRIBUNE) is greatly interested in the "race problem." (He must have found his copy in the "L.") And he wishes to be informed why you (THE TRIBUNE) drafted negroes "in the late war to kill Germans who are white." How amusingly absurd! Think of it! THE TRIBUNE drafting negroes "to kill Germans who are white." He declares that "you'll have the consulation (?) of knowing that all negroes are not as big a fools as THE TRIBUNE takes them to be."

His letter is not to be taken seriously. He lacks the intelligence and understanding of a 2 year old, and it would therefore be useless to attempt to enlighten him. And you rebuked him severely enough by the mere publication of his letter. HAROLD CEPEK.

IT'S TOO SUBTLE FOR V. P., BUT R. H. L. WOULDN'T USE IT.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—If what is good for Americans be also good for Turks, would it not be well for THE TRIBUNE to suggest to Turkish newspapers that they carry daily at the head of their editorial pages the slogan, "Our country, right or wrong"? It could be pointed out to them that this would serve to intensify the nationalistic impulse that is impelling them to their present activities.

Also, may I not suggest that your editorial department does not overlook the opportunity of utilizing in your anti-international propaganda the report you publish today of Editor Ali Kemal Bey, "one of Turkey's most enlightened and most impartial citizens," being "sentenced to death as a traitor to the country," but prematurely executed by a mob. The emphasizing of the report by an impressive editorial might serve to discourage any budding international tendency that might be developing among us.

I trust you won't fail to publish this merely because I don't dare you to do so.

JAMES W. WALKER, M. D.

TO REDUCE CONGESTION AND SPEED TRAFFIC.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—The writer, having given the matter a great deal of thought during periods of delay in reaching some destination, has analyzed the trouble and has evolved a plan which, if put into practice, will reduce congestion 50 per cent in thirty days' time.

Establish a traffic bureau, under the supervision of a traffic commissioner, who will be given absolute authority over all streets, alleys, surface lines, and elevated roads.

Orders of the commissioner should follow about the lines given below.

1. Allow no parking whatever, at any time, on streets where there are street car lines. [Fifty per cent of traffic congestion is caused by parked automobiles.]
2. Put all streets where there are street car lines under boulevard rules, giving the street cars precedence over all traffic except the fire department.
3. No vehicle of any kind should be allowed to drive on street car tracks, under penalty.
4. Heavy or slow moving traffic should not be allowed on streets where there are street car lines, except in the loop, where certain streets should be assigned to this traffic alone.
5. Establish a system of one way traffic in loop, making use of alleys where such are found practical.
6. No trucking of any description should be allowed between loop and freight depots, or through the loop to or from freight depots, between the hours of 7 a. m. and 7 p. m. No heavy traffic whatever in loop between 7:30 a. m. and 9 a. m. or between 4:30 p. m. and 6 p. m.
7. Reroute certain street cars so as to distribute inbound and outbound loop cars more evenly over all streets than at present.
8. Adopt skip stop system for street cars in loop alternating streets, at which different lines stop, thus reducing stop delay one-half.
9. Surface line express service should be established. H. S. AYLING.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

ANNABEL LEE.

By Edgar Allan Poe.

It was many and many a year ago,
  In a kingdom by the sea,
That a maiden lived whom you may know
  By the name of Annabel Lee;
And this maiden she lived with no other thought
  Than to love and be loved by me.

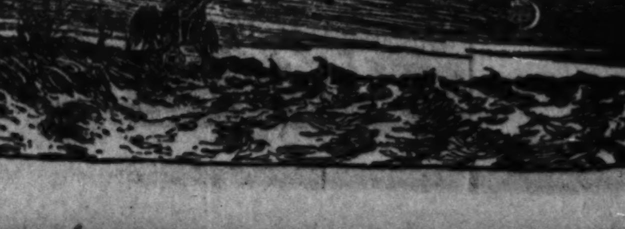
I was a child and she was a child,
  In this kingdom by the sea;
But we loved with a love that was more than love,
  I and my Annabel Lee;
With a love that the winged seraphs of heaven
  Coveted her and me.

And this was the reason that long ago,
  In this kingdom by the sea,
A wind blew out of a cloud, chilling
  My beautiful Annabel Lee;
So that her high born kinsman came
  And bore her away from me,
To shut her up in a sepulcher
  In this kingdom by the sea.

The angels, not so happy in heaven,
  Went envying her and me;
Yes! that was the reason (as all men know,
  In this kingdom by the sea)
That the wind came out of the cloud by night,
  Chilling and killing my Annabel Lee.

But our love it was stronger by far than the love
  Of those who were older than we,
  Of many far wiser than we;
And neither the angels in heaven above,
  Nor the demons down under the sea,
Can ever dissever my soul from the soul
  Of the beautiful Annabel Lee.

For the moon never beams without bringing me dreams
  Of the beautiful Annabel Lee;
And the stars never rise but I feel the bright eyes
  Of the beautiful Annabel Lee;
And so, all the night-tide, I lie down by the side
Of my darling, my darling, my life and my bride,
  In her sepulcher there by the sea,
  In her tomb by the sounding sea.



TROOPS GUARD BERNARDES AT RIO DE JANEIRO

Brazil's New President Gets Cool Reception.

Here is the first uncensored dispatch to reach the United States concerning events leading up to the inauguration of the new president of Brazil. A dispatch to The Tribune, filed direct from Rio de Janeiro, on Nov. 15, the date of the inauguration, indicated the ceremony passed off without untoward incident and that the new president was well received by the Brazilian people.

BY JOHN WHITE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 6.—[By Courier to Buenos Aires, Nov. 18].—Arthur Bernardes, Brazil's new president-elect, was brought into the capital under heavy military guard yesterday, hustled into a closed automobile smothered with army officers inside and soldiers on the running board, mudguards and every other hanging on point outside the auto, and with a heavy cavalry escort hurried to his temporary residence through streets heavily policed by infantry. Senor Bernardes' reception in Rio de Janeiro contrasted strongly with the usual receptions of the kind in South America, when the streets are usually jjammed with civic organizations, large popular manifestations, and arm in arm parades led by the arriving personage, especially when he is the president-elect. Senor Bernardes' reception was notably cool. Only small groups awaited him at the railroad station and there was no cheering, but only slight handclapping as he hurried by.

ARTHUR BERNARDES.

Reports Were Conflicting.

For two weeks previous to his arrival there had been widely conflicting reports as to when and how he would arrive, Senor Bernardes' closest advisors apparently purposely giving out different dates. When The Tribune correspondent was in Bello Horizonte on Nov. 2, the officer in charge of the military arrangements en route said Senor Bernardes positively would not leave Bello Horizonte until Nov. 12. It was announced Saturday that the president-elect was to arrive in Rio de Janeiro the next afternoon, but no announcement of the line of march was made and as a result no people were on the streets to greet him when he passed.

The spectators would have been unable to see him, anyway, because he was completely hidden behind officers and soldiers in and on his auto.

Infantry Guard of Honor.

An outstanding feature of the reception was the heavy military guard. The 3d regiment of infantry, with cartridge clips in their belts, formed the guard of honor at the station. The 2d infantry, which brought him into the city the day before, was assigned to police duty. Armed with revolvers and bayonets, they were stationed eight men to each block from the station to his residence, with two cavalrymen mounting guard at every street corner en route.

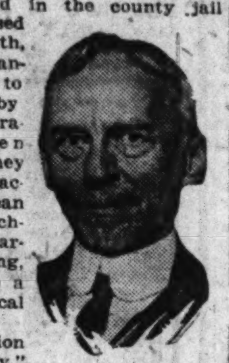
Everything connected with the arrival of the president elect was secret, indicating that his supporters fully realize the lack of support of the federal capital and the fear of eventualities. Neither before, during, nor since his arrival has there been the slightest indication of any disorder, the opposition so far taking the character of a boycott, showing no interest in Señor Bernardes' activities. The situation is indictaed by the fact that the newspapers supporting Señor Bernardes played his arrival on the front page with pictures, whereas the opposition papers, including three whose managing editors have been jailed since July, did not mention Señor Bernardes nor his arrival, nor have they referred to him since he has been in the city.

U. S. Criticized Both Ways.

Even the United States' efforts to extend unprecedented courtesy to the Brazilian people on the occasion of their centennial independence celebration has been dragged into the political controversy attending Bernardes' election to the presidency. The presence of battleship Nevada and a battalion of picked marines has been so severely criticised by some Brazilian factions that American authorities ordered the Nevada to leave Rio harbor before Senor Bernardes' inauguration on Nov. 15. Now the same critics declare this constitutes an insult to the incoming government.

It seems impossible for the United States to show its friendship for South American republics by doing anything or abstaining from doing anything without being damned.

SING SING MAN SAYS DELAYS OF LAW CLOG JAIL



GEORGE W. KIRCHWEY.

Three-fourths of the cases against defendants held in the county jail could be disposed of within a month, instead of languishing three to six months, by proper coöperation between state's attorney and courts, according to Dean George W. Kirchwey, former warden of Sing Sing, who has made a study of the local situation.

On the occasion of "Jail Sunday" in the churches today, the criminologist will speak at the Hyde Park Baptist church in the morning and the Sunday Evening club this evening, his subject being "The Jail and the Community."

To the Parkside Community center he will make an address Tuesday evening.

PEDIGO SEIZED AS ROCK ISLAND VICE RING MURDERER

Rock Island, Ill., Nov. 18.—Lawrence Pedigo was arrested today, charged with murdering William Gabel, a saloonkeeper, on July 31. His arrest was ordered by Attorney General Brundage, who is conducting a special investigation of crime and vice conditions in Rock Island, seven murders having been committed in the past few months.

The Gabel murder is believed to have been committed to prevent an exposure of the operations of an immunity ring alleged to involve officials and prominent politicians, among whom it has been said large sums of money collected from lawbreakers was divided.

Pedigo has been the chief lieutenant of John Looney, editor, himself a fugitive, with a federal warrant charging transportation of a stolen automobile hanging over him. Looney's newspaper, the Rock Island News, suspended publication a week ago. Other arrests are expected in the Gabel murder.

DEPUTIES, READY FOR FIGHT, INVADE HAUNT OF 'KILLER'

Plan to Bring In Genna, Dead or Alive.

Angelo Genna, reputed "bad man" of the Nineteenth ward, will go to jail as soon as he can be located, according to orders issued yesterday by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, in whose court Genna was convicted Friday of intimidating a witness.

ANGELO GENNA.

The court late yesterday issued a writ of attachment for "Genna or his body," and late in the afternoon Thomas Sheehan, deputy United States marshal, led a squad of marshals and police officers into the district where Genna for years has been a favorite and a terror—the neighborhood of Polk and Halsted streets.

All Heavily Armed.

All the officers were heavily armed, expected a fight, and had been warned not to take any chances.

Genna, according to suspicions called to the attention of the court, contemplated fleeing the United States rather than serve the almost certain sentence of seven years in the penitentiary which was scheduled to be imposed tomorrow.

Judge Wilkerson was informed the man planned returning to his native Italy, if he could.

At the request of Assistant United States Attorneys Edwin Weisl and Judd B. Light, who prosecuted Genna, guards were provided for witnesses in the case, to remain on duty until Genna is located.

Called First Feud Killer.

The reputed killer was called "Angelo, the Immune," in view of the fact that he was twice acquitted on murder charges when the police claimed the evidence was iron clad.

He was credited by detectives with having killed the first man in the feud in the Nineteenth ward, which resulted in thirty murders. On another occasion he was acquitted in the face of a death bed identification by his alleged victim.

He was convicted Friday of causing, by threats of death, Genevieve Court, 15, to change her testimony in a "white slave" prosecution.

3 AUTO BANDITS KIDNAP 2 MEN, GET $2,200 LOOT

When three auto bandits who last night kidnaped John Ogren, 7743 South Peoria street, and William O'Connor from the former's car, dumped them out at 66th street and Lowe avenue, the victims checked up a joint loss of more than $1,200 in cash and $1,000 in jewelry.

Of this Mr. Ogren, who conducts a cigar store at 7463 South Chicago avenue, contributed most of the cash, and went better than fifty-fifty on the jewelry.

Ogren was driving O'Connor to the latter's home at West 66th street and Union avenue.

POLICE INTERRUPT GYPSY "WAKE" TO NAB THIEF

There was commotion enough to "wake the dead" last night when Police Sergeant Phillip Carroll and his squad interrupted celebration of a Gypsy wake in a store at 18th street and Blue Island avenue.

Joseph and Louis Ristick, 516 South Halsted street, were being sought by the irreverent policemen on a charge of having, on Friday night, entered the castle of their cousins, "King" Dushno and his queen, Sophia, choking the latter and stealing $300.

The mourners, enraged at the intrusion, forced the officers to wield clubs and draw pistols. And many followed to the Central police station, calling down curses of their tribe.

SEEK PAIR WHO ROBBED WOMAN ALONE IN HOME

Police were searching yesterday for two robbers who late Friday night bound Mrs. Mary Parker, 8715 Wallace street, wife of Ellsworth Parker, employed nights by the Commonwealth Edison company, and took her purse, containing $90.

Mrs. Parker had just put her children to bed and was reading, she told police, when she heard a noise in the kitchen. She went to investigate, she said, and found two men, one armed. They put a scarf over her head, she asserted, and then searched the house. She said one of the men had a scar on his neck.

IT IS as different as you would expect Edison's skill and workmanship to be from that of any other man. Tireless research and lavish expenditure of money were lighted by his genius. He sought the perfect reproduction—the re-creation of music. So successful has he been that reproduction and original can not be told apart.

This realism has been demonstrated again and again. In public before a delighted audience, in private before skeptical musicians, it has been proven conclusively that the ear cannot tell the voice of the singer from its re-creation in the Edison record. So, too, with instrumental selections. We ask you to make this test. It is the only way of discovering for yourself the perfect qualities of the Edison Phonograph.

FYFFE OPPOSES AND COLE URGES NEW BASIC LAW

Give Arguments Pro and Con on Constitution.

The Tribune prints herewith two statements bearing on the proposed new constitution for Illinois, which goes to the people for their vote for or against it on Dec. 12.

One of the two arguments here presented is from Colin C. H. Fyffe, formerly counsel for the election board and a representative member of the Chicago bar. Mr. Fyffe opposes the new constitution.

The other statement is from George E. Cole, who has been called "the father of the movement for a new state constitution." It is a letter written by Mr. Cole to Justice Orrin N. Carter of the State Supreme court and in it Mr. Cole says that the people's failure to adopt the new constitution would be a great mistake.

STATEMENT BY MR. FYFFE

Mr. Fyffe's statement on the subject, which is now engrossing the attention of the voters, follows:

"The advocates of the proposed constitution with whom I have discussed it say that their reason is that 'on the whole' or 'taking it by and large' they think that the new constitution 'with all its possible defects' is better than the old one.

"This also is the argument put forth in a good deal of the so called literature issued in support of the proposed constitution by its backers since the adjournment of the convention.

"The only argument in answer to the direct showing—that [1] in its revenue feature [2] in the provision making a political body out of the Supreme court, and [3] in the bogus Chicago home rule clauses, the proposed constitution is utterly bad legislation, if indeed it is not a pious fraud, is that the legislature of the state may be depended upon to do what is right whenever these new matters come within its scope of authority—as they will in the case of the financial provisions; that the Supreme court will resist all the natural temptations which have hitherto assailed human beings in office, and be able to steer a safe course between the duties of nonpolitical judges and the opportunities of distributors of partisan spoils.

Cites Small as Example.

"This includes the argument also that the governor of the state of Illinois [Gov. Small, for example] may always be depended upon to think only of the good of the people and never of his own political advantage or of the political advantage of his party. The proponents of the new constitution are in these these particulars either unsophisticated lambs or they have in the backs of their heads an ulterior motive, which I believe to be the enormous advantage which the new tax provisions bring to the owners of intangible as against the owner of tangible property.

"This latter class of taxpayers would include the owner of real estate, the manufacturing corporation, the enormous class of home owners, practically the entire salaried or wage earning classes, and all the professional classes whose income depends upon their own labor.

Analyses of "Home Rule" Section.

"The proponents of the new constitution point with pride to the home rule provisions which apparently most of them have not read or not studied. It will be found that all the new powers given to Chicago are powers which the state legislature has full power to grant Chicago under the present constitution. There is a great deal of thunder but the result is nil. On the other hand, Chicago wholly loses control of its own judiciary if the plan contained in section III. of the draft of the proposed constitution goes into effect.

"Now, these three things: [1], the unfair revenue provisions; [2], the conversion of the supreme court into a political force, and [3], the [false] Chicago home rule are the features which condemn hopelessly the proposed draft.

Ignores "Small Things."

"There are a dozen small matters, such as the clause regarding bail for prisoners, the jury service clause by which women are allowed to serve on juries, the change in the grand jury system and many other things which I consider unimportant. If those things are all that the new constitution has accomplished its whole history is a ridiculous waste of time and money. Therefore I will speak only of the big things.

"First, the taxes: What follows is intended to be a full and complete statement of the tax provisions by descriptions rather than by potation of the sections. There are four sections empowering the general assembly to provide taxes. These are Sections 140. 141, 142 and 143. By the proposed constitution there are four different kinds of taxes allowed instead of two different kinds, as under the present constitution.

Present Tax Provisions.

"The two under the present constitution are: [1] taxes on privileges, franchises and occupations; and [2] taxes by valuation on all property, tangible or intangible. The first of these, namely, the tax on privileges, franchises and occupations is retained by Section 140 of the new draft. There may be many different forms of these taxes [2] just as there are under the existing constitution.

"The valuation tax of the present constitution is retained in Section 141 of the draft. By this section the general assembly must levy taxes on property by valuation. This power includes the present taxation upon real estate and upon personal property, both tangible and intangible; but the tax on intangibles ceases in case of an income tax on intangibles under Section 142. Under this would be included also the present tax upon the excess value of capital stock.

Charges Taxation Iniquities.

"Sections 140 and 141 provides therefore for all the taxes which are levied under the present constitution. The methods of administration and collection and of ascertaining the value are still left with the legislature without change. The only difference is that all intangible securities of every kind and class, income bearing or nonincome bearing, escape taxation altogether in case an income tax under Section 142 is imposed upon the income from intangibles.

"By Section 142 the general assembly is empowered to lay this 'uniform and substantial tax on income derived' from intangible property. This tax by the express terms of the section frees intangible property of every kind or class from a valuation tax. Hence, the great mass of nonproductive intangible property, which nevertheless has a substantial value, escapes all taxation while all nonproductive tangible property must in any event be taxed.

Takes Up "Double Income Tax."

"In addition to these taxes, section 143 imposes a general income tax upon all net income. This puts two income taxes upon the proceeds of intangible securities. It is true that there may be allowed such deductions as shall compensate for taxes paid on the actual tangible property from which the taxed income is derived. But no relief is given to tangible property from which no income is derived—such as unimproved real estate.

"Moreover, taxes must be paid on tangible property in any event, while on the basis of 15 per cent income tax on intangibles the result might be this: On an income of 6 per cent upon the capital of $100,000 of securities the valuation tax at this year's rate would be $3,890, while the income tax would be only $900, and every thousand dollars' worth of non-productive securities would add to the advantage.

Expects No Legislative Aid.

"The property tax on intangibles by valuation must be released in case there is an income tax on intangibles. In the case of tangible property, such as factories, farms, real estate and buildings, there may be a general income tax on the proceeds of the property and a valuation tax on the property itself. The possibility of the legislature allowing deductions to 'compensate for taxes paid on tangible property' is based on a merely permissive authority which, judging by the past, the legislature will not exercise.

"One more point: The general assembly is given power to apportion the revenue from the general income tax as it chooses between the state and the taxing bodies. It may give all the revenue thus raised to the state.

"Another provision, contained in section 63, gives a curious significance to this provision for the distribution of the general income tax. Section 63 empowers the general assembly to provide for lending money on farm lands in the state. This must be done under some form of commission appointed by the governor. Any other method would be out of normal line.

Governor Names Commission.

"As the governor appoints the members of the commission, the governor would have the same dominance over their actions that he now has, and that every governor has and ought to have, over the acts of park commissioners, industrial commissioners, utility commissioners, charity commissioners, state dental and medical boards, and every one of the other groups of appointees through whom such a great quantity of the state's executive activities are carried on.

"With the exception of the owners of intangible securities, all other taxpayers may feel at once that whatever else happens, under the new constitution their taxes will be greatly increased. and with that increase the ravenous demands of the taxing bodies, state, county and city, will wax and multiply."

MR. COLE'S POSITION

George E. Cole's letter to Justice Carter follows:

"Dear Judge Carter: I am heartily and enthusiastically in favor of adopting the proposed new constitution because it is vastly better suited than the present constitution of 1870 to meet the present and future needs of the state.

"The process of drafting a new constitution is necessarily one of compromise which unavoidably brings disappointment to many individuals, but I think that this constitutional convention, made up of 102 representative citizens from all parts of the state, has honestly tried to give the people the best basic law upon which the delegates could agree. In my opinion it offers large gains over the old constitution in numerous respects.

Praises "Home Rule" Plan.

"It gives Chicago substantially complete powers of local self-government, including the power to draft and adopt its own city charter. Under such a charter the people of Chicago, if they so desire, may have the initiative, referendum, and recall in municipal affairs. That is a matter of much importance. Why is it being ignored or minimized by those who ask for the defeat of the new constitution because it does not contain a provision for the initiative and referendum in state affairs?

"I have long been an advocate of a state initiative and referendum and am disappointed that the constitutional convention did not provide such measures in the proposed new constitution. But I cannot agree with those who want the new constitution defeated because of this omission. Progress is not made that way. To vote against a new constitution that is distinctly better than the old one in its positive features because the new constitution does not contain everything we want is to do injustice to the commonwealth.

Cumulative Voting Abolished.

"It does away with the cumulative voting system that has been a serious obstacle in the way of getting a more representative legislature, since that system has tended to make legislators unresponsive to public opinion and indifferent to proposed reform. For many years good citizens have been seeking to abolish that bar to better government at Springfield.

"It substantially betters the taxation system of the state by empowering the legislature to enact a state income tax law, which will tend to give relief to the small taxpayers.

"Although the amending article is not as liberal as I would have liked it, it makes the process of amending the constitution decidedly easier. Under the new plan the legislature may submit amendments to two articles at a time, instead of one. My view is that we ought to adopt the new constitution now and then proceed to amend it so as to make it include any important features which the convention may have omitted.

Transit Borrowing Power.

"The new constitution, in giving the city of Chicago adequate borrowing power for transportation purposes, removed the last barrier to the municipalization of the traction system. It has many other good features. Its positive faults are not serious.

"So far as the limitation which the new constitution imposes upon Cook county's representation in one branch of the legislature is concerned, I think it only just and fair. Cook county already has 47 per cent of the population of the entire state and will soon have a majority. This will give it control of the house, as there is to be no limitation in that body.

"Under these circumstances it is entirely equitable that Cook county's representation in the senate should be limited, as has been done, in order that the downstate people may be protected against the domination of one great city. Under the old constitution Cook county has only a limited representation on the Supreme court bench and its representation in the legislature is also limited at the present time because the legislature has refused for more than a decade to redistrict the state. There has been no remedy for this situation, but the new constitution makes definite provision for reapportionment in case the legislature fails to act.

Limitation Long Favored.

"The wisdom of accepting a limitation of Cook county's representation in one branch of the legislature, in exchange for powers of home rule, was pointed out to the people of Chicago as far back as eight years ago by the Constitutional Convention League of Illinois, of which I was then the president. The Citizens' Asosciation of Chicago also took the same position at that time, and in 1918 the campaign committee of which you were chairman advocated a one house limitation for Cook county in its literature.

"One exceedingly important consideration that is being overlooked at this time is that if the proposed new constitution is rejected on Dec. 12, it will be impossible to get another constitutional convention called in this state for many years to come. As one of those who for years carried on the tedious and uphill fight to induce the legislature to submit the calling of a convention to the people, I do not hesitate to say that failure to ratify this constitution will end all chance of getting relief through a constitutional convention for at least twenty years.

Urges Support of Voters.

"The common sense course for the voters to follow at this time is to take the large improvements offered by the new constitution and immediately after election set out to secure, by the process of amendment, the other things that we wanted from the constitutional convention but did not get.

"I appeal to every citizen who has the welfare of the state at heart to vote for the new constitution, on the simple ground that we have everything to gain and nothing to lose by adoption. Rejection, in my opinion, would be a most serious mistake.

"Yours very truly,

"GEORGE E. COLE."

STATE TEACHERS VOTE TO FIGHT NEW ORGANIC LAW

Representatives of 7,000 members in Chicago of the Illinois State Teachers' association yesterday voted to take action and incur any expense "that may be necessary" to defeat ratification of the proposed new constitution.

The action, following a similar stand taken a week ago by the Chicago Teachers' federation, is based upon the claim that the new document would deprive teachers of pensions to which they are now entitled after certain periods of service, that it would demoralize the teaching system and would work adversely to the welfare of the entire community.

$500,000 BOOZE PLOT CHARGED TO DISTILLERY RING

20 Chicagoans Said to Face Indictment.

An alleged conspiracy in violation of the prohibition law, said to have netted its promoters $500,000, was revealed yesterday in issuance of warrants for the arrest of two officials of the Roseville Distilling company of Lawrenceville, Ind. Their names were withheld, but they were said to be prominent in Chicago.

Federal officers said the case would be submitted to the grand jury as soon as possible, with the expectation that indictments will be returned against twenty Chicagoans.

Plant Bought by Chicagoans.

The Roseville Distilling company, according to government investigators, was purchased recently by a syndicate of restauranteurs and toilet water manufacturers of Chicago, and was conducted ostensibly as a plant for distillation of alcohol for use in perfumes. Instead, the alcohol was turned over by the perfumers to the restauranteurs and was sold in liquor, according to the charges.

The federal officials say the alcohol was shipped to the St. Lawrence Manufacturing company, 1108 West 69th street. Charles A. Gregory, prohibition director for the state of Illinois, conducted the investigation.

Seven Held on Booze Charge.

Sale of "soft" drinks said to consist mainly of "moonshine" yesterday led to the arrest of seven men on charges of violating the Volstead law. They are Fred Schultz, Monee, Ill.; Joseph Corsiglia, Monee; Andrew Sando, 934 Polk street, Chicago; Joseph and Henry Fink, 201 North Union avenue, and Gustave Genard and William O'Donnell, 1259 Hastings street.

Gets 60 Days, $200 Fine.

Flagrant violation of the Volstead act caused imposition of a sixty day sentence in the Wheaton county jail and a fine of $200 and costs on Joseph Hamme, a saloonkeeper at 740 South Clark street, by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday. Hamme was fined $100 and costs on a similar charge by Judge John F. Haas in South Clark street court.

EINSTEIN IN JAPAN; BELIEVES ECLIPSE MAY PROVE THEORY

KOBE, Japan, Nov. 18.—[By the Associated Press.]—Albert Einstein, sponsor for the theory of relativity and proponent of the doctrine that rays of light bend to the attraction of the great heavenly bodies they pass, declared today on his arrival from Thursday island that he believed observations of the September solar eclipse would prove his conclusions correct. Prof. Einstein said he understood that the scientific expedition to Australia to take photographs during the solar eclipse had been successful and he believed the photographs would vindicate his theory.

Prof. Einstein was given a tremendous welcome here, where the keenest interest is displayed in his theory.

"Results Very Successful."

Victoria, B. C., Nov. 18.—The western Australian expedition which observed the September solar eclipse to determine, among other things, the truth of the Einstein theory of relativity, was "particularly successful," according to N. A. Chant of Toronto university and Dr. R. K. Young of Victoria, Canadian members of the expedition, who returned today.

SUES WIDOW OF DOCTOR SUICIDE AS 'LOVE PIRATE'

Unable to effect a reconciliation with her husband, Mrs. Gertrude S. Norris yesterday filed a $20,000 alienation of affections suit against Mrs. Beatrice Lower, 4515 Monticello avenue, widow of Dr. Frank S. Lower, loop physician, who committed suicide under mysterious circumstances two weeks ago.

Mrs. Norris, through her attorney, Peter R. Boylan, recently filed suit for separate maintenance against James F. Norris, a salesman, who, she alleges, had become so infatuated with Mrs. Lower that he abandoned his home and family. Inability to find a solution to worries other than business troubles caused Dr. Lower to take his life, Attorney Boylan intimated yesterday.

Norris, answering the suit for separate maintenance, charged Mrs. Norris with misconduct with James Arnold, merchant, of Baldwin, Mich., and asserted that when he remonstrated with her because of her actions Mrs. Norris hurled a cup of hot tea at him. Mrs. Norris seeks custody of their two children, Mildred, 14 years old, and Leonore, 5.

ALASKA NEEDS ROADS TO KEEP GOLD MINES OPEN

Lack of Transportation Injures Business.

BY BOB BECKER.

ARTICLE VI.

Gold lode mining in Alaska will be helped through the construction of the government railroad, as many properties which could not be developed because of lack of transportation can now be worked. Preparations are now being made for larger operations in the vicinity of the railroad and in the future quartz mining will be carried on more extensively than ever before.

In the last few years Alaskan quartz mines have been producing less tha $5,000,000 worth of gold. High operating costs and lack of sufficient capital to work the mines have been responsible for the small production.

The Decline of Valdez.

Merchants in Valdez like to think of the hustling days of prosperity when Valdez had a population of four or five thousand, as the contrast today is all too evident. Valdez now is a quiet little town with a population that will hardly reach one thousand. The hundreds of tons of freight that formerly went through Valdez are now taken to Seward to be shipped over the government railroad. The Cliff mine is closed down The big payrolls are a thing of the past. Only five small outfits are now working near Valdez and they are operating on a small scale, with a minimum of equipment. As the future of Valdez is in the mining activity about the town, this place will not boom until quartz mining increases. There are several claims near Valdez that have paying lodes, but cheaper operating costs, more development work, and more capital are needed before they can be opened up on any appreciable scale.

To the westward along the government railroad prospects are brighter for quartz mining, as the railroad will be the means by which a number of properties can now be profitably worked. Transportation has been one of the great needs in this highly mineralized region, and now that the road is practically completed, machinery and supplies can be brought into the country at rates which will make it possible for several mines to open up.

Doubtless a Rich Country.

Gold as well as silver and copper are found in the interior along the railroad. It is without doubt a rich country. Among the best prospects for quartz mining may be mentioned the Willow creek district, which apparently has ores of such a grade to warrant the erection of a stamp mill.

There is one great need in this region, however, which must be met before any extensive mining can be carried on. The need is roads and more roads. Known ore deposits are worthless unless there are roads connecting it with the railroad. Last August the announcement was made that a mill would be installed on Willow Creek—when road facilities would permit. When more roads and more capital come to the region along the government railroad quartz mining will make great strides as there is an abundance of fuel close at hand. The government has investigated the coal situation in this region and assures investors that excellent coal for industrial purposes exists in abundance along the government railroad.

Frady Out of Danger; Leaves Hospital Soon

Edgar C. Frady, who underwent an operation for kidney trouble Nov. 7 at the Bremerman hospital, 1919 Prairie avenue, is apparently out of danger and probably will be able to leave the hospital next Sunday, Dr. John Lewis Bremerman reported yesterday. Frady is out on $50,000 bonds for slaying his wife in Miami, Fla., in February. His trial comes up in Miami Jan. 3.

RUSSIANS NOW AID FAMINE SUFFERERS, SAYS CHICAGO MAN

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

W. R. NELLEGAR.

MOSCOW, Nov. 18.—Sugar is one of the scarcest items in starved Russia. On a trip of inspection through the Ukraine W. R. Nellegar of 4559 Greenwood avenue, Chicago, found the peasants paying 38 to 54 cents a pound for sugar at the then rate of ruble - dollar exchange. American relief workers supply sugar free to the children.

According to Mr. Nellegar the districts of Volhynia, Chernigov and Kiev have produced a practically normal pre-war harvest, so that this population will be self-supporting and will be able to ship surplus grain to the famine districts.

"The grain tax imposed by the government," said Mr. Nellegar, "has been collected and part shipped to the Volga. It was 216 pounds per dessiatine, or 2.7 acres.

"The American relief administration is feeding 25,000 children in the Kiev district. The government ration in the children's homes seems adequate except that it is not well balanced. The institutions depend chiefly on the local governments, which impose grain taxes on the peasants. Enough was collected to meet immediate needs."

WIFE PLEADS FOR MATE DESPITE 'OTHER WOMAN'

Although she and her three children had been "deserted for a younger and prettier woman," Mrs. James B. Handley, 4300 Ellis avenue, yesterday appeared before Judge John F. Hass, pleading for leniency for James B. Handley, accused of passing worthless checks.

Handley, it was charged, had passed the spurious paper on W. C. Levin, branch manager for the Western Union Telegraph company, and with the proceeds maintained Miss Lucille Lonergan in the Atlantic hotel. Penniless and without food for the children, the oldest of them 5 years old, Mrs. Handley begged for the release of her husband in the face of advice from Judge Haas that she find work "and forget all about this man and start life anew."

"No, when I married Jim I married him for better or for worse," sobbed Mrs. Handley, "and I'm going to stick to him through thick and thin regardless of what he does." Judge Haas gave Mrs. Handley $10 from the court's "poor fund" and indicated that he would reduce Handley's $3,500 bond.

HANG THREE REBELS FOR PART IN RAND RIOTS LAST WINTER

GEN. JAN SMUTS.

PRETORIA, Union of South Africa, Nov. 18.—Three men, Lewis, Long, and Hull, were executed today after conviction on charges of murder arising out of the strike and rebellion on the Rand last winter. The men when leaving their cells to go to the scaffold sang "The Red Flag."

Pressure had been brought to bear on the government by organized labor to have the sentence commuted, but Premier Smuts took the stand that the government was duty bound to show that "the gunman's law cannot prevail in the Union."

The report of the martial law commission which investigated the Rand trouble alleges that the revolt was largely due to the work of the Communists and the Third internationale or Moscow party.

OFFICIAL ASKED AUTOPSY ON BODY OF MRS. COWLEY

Solon-Springs, Wis., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—An admission by State's Attorney Robert E. Kennedy of Douglas county today that for the last six weeks he has busied himself in a quiet, but thorough investigating of circumstances surrounding the death of Mrs. Clara Cowley, 63 year old bride of the Rev. Griffith Cowley, pastor of the Congregational church here, which led him to join Indiana relatives in requesting an analysis be made of the woman's vitals to determine whether Mrs. Cowley died of natural causes.

Following his mysterious and hurried trip to Duluth yesterday, the Rev. Griffith, who is twenty years younger than his bride, was back in Solon-Springs today calmly going about his parishional duties.

"It's all a frameup on the part of relatives prejudiced against me because they can't get everything Clara left," he asserts. I have engaged an attorney in Duluth and another in Chicago."

MANN WILL NOT BE SPEAKER OR LEADER, HE SAYS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Representative Mann [Ill.] let it be known today that under no circumstances would he be a candidate for the speakership of the house to succeed Speaker Gillett [Mass.], or for the Republican leadership to succeed Representative Mondell [Wyo.].

Mr. Mann expects to take an active part in the proceedings of the next congress, but he has told his friends who were booming him for speaker or Republican leader that he preferred to work in the ranks.

His refusal to enter the race is believed to have left the field clear for Speaker Gillett for reëlection, as Mr Mann was his only prospective formidable rival. For the leadership, the chances appear favorable to the candidacy of Representative Longworth [O.], although many western Republicans are likely to support Representative Anderson [Minn.].

This girl had never worked before—

When Miss Randolph was graduated from high school, circumstances required that she work.

She couldn't afford to spend six months or a year studying shorthand. What could she do?

One day she saw one of the advertisements of The Illinois School of Filing and decided to send for the free book—"Finding a profession instead of a job."

That book was a revelation to Miss Randolph. She had never even imagined that filing was such an important branch of business—or that it could be studied.

So she took the course and studied the principles that underlie all filing systems—learning through actual practice. Today this young lady who had never worked before is self-supporting.

And she loves her work. It is pleasant, interesting and brings her in contact with the important executives of the business.

Who knows? Unless Miss Randolph had read that book and taken the course in filing she might be just one of a hundred girls in an office! Who knows but that it holds a similar future for you, too?

Drop in today to see Miss Gladys C. Bridges, the principal of the Illinois School of Filing. She will be glad to tell you about the course.

Identical course given by correspondence. Write for details.

Faith joined with action built this Vitamin Extraction Plant—one of the Steps in the Production of the World's First Perfect White Bread

A LIFETIME AMBITION REALIZED —A WORLD NEED SUPPLIED

President
Ward Baking Company

Announcing a great discovery resulting in the production of the world's first perfect white loaf

WARD'S VITOVIM BREAD

MANY years ago as a boy of 15 while employed in my father's small bakery, I worked in the early morning hours and at the break of dawn, or earlier, went forth and delivered orders to customers of my own making. Then I returned in time for attendance at public school. At that early day I resolved to try to provide better and better bread.

My father had used a grocer's sign reading —"Ward's Bread—None Better." This sign was not to my liking because to my boyish mind it conveyed a double meaning. It could be taken to mean that our bread was no better than other bakers' bread sold in our neighborhood. That idea was offensive to me and I succeeded in having my father change his advertising slogan so that the new signs read "Ward's Bread—Better than the Rest." Ever since that time I have been striving to keep that idea in mind and maintain that position.

I have kept my hand on the advertising of all Ward products and have always insisted on truth in advertising, never allowing advertising license to overstep the truth. I have always been ready with proof to sustain our claims and so in announcing our new loaf —VITOVIM, the Super-Bread—I pledge my word that no claim for it shall be made that is not justified by facts.

The enthusiasm throughout our entire personnel concerning our new loaf is so justifiably great that I realize more than ever the importance of truth in advertising, and the continuance of good faith to the public in return for the favor and patronage they have bestowed on our company enabling us to become the world's greatest bakers.

We now wish to announce our great discovery resulting in the production of "The Super-Loaf"—the world's first perfect white bread.

This advertisement tells about our discovery of a method of extracting vitamins, proteins and mineral salts, the vital elements of the wheat berry and restoring them to white bread.

Everyone knows that in the making of white flour, many of the most nutritious elements of wheat are lost. The vital "germ" or heart of the grain of wheat is its most nourishing and vitalizing part. Yet this "germ" and the bran must be removed in the course of milling white flour.

It has long been known that the most essential food elements of wheat have been lost from food for men and women, nursing mothers and children, and turned into feed for hogs and cattle.

With my staff of expert bakers and learned scientists, I have tried for years to find the way to unlock the secret which would disclose a method of adding greater nutrition to white bread. Now at last we have succeeded and are introducing a new kind of bread which contains these vital elements of wheat in rich abundance. In order to produce such a bread it was first necessary to build the $1,000,000 vitamin extraction plant shown above.

We have been making good white bread for many years—the best, we believe, which could be made with the best of white flour, milk and other good materials. But we add to our new loaf these vital elements and our work and animal feeding tests have proved VITOVIM is the most perfect and nutritious bread ever produced. Our new process not only results in saving these most vital parts of the wheat, recovering from Nature's storehouse the vitamins and natural mineral salts, but involves the use of rich whole milk in quantities so large that no water at all is used in making the dough, thereby building up the protein content of the loaf to an extraordinary degree.

Indeed it might be called a loaf of bread and milk—two great foods in one, plus vitamins, plus mineral salts, plus proteins.

The final result is a delicious white bread in the familiar form of the best family or home-made loaf, to which have been added the vital and essential elements of whole wheat from the wheat "germ" and bran and also the nourishing qualities of milk.

But this is not all. Much is heard these days of vitamins and mineral salts. It has been discovered that these essential elements are absolutely necessary in human food. The vital parts of wheat which my company has learned how to save, contain abundant quantities of both vitamins and mineral nutrients, and especially of Vitamin B, most necessary for the healthy growth of children.

Milk also is rich in vitamins, mineral salts and proper proteins. In short, there have been added to our new loaf, exceptional quantities of all the vital and essential food elements.

That is why we call it VITOVIM—The Super-Bread.

Our new process is the result of a large outlay of money, of patience and perseverance and our greatest reward will be in the knowledge that our discovery will ultimately be of immense benefit to mankind.

Long continued animal feeding tests by food scientists of our leading universities have proved the great nutritional value of our super loaf.

They pronounce it the first perfect white bread ever offered to mankind.

You will be interested to know that in these feeding tests, with absolutely nothing more than Vitovim Bread and Water, various test animals were raised to full growth, maturity and vigor, to breed and reproduce even to the third, fourth and continuous generations.

There never was a home-made loaf or any other loaf that could bring about the same result.

The above is a tremendous statement, made in full consciousness of its great importance and I have personally seen to it that it is fully warranted by the facts.

Our company has bread-making plants in the cities of New York, Brooklyn, Boston, Providence, Newark, Syracuse, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Columbus, Youngstown, South Bend and Chicago, and distributes its products through the large majority of grocers and dealers in these cities and in the adjacent territory covering a radius of an average of fifty mile

VITOVIM BREAD was placed on sale in territory served by our Boston and Providence plants only a few days ago. It will be impossible to place our new loaf within the reach of all our consumers at one and the same time, but it is our purpose to do so at the earliest practicable date. Our customers and distributors can easily realize that we must revolutionize to a large extent our manufacturing operations and reorganize our distributing and sales organization to keep pace with the new demands our great discovery places upon us, but we will do all that is humanly possible to reach all our trade in the very near future. In the meantime we caution our friends not to be imposed upon by imitations or the fake claims of others, who will no doubt endeavor to cash in on our initiative and discovery. We are glad to be able to advise all our friends and caution all unscrupulous competitors, that both our loaf and our process are covered by U. S. and foreign patents, granted and pending, which will protect us—and the public—in our endeavor to supply this loaf of greater nutrition in all its scientific perfection to an ever increasing population.

Our own customers and consumers will naturally come first, entitled as they are to a justifiable preference and, after that, through expansion of territory and suitable trade relations we will endeavor to cover every section where there is a sufficient demand. It is our earnest desire to place this new super bread within the reach of all the people. However, before this can be fully accomplished, we may find it necessary to duplicate in other sections of the country our present great Vitamin extraction plant. This will take time and enterprise.

Meanwhile, we wish all to know that the trade names and labels applied to this new loaf have been protected as U. S. Registered Trade Marks and copyrighted so as to protect the public in every possible way against deceptions and substitutions.

Please remember that it took us more than a year to build our Warren extraction plant, and even if others were not barred by patents and trade marks they could not duplicate our results for years to come. The benefits of a discovery so great as this cannot be made available for the good of all without the necessary lapse of time for accomplishment. The development of the use of the electric light and the telephone are examples in point.

This perfected loaf of white wheat bread, "VITOVIM," with that other great crusader, Ward's 100% whole wheat loaf "Homespun," constitute our battery of nutrition for the masses and with these two great varieties of the "staff of life" we challenge the world to equal them in what they mean to the physical welfare of the human race.

As soon as our new super bread is available for daily distribution in this city and adjacent territory, you will be apprised of the fact by newspaper announcements.

SMALL'S SENATE ALLIES SHOW NO SHOULDER 'CHIPS'

Not Seeking Scrap, They Reveal at Luncheon.

BY PARKE BROWN.

About all the pro-Small members of the Illinois state senate want is to be let alone.

They are on the defensive so far as rumors of attempts to impeach the governor are concerned, but are ready for harmony "for the party's sake." They have no selfish, aggressive program of their own. And they don't want the senate organized against them.

This situation was disclosed yesterday at the biennial post-election luncheon to which were invited all Republican members of the next senate. A count of noses showed twenty-nine present, and the absentees included Corporation Counsel Ettelson and some other Smallites, but there were enough of that group present to indicate the situation.

No Move Toward Caucus.

Contrary to advance rumors, there was no effort made in the direction of a caucus on house organization. These luncheons really are "good fellowship" affairs and there is much story telling and laughter, some of the stories having direct point and some of the laughter being extremely significant, but it would require the services of a corps of experts to analyze the real situation from the speeches delivered.

But taking such utterances as did bear on the question of administration control and related matters and adding to them such information as could be gathered around the edges of the table, it became certain that the administration senators recognized they will be outnumbered when the senate meets in January, and they weren't trying to start anything.

There was considerable talk of "independence" and "party regularity" and much protest against the senate being organized "from Springfield, from Chicago, or from Washington," and the anti-Small men and the men who are neither anti-Small nor pro-Small seemed to be satisfied with the situation.

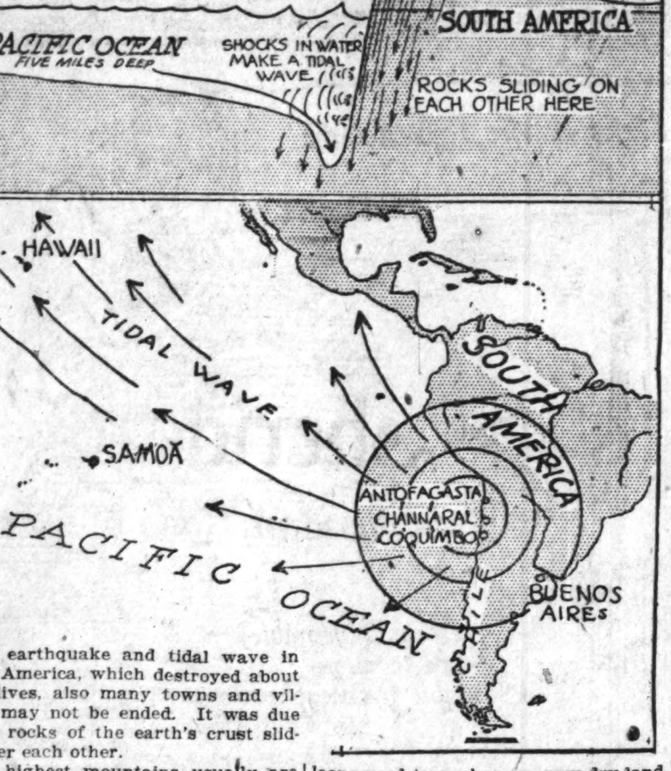
Name Committee on Principles.

The net result was the appointment of a committee of eight leaders, including spokesmen for the pros, the antis, and those who call themselves neutrals, to draw up a declaration of principles for adoption at the Republican senatorial caucus when the legislature convenes.

That committee consists of Senators Dailey, Buck, MacMurray, Kessinger, Glenn, Essington, Barr, and Meents. In addition to these eight those present included Senators Hicks, Carlson, Jewell, Wright, Turnbaugh, Roos, Van Lent, Cuthbertson, Mills, Schultz, Sneed, Hamilton, Dunlap, Bailey, Hanson, and Swift and Senators Elect Mason, Haenisch, Boyd, and Webster.

Without exception the speakers voiced the necessity of some real relief from heavy taxes, and several spoke of the need of an expansion of the state road plans. Both of these subjects are expected to be included in the declaration of principles.

FATAL QUAKE'S CAUSE



The earthquake and tidal wave in South America, which destroyed about 3,000 lives, also many towns and villages, may not be ended. It was due to the rocks of the earth's crust sliding over each other.

The highest mountains usually are bordered by great ocean depths. This is particularly true of the Andes. Chile is rising rapidly, in some places as much as five feet per century, so that roadsteads where Spanish treasure galleons used to anchor are now dry land. The rocks resist accumulated upward thrusts for a time, then give way and slip. Each slip makes an earthquake. The shocks also convulse the waters of the sea into great tidal waves.

Girl's Wedding Halted by Her Foster Parents

When George Olner, 23, and Miss Evelyn Whitehead, 17, of Manawa, Wis., stepped into the county clerk's office at Waukegan, Ill., yesterday and asked for a marriage license, the attendant said "Just a minute, please."

In a minute police officers appeared and took them into custody on instructions from Bert Wheeler, Manawa farmer, with whom the girl has lived since she was five years old.

ILLINOIS HOUSE HAS HARD FIGHT ON SPEAKERSHIP

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—The Illinois house has a speakership fight on its hands. Gov. Small and the Thompson-Lundin organization in Chicago desire not only the speakership of the house, but control of at least one-third of the state senate, or enough senatorial votes to stop the possibility of impeachment proceedings or legislative investigations.

The Anti-Saloon league of Illinois will have a list of candidates that will be "approved" or "satisfactory" before the attempt is made to organize the house by a regular Republican caucus. The list, undoubtedly will include the name of Speaker Dahlberg of the last house. He is the one city hall representative who had unqualified support of the Anti-Saloon league two years ago for nomination and election. He is an avowed candidate now for the speakership and according to his friends is supremely confident he will be reëlected. He was indorsed by the Anti-Saloon league for renomination and reëlection.

There is at least one indorsed "dry" who is a candidate for speaker who is prepared to make an open fight against any overlordship of the house exercized by the league. He is Otto C. Sonnemann of Carlinville. Mr. Sonnemann, he says himself, is opposed to any prohibition commissioner bill that may be demanded by the Anti-Saloon league, if such commissioner is to be appointed by the Small administration.

Nab Firm Employe in Thefts Extending Over Two Years

Charged with misappropriating funds of the Morse Drug company, Bernard C. Brunder, 2138 Berteau street, an employé, was arrested yesterday in a brokerage office in La Salle street by Sergts. Burch and O'Brien of the detective bureau. In two years thefts amounting to $2,500 have occurred in the drug company's office.

WETS' MAJORITY TOTALS 525,891 IN THIS STATE

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—On the wet and dry "little ballot" question of public policy, the wets carried the 101 downstate counties with a net majority of 133,786. The wet majority in Cook county was 392,105, making the total 525,891. The downstate vote follows:

For light wines and beer	508,435
Against light wines and beer	374,649
Majority "wet"	133,786
Total vote on state treasurer	886,723
Total vote on wet and dry	883,084

Computation of returns received at the office of Secretary of State Emmerson show that State Superintendent of Public Instruction Francis G. Blair carried the 101 downstate counties by 223,457 over James A. Murphy.

Oscar Nelson, Republican, for state treasurer, in the 101 counties has a lead of 190,547 over Peter Bartzen.

TELLS WHY HE NAMED PRENTISS IN ITALY MURDER

Claims Mrs. Underhill Spurned Chicagoan.

BY V. DE SANTO.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

FLORENCE, Nov. 18.—Cavalier Balesi, commissar of police here, has notified Mark Prentiss, former Chicago manufacturer and near east relief worker, that there is no necessity for him to come to Florence in connection with the murder of Sig. Bonamici, a young student, who died after a mysterious stabbing. The police official says Mr. Prentiss is in no way accused of having any part in the crime.

Gladys Underhill, wife of Lee Underhill, a Chicago manufacturer, through jealousy of whom certain Italians intimated that Mr. Prentiss had stabbed Sig. Bonamici by mistake, has moved from her boarding house to a nuns' institute at 1 Via Savonarala. She refuses to see any one and has instructed the porter to say she does not live there.

Luitri's Statement.

Lieut. Luitri, in a statement, said he did not accuse Mr. Prentiss of the crime, but simply pointed out circumstantial evidence. He made the following statement:

"For several months Mr. Prentiss had been an admirer of Mrs. Underhill, but she rejected his attentions. He sent her many letters and telegrams while he was in the near east, connected with the near east relief as one of the American workers. On his rutrn to Italy he wired her to meet him in Rome, but she refused. He then came to Florence and asked her to meet him at the Hotel De Ville. Gladys went, but she asked me to go along.

Three's a Crowd.

"Mr. Prentiss was much put out by my presence and treated Gladys and me rather roughly. On the following night Gladys and I both expected to see Mr. Prentiss in accordance with an appointment, but he did not show up. We called up his hotel, where we were informed that Mr. Prentiss had left town.

"On midnight of the same day it was learned that Sig. Bonamici had been stabbed at the entrance to his home, where I had lived up to a few weeks before. Before leaving Mr. Prentiss after our meeting in the Hotel De Ville he told me never to expect a good turn from him."

Carrier Pigeon Scorns Food and Refuses to Fly Home

S. S. Cohon, 6634 Newgard avenue, is looking for the owner of a carrier pigeon that won't go home. The bird flew into the window of his home yesterday morning. It refuses to eat or to leave. On its leg is a metal band with the number 35.

50 GOLDEN YEARS

MR. AND MRS. ABE SKORA.

[Retiz Studio Photos.]

Mr. and Mrs. Abe Skora, 4449½ North Robey street, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary today, at a reception to be held at the Emanuel Temple, 701 Buckingham place. Mr. Skora is 74 years old and Mrs. Skora 72. The couple were married in New York and shortly after their marriage came to Chicago.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

In The Tribune of last Wednesday S. Rosenblatt was designated as a former Lincoln park commissioner. Mr. Rosenblatt states this is an error, that he has been for five years a member of the special park commission.

J. J. Callahan, secretary of the Diamond Cab company, states that Frank Coster is not now and never was in the employ of the Diamond Cab company. Coster was recently held as a suspect in the kidnaping of Margaret Karmuth.

In the obituary notice of George Collins, printed in The Tribune on Nov. 10, it was stated that he was believed to be the last survivor of the band of Union soldiers who captured Confederate President Jeff Davis. L. M. Barber of Wheaton states that J. B. Mahana of Benson, Vt., was a member of the band and is still alive. Dr. Frank E. Downs of Batavia also states that William Harrison Crittenden, now living at Macon, Mich., was also on guard duty at the time and assisted in the capture.

In The Tribune last Wednesday was printed the picture of the sheriff of La Salle county, Ill., who was purported to be the youngest sheriff in the state. Attention is called to the recent election of Orville Litchfield, aged 25 years, sheriff of Marshall county; also Dean McAllister, aged 24 years, recently elected sheriff of Bond county, Ill.

A picture of Amiens cathedral printed in the coloroto section of this paper is accompanied by a statement that the structure was ruined during the war. This is a mistake. The writer confounded it with the Rheims cathedral.

REV. WILLIAMSON TO SPEAK.

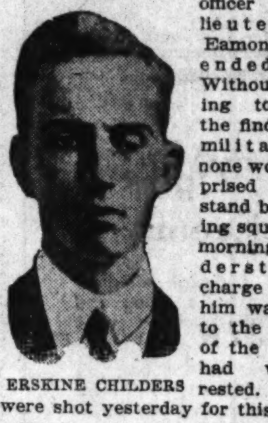
The Rev. John H. Williamson, former law enforcement commissioner, will speak to his own congregation at the Normal Park Methodist Episcopal church, West 71st street and Union avenue, tonight at 7:45 o'clock. His subject will be "The Criminal and the Law."

CHILDERS' TRIAL ENDS; MAY FACE FIRING SQUAD

Tried Under Irish Law to End Gun Toting.

BY PAUL WILLIAMS.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]



ERSKINE CHILDERS

DUBLIN, Nov. 18.—The trial of Erskine Childers, former British army officer and chief lieutenant of Eamon de Valera, ended today. Without attempting to forecast the finding of the military court none would be surprised should he stand before a firing squad Monday morning. It is understood the charge against him was confined to the possession of the pistol he had when arrested. Four men were shot yesterday for this offense.

Wrapped in a blanket, Annie MacSwiney sits tonight in a great chair outside of Mountjoy prison vowing not to eat or to leave her station until her hunger striking sister, Mary, militant Irish rebel, is released. Upon the paving beside her is a bare mattress for a few hours' fitful sleep when her benumbed body becomes overcome with weakness. With her constantly are a number of women with sons or husbands imprisoned.

During the day Annie tried to enter the prison every time the gates swung on the hinges, but soldiers barred the way. She appealed to a priest to go inside. He knocked at the gate. When it was opened a few inches, Annie rushed forward and attempted to force her way through, but the guard closed it. The priest went away.

This is the fifteenth day of Mary's strike and from prison officials it is learned there is no appreciable change in her.

WOMAN DIES OF BURNS.

Burns received yesterday morning when kerosene, which she was using to make a fire, exploded, caused the death of Mrs. Kate Swekpkowski, 144 North Blaine avenue, Posen, Ill., in a Blue Island hospital. Her husband, Peter, who, with two children, survives her, also sustained severe burns in attempting to extinguish his wife's blazing garments.

BUNDESEN GETS 'NOISE' WARRANT FOR SILBERSTEIN

Health Commissioner Bundesen made good yesterday on his threat to obtain a warrant for Louis Silberstein, alleged violator of the city anti-noise ordinance. He will appear before Judge Arnold Heap tomorrow morning.

When brought to Dr. Bundesen's office, Silberstein denied emphatically that he shot a block long screech from the siren of his car as he turned from State street into Garfield boulevard Friday. He said he never was on Garfield boulevard in his life.

"You can tell that to the judge and a health department inspector will be there with his story," Dr. Bundesen replied.

Silberstein let it be known that his car is a Buick. Dr. Bundesen noticed that the license records show Silberstein's car as a Studebaker. He admitted switching license tags on the two cars without notifying the secretary of state. Dr. Bundesen ordered that in addition to the noise making charge, the charge of switching tags be placed against him.

A Sonora Masterpiece

THERE are lower priced Sonoras and more expensive Sonoras. The former, made to satisfy popular demand, represent greater value than phonographs of other manufacturers of the same price. The latter, the costly art model Sonoras, are made for those who want something exclusive—extraordinary cabinet work and design, extra long running motors, expensive, though not essential conveniences.

Between these two is a Sonora Masterpiece—the Queen Anne—sharing the advantages of both: low enough in price for the modest income, fine enough to grace the most palatial home. Its tone is a startling revelation.

THE Sheridan-Plaza HOTEL
Sheridan Road at Wilson Ave.

Two especially desirable separate rooms available for occupancy now

The departure of guests to spend the winter in the South leaves available, for immediate occupancy, two of the most desirable of the more moderately priced rooms. Including occupancy by two persons, the rate for one of these rooms is $100 a month, and for the other, $125. There is a private bath with each of the Sheridan Plaza's 500 rooms. A similar situation has made available two unusually attractive suites—one large and one small. Thus are presented opportunities such as were enjoyed by residents who came to the Sheridan Plaza when there was a wide range of choice. The advantage of earliest possible decision is obvious.

Open house today and all this week, morning, afternoon and evening

A cordial invitation is extended to all interested in the highest class of residential hotel accommodation to come today, or any day this week, for an inspection tour of Uptown Chicago's most favored hotel. Included in this invitation are not only those who seek accommodations now, but also all who care to investigate with reference to requirements later. In remarkable degree this hotel has combined reasonable moderation of cost with service of unusual excellence. Although the Sheridan Plaza is favored by patronage of especially desirable class you will not, quality of accommodation considered, find equal moderation of cost elsewhere in Chicago.

Entertainment

In the calendar of entertainments for its guests The Sheridan Plaza is this winter including many delightful events. The grand ball room is one of the most imposing rooms of its kind in all America. There are also private rooms of various sizes suitably arranged for banquets, luncheons, dinners, private dancing parties and club meetings. These rooms, as well as the ball room, are available for use upon reasonable terms.

Each year more and more families recognize the advantages of hotel residence, with its freedom from housekeeping problems. Why not give your family the manifest advantages of residence in The Sheridan Plaza?

A feature of importance to families resident in The Sheridan Plaza is the cafeteria service of the renowned Narcissus Grill, in which food of most delicious quality is obtainable at prices about equal to those of ordinary cafeterias.

Guests owning motor cars appreciate the convenience of The Sheridan Plaza Garage—just across the street. The Sheridan Plaza is only 18 minutes from the Loop by Elevated express trains; surface cars are conveniently close and motor busses to and from the Loop, through Lincoln Park, stop at the door.

WHY NOT THE SHERIDAN PLAZA THIS WINTER?

BONUS CARRIES DOWNSTATE BY 157,682 VOTES

Swift Action Now Awaits Majority in Cook.

BY MORROW KRUM.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Official announcement of the adoption of the soldiers' bonus act at the referendum of Nov. 7 now awaits only the certification of its majority in Cook county. All other counties in the state have reported, and the legal majority downstate is 157,682. With the unofficial majority in Cook county, the bonus has passed with more than 500,000 total majority.

The total legislative vote in the state, outside of Cook county, is 975,758. A majority of this required to carry the bond issue is 487,880. The vote in 101 counties "for" the bonus stands at 645,562, giving the above legal majority. Against the proposition were cast 324,842 votes in the 101 downstate counties. In nearly a million votes actually cast on the proposition the "yes" majority was 320,720.

Will County Reports.

The vote of Will county, the last downstate county to report, was received this morning at the office of Secretary of State Emmerson. The "highest legislative vote" there was 26,706. The affirmative vote on the bonus was 21,006 and the negative vote was 5,263.

The figures show that opposition to the bonus was manifested in the agricultural counties, where the farmers, apparently fearing the bond issue, worked and voted against the proposal. In no county, however, was there an actual negative majority, and in all but seven of the 101 counties the bonus negotiated safely the required legal majority of the "highest legislative vote."

Prepare Bonus Machinery.

The machinery that will pass upon the soldiers' claims and pay the adjusted compensation, while not officially created, is being oiled by the state officers. While the service recognition board has had only unofficial meetings and has made no announcements to the public, many of the problems that will confront the board have been worked out.

It is known that a representative of the board has gone to Wisconsin, Michigan, Missouri and Ohio and studied the systems of paying the bonus in those states. It is believed that the chief clerk of the board has been selected and that the bonus application blank is being gone over. The best guess in Springfield is that the application blanks will be in the hands of the soldiers before the end of the week.

QUERIES AND ANSWERS

Q.—I have been a resident of Indiana for the last two years and up until two years ago had lived in Illinois practically all my life. I enlisted from Chicago, which was my home. Could I collect the bonus? Where?

A.—A recent decision of the bonus board was to the effect that a man's place of residence after his discharge would have no bearing upon his bonus status. We advise you to apply for the bonus. Application blanks are not ready yet. Application must be made on the approved form. A supply will be available at this office when they are ready.

Q.—I held a commission in the 33d division and was a resident of Illinois two years before the war and two years after I was discharged. Should I make application for the Illinois bonus? B. R. W.

A.—The matter of residence for eligibility has not been decided upon yet. You do not tell the time of your service, so we cannot say whether or not you would be eligible for the bonus.

Q.—I lived in Chicago all my life, but at the time war was declared I was working in Hammond, Ind., going back and forth every morning and night just across the state line. I enlisted in Hammond just after war was declared. I was discharged in March, 1919. W. S. S.

A.—No definite ruling has been given out about what residence is required to make a man eligible for the state bonus.

Q.—Kindly tell me who is entitled to the Illinois state bonus where the soldier has died. Does the widow get it or the mother? The widow has remarried. I.

A.—The widow gets first preference, if she has not remarried. The child or children of the deceased come next, and then the mother or father.

Q.—Please advise me if the state of Minnesota has passed the soldier bonus? I enlisted in Illinois, where I was then residing. Would it be necessary for me to return to Chicago to collect my Illinois bonus? F. P. K.

A.—Minnesota passed a bonus two years ago and required all applications to be filed prior to Dec. 31, 1921. If you are entitled to the Illinois bonus, it will not be necessary for you to return to the state to collect.

Q.—I have been a resident of Illinois for ten years. In 1915 I enlisted in the navy at Omaha, Neb. I was born in Horton, Kas. Am I entitled to the Illinois bonus? U. S. G.

A.—We cannot advise you to advantage on the few facts furnished.

SHOP CRAFTS ASK COURT TO VACATE DAUGHERTY WRIT

Alleging that it denied "workers their constitutional rights," the Daugherty injunction against the railroad shop crafts was attacked in a writ filed yesterday by Attorney Donald R. Richberg, representing the railway employés' department of the American Federation of Labor, in support of his motion to dissolve the preliminary injunction and dismiss the bill in the government railroad injunction case.

The writ was filed before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. It consists of an eight page statement of the case, 138 pages of argument and an appendix of sixty-seven pages.

Among contentions are that the strike, having been settled on more than 126 roads, reason for the writ no longer exists, but that it is being used to aid railroads who still maintain "lockouts."

GREAT RELIGIOUS REVIVAL SLATED FOR NEXT FALL

Plans for an evangelistic revival for the fall of 1923 and the year 1924 are under consideration by the Presbyterians of Chicago and vicinity. Final action will be taken at the meeting of the presbytery on Monday morning, Dec. 11.

The Rev. Roy E. Vale, D. D., pastor of First Presbyterian church, Oak Park, is chairman of the department of evangelism of the presbytery, which has submitted the plan. Other members of the department are the Rev. Henry Hepburn, Buena church; the Rev. A. S. Ferry, Edgewater church; and William Illsley. The proposal, with local modifications, it is expected, will be carried on by all the different presbyteries throughout the United States.

LONG SENTENCE FOR THEFT.

Approximately 650,000 eggs—all fresh (never any cold storage eggs)—were used by us the past year

Our prices speak for themselves—to know North American quality you must dine here

Mince Pie—with the old time flavor. A big piece	20c
Halibut with peas. No better piece of fish at any price - - - -	40c
Individual Oyster Stew, made with 7 New York Counts, an entire bottle of Certified Milk and a big piece of butter, with crackers - - - -	40c
Fried Chicken, dark meat, with bacon and cream gravy or giblet sauce - - - - -	55c
Breast of Chicken [all white meat], with bacon and cream gravy or giblet sauce - - - -	65c

And for breakfast

Honey Waffles, with 3 strips of bacon, or Mickelberry's Old Farm Sausage, butter and pure maple sap or honey -	25c
Bacon and Eggs, 2 fresh eggs fried in butter, and 4 strips of bacon - -	30c

Think of the tremendous amount of food it took to feed the more than a million and a half people who dined here during the last twelve months. Consider just one item. Last year we used about 650,000 eggs. There was not even one "cold storage" egg among them. Every one was strictly fresh—the freshest and finest eggs on the market no matter what they cost us.

Just a few cents saved on each dozen would have meant a large amount of money to us and very few people, if any, could have told the difference. But we are determined that regardless of our low prices the food you get here will always be the very highest quality.

Right now we are paying well above 50 cents a dozen for the eggs we use—close to 5 cents each. But just the same for breakfast you may have 2 fresh eggs, fried in butter, with 4 strips of the finest bacon for only 30 cents.

The North American Restaurant has built the greatest volume of business ever achieved by any Chicago dining place. Low prices have helped make that true—but low prices alone could never have done it. Such a tremendous volume has been possible because people have learned that no matter how much more they pay they can't get better food.

Eat turkey here Thanksgiving Day. Bring the children. They are always welcome.

'THE JEWELS' AND 'THREE KINGS' WIN AUDIENCES

Performances Cap Successful Opera Week.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Closing what would seem to have been a phenomenally successful week, the Chicago Civic Opera company functioned in two highly diverse operas yesterday—Montemezzi's "The Love of the Three Kings" in the afternoon, and Wolf-Ferrari's "The Jewels of the Madonna."

The Montemezzi opera, with Mary Garden as Fiora, with Giulio Crimi returning to the company after a number of seasons, with Georges Baklanoff and Virgilio Lazzari as two other threads in the tangled dramatic skein, drew a large and enthusiastic audience. It is too late now to inquire how much of the lovely score is due to Russian influences; the audience accepts it as a good score, which is enough. Similarly it is too late for conjectures over whether the superb, feline insolence of the Garden Fiora bears any great resemblance to the wistful, rather pathetic Sem Benelli Fiora; the audience has also answered that by accepting it as a good show.

No Spectacle of Austerity.

Certainly the performance moved and flashed as it has seldom done in the past. The second act of this opera is no spectacle of austerity at any time; yesterday it was about as frank and unabashed an exhibition of sexly impulse as even the Auditorium stage is in the habit of presenting. With this scene followed by a most extraordinarily melodramatic death by throttling, excitement ran high when the curtain fell.

Mr. Crimi, as Avito, displayed somewhat more interest in the lyric element of his rôle than in its values as poetic drama. Consequently he was most effective when doing the least acting and the most singing, and quite worth while then. Mr. Lazzari was a tremendous artist as Archibaldo; Mr. Baklanoff another as Manfredo; Miss Garden a gleaming and glowing flame of dramatic passion. Over it all Conductor Giorgio Polacco converted both players and singers into one huge orchestra, and with brilliant success.

"Jewels" in Evening.

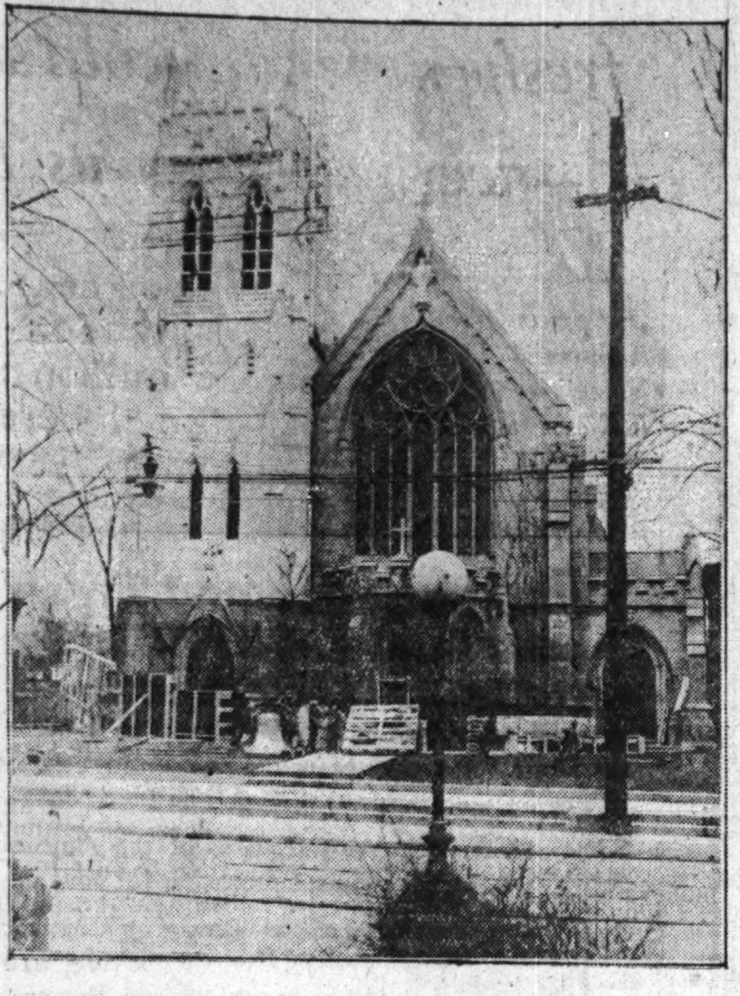
The evening's performance continued the tale of excitement. Here was another fleshly narrative, though instead of ancient, legendary Italy, dealing with modern, realistic Italy.

This performance was probably the only one of "The Jewels" that the present season will witness. Therefore be it forthwith recorded that of all the gorgeous impersonations of Maliella ever done by Rosa Raisa, none was ever before nearly as gorgeous as this one; also that Forrest Lamont sang Gennaro as he has never sung in his long experience with the company. In the case of both artists it would seem that the summer time has been devoted to polishing big tone into lovely tone.

Add that Giacomo Rimini has made his performance of Rafaele into a figure that lives vividly in the memory, likewise singing the music with fine spirit and tone, and that Maria Claessens played Carmela with high, sympathetic art.

It was well conducted by Pietro Cimini, with all of its rackety, high speed spirit preserved. In the last act came a ballet scene with a striking tarentelle with Adolph Bolm and Anna Ludmila as the leading figures.

DEDICATE CHURCH TODAY



GRACE EPISCOPAL CHURCH, OAK PARK.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Dedicatory services for the new church, Lake street and Kenilworth avenue, will be held today. Included in the service will be a program on the Charles Seabury memorial chimes, given to the church by C. Ward Seabury of Oak Park in memory of his father, who died in 1910.

The church was begun in 1898, the parishoners worshiping in the partly completed structure until last summer, when $204,000 was raised to complete it. An organ costing $50,000 has just been installed.

The rector of the church, which has more than 1,200 parishoners, is the Rev. Francis R. Godolphin. With a favoring wind, it is said, the chimes can be heard from two to five miles.

PRAISE POLICE FOR DROP IN WEEK'S CRIME

Chief of Police Fitzmorris and Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the crime commission, congratulated the police department yesterday on its showing of a reduction of 26 per cent in crime during the last week as compared to the same period last year. The figures:

	1921.	1922.	Pct. dec.
Burglary	90	74	17
Robbery	53	29	45
Larceny	63	49	22
Total	206	152	26

Only two districts show important increases in crime. These are Irving Park and Fiftieth street districts, where Capt. Joseph Mullin and Capt. John L. Hogan are in command. In the former there were nine burglaries and four robberies this year as compared with four burglaries and two robberies last year. Capt. Hogan's district showed an increase of 21 per cent as compared with the general decrease of 26 per cent.

MEXICAN RAILWAY OFFICE HERE.

To obtain freight and passenger traffic for railroads in Mexico from all parts of the United States, an office will be opened here tomorrow by E. ARMOUR-WILSON MERGER APPEARS TO GAIN FAVOR

Government consent to the merger of Armour & Co. and Morris & Co., two of the principal concerns in Chicago's meat packing industry, appeared more probable yesterday. Following his conferences with President Harding and cabinet members last week, J. Ogden Armour left Washington on Friday and is understood to have gone to Atlantic City for a few days.

Mr. Armour is reported to have arranged a conference this week with New York banking houses which have been identified with previous financing by Armour & Co. This conference will be for the purpose of working out the financial details of a consolidation in the event that it is approved by the government.

Although Washington dispatches have stated that President Harding has reached no decision on the packing merger, it was the opinion of Chicago bankers that Mr. Armour has received enough hopeful assurance to warrant the financial conference in New York.

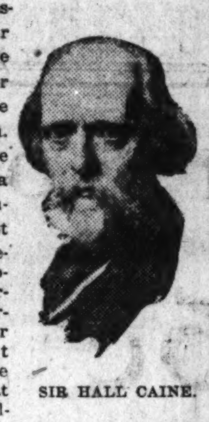
HALL CAINE SEES BRITISH VOTE AS BLOW TO LIBERTY

Scores Cabinet Made Up from Nobility.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]



SIR HALL CAINE.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—[By Tribune Wireless.]—THE TRIBUNE has received the following message from Sir Hall Caine, whose two sons ran for parliament in the recent election. Ralph Caine, the elder son, was a Conservative candidate in East Dorset. He defeated his opponent by an overwhelming majority. The younger son, Derwent Caine, ran on the Labor ticket at Reading. Although he increased the Labor poll by 6,000 votes, he was defeated by E. Cadogan, whose family has represented the town for generations.

"I have had a most trying time with the division in the heart of my family," the author said. "I am naturally very proud of my son, Ralph, who has been returned to parliament with a sweeping victory, but I am at least sorry that my son, Derwent, has not been returned.

Great Blow to Liberty.

"My own political sympathies remain where they were forty years ago—on the side of the people's cause. I think that the return of the reactionary government at this time, in view of the deep distress consequent on the war, with a ministry of which the principal members outside the prime minister are in the house of lords, is the greatest blow to liberty and progress in 200 years. Nothing like it has occurred since the days of Oliver Cromwell.

"The power of initiating important legislation has passed into the hands of the hereditary chamber, which is not responsible to the nation. The house of commons as a vital legislative force is practically wiped out and the house of lords has taken its place. And the irony of the situation is that the people themselves have done this thing.

Warns New Government.

"As for the Labor party, having gone through the election addressing many great meetings, I do not hesitate to say that but for Labor's own grave error of putting forward a premature, ill digested and alarming program and but for the gross misrepresentations of it spolicy by its opponents it would have swept the country from end to end. It would not have merely doubled its representation in parliament, but it would have trebled them.

"The stories of unemployment, starvation and bad housing which I have heard have left scars on my very soul. I have known nothing like these except in the history of times preceding revolutions. I earnestly hope and pray that the new government may take warning. As to the political morality of the campaign I do not hesitate to add that it has been the most dishonorable in all my seventy years."

FIST FIGHT NEAR IN HEARING OF MALCOM DIVORCE

Bailiffs and Court Stop Clash of Attorneys.

Clashes between opposing counsel mingled yesterday with the tearful please of Mrs. Florence Jessie Malcom in her fight before Judge Ira Ryner for the custody of her two children and "in defense of her honor and character against the ruthless assault" which she charged had been made by Robert Malcom, millionaire Chicago and La Grange manufacturer.

Mrs. Malcom's demand for a temporary allowance of $15,000 to combat Malcom's charges of infidelity and $1,500 monthly temporary alimony to maintain herself and children resulted in near fisticuffs between her counsel, Francis W. Walker and Attorney Lucius Malmin, who, with Attorney Florence King, represents Malcom.

Bailiffs Prevent Blows.

Blows were avoided by the interference of bailiffs and the reproof of Judge Ryner, who ordered that Mrs. Malcom should receive $200 weekly until final disposition of the case. Preliminary arguments on the alimony will be heard by Judge Ryner on Nov. 22.

Malcom, president of the Chicago Eye Shield company and principal stockholder and president of the Oriental Art Glass company, both incorporated at $200,000, according to Mrs. Malcom's petition, is the owner of patents and other property conservatively valued at more than $500,000.

Husband Names Doctor.

In his bill the manufacturer charges that while at their St. Petesrburg, Fla., home Mrs. Malcom was guilty of misconduct with the family physician, Dr. Louis Lambdin, and "with others whom he refrains from mentioning at this time." Because of the alleged indiscretions, Malcom contends that Mrs. Malcom is unfit to care for their two children, June, 11 years old, and Robert Malcom Jr., 9 years old.

Malcom is characterized in Mrs. Malcom's petition for alimony as a "grasping, money mad miser," who has made against her "the vilest and most despicable charge that a man can make."

His charges, she asserts, were "treacherously filed in an unworthy effort to hold her up to reproach and scorn," and her life, Mrs. Malcom declares, is dedicated to an effort to "controvert the baseless charges.

AMBITIOUS SON, JACOB BESCH, IS SOUGHT BY FATHER

JACOB BESCH.

Jacob Besch, 1532 North Maplewood avenue, has asked THE TRIBUNE to aid in the search for his 17 year old son, Jacob, who disappeared on Thursday.

"Jacob is a good boy," the father said, "the sort of a chap who is determined to make good. There is no apparent reason for the mysterious leave taking."

Young Besch is 5 feet 8 inches tall, has gray eyes, dark hair, and weighs 150 pounds.

Dixie Natives Organize Southern Colony in City

$250,000 FIRE RAZES ARMOUR HOG BUILDING

Damage estimated at $250,000 resulted from a fire which destroyed the hog killing plant of Armour & Co., packers, in West 43d street between Cook and Racine avenues yesterday.

Fed by the fat of 2,000 dressed hogs, the fire burned fiercely for seven hours before it was brought under control. Virtually all the fire fighting apparatus in Chicago was called. Hundreds of streams of water were played upon the blaze.

Dressed Hogs Burn.

Most of the loss was caused by the burning of the building and dressed and live hogs, as there was little equipment in the structure. The flames were discovered before dawn by watchmen.

Armour & Co. had just installed automatic sprinklers in all the buildings of its plant except the hog killing department. This was to have been similarly equipped next week.

Many Hogs Escape.

Twelve hundred live hogs, ready to be killed, were in the building. Eleven hundred were saved, seventy-five were killed, and twenty-five escaped from the plant and ran about the streets for hours.

WORK of the plant was not interrupted. The swine that were saved were killed for the market a short time later at an auxiliary concern.

Make $500,000 Bogus Bank of England Notes

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 18.—Ivan Glavadovic, in a confession which secret service agents here today said he had made, told of an alleged counterfeiting plot whereby $500,000 in bogus Bank of England notes, made by a photograpic process, were to have been placed on the market.

UNIONISTS DENY STATE EVIDENCE IN MADER TRIAL

William A. Curran, senior business agent of the Journeyman Plumbers' union, took the witness stand in Judge Hebel's court yesterday in defense of Daniel McCarthy, junior agent of the union, who is on trial with Fred Mader and John Miller, charged with the murder of Police Lieutenant Terrence Lyons last May.

Curran denied that either he or McCarthy had made threatening statements as had been claimed by the state. John A. Corboy, a plumbing contractor, testified for the state that Curran and McCarthy had visited him and told him that "if any outside plumbers or contractors were brought into Chicago to work under the Landis award they would leave the city in wooden suits." This Curran denied.

James J. Conroy, secretary of the Building Trades Council, denied statements of Henry "Smash" Hanson, the state's star witness, in connection with happenings at meetings of the council. His testimony consisted chiefly of denials that dynamite or guns ever had been taken to council headquarters or that Miller ever had visited there.

NEWBERRY STILL IN DOUBT AS TO WHAT HE'LL DO

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Senator Truman H. Newberry of Michigan today announced that he is awaiting the decision of the men who alone are responsible for the unenviable political position he now occupies—the "men who got him into the thing in the first place."

As yet, the senator says, he doesn't know what will be expected of him, but any way will be satisfactory to him—he will fight for his seat in the United States senate, or resign, as the forthcoming conference among his friends may decide.

Asked what he was going to do about it, Senator Newberry said: "I don't know what I'm going to do. As I have said before, I am not entirely a free agent in this matter. I didn't get into this in the first place because I wanted to. I thought I was finished with public life when I got through with the navy. I am not a politician. I don't know anything about politics. The friends and interests who got me into it are the ones I will consult before making any further moves."

This Remarkable Property Is Nearly Gone

The satisfying way in which this fine property has sold is startling evidence of its unusual value. Of the original 175 lots there remain but 39 parcels—20 inside residence sites and 19 sixty-six foot corners. Since this property was opened, market valuations on lots in this community have increased from $250 to $500 each—yet the remaining lots in our addition are still selling at the original prices. Some individual profits aggregating more than 100% have been made by early purchasers who have resold their original purchases.

The description below qualifies this property as a really remarkable buy; there is nothing else on the near North Side to compare with it; to see it is to be convinced of its superiority.

PROPERTY is bounded by Western Avenue on the west, Devon Avenue on the South, Robey Street on the east—and the Edgewater Golf Club on the north.

ELECTRIC or steam transportation is available to the loop—and all parts of the city.

THE proposed 108-foot boulevard to the Des Plaines River will run right past this property.

THERE is a fine marketing and shopping district within walking distance.

GRADE schools and a high school offer handy educational facilities for children.

THE property is selling subject to improvements—most of them in and paid for.

RIGID building restrictions insure the maintenance of a distinctly high class community.

LOTS are available on very generous terms to responsible parties only.

SLASH IN TAXES NEAR; ALDERMEN VOICE APPROVAL

Next Year's Levy May Be 20 Cents Lower.

A reduction in the city tax rate is in sight.

With such hearty approval is the suggestion of Ald. John A. Richert, chairman of the council finance committee, that the tax rate be lowered, hailed by members of the council finance committee that the reduction of the rate in the annual tax levy ordinance may be from $1.85 to $1.75 or even $1.65, instead of the $1.80 at first proposed by Ald. Richert.

JOHN RICHERT.

Ald. Richert has asked City Controller Harding for a report on the amount of "salvage"—unspent funds—which will be in the city treasury on Dec. 1. If, as reported, this sum will amount to $1,800,000, the rate may be lowered as much as 20 cents, in Ald. Richert's opinion.

Votes for 5 Cent Cut.

But there is concrete action on which the taxpayers may base a hope of lower taxes. At its last meeting the finance committee, which next Monday begins drawing up the 1923 municipal budget, went on record unanimously in favor of a cut of at least 5 cents in the rate. This was done on motion of Ald. George Maypole.

In addition to that twelve members of the committee in interviews declared themselves as being unqualifiedly in favor of the plan. Ald. Louis B. Anderson, Mayor Thompson's floor leader, said he would vote for such a reduction as is proposed by Ald. Richert, "if it can be done without crippling the city." Ald. John B. Garner, another friend of the mayor, took a similar stand. Ald. Armitage, the third Thompsonite on the committee, was noncommittal.

Proposed Cut 2.7 per Cent.

The fixing of the tax rate is entirely in the hands of the city council and through that body in the hands of the finance committee, with the limitation that the rate may not be fixed at more than the $1.85 authorized by law. The committee has eighteen members. Of the twelve who came out squarely for a tax reduction, nine are Democrats and three—Ald. Guernsey, Lyle and A. O. Anderson—are Republicans who are not members of the city hall organization.

Though Ald. Richert's proposed reduction of 2.7 per cent in the rate—from $1.85 to $1.80—would only be a "drop in the bucket" compared to the boosts of recent years, it would serve as "a step in the right direction," the alderman asserted. It would result in a saving to the taxpayers of $825,000 in city taxes alone and, if the same percentage of reduction were applied by other taxing bodies, the saving would be roughly $3,200,000.

Views of the Aldermen.

Here is the way the aldermen expressed themselves on the question of lightening the tax load:

Ald. Maypole—I'll talk for it; I'll work for it, and I'll vote for it.

Ald. L. B. Anderson—I'm for it if it can be done without crippling city activities. I'm not in favor of doing it just for sentimental reasons.

Ald. Lyle—The cost of city government went up with the war. It is time that we voted to start it back to normalcy.

Ald. Guernsey—I favor a reduction of 10 per cent in the city tax rate. That would mean a saving of about $3,000,000 to the taxpayers. That amount could be saved in running the city government without an appreciable reduction in city service.

Ald. Moran—I'm for Richert's suggestion, and if this committee stands together on the council floor, we can put it through.

Ald. Crowe—Ald. Richert is to be congratulated on his pioneer proposal. I'll stand behind him.

Ald. Clark—With a 6 percent salvage in 1922 appropriations, I think we should turn back nearly $2,000,000 to the property owners by reducing the city tax rate.

Ald. A. O. Anderson—The city spent money liberally last year, and I'm ready to vote a reduction of at least $2,000,000 in city taxes this year.

Others Voice Similar Views.

Ald. Kostner, Schwartz, and Powers expressed themselves along similar lines. Sentiment among members of the committee is increasing in favor of breaking the war time custom of appropriating salvage, thus permitting a surplus to accumulate in the city treasury.

Mayor Thompson recently summoned his department heads and told them to economize in preparing their 1923 budget estimates. Members of the finance committee declared that the mayor's economy injunction came late in view of the fact that 80 per cent of the estimates have already been turned in to the finance committee staff. The department heads ask to be permitted to spend 36 per cent more than the council allotted them last year.

Supreme Court to Decide Case of 'Henry' and 'Bill'

Topeka, Kas., Nov. 18.—An agreement with William Allen White that the case charging him with violation of the Industrial court act in placing a strike sympathy card in his office window shall be carried into the Supreme court direct has been reached, Gov. H. J. Allen said today. Mr. White protested against the order issued by the attorney general's office late yesterday for the county attorney at Emporia to dismiss the suit.

BY HUGH FULLERTON.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Princeton is the undisputed champion of the "Big Three," and by winning, 3 to 0, from Yale today, in one of the fiercest and most desperately fought battles in the history of the two schools, upset all the dope, and proved that courage and nerve will overthrow any obstacle. By the margin of one drop kick they beat a team which beyond doubt was stronger and more powerful, and which on football dope should have smeared Palmer stadium with the wreckage of the Tiger team.

MEL DICKENSON.

But for the third time this season Princeton refused to admit defeat, and, keeping clean its card for the year, closed the season, which perhaps is the most glorious in the fotball annals of the New Jersey school.

Fighting as underdogs, throwing back the powerful Yale attack when, in the first few minutes of the struggle, the Eli's seemed to be battering their way to victory, the Tigers snarling, fighting, won a most astounding victory.

Princeton Takes Chances.

Yale, with more and better chances to score, failed. Princeton, with two real chances, counted on one of them, missed another drop kick by a fraction of an inch and, while yielding at times to the superior power of the Bulldog, rallied whenever danger threatened, and hurled back the attack.

Like the French army, this remarkable Princeton team yielded, bent, but never broke, and tonight this serene little town is the center of one of the wildest demonstrations ever staged—and Yale, with all hope of championship gone, is bluer than the banner the team defended so gallantly today.

As this is being written 2,000 Princeton men are standing under the shadows of the goal posts, their team so brilliantly defended today—singing "Old Nassau"—and it sounds more like a prayer than a celebration. In the student body there is a rejoicing deeper than mere football ever could give. The team that could fight against odds, fought against and overcame them.

Spirit of America Wins.

The team which battled against heavy odds with Chicago and with Harvard refused to die before the power of Yale. Call it luck, or whatever you will, the triumph is due to the spirit that was and will be America's—refusal to quit because of the odds.

As football, it was not perhaps a great game. But Yale, dogged, determined and powerful, outplunged and at times tore the Tiger line to pieces with the great Jordan slamming and slashing through the lighter line.

Twice Yale was within striking distance. Once in the first few minutes, her shock troops tore to within a yard of the Tiger goal. If the spirit of Chateau Thierry ever was shown in football, Princeton showed it in that supreme minute of the struggle, leaping with set teeth to the defense and throwing back the mighty Jordan even as they threw back John Thomas when they defeated Chicago.

Tiger "Outsmarts" Bulldog.

Frankly, Princeton "outsmarted" Yale—as the prizefighters phrase it. In the first quarter, when the Tiger was on the defensive and the Yale assault seemed irresistible, a situation arose when Yale had a yard and a half to go for first down—close to the 20 yard line, and elected to try a smash at tackle, which was stopped and Princeton got the ball. A kick there perhaps would have turned the entire tide—but against a team with the fighting spirit of Princeton it is hard to say whether it would or not.

Princeton violated most of the "laws" of football, forward passed in her own territory, took chances and gambled with Fate, and when it came down to sheer body to body battling, gave Yale everything she wanted.

If there is an All-American team

HOPPE TRIUMPHS OVER CONTI; TOPS TITLE CUE FIELD

STANDING OF PLAYERS

	W.	L.	High run.	Average.
Hoppe	3	0	192	55 5-9
Horemans	3	1	244	35 10-14
Schaefer	2	1	195	55 5-9
Conti	2	2	204	41 8-12
Cochran	1	3	140	33 5-15
Hagenlacher	0	4	178	31 6-15

New York, Nov. 18.—Willie Hoppe won the final game of the week in the international balk line championship, defeating Roger Conti of Paris, 500 to 203, in fourteen innings. He now tops the field with three straight wins and has yet to play Erich Hagenlacher and Champion Jake Schaefer.

Edouard Horemans advanced to second place by upsetting Welker Cochran in the afternoon game, 500 to 405, galloping under the wire in spectacular fashion.

At the end of the sixteenth inning Cochran led 405 to 293. He missed in the seventeenth and it was his last shot as Horemans by a masterful display of billiards went out with an unfinished run of 207. Averages were not high, the Belgian notching 24 7-17 and the American, whose high run was 103, getting 23 4-17. It was Cochran's third defeat and put him out of the running.

Horemans' Control Superb.

Horemans' winning run started with some open billiards but at 56 he gathered the ivories and displaying superb control, passed the century mark. It was the same skill that enabled him to defeat Champion Schaefer. At the 171st shot Horemans was in trouble but played a nervy force draw massé along the end rail and soon was going smoothly to victory.

It was an even match most of the way, Cochran ran 103 in the seventh inning but the Belgian came back with 96 in the ninth and the score stood 266 for Cochran and 257 for Horemans. Neither got into double figures the next four innings but Cochran ran 87 and 35 and following with 24 had a lead of 112 points. Then Horemans got home with his double century.

HOREMANS—34 0 25 2 9 81 2 8 96 7 0 2 9 0 3 15 207—500. Average, 24 7-17; high run, 207.

COCHRAN—0 0 14 0 93 9 103 11 36 2 1 0 0 87 25 24 0—405. Average, 23 14-17; high run, 103.

Hoppe Gets Big Lead.

The Hoppe-Conti match was disappointing as a contest, as the Frenchman was unable to get going until near the finish, when he was too far behind. Hoppe, following a run of 122, had a lead of 406 to 81, and while Conti made a gallant effort to make up this huge deficit he was defeated, 500 to 203, in thirteen innings.

Hoppe's play was by no means smooth, and while he made runs of 122, 109, and 86, they were a medley of a little bit of everything. Once more he displayed a fiddling stroke, hesitating so long on several occasions that the crowd laughed. Several times he ducked playing masse shots. His billiards were wide, too wide in fact to be classed as good balk line.

Conti's Average Low.

Conti's average was poor, but he twice had the misfortune to get the balls out of balk when going well. The point score:

HOPPE—3 109 0 24 0 61 86 1 122 16 37 31 0 10—500. Average, 35 10-14. High run, 122.

CONTI—0 33 1 0 38 0 9 0 47 75 0 0 0—203. Average, 15 8-13. High run, 75.

Matches for tomorrow are:

AFTERNOON—Hoppe and Hagenlacher.
NIGHT—Schaefer and Cochran.

IN the WAKE of the NEWS

"COMMERCIALIZED" FOOTBALL.

FREQUENTLY you hear critics of the present system say that college football is thoroughly commercialized.

If they mean that the athletic departments of big universities are conducted on a businesslike basis, that receipts reaching many millions dollars annually pour into athletic treasuries throughout the country, the charge is true.

If they mean that the dollar alone and not the spirit of sport and intercollegiate competition are the sole motives, the charge is not true.

The Wake does not begrudge colleges their football receipts. Surely, $3 a seat (all seats, even boxes, are sold for the same price) for the Princeton game and $2.50 per seat for the other features at Stagg field are not excessive prices, compared to the $3.85, $4.40, and $4.95 charged for any attractive theatrical performance.

Football is, so to speak, the daddy of the athletic family. Nearly every other sport, unless possibly basketball, is a dependent. Father Football supports the family. His earnings pay expenses, including salaries, of the athletic department and deficits incurred in other branches.

When there is a surplus after all other expenses it is usually applied to new stands and improvements at the athletic field. Michigan and Wisconsin, we understand, have never called upon alumni to contribute toward erection of their present amphitheaters.

For our part, we prefer this system and precision to the old haphazard methods.

The Scrub.

The soaring oval hovers o'er the bar,
Then falls amid the cheering of the stands.
The multitude pays homage to the star,
Whose name rings clear above the blaring bands.

Unnoticed in the turmoil of the fray,
Sits one whose heart and soul is in the game;
Denied the chance to get in there and play,
Unselfishly he lauds them just the same.

A step too slow to make the varsity,
A pound too light to face the heavy foe;
His daily lot to serve heroically
Among the scrubs whose names we never know.

Although we may not see upon his breast
The letter all his mates so highly prize,
The heart that beats beneath is of the best,
The fighting spirit flashes from his eyes.

I like to think that, in some future year,
The lowly scrub will come into his own;
And, when we realize, our ringing cheer
Will for our present negligence atone.
Hoosier Pat.

College Department.

Dear Harvey: Illinois knew last year before she made up her 1922 schedule that she would have a green team. All she handed herself was Northwestern, Ohio, Wisconsin, Iowa, Chicago, and Michigan. Those boys you have to hand it to. They aren't especially interested in flowery beds of ease.

Well, better luck next year, I'll say so. Ask Zuppke about the freshman-varsity game on Tuesday before the Wisconsin game, with Britten at full and Grange at half. If Zupp wants to talk, you'll get an earful. Chicago, '97.

[Editor's Note—In the fall of 1921, before Illinois had beaten Ohio State, The Wake asked Zuppke whether he would lighten his schedule in view of the season's results and the rather indifferent prospects for this fall. Zup replied: "No, I told G. (meaning Huff) to take them all on. Maybe we can win one, then."]

I could hardly wait for the Chicago-Illinois game. I wanted to see my hero in action. No, he was not the left guard, nor the right guard, nor the mud guard. He was the CHEER LEADER! Lorraine V.

FULL BACK, WITH 3 RIBS BROKEN, LEADS MATES TO VICTORY

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 18.—Phil White, University of Tennessee doctors' fullback, playing the entire final period with three broken ribs, led his team to a 32 to 0 victory over University of Mississippi here today.

WASHINGTON, IN UPHILL BATTLE, JOLTS STANFORD

Stanford University, Cal., Nov. 18.—Washington university's huskies this afternoon demonstrated their right to at least a tie for second place in the Pacific coast conference standings when they fought their way from behind and defeated the fighting Stanford eleven, 12 to 8. From the kickoff to the final result the game was always in doubt, neither team being able to assume more than the barest margin.

Exeter Trims Andover, 12-3, in Annual Clash

Andover, Mass., Nov. 18.—Phillips Exeter defeated Phillips Andover 12 to 3, in the annual football clash of the preparatory school rivals today.

GENEVIEVE TELLS US HOW CHICAGO 'NAILED' ILLINOIS

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES.

Note: The sports writers are afraid their department has gone slightly "league of women voters." They permit this encroachment on masculine territory only on condition that the feminine calligraph does not write "big brute," "bronze heroes," "brown oval" or "grimy knights of the pigskin." They promise to penalize all girlish off-side adjectives.

At six minutes past 4 yesterday afternoon a dirty, elliptical ball bumped stolidly on a plot of muddy grass, a few inches beyond a faded chalk line, not far from two goal posts. As it quivered casually it was supremely indifferent to the fact that its wabbling had drawn 20,000 Maroon souls up to the ecstasies of heaven and that its wiggling had drawn 12,000 Orange and Blue souls into the agonies of hell.

Score: Chicago, 9; Illinois, 0. Only a few more minutes to play. And yet they say football is no longer brutal.

Thirty-two thousand spectators at Stagg field yesterday afternoon played one of the hardest games they ever experienced. Next to death, football is the great leveler. In the stands yesterday a man was as good as his voice. A woman had no more prestige than her knowledge of "on-side kicks," a fake double pass, first downs.

Two Elevens in Game.

In addition to the 32,000, two elevens participated in the game. But they played only with their feet and legs and arms and necks. The others played with their voices, their hearts, their muscles, their tonsils, their prayers.

The white-haired man with the English accent made two yards right through center down his aisle and nearly put the girl with the orange feather in her hat out for the rest of the season.

The pretty little girl in the moleskin coat started at seat 2 and pushed her way with the team down to seat 7. She would have gone farther, but Illinois got the ball and she began to push the other way.

The spectators began to play long before the game started. The Illinois alumni were playing the game as they paraded through the loop yesterday noon, accompanied by their 150 piece band playing "Hail, Alma Mater," and "We're Loyal to You, Illinois."

Men with doctor of philosophy degrees and men who spoke broken English were playing it. Chicago co-eds with Maroon arm bands and Illinois co-eds with orange chrysanthemums were playing it. The cheer leaders, with their megaphones and funny legs and impassioned voices, were playing it.

Everybody Playing It.

The ragged youngster whom the "cops" chased from the field was playing the game as he saw a lovely lady in sables powder her nose and rouge her lips as she passed through the coveted gate. They were playing it as they thronged the classrooms, to hang out the windows. They were playing it as they filled every seat in both stands and all the bleachers, as they leaped on to roofs, hung on to telegraph poles, climbed trees, and squirmed through fences.

When a man by the name of Greene,

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Tradition says Illinois fights, and Illinois fought yesterday on Stagg field. But fight alone wasn't sufficient to stop the powerful Maroons, who fore a 32,000 house kicked and hammered their way to a 9 to 0 victory over their historic rivals from downstate.

LLOYD ROHRKE.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

A drop kick by Lloyd Rohrke in the opening period brought the first Illinois setback. Undaunted by this, the Illini struggled on, but with every play it became more and more apparent that the eventual winners were under wraps. Evidently three points satisfied them. In the final period, however, they cut loose. The famed smasher, John Thomas, came back after a protracted rest and almost single handed paved the way for his brother, Harry, to scoot over the goal for the only other points of the day.

Game Slow; Hard Going.

For those who came in quest of the spectacular the game was somewhat of a disappointment. Long runs were not to be seen. Even the thrills of forward passes, for the most part, were denied the onlookers. The Maroons didn't seem to favor this style, and the Illini didn't have many opportunities to employ it, except right at the finish, when, with time growing precious, they attempted six, one of which was successful. Chicago tried only eight in the entire game, two of them coming in the first half.

Where both teams fell down was in the running of plays. Time and again one or the other would miss signals or become confused in their meaning. When the Illini did this the west stand would send forth something akin to the well known razz. When Chicago did it the east stand would return the compliment.

J. Thomas Shows Wares.

Whatever the absence of the open game may have cost in the shape of the spectacular was somewhat offset by the slamming, ramming John Thomas. In the first two periods he was a continual menace to the struggling Illini. Through center, off tackle or around the end was one and the same thing to him. Then he rested for a period and a half, coming forth when Stagg saw a touchdown looming.

Once back at his chosen job in place of Zorn, who also had shattered and smashed the Illini line, John was even more aggressive than in the opening half. In three successive smashes he carried the ball from Illinois' 11 yard line to the 8 yard line. A grounded pass on the fourth down shattered the hopes of a touchdown at this stage. A few minutes later he was driving back the Illini again and this time the effort wasn't wasted.

Rohrke Kicks Field Goal.

The kick that put a halo of fame around the name of Lloyd Rohrke, who incidentally played a bang up game as end, although strange to the position, was uncorked in the middle of the first period. A fumble led up to it. Woodward let the ball slip out of his paws on his 22 yard mark just after Pyott had punted over the goal line. King recovered.

Two line plays failed to gain and a five yard penalty was added to the job Chicago was up against. Pyott managed to eke out two yards off tackle and then the battering John Thomas was stopped dead in his tracks by Wagner. Rohrke then dropped back a bit and from the 35 yard line sent a powerful drop kick high over the cross bar.

After Chicago's three points went up on the board nothing startling occurred until the fourth period. The second period was just one kick after another interspersed with line smashes and penalties, the latter being numerous for both. The third quarter was about the same, neither threatening to exterminate the other fellow.

Fumble Aids Maroons.

The fourth period was hardly under way before Chicago got the break that eventually was to lead to a touchdown. A 15 yard penalty forced Pyott to kick and Rune Clark, hero of the Illini victory at Madison, fumbled. Rohrke recovered the loose oval on the visitors' eight ward line and from the Illinois stand came the old familiar wail, "Hold 'em, hold 'em."

Zorn then hit for a yard and on a double pass Harry Thomas gained only a foot. Pyott engineered an end run for two yards. Zorn then hit the cen-

MICHIGAN, CHICAGO, AND IOWA STILL TIED FOR BIG TEN HONORS

THREE western conference football teams—Iowa, Chicago, and Michigan—remain tied for the championship today as the result of yesterday's play.

Iowa, which defeated Ohio State, 12 to 9; Michigan, which downed Wisconsin, 13 to 6, and Chicago, which won from Illinois, 9 to 0, may remain tied at the close of the season. Next Saturday Northwestern meets Iowa in its final game at Iowa City, Michigan plays Minnesota at Minneapolis, and Wisconsin will play at Chicago. Each of these three opposition teams already has been beaten twice or more.

Should any one team lose, the remaining pair still will be tied for the championship. Conference rules prohibit any playoff.

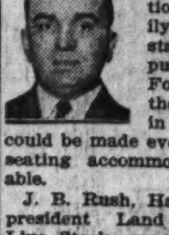
The Question.

Should the University of Chicago build a stadium that would accommodate the crowds clamoring to see college football played?

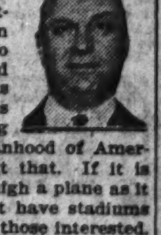
Where Asked.

Morrison hotel.

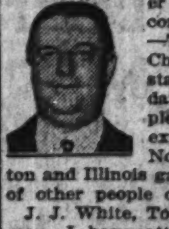
The Answers.



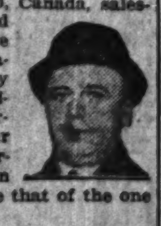
Joseph R. Hughes, Morrison hotel, illumination engineer—Chicago, with its location and size, could easily support the largest stadium for athletic purposes in America. Football has become the largest attraction in college sports and could be made even more attractive if seating accommodations were available.



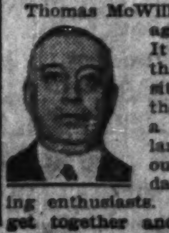
J. B. Rush, Harris Trust Building, president Land and Live Stock company—There never was a football game played in Chicago when all who wanted to attend could get seats. Football is one of those sports that build up young people; makes the manhood of America—no question about that. If it is going to be put on as high a plane as it ought to be they must have stadiums that will accommodate those interested.



A. D. Davidson, Peoria, Ill., examiner of accounts, Illinois commerce commission—The University of Chicago should have a stadium to accommodate at least 75,000 people, judging from the experience I had at the Northwestern, Princeton and Illinois games. There are lots of other people of the same opinion.



J. J. White, Toronto, Canada, salesman—I have attended contests at a large number of athletic stadiums in this country and in Canada, including that of the University of Chicago. Your university should certainly have a stadium that would hold double that of the one at Columbus.



Thomas McWilliams, assistant manager, Morrison hotel—It would be a good thing for the University of Chicago and for the city of Chicago if a stadium sufficiently large was to be built out there to accommodate the football loving enthusiasts. The citizens should get together and hustle this along.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—A concentrated running attack, mixed nicely with forward passes, gave Michigan a victory over Wisconsin today on Ferry field, 13 to 6, in one of the hardest and cleanest played games of such importance in the last decade.

HARRY KIPKE.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

It was a fiercely fought contest from start to finish and the Wolverines are now in good position to lay their first claims to a western conference football championship since 1904. It was the first time Michigan has been scored upon this year, but the Badgers' touchdown was well deserved and no one here tonight is bemoaning the fact the locals' goal line was crossed.

Attacks Are Similar.

The two teams employed practically the same style of attack. Kipke and Capt. Williams, the aces of the Michigan and Wisconsin teams, respectively, were sprung loose from punt formations behind unbalanced lines, while occasional plays were sent into the line. Both resorted to successful use of the forward pass to register touchdowns.

Although Michigan won, Wisconsin is deserving of great credit. With the score 13 to 0 against them in the last period and Gus Tebell, star end, forced out of the game by injuries, the Badgers bent to their task in a manner which not only resulted in a touchdown in the closing minutes of play, but also brought forth praise from the Michigan stands.

Badgers Show Old Fight.

Wisconsin showed the fight which has made the Cardinals feared and respected on the western gridiron for so many years. When the final whistle blew there was little to choose between the offensive and defensive strength of the two teams.

Neither eleven was able to score in the first half, although it looked as if Wisconsin passed up an opportunity in the second quarter when it forced the oval to the locals' 20 yard line. With eight yards to gain on a fourth down, a forward pass was attempted, but the play was incomplete and the ball went to Michigan. It was immediately kicked out of danger. Wisconsin should have tried a field goal.

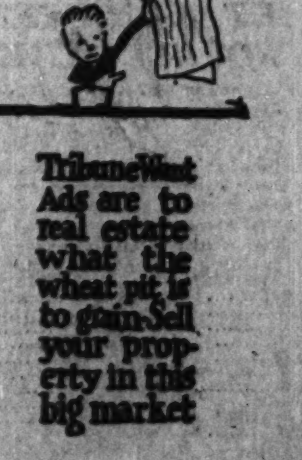
Michigan Drive Irresistible.

With the wind in its favor in the third quarter, Michigan started a drive which could not be denied. After two exchanges of punts had left the oval on Michigan's 40 yard line, Capt. Goebel tossed a forward pass to Bernie Kirk, who was stopped on the Badgers' 38 yard line. Another forward pass, Kipke to Keefer, placed the ball on the visitors' 25 yard line.

Harry Kipke then got around Tebell for 10 yards and the Badger flank player was badly hurt and had to retire from the game. Cappon hit center for another yard and the Michigan stands cheered wildly for a touchdown. Kipke got around the Badger left end for 3 yards and on the next play pulled one of the moss covered plays which have won many games of football.

Kipke Skirts End.

The oval rested on the Badger 11 yard line. Irwin Uteritz, the Michigan



Tribune Want Ads are to real estate what the wheat pit is to grain-Sell your property in this big market quarter back, then called for a fake line plunge. The ball was faked to Cappon, but Uteritz, who hid it momentarily while the Badgers were being sucked into the point of supposed attack, passed the oval to Kipke and the latter skirted the Wisconsin right end, but was stopped on the 1 yard line. Cappon failed in his first attempt to score, but on the second plunge went through the middle of the visitors' line for the first touchdown. Capt. Goebel kicked the goal from placement.

With an advantage of seven points, Michigan was placed on the defensive for a time in the fourth period because Wisconsin had the wind. The Wolverines fought off and finally gained possession of the oval in midfield. After one forward pass, Capt. Goebel to Kirk, had been grounded, Uteritz shot a long one to Kipke.

Puts Over Touchdown.

This sterling player, who had performed faultlessly all afternoon, gathered in the oval after a difficult catch on the Badger 35 yard line and squirmed through, side stepped and outran the Wisconsin secondary defense for the remaining distance for a touchdown. At least three Badgers had their hands on the local star, but he managed to side step and pivot out of their grasp. A few moments later he missed the goal by drop kick. The attempt started in the right direction but the wind blew it outside of one of the posts.

Just before this score was made Capt. Goebel was forced to leave the game because of an injured leg. Other Michigan men, as well as the Badgers, stood up well under the gruelling struggle.

After the kickoff following Michigan's second score, Wisconsin opened up with everything in its repertoire and soon had the Wolverines fighting with their backs to the goal posts.

Series Play Successful.

Wisconsin quickly got the ball on Michigan's 45 yard line and a series play was called. The first formation called for a slant off the Michigan left tackle, but on the second the players lined up in spread formation without signal and Barr shot a forward pass to Capt. Williams, who scampered to the local's 30 yard line.

By use of an open attack featured by the end running of Capt. Williams and short dashes by Barr, the ball was carried to the Michigan 6 yard line. At this stage of the battle, Quarter Back Barr crossed the entire Wolverine team and instead of pulling a straight play, he shot a forward pass to Pulaski behind the Michigan goal line. The ball in its flight passed between two Michigan players who had not expected such a play. Barr's attempt to drop kick for the extra point failed and game ended shortly afterward.

Game Free of Roughness.

From a technical football standpoint, the game was one of the best in years. The lines and backfields worked with perfect coördination, while punting was resorted to whenever the oval rested in dangerous territory. The tackling and blocking was hard and clean, but the game was free from rough work, while the general play certainly reflected credit on the two great coaches and the institutions they represent.

For Wisconsin, Capt. Rollie Williams was the outstanding star and shared honors with Harry Kipke, sparkling star of the Wolverines. Their methods of running were entirely different in that Williams used a pivot or whirl to evade tacklers, while Kipke used the side step and sort of fadeaway dodge. These two great players, among the best in the west, mixed in every play and were in the heat of battle from start to finish.

Tebell Plays Well.

Gus Tebell also played well up to the time he was injured. Few plays got around, while his general work hardly could have been improved upon. In fact, the entire Badger eleven is deserving of great credit for the game and uphill fight which it made all during the game.

While Kipke was the flash of the Michigan team, Bernie Kirk, unquestionably one of the best ends in the country, did his part, driving plays in which came his way, catching forward passes and covering punts in faultless fashion. Capt. Goebel also played a sterling game. Irwin Uteritz handled the team in finished style from the quarter back position, while Cappon was in the fight all the time.

It was estimated that 43,000 persons surrounded the gridiron. About 700 Badger rooters and the band were on hand while the cheering was led by Reed "Red" Parker, famous leader of other years.

THRILLS, COMEDY, AS CORNELL WINS FROM ALBRIGHT

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Cornell closed the home season this afternoon by defeating Albright, 48 to 14, in a game that combined thrills and comedy. Albright furnished the thrills by catching the Red outfit napping, scoring a touchdown on a kickoff against the varsity, in the second period, and another against the second team in the third period, both on runs by Becker of approximately the length of the field. Except for these two excursions in Cornell territory the game was too one sided to be interesting. Lineup:

SMITH'S TOE WINS FOR "SMART" TIGERS, 3-0

picked, the name Dickenson will have to lead most of the rest anyhow. This youngster was all that stood between Yale and victory today. His second line defense was one of the most brilliant exhibitions ever seen in football. It seemed that he was in every play, and with the crashing defensive work of Baker, enabled Princeton to stop those terrific assaults by which the Eli hoped to take home the hide of the Tiger.

There was a great deal of fumbling, ragged work, and some poor kicking. In the "breaks" Yale had slightly the better of the chances, for it was Gorman's muff of a point in the first few minutes of demoralization that gave Yale its big chance. Nor was there any excuse for the Eli's failing in that attack save the desperate determination of Princeton to hold. The play was well planned, and failed because the Tiger line outcharged Yale and stopped Jordan dead.

Smith's Kick Makes Him a Hero.

The hero—of course, is Kenneth Smith, who, summoned into the game when Yale had stopped the attack, dropped back, swung his good left foot and kicked a perfect goal. He was called in once before to try, but failed, because the wind, which troubled the kickers all afternoon, blew the ball a few inches off its course and made it hit the wrong side of the bar.

The chances for touchdowns were about equal. Yale had one glorious moment when the great crowd of 68,000 thrilled as the Eli charged and tore to the one yard line. Yale never had another real chance, as the Bulldog seemed able to gain in mid-field and could not sustain the attack. After scoring on that drop kick by Smith, the Tigers had one wild charge down field, gaining more than 70 yards by brilliant passing and trick plays, aided by the speed of Cleaves and the daring of little Gorman. The difference was that, when Princeton's charge was stopped, the Tiger used brains and kicked. Yale, when she had the chances to kick, tried to smash for first down and lost the ball.

Princeton on Defense.

In the second half Princeton played mostly defensive football and Yale, in desperation, was trying to even up the count by scoring a drop kick. Three times O'Hearn made the attempt from behind the 50 yard mark—falling short each time, although they were magnificent kicks. Their generalship did not include trying short kicks. They wanted to win—not tie—until the Tiger convinced them they could not win.

The last play of the game was perhaps one of the smartest ever made. The Tigers were in possession of the ball, it was fourth down and a second to play. To kick meant to yield Yale a chance for a fair catch, free trial for a goal from field, an opportunity for which the great O'Hearn had worked for a long time. Instead of kicking, Princeton passed the ball back, touched it down two yards from their own goal line and then before another play could be started the whistle blew and Princeton closed the greatest season in its history.

JOLIET BEATS DANVILLE.

Joliet, Ill., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Joliet High defeated Danville, 9 to 7, on a muddy field here. The visitors scored in the first half, but the locals came back with a touchdown and a field goal.

NEBRASKA ROUTS KANSAS AGGIES IN 21-0 SCRAP

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 18.—Playing in the face of a continuous series of successful forward passes, Nebraska crossed the Kansas Aggies' goal line for three touchdowns today and earned a hard 21 to 0 victory. When the game started, Coach Dawson, hoping to save his first team for the game with Notre Dame, put in a number of second string men, but the Aggies put up a surprising show of strength and proceeded to invade Nebraska's territory on first downs.

PURPLE HANDS 58-14 JOLT TO MONMOUTH

BY FRENCH LANE.

A band of Monmouth college rooters went wild with joy at Northwestern field for thirty minutes yesterday. They had watched their football warriors battle a makeshift Northwestern lineup almost on even terms for two quarters. Then the Purple regulars went into action, joy soon deserted the Monmouth rooting section, and when the final whistle sounded Northwestern was on the long end of a 58 to 14 score.

It was a runaway for the Purple. They scored in easy fashion with almost every attack shot at the crumbling Monmouth wall. The downstaters were helpless before a Purple first string defense. They fought gamely, but were badly outclassed.

Ends Home Schedule.

The victory brought a happy ending to a big football year on the Northwestern gridiron. It was the Purple's last home stand of the season and 5,000 rooters cheered every move they made. It was a good trial warmup for the year's finale at Iowa next Saturday.

Palmer, McElwain and Paterson of the regulars and Lauder, a second string halfback, were just about the whole show in the onesided triumph. Palmer raced through the entire Monmouth team on two occasions for touchdowns, one coming on a 30 yard sprint and the other after he had traveled 50 yards. McElwain and Paterson plunged through the invaders' forward wall almost at will. Lauder's speed baffled the visitors time after time.

Purple regulars were in the battle ranks in just one quarter, the third, but that was enough, and Iowa scouts were able to pick up little valuable information.

Mostly Straight Football.

The Thistlethwaite clan was never forced to open up. They piled up their huge score for the most part on straight football, simple formations and easy passes.

Monmouth showed a scoring punch in only two instances. Both were against the Purple second string lineup. They marched 60 yards down the field late in the second quarter on line plunges and a variety of passes. Goram went over for the touchdown from the 10 yard mark and Glanville kicked the goal. Again in the last period they penetrated the Northwestern defense, a 40 yard pass, Glanville to Rosenberg, falling into the latter's arm beyond the Purple last line of defense, and he sprinted over a clear field 30 yards to a touchdown. The visitors threatened in few other instances.

Purple Ran Wild.

The Purple ran wild in all but the second period, and it is hard to guess just what the score might have been with Thistelthwaite regulars in the fight from start to finish. It gave the substitutes their one big opportunity, however, and as a result some of them may crowd the regulars for a place in the front ranks for the start against Iowa Saturday.

Stupecky's Drop Kick Wins for Racine Over Kenosha

Kenosha, Wis., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—A 20 yard drop kick by Stupecky in the third quarter gave Racine a 3 to 0 win over Kenosha here Saturday.

GENEVIEVE TELLS HOW MAROONS BEAT ILLINI

swathed in dirty brown pants and a brilliant orange sweater, kicked off for Illinois to a maroon colored contour, named Strohmeier, who was cut down on Chicago's 25 yard mark, the game was on. Dignified matrons became as callous as undertakers and as emotional as tragedy queens.

The baby talk girl soon saw that her life would be in danger. So she tucked the streamers of her wide brimmed hat out of sight and forgot her debutante slouch as she screamed, "Os-ke-wow-wow, Illinois," or, "Go, Chicago, Go," with impartiality. Men who had looked on death without flinching closed their eyes as the head linesman counted centimeters to determine whether Chicago had made its downs.

All Eyes on Chicago Hero.

And when, toward the close of the first quarter, Rohrke, wearing the Maroon jersey, dropped back to the 35 yard line and sent a drop kick between the Illinois posts 64,000 eyes focused on the bulky figure and the symmetrical ball with more concentration than they had ever gazed on a motion picture queen, a prize race horse, a Presidential candidate, or a prize fighter. Even a Mrs. Klimek would have been excited.

From then on there were no conscientious objectors to the civil war that was on between the university of our city and the university of our state. No one in all the stands was too proud to fight and yell. It wasn't philosophic football for the sake of the theory or the art. It was a scrap for the points all through the second period. But no more scores.

No score during the third period. About the middle of the fourth people learned how long three feet can be when Chicago was stopped on Illinois' 1 yard line. Again they learned how short a minute can seem, as, with not much time left, Chicago had three yards to go to the goal on its fourth down and was unable to get it over.

Several minutes later it was Illinois' turn to receive a lesson in linear measurement when, after John Thomas had prepared the way for his brother Harry Thomas skirted his own right end for a touchdown and brought the score to 9 for Chicago, with nothing for the Orange and Blue.

And yet they say football isn't brutal.

And when it was all over the Chicago fan realized that he was cold and hungry, that his head ached and his throat hurt, but that even the man who had stolen his best girl was pretty decent chap. And the Illinois fan, too, realized that he was cold and hungry, that his throat hurt and his head ached, and that even his best girl didn't look very pretty.

St. Louis U. Eleven Beats South Dakota by 24 to 0

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 18.—St. Louis university easily defeated South Dakota university here, 24 to 0. "Dutch" Schaeffering, substituting for Quarter Back Eggler, was the outstanding star, scoring 18 points on two touchdowns, one field goal and three goals. In addition, the St. Louis star broke up two trick forward passes in the last period.

ter of the wall but was downed so close to the coveted line that six points was only a matter of inches. Clark immediately kicked from behind his own goal. The ball was returned and Chicago penalized five yards. Clark punted again and Wilson downed Pyott on the Illini 35 yard line.

Chicago resorted to a forward pass on the first play. Pyott heaved to Harry Thomas, who was downed on the Illinois 11 yard mark. It was the healthiest pass of the game.

Illini Hold Maroons.

Here was where John Thomas came back. In the first plays he hit center twice, 6 yards resulting. He added 2 more in a similar attack. Then, with 3 yards to go, Pyott on the fourth down passed, but the ball grounded, and Illinois had escaped again.

With the final whistle not many minutes away, the Illini threw caution into the discard. One, two, three passes were attempted. All failed. Then Clark punted and the ball rolled dead on the Illinois 45 yard mark. A pass, Pyott to H. Thomas, netted 4 yards and John Thomas hit center for a similar gain. On the next play he made first down by inches, the ball resting on the Illini 35 yard line.

John again tore through center for 5, then off tackle for 8. His brother Harry made it first down on the [illegible] yard line.

John then made another lunge toward the goal and Richards suddenly emerged from the mass with the ball. John had fumbled but Richards didn't get very far.

Harry Thomas Counts Touchdown.

The Illini immediately resorted to a pass, but Strohmeier intercepted it on the foe's 30 yard line. John Thomas hit right tackle for 12 yards, then center for 6. On the next play Harry Thomas swung wide around his own right end for a touchdown. A double pass, Strohmeier to Pyott to H. Thomas, had confused the defending Illini. Pyott missed the goal from touchdown.

After this there wasn't time for much.

GORDON LOCKE. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Columbus, O., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Following the ball, smashing, plunging, diving, and tearing, Iowa demonstrated the flashiest football 35,000 Ohio State fans had ever witnessed here today. Literally sweeping the Buckeye defensive off its feet, the Hawkeyes piled up one first down after another and triumphed, 12 to 9.

Capt. Gordon Locke is the talk of Ohio tonight. Besides directing the Hawkeye play he gained an average of 5 yards in twenty-two attempts. He dove, he twisted, and he lunged with the power of a demon. In the first quarter he made the prettiest and longest end run ever made in Ohio stadium. For 33 yards he eluded tackle after tackle, until Hoge Workman remained between him and a touchdown. Workman tackled cleanly and brought him down.

Ohio Gets Lead.

One minute after the second quarter opened Iowa's line was at its apex. Ohio State had scored a touchdown on a Workman to Wilson 20 yard forward pass in the first quarter. The edge of the triumph over Yale was fading in the background and the Buckeyes were making a strong bid for a part of the glory. Coach Howard Jones was no longer sitting peacefully on his bench. The great machine he built was hitting on three. A powwow held up the kickoff, and then the machine began to adjust itself to the drive ahead.

For 48 yards it drove down the field, splitting Locke, Glenn Miller, V. C. Shuttleworth, and Nugent over with unstoppable regularity. It paused on Ohio's 2 yard line for the final tuning up. Locke fired its last shot for the first touchdown in the second quarter. He failed to kick goal after touchdown and the teams were 6 all.

Workman Scores Field Goal.

Ohio State, still fighting for a place in the Big Ten sun, opened a forward pass drive and on four plunges by Howard Blair and two forward passes from Ollie Klee to Workman and from L. E. Judy to Workman placed the ball on Iowa's 18 yard line directly in line with the goal posts. Thirty thousand fans arose when they saw Workman drop back for a kick. All eyes were watching Workman clean his shoe for the test. The shrill of Referee Birch's whistle broke in the atmosphere and before the massive walls sent back its echo Workman had scored three more points for Ohio.

The Iowa machine was spitting fire again. Convinced that it had to fight all the way to defeat the Wilcemen, it settled down to the business of smashing the left side of the Buckeye line. For all Locke and Miller cared the Hawkeye forwards could have told the Buckeyes where their backs were coming through. Two first downs were made in three plays by Shuttleworth, Miller, and Locke. Coach J. W. Wilce saw the hole and the tactics the Iowans were using. He sent in Rudy Kutler to stop the play. It was stopped and Locke punted to Workman.

Workman's Fumble Costly.

Here was the break that defeated Ohio: Workman, who had received a bad gash over his left eye, was reeling on the field. When Locke's high punt came floating slowly over the field he got in under it and fumbled. Max Kadesky, whose hobby it was to get to the Ohio receivers before the ball landed, fell on the fumble two yards this side of the Ohio goal line. Locke pushed it over on the first try.

Buckeye rallies and forward passes gave them the earned nine points. Groggy, especially in the last quarter, the Wilcemen fought doggedly to keep the Hawkeyes from scoring more touchdowns. At critical points they never failed to stop the Iowa offensive. It was between the two 15 yard lines that Iowa made most of its great drives.

Buckeyes Best at Passing.

The Buckeyes completed nine out of twelve forward passes. Iowa completed three out of seven. But when the Hawkeyes saw that their plunging tactics could gain them as much ground in comparative safety they abandoned the aerial offensive.

Hoge Workman was the outstanding thorn in the Iowa hope to pile up more points. He knocked down the passes, blocked punts and received two passes and threw two that paved the way for the nine points. He outpunted Locke by 10 yards.

Howard Blair was Ohio's star line plunger. He found holes where there were not supposed to be any. He leaped five feet in the air in one plunge which brought the cheers of thousands. It was his recovery of Miller's fumble in the first quarter on Iowa's 30 yard line that paved the way to an Ohio touchdown. Again in the third quarter he recovered a fumble on Iowa's 31 yard line and was chiefly responsible for Ohio's only plunging drive which was stopped on Iowa's 12 yard line, from where Ollie Klee failed at a drop kick.

Iowa Sub Shows Class.

Substitute Quarterback Rich played himself directly in line to finish the job at that position for the Hawkeyes. He replaced Locke in the second half and Shuttleworth went out to give way to Miller and Nugent. For a while it was hard to distinguish him from Locke. He tore off end runs and line plunges with uncanny regularity.

MAROON STAR IN ALL HIS GLORY AS ILLINOIS FALLS IN DEFEAT

PITT PANTHERS SPILL DOPE; BEAT W.-J., 19-0

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Football dope was badly spilled here today when the Pitt Panthers, minus the services of three star players, defeated Washington and Jefferson college, 19 to 0.

Pitt scored 13 points to W. and J.'s nothing in the first half but the Presidents put the real thrills into the game as the second quarter was drawing to a close. Seven successive passes, Brenkert throwing the ball and Kopf and Spillers receiving, made all four first downs recorded for W. and J. in the first half. However, the Panthers held for downs on their own 7 yard line.

In Presidents' Territory.

The play was mostly in the Presidents' territory. In the first quarter they failed to make a first down, while the Blue and Gold made five. Toward the end of the period Hewitt and Flanagan smashed their way to W. and J.'s 5 yard line, where the whistle blew.

The Red and Black made a great stand as the second quarter opened and received the ball on their own 6 yard line. Brenkert punted from behind his goal line to W. and J.'s 32 yard line and after Hewitt had made 4 yards, a double pass, Hewitt to Flanagan to Anderson, sent the latter over from the 28 yard line for a touchdown. Williams kicked goal from placement.

Score Twice in Third.

After an exchange of punts Flanagan made a brilliant run of 43 yards and put the ball on the Presidents' 20 yard line, from where it was carried by Hewitt and Anderson to the 4 yard line. Hewitt slid over for the second touchdown. Williams failed at the placement kick.

In the third period Hewitt and Flanagan battered their way to W. and J.'s 40 yard line, where the Red and Black line held and Flanagan punted over the goal line. Erickson had touched the ball and Jordan ran over the line and fell upon it for the third touchdown. Williams failed in his try for point. Pitt played entirely on the defensive in the last period.

Mason City, Ia., Nov. 18.—Clarion High was humbled here today by the local Mason City High school team, 6 to 0, despite the strong defensive play of losers.

BRADLEY, ALERT, DIMS STATE TITLE HOPES OF LAKE FOREST, 26-6

PEORIA, Ill., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Bradley made the most of the breaks here this afternoon and eliminated Lake Forest from the state championship race, 26 to 6. Two blocked punts and a fumble paved the way for three of Bradley's scores. Bradley sent over three touchdowns in the first twenty minutes, and a fourth near the close of the third quarter.

Stewart provided the 4,500 spectators a thrill in the second quarter, when he raced through the entire Tech team for an 85 yard run to a touchdown on the kickoff. Lake Forest tried an aerial game in the final half, making 137 yards on nine completed passes.

Lake Forest threatened to score in the third period, when it carried the ball to Bradley's 8 yard line, but lost on downs. Friedrich punted Lake Forest back to their own 3 yard line on the next play. He then fell on a blocked punt and passed the ball 20 yards over the line to Gross. Meinen and Barrett for Bradley and Leaf and Dickson stood out in the line play. Lineup:

N. W. COLLEGE IN 48-0 WIN OVER LOYOLA ELEVEN

Led by Capt. Kaiser, playing his last game, Northwestern college of Naperville yesterday concluded its football season with a 48 to 0 victory over Loyola university at Naperville. The Chicago team offered little real opposition. Kaiser gave his followers something to remember in the line of thrills. He ran 60 yards through a broken field for a touchdown and on another occasion repeated the feat with 45 yards. Besides these two touchdowns Kaiser added two others to his total, making his activities for the day four touchdowns and six goals from touchdowns.

E. AURORA, 31; TILDEN, 0.

Aurora, Ill., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—East Aurora's lightweight football team outran the Tilden High of Chicago today, 31 to 0. The Chicago boys tackled well, but were slow getting plays under way. In the heavyweight game East High defeated Ottawa, 20 to 0. Lineup of Tilden game:

NOTRE DAME ERASES BUTLER HOPES, 32-3

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Butler college's football eleven was outclassed here this afternoon in every department in its contest with Notre Dame university, 32 to 3. The winners started the game with practically the entire second team in action, and there was no scoring in the first period. At the opening of the second period the entire Notre Dame was shifted and the regulars went in and piled up two touchdowns following a place kick for Butler by Griggs from the 28 yard line after Butler had secured the ball on a Notre Dame fumble.

In the third period two more touchdowns were made by the visitors, one coming on a 90 yard run by Maher from the kickoff. In the final period Notre Dame again had most of its substitutes in the lineup and punched over another touchdown.

Castner, star full back for Notre Dame, who made repeated long gains, was carried from the field with a dislocated hip.

Statistics on the game show that Notre Dame made twenty-four first downs, against five for Butler. Notre Dame was penalized 146 yards and Butler was penalized thirty-five yards.

Denver's Varied Attack Upsets Colorado, 20-14

Denver, Colo., Nov. 18.—Dazzling Colorado college with a versatile attack and taking advantage of a Tiger fumble, Denver university beat down another barrier to the Rocky Mountain conference championship, 20 to 14, today.

CALIFORNIA'S GREAT TEAM TAKES NEVADA BY SCORE OF 61-13

BERKELEY, Cal., Nov. 18.—California defeated Nevada, 61 to 13, here today, the powerful Blue and Gold machine having little opposition in the first period, although in the second period the Coyotes scored twice. They held the Bears to one touchdown in each of the last two periods. Coach Andy Smith sent nearly his entire first team back into the game in the fourth period.

VIRGINIA LOSES TO W. VIRGINIA BY 13-0 COUNT

Morgantown, W. Va., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—After being held scoreless in the first half, the undefeated West Virginia university team came back strongly in the final session in a hard fought game here this afternoon and defeated University of Virginia, 13 to 0. The game was featured by stellar defense work of West Virginia's forwards and a long 27 yard run by Simon, which resulted in a touchdown a minute later.

CENTRE COLLEGE FRESHMEN BEAT KEEWATIN, 13-0

Centre college freshmen defeated Keewatin academy's eleven at Cub park yesterday, 13 to 0, making the first defeat of the season for the Highland Park preparatory school.

Centre scored in the last ten minutes of play on a recovered fumble and forward pass. The first half indicated the Keewatin team as the strongest. The third quarter was about even, while Centre college gained the advantage in the final period. The gain in yardage was about evenly contested throughout.

PENN STATE LOSES BY POINT TO PENN

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 18.—The University of Pennsylvania football team today defeated Penn State on Franklin field, after a grueling battle, 7 to 6. The missed point after touchdown was the margin of victory, the usually reliable Mike Palm failing to get his drop kick across.

Bedenk, the State guard, received a slight concussion of the brain in the last period and was taken to the university hospital, where it was said his condition was not serious.

Penn had a chance to score in the first half when, after a series of advances by Miller and Hamer, the ball was carried to the State 27 yard line. Here the State line held and Hamer's goal from placement failed.

The upstate collegians had their turn in the second period, but Pennsylvania held for downs on the 23 yard line. Both scored in the third period, the Red and Blue marching down the field in much the same manner as the opening period. But this time McGraw sent a forward pass which Miller caught on the 5 yard line, racing across for a touchdown. Hamer kicked goal from placement.

Taking the kickoff State marched down the field, Wilson being the particularly bright star. Palm threw a forward pass to Wilson on the 15 yard line and the fleet half back rushed over the goal. Palm's drop kick went wide. Lineup:

FANS BY THOUSANDS FOLLOW GAMES OVER TRIBUNE PHONE LINES

THOUSANDS of football fans who couldn't get a ticket or who were unable to get out to see their favorite elevens in action followed the movements of the teams through the medium of The Tribune switchboard and Tribune sporting department. Scores of every game were relayed to the switchboard as fast as they arrived in the sporting room, and in turn were passed along to the hosts of anxious and inquiring people who flooded the ten operators with calls.

Calls were plugged in on the wires where the ten operators were dispensing information that brought cheer or dispair to the inquiring fans. Just how many calls were answered by these operators is impossible to estimate, for at times many parties were plugged in on a single line at a time.

There is a big difference in giving out scores of football games and baseball scores. The average football fan is interested in more than one team, while most baseball fans ask only about the home nine.

Chicago fans followed the fortunes of Princeton. Defeat of the Maroons put the Tiger eleven in the Chicago fans' eye.

Missouri Hands 27 to 0 Lacing to Washington

Columbia, Mo., Nov. 18.—Missouri university overwhelmed Washington university of St. Louis in a Missouri Valley conference football game here today, 27 to 0. After the first quarter, in which neither side scored, Missouri never was in danger.

C. HUBBARD. [P. & A. Photo.]

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 18.—Brown's football eleven, beaten by Yale, 20 to 0, a few weeks ago, won from Harvard today. The score was 3 to 0, the points being made on a field goal, kicked as the first play of the fourth period by Full Back Adams from the 16 yard line.

Crimson supporters, considering Harvard's defeat, 3 to 0, by the team trounced by Yale, could find as source for hope in next Saturday's battle at New Haven only the fact that neither Capt. Buell nor George Owen was in the game today. Otherwise, it was Harvard's best varsity team.

Lose Touchdown on Penalty.

The Harvard attack went into sustained action only once. It was good for a touchdown then, Coburn crossing the Brown goal line with the ball, but holding by Hubbard of Harvard caused officials to recall the play, and penalize Harvard 15 yards. Harvard then had to try for score by field goal and Hammond, kicking from the 16 yard line, failed.

This situation, in the second period, developed out of Coburn's recovery for Harvard of Quarter Back Myers' fumble on Brown's 35 yard line, from which rushes by Hammond and Churchill advanced it to the goal.

In the closing periods it was Brown that was always pressing the play. Three times in the third period the Bear pushed down, the first time forced to kick, the second time Sweet's 25 yard field goal try failing when it struck the goal upright; the third time advancing to Harvard's 7 yard line.

Again in the last period Brown brought the ball up to position for score, but Sweet failed once more on a drop kick from the 46 yard line.

Crimson Loses Heart.

The deterioration of the Harvard team was, perhaps, the outstanding and, probably, from a Crimson standpoint, the most depressing feature of the game. The penalty which followed the holding episode seemed to take the punch from Harvard, and from that time the Crimson played a weak defensive game and in the two last periods was never beyond their own 35 yard line on the offense.

The Brown forwards smothered nearly every Harvard play and knocked down all but three of the forward passes, although it must be said that some of the Harvard tosses were of schoolboy type.

BERNIE WEBER.

Hyde Park triumphed over Lindblom yesterday, 12 to 7, at Sox park before a crowd of 17,000 in a game that carried with it the south side prep title and the right to meet Senn for the city championship. Lindblom went down fighting all kinds of odds and brought its followers to their feet shouting time after time in the closing minutes as the Hyde Park lead was threatened.

Entering the fourth quarter with Hyde Park leading, 12 to 0, and finding its straight attack gaining ground too slowly, Lindblom opened up. By a brilliant passing attack and Mark's 30 yard run, they carried the ball to the 30 yard line. Held three times, Heidron attempted a field goal that fell short, and was caught by McGivern, who ran 60 yards back, under his own goal posts. Lindblom fought then. Conley intercepted a pass and made 30. Carlson passed 30 to Trimble. Carlson passed 15 to Conley, taking the ball to the five yard line. Conley plunged over for a touchdown and Heidron kicked goal.

Last Minute Rally.

Time was ebbing, with only a few minutes of the game remaining. Dusk was settling over the muddy field when Lindblom kicked off and held for downs, forcing Hyde Park to punt. Conley passed 25 yards to Marks. Marks made 10. Conley smashed for eight. Marks made four. It was Lindblom's ball on Hyde Park's eight yard line. Marks dashed around end and with a clear field slipped in the mud, but made two yards. Conley crashed for three. Then, ready for the final plunge, time ended the game.

While the glory of Lindblom's desperate stand was the feature of the game, and even the most partisan Hyde Park adherent will admit this, there is no discounting the steady and at times brilliant play of the victors. Hyde Park's offense, unusually resourceful for a prep team, was better rounded than its opponents. Capt. Duvall's forward passing and his frequent long dashes gained many yards for his team. It was Duvall, too, who, after a punt was blocked in the second quarter, fell on the ball behind Lindblom's goal posts for his team's second touchdown.

Weber Scores Touchdown.

Bernie Weber, probably even a greater star than Duvall, scored Hyde Park's first touchdown in the initial period on a beautiful 30 yard run through a broken field. There were numerous other long sprints by Weber, and he frequently was on the receiving end of Duvall's aerial heaves. Weber was forced from the game with an injury in the third quarter.

Marks and Conley, who carried the brunt of its offense, and Capt. Bruce in the line led the Lindbloom eleven, with Carlson's splendid punting and able passing as another big factor. There was no individual, however, who far overshadowed another.

TILDEN, 7; AUSTIN, 6.

Failure to kick goal after touchdown cost Austin the chance to tie Tilden in a practice game at Pyott field, which Tilden won, 7 to 6. Cuisinier's open field running featured. It was his point after score which gave his team victory. Lineup:

KICKS TIGERS TO VICTORY

KENNETH SMITH.

Right end of the Princeton eleven whose drop kick in the third period gave the Tiger a 3 to 0 triumph over the Yale Bulldog yesterday. Smith tried twice to put the ball between the posts and over the crossbar, his first trial missing by inches when the wind pulled the ball to one side, and his second attempt going squarely between the uprights for the winning 3 points. Marshall and Bowen Fight to Tie for Division B Title

Marshall and Bowen battled to a 0 to 0 tie for the Chicago High School league division B championship at White City yesterday. Although slightly outweighted, Marshall showed the more effective offense and had the only good opportunity to score. That was in the third quarter, when the west siders worked to the Bowen 5 yard line. Bowen held splendidly, however, and securing the oval, punted out of danger.

Bowen never approached close to scoring distance, though on two occasions it was on Marshall's 25 yard line. Marshall used a varied attack, mixing successful forward passing with straight football. Bowen relied almost entirely on the old game, with a few desultory attempts at passing.

Tobin and Doyle of Bowen and Merriman and Simond of Marshall featured individually. Lineup:

PARKER, 7; MORGAN PARK, 0

Morgan Park High lost to Parker yesterday, 7 to 0, when Dustabel planted the oval behind the line in the last few minutes and White kicked goal. Parker had thrice threatened the Morgan Park goal, once in the second period and twice in the third, but on both occasions the Morgan Parkers threw their strength into the defense and held. Conklin and Feahr, on their off tackle drives and the latter with splendid kicking, starred in the game, these two men returning the ball from the Morgan Park 20 yard line to the 4 yard line in the final quarter before Dustabel scored. TED WATT.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Oak Park heavyweights kept their Suburban league record unblemished yesterday, defeating Deerfield, 8 to 3, in the final game of the season. The victory wound up the league race with Oak Park and Evanston, who played a 7 to 7 deadlock, in a tie for first honors.

Gordon and Drechler were the stars for the victorious Oak Parkers. Gordon nabbed a pass from Drechsler in the third quarter and ran 30 yards for a touchdown. Ted Watt scored Deerfield's three points in the early minutes of the second quarter with a place kick from the 30 yard line. Later in the quarter Watt was thrown behind his goal line for a safety.

The game was played on a soggy field, but both teams resorted to the open game when line plunges failed. Passes and end runs gained most ground for the Oak Parkers, who couldn't pierce the Deerfield line. Deerfield gained off tackle and on end runs.

In the curtain raiser, Oak Park lightweights smothered Morton, 30 to 6.

EVANSTON, 28; NEW TRIER, 6

Evanston High maintained its unbeaten record and a tie with Oak Park for the Suburban league leadership by defeating New Trier, 28 to 6, at Winnetka yesterday. The university city lads showed a resourceful offense, led by the brilliant play of Capt. Solheim. Ellis Jones, New Trier quarter back, directed the attack well and scored the only touchdown. Champaign Marches Over Morton High School, 53-0

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Champaign High had things its own way here, winning from Morton High of Chicago, 53 to 0. Coach VanLiew's men scored in every quarter, while the Chicago lads never threatened seriously.

De LaSalle and St. Rita Win Way to Catholic Title Game

De La Salle yesterday earned the right to meet St. Rita for the Catholic league prep title by crushing St. Patrick, 19 to 0, at Pyott field. De La Salle and St. Rita, sole unbeaten teams, are to meet next Saturday for the title. Led by Kaveny, who was the game's brightest star, and who scored three touchdowns, De La Salle was far superior to its opponents. Coach Barry of De La Salle used reserves in all positions except two. Lineup:

St. Rita yesterday defeated St. Mel, 13 to 0, at Pyott field and earned the right to play De La Salle next Saturday for the Catholic league championship. Both touchdowns were the result of forward passes by Walsh to J. Sullivan and Kennedy. St. Mel threatened to score only once, in the fourth quarter, when it worked the ball to the St. Rita 22 yard line, but was held for downs. Lineup:

"WAY DOWN EAST" BY ELGIN, 10 TO 6 PREPS HUMBLED

Elgin, Ill., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Displaying a fighting brand of football and a complete reversal over past performances, Elgin High school this afternoon won the first intersectional game ever played on an Elgin gridiron. Ansonia, champions of Connecticut, was the victim, 10 to 6.

The locals scored all their points in the second period. A sensational 50 yard dash through a broken field by Half Back Swanson resulted in a touchdown, and Wittman's drop kick from the 25 yard line brought the total to 10. The easterners secured their only touchdown in the third quarter on a sensational attack, Capt. Stewart carrying the ball over. Lineup:

	ELGIN [10].	ANSONIA [6].
R. E.	Smith	Leggo	L. E.
R. T.	A. Hamiester	Taminsky, Pratt	L. T.

A revolutionary thing to do
Moderate cost can't cover everything.

In creating the Coach, a new type closed car, Hudson frankly ruled out useless vanities and adornments. It put the cost in the real things of automobile worth—utility, comfort, convenience, reliability and first rate performance.

And for the first time made possible a closed car, under $2000, on so great a chassis as the famous Super-Six.

It changed the trend of closed car buying

Prior to the creation of the Coach there was no moderate-priced closed car to be had on a first-rate chassis. Closed car comforts at open car cost were unknown. So the sales of the Coach made a new mark in the closed car field. It was no longer necessary to sacrifice car performance in order to obtain a closed car at moderate cost. In the Coach one can get satisfactory utility without having to buy fancy fittings.

In the Hudson Coach at $1625 you get every practical closed car advantage. You get the new Hudson Super-Six motor and car performance that is world famous.

By the elimination of unimportant fittings you can get the Coach for only $50 more than the cost of the open model. And you will be proud of the Coach in appearance, comfort and utility.

More than 120,000 Super-Sixes are in service. Won't you get more value out of a closed car because of its performance than because its principal appeal is made to the eye?

SANGOR FAVORED OVER MANDELL IN MILWAUKEE BOUT

TRIBUNE DECISIONS

Decisions of Tribune boxing representatives are:

At Paris, France—Charles Ledoux knocked out George French [3].

Sammy Mandell of Rockford, a strong contender for the junior featherweight championship, and Joey Sangor, Jewish 122 pound pride of Milwaukee, will meet in the feature bout of the boxing show conducted by Tom Andrews in the ice palace in Milwaukee tomorrow night. The weight will be 122 pounds at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Although Mandell decisively defeated Jack Wolfe of Cleveland, who was awarded the junior featherweight title by the New York boxing commission, the Rockford fighter will have to beat the Cleveland boy in the Empire state to win the championship, according to Manager Eddie Long. Wolfe took a trimming from Mandell in Kenosha recently.

Sangor Rules Favorite.

Since Pinkie Mitchell has lost his prominence as the boxing pride of Milwaukee, the Cream City fans have taken a strong liking to Sangor, who will rule favorite tomorrow night. He is a strong right hand puncher and likes to mix all the time. He can take a lot of punishment, but generally gives as much as he receives.

Mandell undoubtedly will rely mostly on his clever left hand to win on points. Sammy can also hit with his right, but he has learned to use this member more as a defensive weapon. If the Rockford fighter wins decisively he will be taken to New York to meet some of the best 122 pounders in that section.

Mandell Fit for Fray.

Mandell finished hard training yesterday at the Arcade gym here, where he worked all week with Bud Taylor and other good men of his weight. He is down to the agreed poundage and the fighter and Manager Eddie Long will depart for the battleground today. Sangor has done all his training in Milwaukee.

Indications are a large crowd of local fans will make the trip. Tickets are on sale at 129 North Dearborn street and 153 North Clark street. Popular prices of $1, $2, and $3 will prevail.

SIKI'S MANAGER REFUSES OFFER OF BOSTON BOUT

PARIS, France, Nov. 18.—In connection with an offer from a Boston club for a match between Battling Siki and Kid Norfolk, M. Hellers, manager of the Senegalese, told L'Auto today that he intended to respect the French boxing federation's ruling suspending Siki. By refusing all challenges he hoped to bring about a reduction in the nine months' suspension, or at least gain permission for Siki to give exhibitions in the Parisian music halls so that he might earn his living.

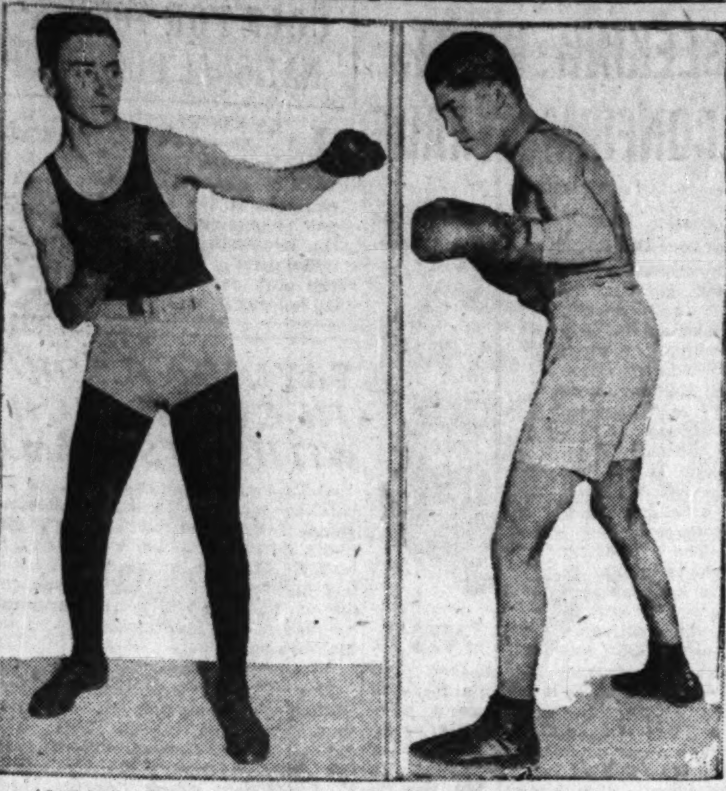
Johnson and Brennan Due to Sign for Bout Soon

New York, Nov. 18.—[Special.]—The proposed match between Floyd Johnson and Bill Brennan will probably be clinched in a few days. The date will most likely be Dec. 15.

Ledoux Knocks Out English Bantam in Third Session

PARIS, Nov. 18.—Charles Ledoux, bantamweight champion of Europe, tonight knocked out George French of England. The fight lasted three rounds.

AFTER FEATHER CROWN



Joey Sangor, at left, and Sammy Mandell, who will debate at Milwaukee tomorrow night their respective merits as leather pushers in 112 pound class.

Rock Island Independents Tackle Bears at Cub Park

Rock Island's Independents, who have an eye on the championship of the National Football league, clash with the Chicago Bears at Cub park at 2:15 this afternoon. In their recent games the Independents have been rolling up enormous scores, having an attack that has smothered all opposition. Dayton last week fell before them to a 43 to 0 score, the same team the Bears had trouble defeating the week before, 9 to 0.

The Independents have a powerful, line plunging set of backs, who prefer a heavy field. Their line is made up of former college stars. While not as weighty as some of the forward walls seen at the Cub park this season, they are fast and shifty. Their tackles, Duke Slater of Iowa and Ed Healey of Dartmouth, are considered the equal of any in the league, and should give the Bears' All-American pair, Scott of Wisconsin and Blacklock of the Michigan Aggies, a duel long to be remembered.

Jimmy Conzelman, quarter back of the Independents, is a brilliant, flashy runner with the ball, a superb tosser of passes, and a great punter and drop kicker. He combines the triple threat, and, while he especially shines on a dry field, can step lively under adverse conditions.

All three of the regular backs excel on line plunging and off tackle cracks. Jerry Johnson of Morningside and the Municipal pier and Dutch Lauer of Detroit university form an ideal heavy slashing pair of half backs. Detroit U. also furnishes both ends, Tillie Voss and Walter Clago, the former a player named by Walter Camp.

Boys under 16 years of age will be admitted to the bleachers today at half price.

STECHER-FREBERG CLASH 4TH TIME

When Joe Stecher, ex-heavyweight wrestling champion, and John Freberg, the local giant, meet in a sheduled twelve round decision contest on Nov. 27 at Aryan Grotto, 8th street and South Wabash avenue, it will be the fourth time the pair have clashed. The last time, just a year ago, at Springfield, Mass., Freberg was returned the decisive winner. According to press reports of that struggle, Joe was unable to do a thing with his famous scissors against Freberg's defense maneuver, which was the well known Frank Gotch toe hold. No sooner would Joe twine his long legs about John's massive torso than John would grab a toe lock and pull it up, with the result that Stecher would himself go on the defense.

HONOR DRISCOLL, MOHARDT TODAY AT GRID BATTLE

Chicago professional football fans will honor two stars of the Cardinal eleven today at the Cardinal-Canton Bulldog game at Comiskey park. Johnny Mohardt, former Notre Dame star, and Paddy Driscoll, former Northwestern university and Great Lakes star and captain of the Cards, are the players for whom the celebration is planned.

Hundreds of the followers of the Cardinals will take part in the celebration, which will include an automobile parade, which will start at Harrison street and Michigan boulevard at 1 o'clock. Delegations of fans are coming from Evanston, Gary, Ind., and every section of the city to participate.

The Cardinals will try to keep their record clean in the game with the Bulldogs which is slated to start at 2 o'clock. The Canton eleven has a strong lineup, which is coached by Guy Chamberlain, former All-American end and star Nebraska player. The Canton battle front is thickly studded with All-American and All-Western players and should give the Cardinals a real battle.

Mohardt, Driscoll and the McMahon brothers will be ready to battle the invaders. Driscoll and Mohardt have been practicing kicking all week and several new plays have been arranged. The McMahon brothers are past masters of the passing and line smashing tactics. A. McMahon, who was out of the lineup last Sunday, due to injuries, is fit and ready to start this afternoon.

HARRISON, 4; HAMMOND, 0.

Woods and Waters by BOB. BECKER

WHEN THE HONKERS ARE ON THE WING.

DUCK shooting has its attractions when with mallards and canvasbacks to occupy a fellow's time, but when the big Canada geese begin to fly and can be lured into the corn fields you can't blame a hunter for saying good-by to the duck shooting and devoting his time to the honkers. It sure is some sport to bag these handsome birds as many an old hunter will tell you.

The Canada goose, also known as the gray goose, or honker, is the boy that most hunters are familiar with in the states, and gunners get ready for the visits of these birds long before they come down from the north. Corn fields are baited and blinds are made by the wise hunter by the time the first cold weather comes along so that the geese will receive a royal welcome when they come winging their way from the north.

Some seasons if the weather is mild these big birds will stick around for weeks, getting fatter and fatter as they feed in the corn fields of the prairie country. As long as there is plenty of food and the weather is fairly mild they are loath to go farther south and as a result hunters will often have good goose shooting extremely late in the season.

While in Alaska I saw hundreds of geese on the tide flats of the bays and coves along the coast. In Pybus bay on Admiralty island they literally covered the low ground in front of some of the salmon streams flowing into the bay. And such a racket they did make! The mallards and teal would sit in the small pools on the flats, often permitting us to approach quite close, but let us get within sight of the honkers and they would begin to complain and talk about us in no uncertain language. And then into the air they would go. One evening when coming down one of the streams by moonlight we ran into a bunch of geese which were occupying a nice place on a grassy bank near the mouth of the creek. As soon as they heard us splashing along in the water they began to talk. In flying away from their "roost" the old leader led them between us and the moon and it was some picture—this big flock silhouetted against the yellow moon low in the sky.

One evening I had the shotgun along and tried this silhouette shooting, as we needed some fresh meat for the pot. It was a combination of flight and silhouette gunning—with your game hitting the ground with an audible thump but taking some time to find unless you had a flashlight along. It's all right when you are after meat, but for sport it is far from being all right as you have little or no chance to recover wounded birds.

A goose can pack away considerable lead when hit—too much, in fact, as far as the hunter is concerned, as a wounded bird, when not seriously shot, will usually elude capture if there is any water handy into which the bird can dive. That thick coat of feathers which the goose carries around is regular armor as far as getting shot pellets through it is concerned. You have to hit 'em hard to down 'em.

Because they are so wary, so large and more difficult to down that other water fowl shooting honkers is easily the best bet in water fowl shooting among the shotgun fans.

TWO BIG TILTS LEAD MIDWEST CARD FOR TODAY

The undefeated Pyott eleven will clash with the Crack Lincoln A. C. in a feature battle of the Midwest Football league at Pyott field at 2 o'clock. The Lincolns are one of the few colored teams playing pro football and will come to Pyott field studded with stars from various colleges and prep schools and a record of not having been defeated in two years. Their headiners include Blueitt of Lane, Williams of Brown.

Besides this game in the Midwest circuit, over at Logan Square the home team will meet the crack Lake Forest Y. M. club. The latter has won every game decisively this season and is coming to Chicago with the intention of keeping the slate clean. Several new men will appear in the Logan Square lineup. Moose Cochran from the Milwaukee Pros and Maynard of Dartmouth will be in the line. Williams, Scanlon, Bond, Greenwood and Leusch will compose the back field. Following is the schedule:

Lincoln A. C. at Pyott field; Lake Forest at Logan Square; Waukegan at Evanston; Ravenswood A. C. at Independence park; East Chicago Gophers at Hegewisch; Amos A. A. and Maplewood Rovers at Cermak park; Englewood Crescents at Forest Park; Scatinas and Trumbull Tigers at Hammond; Geneva at Batavia; Berwyn Sportsmen at Cicero; Harvey A. C. at Pullman; Waco A. C. and Rosebuds at Pullman; Uptown Boosters and Chester A. C. at De Paul field; Yellow Cabs and Fairplays at Grand Crossing; Kenmore Cardina's and Drake Bull Dogs at Cragin; McKinley Parks and East Chicago Dodgers at East Chicago; Opal A. A. and Oakwyns at Justin park; Bellwoods and West Arrows at Harrison field.

KANSAS CRUSHES COLORADO U. GRID MACHINE, 39 TO 6

Lawrence, Kas., Nov. 18.—Kansas scored six touchdowns against Colorado university and won today's battle, 39 to 6. The Coloradoans scored two place kicks. Overborne by the heavy line plunging attack of Kansas, the visitors resisted gamely, occasionally flashing a brand of forward passing for gains which twice pressed near Kansas' goal, so Quinlan could kick.

Englewood Beats Tilden Kickers for Southern Title

Englewood soccer team, by defeating Tilden for the southern section title yesterday, 1 to 0, earned the right to meet Crane, north section winner, for the high school soccer championship Saturday. Two extra periods were played before a score was made by Edman.

LA GRANGE, 19; RIVERSIDE, 0.

La Grange spilled Riverside all over the gridiron in tramping on the latter's house yesterday 19 to 0, at La Grange. Williams starred for the winners, making a 75 yard run and one of 25 for scores. Lineup:

WORLD'S FASTEST SKATERS TO RACE IN TOURNEY HERE

Plans to make the national outdoor speed ice skating championship tournament in Chicago Jan. 26, 27, and 28 one of the greatest in the history of the sport have been completed by the racing committee of the Western Skating association. The committee is composed of Julian T. Fitzgerald and Edward A. Mahlke, president and secretary respectively of the International Skating union, and Otis J. Taylor, a delegate to the national body.

This committee attended the meeting of the International Skating union in Montreal last week, where they were reëlected to office and where they obtained sanction for the national championships here. Since their return they have been making arrangements for the big meet.

Races in Logan Ball Park.

The races will be held in Logan Square baseball park, Milwaukee and Sawyer avenues, Fitzgerald announced yesterday.

Only skaters of class A ability and those skaters of class B who have shown themselves worthy of competing in class A races will be allowed to compete in the championships. This step was taken by the racing committee to insure a well balanced, high class field, and thin down the customary host of preliminary heats.

Skaters from all over the states and Canada will compete, and it is expected that some of the best of Europe also will be on hand. Trial races in each section of the country will be held to determine the champion racers who will be allowed to enter in the national event.

Financial Support Pledged.

The financing and staging of the races will be a real Chicago proposition. The racing committee is receiving guarantees of money from business men, Chamber of Commerce, city officials, and athletic clubs to defray the expense of bringing the skaters to Chicago and caring for them during their stay. Admissions to the races also will help to pay the expenses.

ROCKFORD, 7; MOOSEHEART, 0.

Rockford, Ill., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Rockford defeated Mooseheart 7 to 0 here today before 5,000 fans. Several times Mooseheart was within 5 yards of scoring and once would have made a touchdown but for a 15 yard penalty for rough work.

The Car with a Longer Life

WESTCOTT

Long and Low

The accepted, wanted contour in motor car bodies today is the long, low car with lines typifying speed plus safety and stability.

We believe that in this new Westcott Brougham we have gone farther than any other manufacturer in expressing this ideal.

Notice how a long, low effect has been achieved by the exceptional length of the hood lines, sweeping gracefully into the low hung body and perfectly balanced at the rear by the touring trunk and spare tires.

But charming as you will find the body lines, you will be even more attracted to the car when you find that pleasing appearance has not been won by sacrificing interior comfort.

Unusually wide doors give easy access to the four seats. Exceptional width of the rear seat and more leg room than is commonly found in bodies of this type are advantages worth while.

The finest upholstering and fittings, distinctive, harmonious effects in painting and finishing, and the long lived Westcott chassis combine to make this car satisfying to the most critical, artistic or mechanical tastes.

JUDGE MURPHY RETIRES AS BOSS AT HAWTHORNE

BY FRENCH LANE.

Judge Joseph A. Murphy has withdrawn from the active management of the Hawthorne track to devote what time he spends in Chicago to the creation of the new Washington Park plant at Riverdale. Announcement of the change in the local racing situation was made before he departed late in the week for the fall meeting in Bowie. He had helped stage the revival meeting here as presiding steward and general manager at Hawthorne.

From Bowie Judge Murphy will go to the winter meeting in New Orleans, but will keep in close touch with developments here, and if the advice he handed out before departing is followed, there will be quite a change in the program. He went so far as to recommend against the pressing of legislation for an Illinois racing law.

Experiment Successful.

"The experimental meeting at Hawthorne, while highly successful, does not assure the perpetuation of racing in Chicago," he said. "The work of reviving the sport has merely begun and it cannot be built on Hawthorne alone. The wealth and fashion of Chicago never went to the old Hawthorne, nor will they go to the new one.

"When I was a resident of Chicago I knew its temper well. It wanted either the best of everything, or it did not want it at all. Chicago has not changed. The city wants racing, but it wants the best that can be had, and it wants a great Derby. An American Derby cannot be run at Hawthorne. It would be like staging Mary Garden and a Chicago Opera company in a movie house. I have received the greatest encouragement in the proposition to create one of the show places of the world in Chicago, with a great Derby as a center setting, and this project must be pushed to a successful conclusion before Chicago can take its rightful place as one of the turf centers of the world.

Against Racing Bill.

"My personal judgment is against pressing legislation for a racing bill. If there should be a spontaneous offer from the legislature of a bill throwing proper safeguards around racing, I would welcome it. But if the passage of a bill necessitates the surrender by competent officials of any of their powers to keep racing clean, or if any other means were used in the passage of a bill other than legitimate propaganda, I would be unalterably opposed to it. A racing bill might become a liability instead of an asset. Personally I do not think Illinois needs a bill.

"We took the bold stand this fall that a mere request to place a commission where there was no proof that the commission was actually placed was not a violation of law. There were some arrests, but there were no convictions, and in my judgment if the matter ever reaches the Appellate court it will hold that the state must prove the actual completion of the placing of a commission before a conviction will result.

Off Public Officials.

"I realize some public official might in the interim put us to considerable inconvenience, but the last election in Chicago showed that the trend of public opinion is sharply away from repression or oppression in office or out of it, and I believe public officials, even if they differ with our construction of the law, would permit us to reach the Appellate court without making any grand stand play on us.

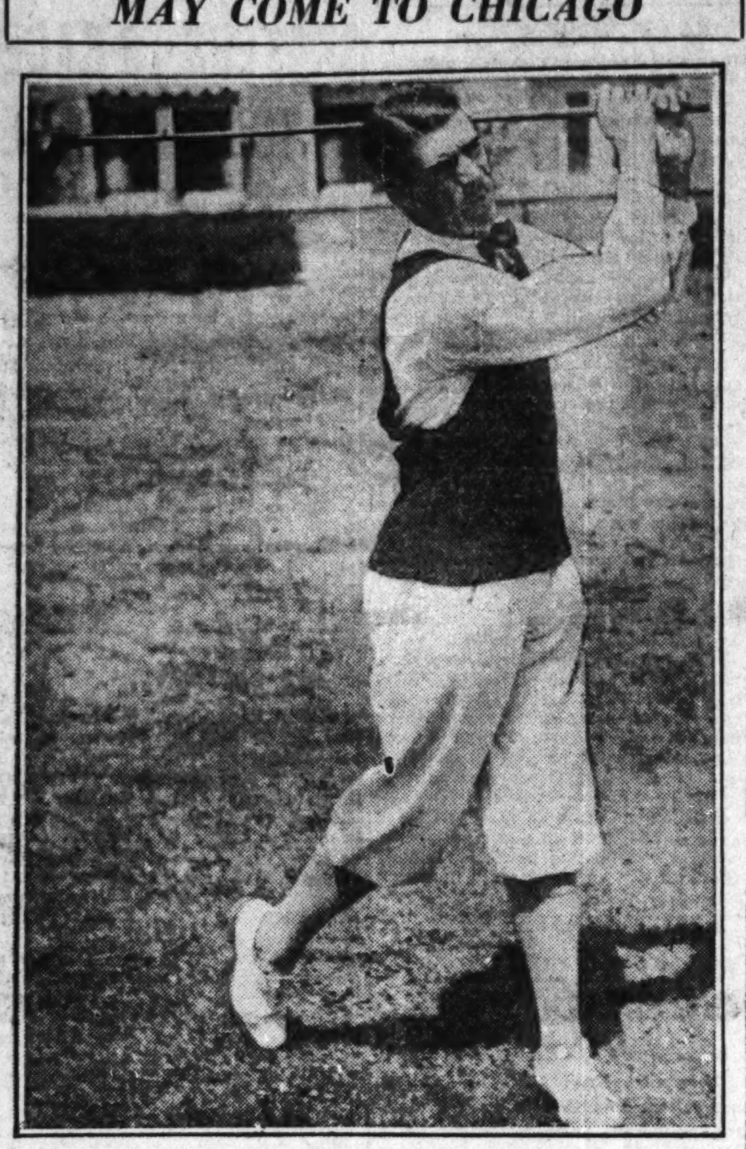
"With this principle established we could build racing from the ground up. If we have nothing from the legislature there will be nothing for the legislature to take away from us every two years. We would be immune from persecution."

While retiring from the active management at Hawthorne, Judge Murphy will likely continue as presiding steward. The capacity in which he will serve at new Washington park has not been announced.

QUINCY COLLEGE WINS.

Quincy, Ill., Nov. 18.—Quincy college defeated Chillicothe Business college, Chillicothe, Mo., here today, 17 to 6.

MAY COME TO CHICAGO



GEORGE DUNCAN.

Famous British golf professional, who toured the United States this summer and who recently returned to London, has been offered a position as professional with the Onwentsia club at Lake Forest. He is a brother of Alec Duncan, professional at the Chicago Golf club.

USHER WINNER IN SHOOT EVENT AT LINCOLN PARK

F. Usher won the 50 target distance handicap event, feature shoot at the Lincoln park traps yesterday, with 46 hits, one better than the score of H. M. Rolley. There were two other events. Leading scores:

50 TARGETS, DISTANCE HANDICAP—F. Usher, 46; E. M. Rolley, 45; A. Lino, 40; H. E. Bickerman, 39.

DOUBLES, 50 TARGETS—H. M. Rolley, 47; F. Say, 39; A. Lino, 39; D. B. Baker, 39; C. Usher, 38.

25 TARGETS, 16 YARDS—W. E. Little, 25; L. C. Larson, 24; W. Burton, 24; A. Lino, 23; F. Say, 23; Col. Jaques, 23.

WAITE HIGH OF TOLEDO DEFEATS IOWA CHAMPIONS

Toledo, O., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—The crack Waite high eleven advanced a notch closer to the high school championship of the country this afternoon when they defeated the fast Washington High of Cedar Rapids, Ia., champions, 13 to 2.

ONWENTSIA CLUB SEEKING DUNCAN TO BE GOLF "PRO"

BY JOE DAVIS.

It was reported yesterday that the Onwentsia club had made George Duncan, the former British open champion, an offer to come to Lake Forest as professional next year. Duncan, who has been with the Hangar Hill club of London for fifteen years, has made three trips to this country, coming alone once and twice with Abe Mitchell.

JACK CROKE.

When the club failed to renew Willie Hunter's contract the latter was told that Onwentsia was seeking the services of a player of international reputation. Should Duncan decline the offer it appears likely the club will angle for another big player.

Croke Quits Northmoor.

Duncan profited substantially by his last two invasions of the United States, so it is problematical if he will accept the Onwentsia offer, but his coming would strengthen the local professional colony, while in addition George is one of the leading authorities on the game.

The Northmoor club is seeking for a competent ground man to replace Jack Croke, who resigned to go into the golf course construction business. Applications are being received by H. T. Spiesberger, 416 South Franklin street.

Wheaton Drive for Members.

The Green Valley Country club of Wheaton, formerly the old Wheaton Golf club, which has been maintained for two years as a hundred dollar golf club, is starting a membership drive. It hopes to have a full roster and waiting list by spring. The winter office of the club will be at Room 712, 31 North State street, Chicago telephone Randolph 4049.

Chick Evans and V. U. Fischer will meet A. K. O. Cochrane and George Hackl in a match at Lincoln park this morning at 10 o'clock.

Seldom have the local golfers been in such good condition in this period of the year as now. There were over 100 players out at Olympia Fields yesterday, and several of the other clubs were well patronized despite the counter football attractions.

If Chick Evans desires to cinch the next amateur championship to be played at the Flossmoor club next summer he should hire Al Jolson for a caddie. Chick recently invited the comedian to Edgewater, and while on the out round Chick did not quite reach concert pitch, he reeled off a 39. The incoming nine was a different story, as Chick scored a record mark of 31. His card was:

3 3 4 3 4 4 3 3 4—31.

As Mr. Jolson is associated with comedy rather than tragedy, his own card is not given.

A week later Mr. Jolson was again on the job in company with Ernest Truax, George O'Neil, Ralph Morgan, Oscar Shaw, Forrest Huff, G. Walter Beaven, and Morgan Cavanaugh of South Bend. Chick, playing with Jolson, Morgan and Hicks, cut the record for the course to 67, went around in 67, three strokes under par. This time his card was:

Out ....3 4 4 3 4 4 4 3 4—33

In ....3 4 4 4 4 4 4 3 4—34—67

FOR PLAYERS OF WHIST

by A. R. METCALFE

"ALWAYS COVER HONOR WITH HONOR."

"NEVER finesse in your partner's suit" is one of the silly rules which has had extraordinary circulation. It is absolutely senseless like such rules as: "Always cover honor with an honor." "The discard of a seven or higher always shows strength."

The reason given is usually "Nearly everybody plays it that way," and this only adds to the original offense. Nearly everybody believed the earth to be flat at one time.

The deal which follows is a good illustration of the fallacy of such a rule.

THE HANDS.

North:
S—8, 3, 2.
H—K, 10.
C—A, J, 4.
D—J, 10, 8, 7, 3.

West:

South:
S—K, 6.
H—Q, 6, 4, 2.
C—Q, 10, 6, 5.
D—K, 9, 4.

West dealt and bid one no-trump which closed the bidding. North had the initial lead.

West secured nine tricks.

At trick 1, south should have finessed the nine of diamonds and thereafter led clubs at every opportunity. By the rule of eleven he could tell that the declarer held but one diamond higher than the seven, and no matter what that card might be, it was impossible for the finesse to lose.

North and south should have made the odd on this deal, instead of which the declarer won the game.

KENTUCKY WILDCATS WIN.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 18.—University of Alabama was defeated today by the Wildcats of the University of Kentucky, 6 to 0, in a bitterly fought game. Kentucky's touchdown came in the third quarter and was the result of line plunges by Curtis Sanders, a pass from Fuller to Hollowell and an end run by Fuller. Fuller failed to kick goal.

UTAH BEATS WHITMAN.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 18.—Displaying fine football, University of Utah won a hard fought game from Whitman college of Washington, 24 to 6. The locals were superior in every department, Whitman scoring their touchdown in the third quarter when Hall recovered a Utah fumble and sprinted 53 yards.

FRAZEE, STILL SEEKING PILOT, CONFIRMS TRADE

Boston, Mass., Nov. 18.—The trade between the Detroit and Boston clubs, by which the Red Sox give Derrill Pratt, second baseman, and Rip Collins, pitcher, for Ehmke, pitcher; Holling, catcher; and Herman, first baseman, was confirmed by President H. H. Frazee before he left here for New York today.

BILL CARRIGAN. [Photo by U. & U.]

The question who is to manage the Red Sox next season is still in doubt. Although Hugh Duffy has signed a contract for another year, President Frazee is negotiating with Bill Carrigan, manager of world champion Red Sox teams of other years. Frank Chance, formerly manager of Chicago and New York clubs, was also considered, it is known, but now is understood to have been virtually eliminated.

CAMPION EASILY DEFEATS LOYOLA ACADEMY, 30-0

Prairie du Chien, Wis., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Campion academy crushed Loyola academy of Chicago, 30 to 0. Loyola was unable to hold Campion's hard bucking line, and the local gridders secured a touchdown in the first five minutes. Strong interference enabled numerous end runs, three of which rolled off 30 yards each by McDonnell, Scott and Legris. Several short passes completed Campion's downs, while 2 yard passes by Scott to McDonnell resulted in two touchdowns. Fullback Holtzman made the majority of the yards on line plunging.

Three Games on Schedule of Indoor-Outdoor League

Three games are carded for today in the west side indoor-outdoor league. Eller Boosters play Robey Forges at Lincoln and Polk; Absopures play West Side Cardinals at 12th and Cypress, and Relu A. C. meets Morris A. C. at Taylor and Campbell. All games start at 10 o'clock.

STATZ TOO GOOD AT GOLF FOR FORMER NATIONAL RUNNER-UP

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 18.—Arnold Statz, centerfielder of the Chicago Nationals, defeated Max Behr, once runnerup in the national amateur golf championship tournament, at the twentieth hole in the invitational meet of the Hollywood Country club today. One of Statz's drives was for 236 yards.

TAYLOR VICTOR IN CUE MATCH WITH MATSUYAMA

Al Taylor won the final block of his balkline match with Kinrey Matsuyama, 300 to 193, at Mussey's last night, averaging 37 4-8, with high run of 130. The Jap averaged 27 4-7 and had high run of 56. Taylor won the match, 1,200 to 946, getting a grand average of 25 1-2, as against 20 1-2 for Matsuyama.

Play in the loop section of Illinois State pocket championship will start tomorrow night at Schaefer's room, 312 South Clark street. The players are Aubrey Jones, J. E. Hendricks, E. J. O'Brien, Frank Concillo, Jack Davey, C. M. Trimper, E. Velleux and C. Buck. J. Biehl won in the Rockford section and Rollo Brown in the Champaign district. The Peoria section will play this week. H. Herbin won in the South Side, W. A. Sellers in the West Side, and J. Liggett on the North Side.

The world's record run in a regular tournament at three cushions is 18, made by Charles Morin of Chicago at St. Louis in 1915. The best run in a national championship is 17, made by Tiff Denton of Kansas City, at Cleveland in 1919 when playing against Byron Gillette.

DE PAUL BEATS ELMHURST.

In mud ankle deep, De Paul academy beat Elmhurst college yesterday, 12 to 0, at De Paul. The locals scored its two touchdowns on straight football and sweeping end runs. Reilly plunged over the first score and Huppert counted the second on a long end run. Lineup:

Front view of Rear Axle

The sturdy Jewett-Timken axles making a record for dependability—

The Paige factory has been checking up on the stamina of the 20,000 Jewetts in use. Part by part the evidence of sturdiness is piling up. For instance, never in the history of Paige-built cars have the axles proved so uniformly dependable as in the Jewett. Designed for sturdiness—as is the whole Jewett car—the rear axles, which get the worst punishment, have made a record for dependability.

Out of 20,000 Jewetts in use, only 1-20 of 1% have had any rear axle trouble at all—from all causes, including accidents. Those close to the industry realize this is an astonishing record for a new car—more proof of what we have been telling you about the Jewett. In truth, it is a sturdy car.

Jewett performance is as thrilling as Jewett construction is substantial. Jewett will top Hubbard Hill at 33 miles an hour from a standing start at the bottom in high gear. Try it with any other car; see what Jewett performance means. With the Jewett you can drop from "high" to "second" at 35 miles an hour—so delightfully easy is its gear shifting.

Such a car at $995 was never thought possible before, and Jewett has other high-priced car features. The high-pressure oiling system assures long, smooth motor life. You neither hear nor feel the motor—and it will stay that way. Ask to have this oiling system explained to you. It means much in long motor life at lowest upkeep expense.

Jewett enclosed bodies are a delight to the eye and a comfort to mind and body. Big, well cushioned seats, lots of leg-room. Strongly built, free from rattles. Let us send a Coupe or Sedan to your door for demonstration.

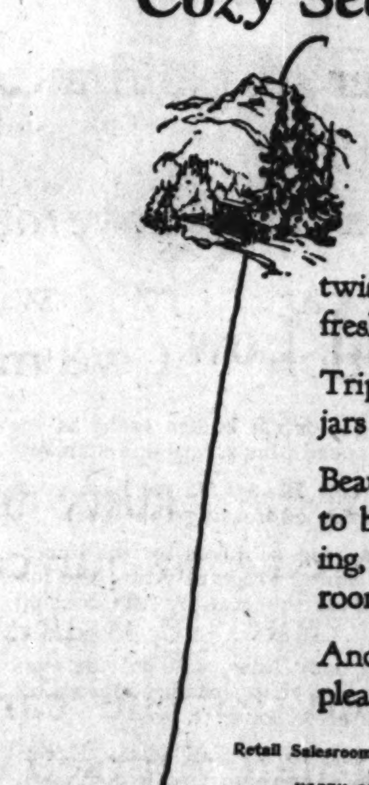
The OVERLAND SEDAN Now $875



"BUY AN OVERLAND AND REALIZE THE DIFFERENCE"

There's Nothing Like a Cozy Sedan for Winter Motoring

Keep fit this winter. Stay out of doors and enjoy the cold crisp air.

An Overland Sedan is just the thing to make winter motoring a real pleasure. A twist of the window regulator brings plenty of fresh air and protects you from the wind outside.

Triplex springs protect you also, from the jolts and jars of the frozen, rutted road beneath.

Beautiful to look at, the Overland Sedan is a car to be proud of—the upholstery is rich and inviting, the cushions deep and resilient, the seats roomy and comfortable.

And the new low price makes winter motoring a pleasure that everybody can enjoy.

Mud Battle Opens New Campaign for Iowa Bond Issue

Motorists Demand Action After Spending Night in Mire.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

ADVOCATES of earth highways, who have been blocking plans for a bond issue system of paved roads in Iowa for the last five years, retired from the open field last week. At the same time more than 1,000 citizens who have taken no more than a passive part in the road fight got behind a personal campaign for hard surfaced roads which, they hope, will make the highway program a leading issue in the state this winter and next spring.

The "fighting thousand" were Iowa victims of the mud episode which made it impossible to operate the hundreds of automobiles homeward bound from the Iowa-Minnesota football game Nov. 11 and held all but a few of them on the open road through a night of high wind and rain. According to reports from every part of the state, the motorists who survived the unprecedented ordeal have already launched a general movement demanding action on a state-wide building program.

"Never in the history of Iowa," declared the Cedar Rapids Gazette, in commenting on the story, "has a stranger picture presented itself. On the Red Ball route, between Iowa City and Cedar Rapids alone, at least 500 cars, probably more, were stuck in the mud in one solid caravan that stretched over miles of rain swept country. Fifteen hundred or 2,000 people were in the machines. Hundreds spent the night in their cars, waiting vainly for escape from the mud.

"Some cars nosed into the ditches and stayed there. Others backed in and others rolled over. It was all a hopeless mess. It demonstrated as nothing else could the fallacy of depending on dirt roads for transportation.

"In the stalled caravans were many men who had seen service in France. It was their unanimous opinion that if French roads had been of the Iowa type Germany would have won the war. Had the cars been trucks filled with troops and supplies moving on an urgent mission, the cause of Iowa would have been lost. Some of the cars have been mired for three days. If there were any opponents to the hard road program in the mob that wallowed in the mud along that highway, they are good roads converts now."

For many seasons Iowa has been the principal barrier to middle west interstate and transcontinental traffic in the spring, fall, and winter months. Motor travel has come to a halt there with every rain, and transportation experts estimate that the loss occasioned every year by delays to freight and passengers, wear and tear on motor equipment, and the burning of needles fuel would soon pay for the needed pavements.

At present paving improvement is carried out by the various counties of the state and highway work is concentrated on the maintenance of dirt roads. These main roads are nearly perfect in dry weather, and, during favorable periods, are the most pleasant type of highway to be found anywhere in the west. In addition they are cheap, and this phase has been used convincingly in numerous political campaigns.

Iowa's pavement mileage is limited almost entirely to stretches of hard surfacing radiating from centers of population, and, although considerable, is practically useless for through traffic.

A state bond issue and the building of through route pavements is the only remedy for the state's transportation problem, according to officers of good roads, automobile, and civic organizations which joined in the new drive for improvement last week. They contend that the present "piece meal" plan cannot complete surfacing on even the main state routes within the coming decade.

EMERGENCY PIN.

In an emergency a temporary taper pin may be filed from an ordinary nail or stiff piece of wire to replace a taper pin that has broken on the magnetic drive or in some other important location. This repair will serve until a permanent replacement can be made, but it is not in itself permanent.

GOSSIP of the AUTO TRADE

TWIN carburetors of a new design, each supplying four cylinders of the powerful "eight in line" engine, and all metal brakes on both front and rear wheels are features of interest in the latest Isotta Fraschini models received from the Italian factory by the newly organized Illinois distributing agency, 5145 Broadway. The models, combining the $8,000 Milan chassis with American coach work which bring the jobs to $11,000 for open and $12,000 for closed cars, are to be exhibited at all of the coming automobile shows, according to Sam Howard and F. J. Campbell, Chicago dealers.

John A. Rodgers and F. D. Cerf of the Stutz Chicago company were among the guests last week at a testimonial dinner given in honor of Charles M. Schwab, E. V. R. Thayer, and Carl Schmidtlapp in Indianapolis. Plans for expanding the activities of the Stutz "Speedway 4" were features of the big motor gathering. The new series, a continuation of the former models with refinements and improvements, have a price range of $2,640 to $4,450. A sales gain of 240 per cent was announced for the year's record.

Reports from the Westcott Motor Car company are that during the last week more cars were built and shipped than in any week of the last thirteen years. Two late models are credited with the unusual production and sales record.

Indian Trail Is Scene of Modern Highway Opening

CAMP POINT—It was Indian Camp Point in the days of the redskin—will open its doors to thousands of Illinois motorists Nov. 20 in dedication of more than twenty-six miles of new concrete on route 31. In the old days many an Indian trail converged in Camp Point, but no party of Indians ever equaled in size the troop of motorists that will assemble for this celebration.

The program includes a few set speeches and a ride over the road with a governor or two on the program, if committees can secure their presence. For several weeks Quincy motorists have been blocked from the lower end of the road while the last section completed was allowed to harden, but the barriers go down the day before the celebration. The road is open two miles beyond Camp Point, and contractors are engaged in a struggle with Jack Frost to get into Clayton before the winter closes in on them. Parts of the hard road are built each way out of Mount Sterling, county seat of Brown county, and other parts of the road as far as Ripley Corners are under contract.

Route 31 is the only concrete road of any magnitude laid in western Illinois between East St. Louis and Rock Island, and is intended to meet a spur of the Missouri hard road system at Taylor, Mo., ten miles west of Quincy, to form a route between Chicago and Kansas City through Palmyra, Monroe City, Moberly, Huntsville, Carrollton, and Excelsior Springs.

Huge Cotton Orders.

Henry Ford, whose activities reach in many directions, is held responsible to some extent for the advance in cotton fabrics. Interests which supply the Ford factories with tops, cushions, and curtains recently contracted for 10,000,000 yards of cotton goods. Other makers of automobiles of the cheaper grades are having difficulty in securing goods of sufficient quantity and quality desired. Some purchases have run into the million yards.

OSCILLATING VALVES.

In grinding valves it is important that they be lifted off their seats and oscillated as the grinding proceeds. By fitting a spring under the head of the valve so as to lift the valve whenever the pressure of the tool is tightened this operation is greatly simplified.

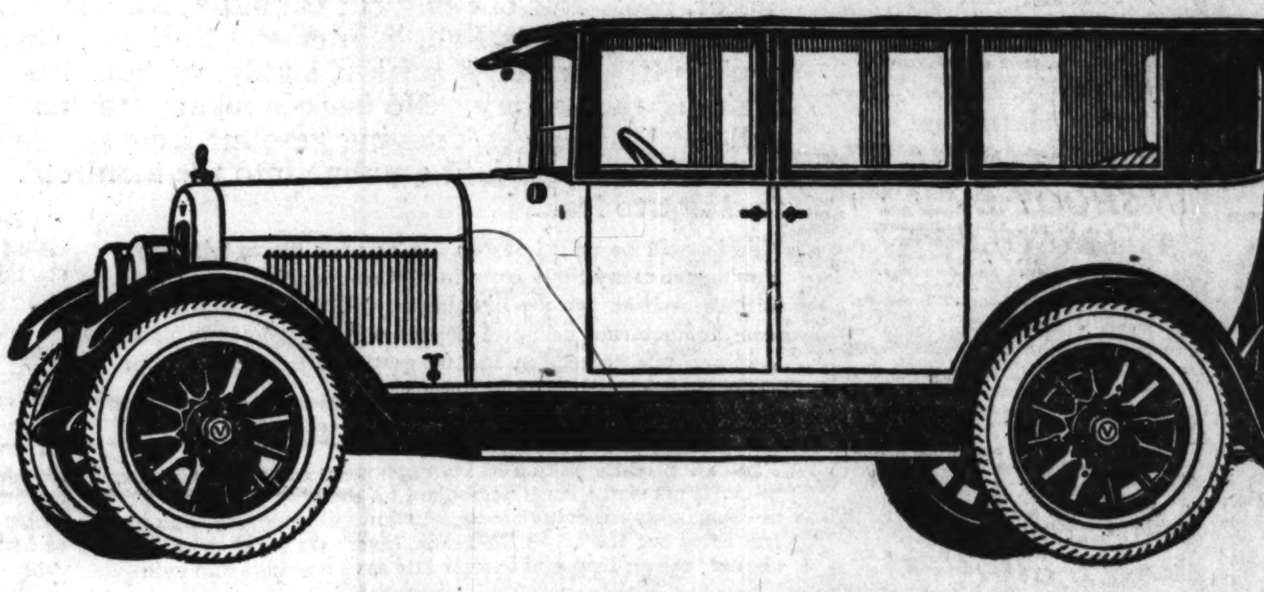
VELIE

VALUE



The Velie 58 Sedan at $1795 is the biggest value on the closed car market today. It is a true sedan in every sense of the word. The body is beautifully designed, tight as a drum and the finish represents 26 days in our paint shops. Deeply upholstered in fine broadcloth, equipped with dome light and heater this Sedan at our price is from $100 to $300 under the market,—a saving that may as well be yours. Arrange at once for a demonstration.

Every time we sell a car we make a friend

It takes a little longer to build a car our way but it certainly does pay.

For every time we sell a Velie car we make a friend.

Building slowly and carefully as we do puts a limit on our production, but we much prefer to build our cars that way.

For we are sure of Velie quality in every bit of work we do and we know our car will live up to every promise that we make.

We know, if you buy a Velie car, you will have cause to congratulate yourself upon your purchase every day you drive it.

We know it will serve you faithfully for thousands and thousands of miles.

We know your enthusiasm for your car will sell more Velies to your friends.

We know that when you want another car you will want another Velie.

For Velie owners do come back for more.

Sixty per cent of the cars we build are sold to those who already own Velie cars.

That's why we prefer to build fewer cars and build them extra well.

We have followed that plan for fifteen years and we know how well it pays.

Every time we sell a Velie car we make a friend.

• • • •

The Velie 58 Sedan is powered by the wonderful, Velie-built six-cylinder engine. This motor is the very latest improvement in the efficient, valve-in-head design. The engine is tightly enclosed, making it dirt- and dust-proof yet accessible. It is self-lubricating, oil being forced under pressure to practically every moving part. From the standpoint of fuel consumption and dependability this engine is second to none, on any car at any price.

Dealers Besiege Auto Plants for 1923 Car Supply

Motor Transport Growth Paints Bright Future.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—The month of October established two records for the automobile industry. It was the seventh consecutive month of the year to show a production in excess of 200,000 cars and trucks, and it brought the figure for the ten month period to within a few thousand of the total output for the best previous year in the production history of the industry.

There remain two months of production that will swell the total by at least 400,000 more cars. This is a record undreamed of at the beginning of the present year. Business at that time looked good, but the most optimistic manufacturer expected nothing at all like what happened.

An indication of further expansion in early spring is the great number of dealers who are at this early date flocking to the hub of the motor industry to arrange for 1923 retail supply. Some are promised the quota of cars they ask; others are booked for less than the number applied for, while no small number would take more were they sure of sufficient railroad facilities to get the cars into their territory. This too is looked upon by manufacturers as a serious problem. It is the one that held down the production of the present year, for the railroads were not only unable to meet the shipping demand for the finished product, but also in moving raw material to the great automobile plants of Michigan.

"If the 2,600,000,000 tons lifted by the railroads of this country had not been supplemented by the 1,400,000,000 tons carried by motor vehicles this last year, there probably would have been an utter collapse," according to Julius H. Barnes, president of the Transcontinental Developing company, in an address before the Detroit board of commerce.

Mr. Barnes' belief is that the motor industry still is in its infancy and that the future of motor transportation is a difficult problem on which to speculate. He announced that the transportation situation has been saved by the introduction of a new and real factor through the unregulated motor industry and the public highways.

"In the field of motor transport the play of natural laws of supply and demand has saved the day," he added. "The advantage of motor transport with its flexibility of delivery and its elasticity of route service is clearly apparent so long as the public highways afford road beds free and open to its operation."

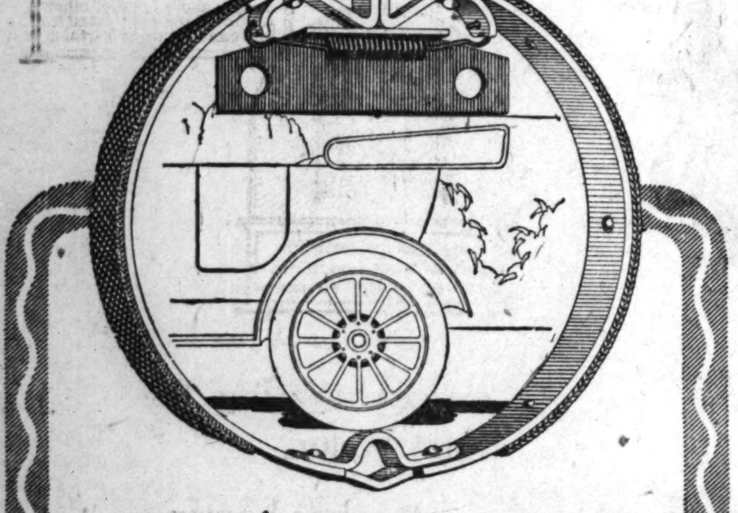
While factories, as a whole, are still behind on unfilled orders, it is probable that there will be a tapering-off in production during the late days of November, although the present demand for cars shows no signs of weakening. The manufacturers are centering their efforts on closed models, for they anticipate a heavy demand for that style of car.

Reports from all sections of the country show that there is only a negligible stocking up of open cars. There is at the present time not more than one month's supply of open cars in the dealers' hands, or en route to them. This fact indicates that the entire production is being sold and that manufacturers are not producing in excess of actual demand.

TRACTORS AID ARMENIA.

Twenty-two American tractors, imported by the Near East Relief commission, have plowed 2,000 acres and produced twenty bushels of barley per acre, against ten bushels per acre the result of native methods, which called for 500 men and 1,500 oxen on the same job, says a dispatch from Alexandropol, Armenia.

Prof. Hartill of the New York Institute of Agriculture, directed this experiment. He estimates that the cereal production of Armenia can be increased 200 per cent by the use of modern methods.



Patented Brace Plate perfects emergency brakes for Fords

THIS Brace Plate is a patented feature—found only on Rusco Emergency Brakes. It makes possible for the first time the successful use on Fords of the type of brake used on big cars, namely, the steel expanding band type.

When you pull up this Rusco emergency, the cams which expand the brake bands jam every ounce of braking power against the brake drums. But if you didn't have the Rusco patented Brace Plates, the brake drums wouldn't get half the braking power, because one end of the brake bands would buckle under the cams and not touch the brake drums at all. That Brace Plate is a mighty important thing.

Rusco Emergency Brakes at $2.50 with the patented Brace Plates, and with Rusco Brake Lining, are easy to install; dependable; give longer service; save the foot brake; are easy to reline; and safe in emergencies. Buy them of your garageman or accessory dealer today.

The ruinous cool-weather drain on storage batteries has begun for motorists who grind away unnecessarily to get a cold motor started. The GUARANTEED IMPERIAL PRIMER puts a stop to such waste of energy, temper, gasoline and money. It saves the motor, too. Put one on your car AT ONCE and know what it means to start INSTANTLY every day this Fall, Winter and Spring! One stroke of the Imperial Primer—and you're off! It works quickly, surely, without hesitation, without grinding the starter or draining the battery. No back-breaking cranking, because the battery won't work. Just pull out the plunger, drawing gasoline from the gas line—let it spring back and its sprays quick-firing, vaporized gasoline into the manifold. It closes automatically and is guaranteed not to leak.

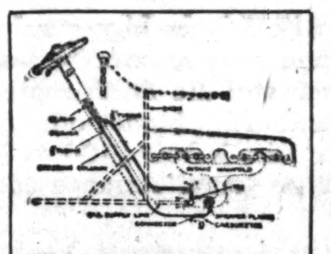
Months will be added to the life of your storage battery. You'll save many times over, in that respect alone, the small initial purchase price. The Imperial Primer makes cool-weather motoring safe and dependable for women-drivers. It is absolute protection against getting stalled miles from home because the motor will not start.

Overcome Trouble Due to Choker

The action of the Imperial Primer means longer life to all the vital parts of the car; a choker, on the other hand, draws raw gas into your cylinders to seep down through the pistons and thins out the oil in the crank case. Do away with the choker; use an Imperial Primer and save bearings and cylinders from excessive wear due to thin oil. Rid yourself of starting trouble forever by this simple Imperial method!

Quickly Installed—No Cutting

Call on the nearest Imperial dealer listed on this page and get your Primer today. You need it continuously from the first cool day in the Fall. It makes no difference what your make of car, truck, or tractor—it's an easy matter to install an Imperial Primer. Any of these dealers can do it in less than an hour—or you can install it yourself, if you prefer. No drilling or cutting into the gas line. All couplings made with Imperial Compression Couplings—no threading, soldering or flaring necessary. Complete installation instructions with each outfit.



"Ford Special" Installed Without Any Cutting

By following simple directions, the "Ford Special" is easily installed without any cutting of gas lines or drilling in dash. A patented compression coupling is inserted between the gas line and carburetor to form the intake. A flange is inserted between the carburetor and manifold to inject the spray. The Primer Pump is clamped about the steering post. Outfit complete, $4.00.

Ford Owners

The Ford Special Outfit, selling for $4.00, is a wonder worker. It attaches right to the steering post—no holes to bore in the dash unless you wish. Put on an Imperial Primer today and start INSTANTLY in all kinds of weather.

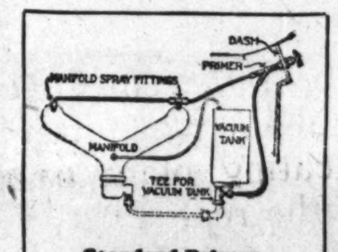
DEALERS: Place your order with your jobber now for a handsome colored display carton containing four outfits and be ready to supply the demand in your vicinity—a small investment—a big return!



Standard Primer Fits All Makes of Cars

The gasoline supply for the primer is secured by placing a coupling between the gasoline line and the vacuum tank or carburetor fittings. The spray is injected through a spray flange or through spray fittings inserted in the intake manifold. The Primer Pump is located on the dash, conveniently near the driver's seat. Full instructions included with each primer. Outfit complete, $4.75.

CHICAGO
MICHIGAN CITY

Quick Delivery!

of Weil-McLain Boilers to Chicago and the Middle West is being made even now in spite of adverse freight conditions. Large stocks are carried in Chicago and at our factory at Michigan City, Indiana. The central location of these stocks, which shortens freight hauls, protects Weil-McLain customers from disappointment. You can be sure of getting your Weil-McLain Boiler in plenty of time, if you place your order promptly.

The Surface Directly above the Fire is the most Efficient

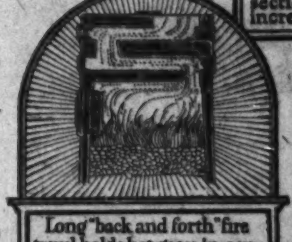
Crown Sheet Section, directly above fire, and other sections are corrugated to increase heating surface.



Long "back and forth" fire travel holds hot gases in contact with heating surfaces—

One is a Home

The other merely a house

Home should be a pleasant place—and it can never be pleasant unless it is comfortable. No matter how fine a house may be in other respects, if the heating plant proves inadequate, wasteful or troublesome, then the real spirit of home is lost.

Weil-McLain Boilers have contributed to the home happiness of thousands of families. They provide a plentiful supply of healthful, steady, even heat in any home, old or new. They increase property values as well as home comfort.

Important, too, is the fact that the Weil-McLain Boiler reduces heating costs through its fuel saving features. This economy is particularly appreciated this year when fuel seems so high in price and is sometimes so hard to get.

Weil-McLain Boilers combine the two major functions of a perfect boiler. First, complete burning of fuel; second, utilization of every existing heat unit.

To attain complete burning of fuel we perfected scientific combustion. Due to this feature every pound of fuel is entirely consumed. The maximum number of heat units are liberated, eliminating waste heretofore thought a necessary evil of heating.

For the purpose of utilizing every unit of heat three remarkable improvements were perfected.

Heating surface was doubled directly above the fire by corrugating the crown sheet. This is the most valuable heating surface in any boiler.

To further promote fuel economy and heating efficiency, all other heating surfaces in Weil-McLain Boilers are also corrugated. The full value of each heat unit is gained.

A long "back and forth" fire travel holds the hot gases in contact with all the fuel-saving corrugated heating surfaces. This gives added assurance that no valuable heat unit can escape.

Weil-McLain did not stop at making these major improvements, but considered and included every necessary refinement for absolute perfection. Noteworthy among these are:

Large fire door; handy front clean-out doors for each section; smooth, non-clogging surface of lower one-third of fire pot; triangular grates which cut and shake out all ordinary clinkers. Consider the Weil-McLain type of boiler seriously for your needs. In it you will find the economy and efficiency that mean complete heating plant satisfaction. Whether you contemplate a boiler for a new building or replacing an old one, write us. We will also send you, if desired, the name of a competent heating contractor who will serve you.

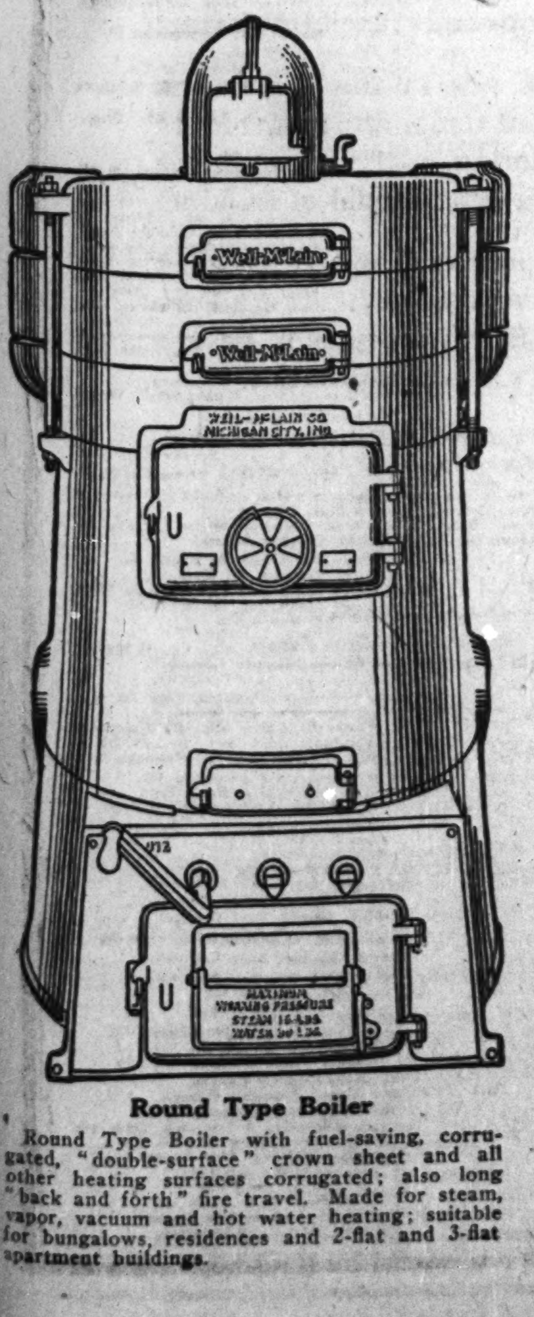
Coal or Oil?

When you buy a boiler and intend to use coal, coke or similar fuel, complete combustion is dependent on the boiler.

When you burn oil, your oil-burning device alone controls the combustion—produces the heat.

In both cases, you are dependent on the design of the boiler to utilize the heat produced by the fuel you use.

In Weil-McLain Boilers, whether using coal or oil for fuel, full utilization of the heat produced is accomplished by the double surface crown sheet directly above the fire, other corrugated heating surfaces and the long back and forth fire travel.



Round Type Boiler

Round Type Boiler with fuel-saving, corrugated, "double-surface" crown sheet and all other heating surfaces corrugated; also long "back and forth" fire travel. Made for steam, vapor, vacuum and hot water heating; suitable for bungalows, residences and 2-flat and 3-flat apartment buildings.

MOTORDOM

Stage Coach Days Revived by State Bond Issue Roads

Motor Bus Lines Demand Attention of Law Makers.

BY E. E. PIERSON.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Motor bus lines now radiate from nearly every county seat of Illinois. The construction of some 700 miles of hard roads during the last year has vastly stimulated the motor bus business and scores of new lines were organized, while as many more are all "set to go" when the program for 1,000 additional miles in 1923 is completed. A large portion of the business before the Illinois commerce commission this year has been the consideration of petitions for certificates of convenience and necessity from the promoters and hearing objectors, largely electric trolley lines which have found the busses ruinous competitors in some instances.

The majority of the bus lines are operating over the main traveled roads which were utilized by the stage coaches of three-quarters of a century ago. Chicago was then the headquarters of the leading lines and the coaches moved daily from that metropolis to all points of the compass, drawn by four or six horses, dependent upon the condition of the roads. One of the leading state coach lines between Chicago and St. Louis followed closely the "Illini boulevard," Route four of the state bond issue hard road system which runs via Joliet, Dwight, Burlington, and Springfield. Another line, Chicago to Peoria, followed closely what is now the Ivy trail, Route seven of the bond issue system, via Joliet, Ottawa, and Henry. Still another, Chicago to Indiana points, moved over what is now the Dixie highway, via Momence and Danville, while one of the popular routes west moved from Chicago to Clinton, Ia., via De Kalb and Dixon, now known as Route one of the bond issue.

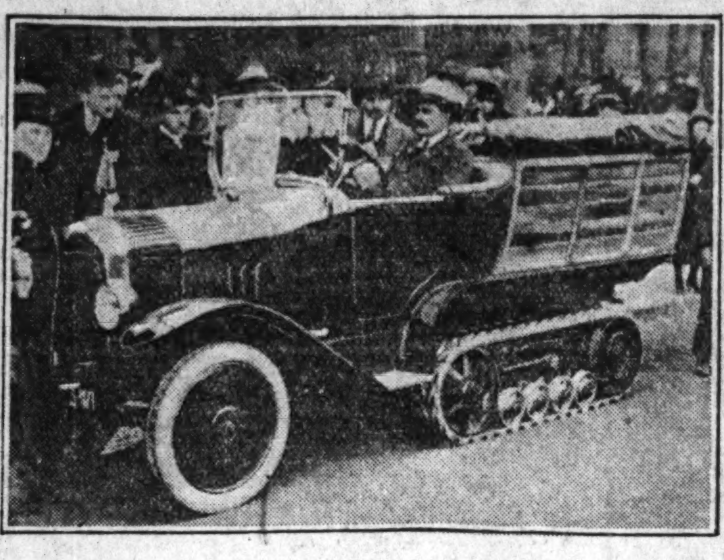
The motor busses are keeping pace with the extension of the hard road system and within a year or two it is expected that several thousand will be in operation in Illinois. They promise to form an important addition to the transportation facilities of the state and will be able to operate every day in the year as business requires.

Some of the pioneer vehicle factories of Illinois which built and repaired stage coaches during the old days and turned their attention to buggies and farm wagons when the railroads pushed the old time coaches into the discard, are now producing automobiles and motor busses.

So far no action has been taken towards requiring motor busses to pay a special license where they operate for profit upon the state system of hard roads. As the busses increase in number the state legislature will consider the question of a fee, the money collected to be utilized in maintaining the new highways of concrete.

It is expected that problems of controlling this great volume of motor traffic will develop from time to time and be solved by the authorities as circumstances may require. The great trunk line arteries of the bond issue system, especially those which are the favorites for transcontinental travel, already carry a tremendous amount of traffic, the proper control of which will soon be given consideration.

READY FOR WINTER ROADS



Small motors have been developed to a fine point in Europe to take advantage of the uniformly paved roads, but this ten horse power Citroen, exhibited at the last Paris auto show, led the little fellows in pulling through road obstacles. It is equipped with tractor wheels to help it through snow and sand.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom.

The Tribune will pay $5 each for questions accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send your name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter, Chicago Tribune." For today's question James M. Bealty, 1157 West Adams street, Chicago, was awarded $5.

The Question.

Are you in favor of some kind of mark to keep autos off the cross walks when traffic is stopped?

Where Asked.

Michigan avenue at Jackson boulevard.

The Answers.

E. B. Schafer, 4707 West Erie street, mounted police officer—That's one of the best suggestions I've heard for some time. They have something like that out in Oak Park. They ought to have them throughout the city, and especially where traffic is heavy. There ought to be some definite line to indicate where the autoist's right of way ends and the pedestrian's begins.

Mrs. Florence M. Thiess, 4826 Kenmore avenue—I certainly am. It would be a good idea to run that stop line alongside the sidewalk as well. It is awfully hard to drive when people are cutting across the street anywhere and everywhere. They certainly don't realize what chances they take when they run in front of autos. Put down a stop line for autoists, but both autoist and pedestrian should observe it.

Ralph Duffy, 949 Cornelia avenue, salesman—That would be a good thing. The traffic officer has all he can do to take care of auto and pedestrian traffic. A cross walk marker would help him in his work. With our two way traffic system, including our turn to right, turn to left stunt for autos and street cars, the pedestrian has to risk his life to cross a street. A stop line for autoists would be a safety line for man, woman, and child on the street.

Miss Jane Howe, 5036 Kenmore avenue, home girl—I do more riding than walking, so I like to look out for the pedestrian. A marker would be a good thing for everybody. It is a common thing to see people run to get out of the way of autos after the whistle blows for autos to start. Even with a stop line, if autos would stop a few feet back of it, instead of going right up to it, it would make it still safer for those on the street.

C. E. Boex, 4832 Kenmore avenue, salesman — Good suggestion. Too many autoists take advantage of the street and go up to the last inch and beyond. They seem to know that the policeman is too busy to make them back up where they belong. In no time the row of autos back of the offender would make such a thing impossible. Anyhow, the party on the street walks around the auto, even if he does silently utter a curse.

American Driver First to Cross Kalmuck Steppe

Bandits and Camels Add Thrills to Pioneer Journey.

BY GEORGE SELDES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

MOSCOW.—[Special Correspondence.]—Twice held up by bandits, one a political gang, the other just plain robbers, John A. Foy of New York and Washington has taken an American flivver through the great Kalmuck sand steppes of southern Russia, a land hitherto untouched by an auto tire, and has returned with the majority of the parts of his car intact.

Foy is chief inspector of the Tzaritzin district of the Hoover reliefers. It was important for him to explore the Kalmuck steppes to learn the famine situation there. Of course there were no trains, only an occasional camel pilgrimage, the only safe mode of transport through the sand and salt marshes—safe, that is, is accompanied by enough rifles and bullets for the certain bandit bands. Foy, despite a ten to one bet it couldn't be done, started out by auto.

The 600 mile trip to Astrakhan took six days. The first band of bandits encountered were so-called political or "white" bandits as opposed to the red regime, and when Foy explained he was in the service of the American relief organization they took off their fur caps and lent him some material to repair his engine.

Foy had mounted a wooden imitation of a machine gun on the hood of his flivver, but when he ran into the second lot of bandits, the plain robber variety, they were not intimidated because they never had seen a machine gun and knew not its possibilities. Foy realized this and put his foot on the gas.

During the journey the front spring was broken and the main bearings disappeared. Foy made some from a lead pipe found in a desterted house. When the rear tires gave out he filled them with sand and did 200 miles on them. The clutchband broke, but he replaced it with a marine belt. When the grease gave out he did the last miles with lard in the engine. An interesting experience was being towed from salt marshes by camels.

Highway Footpaths

Good roads enthusiasts will present to the next session of the New Jersey legislature a bill providing for the construction of footpaths along the state highways. New Jersey has hundreds of miles of beautiful tree lined roads, and the state highway commission is favorable to the footpath idea, believing that the paths will keep pedestrians off the roadway and thereby greatly reduce highway accidents. An attempt will be made, with the support of the highway commission, to amend the state highway act with the following provision: "Proper footpaths for the use of pedestrians may be constructed on such portions of any state highway where, in the opinion of the state highway commission, such construction is necessary or advis-

Order State License Early.

Illinois motorists who desire to retain their present state license number in 1923 must apply for both license and reassignment before Dec. 11, according to announcement made yesterday by Secretary of State Louis L. Emmerson. The auto department in Springfield has received orders to hold no numbers after that date and has requested that the regular license application be accompanied by a letter asking for the number desired.

The department began mailing out blanks last week. A supply of license blanks will be distributed by The Tribune loop editorial office and at The Tribune plant, 431 North Michigan avenue, beginning Wednesday, Nov. 22.

Evanston Motor Show Opens to Record Crowds

EVANSTON motor fans canceled all engagements last night and turned out en mass for the third annual automobile salon, which opened in the Hebbelthwaite building, 1622 Chicago avenue.

The show, which ncludes exhibits of a score of leading American made cars and the cream of foreign models, will continue through the week, and promises to be the most successful event of its kind ever held on the north shore.

Tasty decorations and musical programs are features of the annual exhibit, which this year is conducted under the management of Harold A. Schuler, veteran auto show manager.

Both Evanston and Chicago distributors are represented by exhibits, which include the latest models offered by Locomobile, Duesenberg, Peerless, Lexington, Gardner, Haynes, Fox, Ford, Lincoln, Star, Packard, Velie, Stevens, Mercer, Davis, Mitchell, Earl, Willys, Jordan, Milburn, Detroit, Hupmobile, Studebaker, Nash, and Rolls Royce of American make. The Isotta Fraschini and Italia are features of the foreign vintage.

The Standard of Comparison

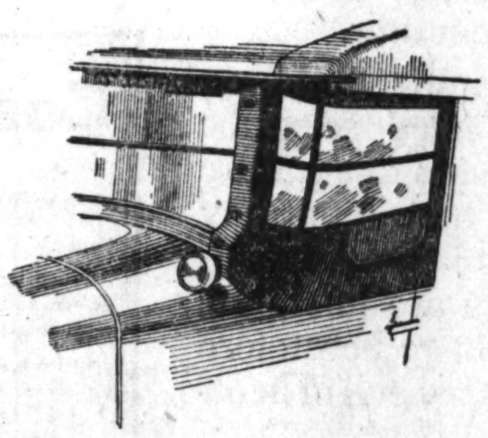
A Buick Roadster Satisfies

The "Six", $1175; the "Six-Sport", $1625; the "Four," $865

For those who want the intimacy of the roadster design, Buick provides a completely satisfying selection of models, in appearance as well as in price. Business men find the six-cylinder, two-passenger roadster well suited both to the work day trips and to social motoring.

Equally fine for these, and at the same time luxurious in its appointments and smart in its snappy lines and coloring is the six-cylinder sport roadster—the de-luxe model of its kind.

While a modest, dependable and convenient car is the four-cylinder roadster. And all are Buicks with all that Buick provides in power, dependability and flawless performance.



Perfect Fitting Storm Curtains

Buick open models are fitted with side curtains of new design, having weather-proof joints to prevent wind and rain from penetrating inside. Curtains fasten tightly around the windshield which is adjusted now from the inside. They are provided with additional lights to increase the range of vision. Curtains open with the doors and the driver has a signal pocket for his convenience.

The Buick Line for 1923 Comprises Fourteen Models:

Fours—2 Pass. Roadster, $865; 5 Pass. Touring, $885; 3 Pass. Coupe, $1175; 5 Pass. Sedan, $1395; 5 Pass. Touring Sedan, $1325. Sixes—2 Pass Roadster, $1175 5 Pass. Touring, $1195; 5 Pass. BUILT Right and KEPT Right

An International Motor Truck, when it is delivered into the hands of a new owner, goes DOUBLY equipped to give years of first-rate economical service. Its FIRST equipment for long life is plain, durable construction, based on sixteen years of truck building. The simple accessible engine, efficient internal gear drive, brakes, springs, etc., make for the lasting reserve power that has brought re-orders for Internationals by the thousands.

We could stop there and let trucks travel on their own merits. But it is part of International policy to deliver maximum value. We believe practical service is as valuable as the good truck itself. After building a good truck, we bend our efforts to keep it good. That is the SECOND provision for long life. Note these details:

In addition to an unusual, unequaled, prompt repair service, we maintain a corps of competent road engineers, whose sole duty is to inspect all Internationals at regular intervals. Drivers are instructed in the care of their trucks, minor adjustments are made, and written reports sent to the owners giving the exact condition of each truck at time of inspection. This inspection service is free.

One or more International Motor Trucks, built and priced for low-cost hauling, will solve the transportation problems of any individual or firm. The line ranges from the 2000-lb. Speed Truck for rapid delivery work [chassis $1250 f. o. b. factory] to the 10,000-lb. heavy-duty truck. Bodies for all purposes. Visit the address below at any time or telephone for appointment.

The pioneer of oil-gas home heating whose first experiments, seventeen years ago, have led to the discovery of a new kind of heat now in use in hundreds of thousands of homes

A New Kind of Heat that Solved the Nation's Fuel Problem

By B. M. OLIVER

SEVENTEEN years ago I became fully convinced that old-fashioned methods of heating were due for the discard. Sooner or later the drudgery, the dirt, the inconvenience of coal and wood heating would give place to a modern method. I knew that there was some way successfully to utilize distillate and kerosene and that the perfection of an oil-burning device was bound to bring a revolution in home heating methods.

A nation that grasped the possibilities of automobiles so quickly that horses soon disappeared from our city streets, that installed telephones in ninety out of a hundred homes and practically all business houses, would never, I felt sure, continue to be satisfied with heating methods that took such a heavy toll in health and energy.

How This Problem Was Met

But heating is a scientific problem for engineers to work out. My first experiments, seventeen years ago, were carried on with the help of the best engineers obtainable. In less than one year after the experiments began the first Oliver Oil-Gas Burner was made. It was a crude affair—it lacked finish. But it burned kerosene and gave off an astonishing amount of heat. The next Oliver Burner was better; and the one that succeeded it was still better. At the end of 1920 over 100,000 Oliver Oil-Gas Burners were in successful use.

This Fall, when the fuel crisis struck us and the nation in dismay turned to a new kind of heat, the Oliver Oil-Gas Burner was ready. Not only was it a perfected equipment but behind the Burner itself was a strong organization with manufacturing facilities that could quickly be extended to meet the unprecedented demand. It wasn't an accident that a national fuel problem was successfully met.

It was the seventeen years of pioneering. It was the seventeen years of scientific experimentation—the unstinted work of a group of men over a period of years which made it possible for these thousands of homes to have heat this winter that otherwise would have gone half-heated.

The New Way in Home Heating

These thousands of homes have found the new kind of heat so much better that to them this national fuel crisis has been a blessing in disguise. Never again will they go back to the uncertainties and the annoyance of coal heated homes. They would no more think of going back to coal than they would of junking their automobiles or tearing their telephones from the wall. The habits of a nation have been changed

Fuel oil heating is here to stay. Coal heating for homes with its back-breaking labor and drudgery will soon go the way of the tallow candle and the spinning wheel.

With every assurance of a completely satisfactory product, a financially sound and strong business organization the Oliver Oil-Gas Burner Co. faces the future. The unprecedented expansion of this Fall is but a small prophecy of the coming demands. Every family who has had a test of this new way of heating will mean one hundred additional homes that will want to enjoy the same comforts.

An Ever-Present Need

Our greatest task has been to find men for our organization; men who view the crisis as we have viewed it; to work night and day to help us supply the demand. Men of big vision who sensed in this movement one of the greatest commercial developments of our age. Where we have found such men their reward has been great. Through their efforts whole communities have become better heated than they ever were before,

We need more such men. We want men of this calibre to come to St. Louis and see what we have done there; to visit our manufacturing plant; to see our Engineering Department; to get the feel of this great movement that has released the nation from the drudgery of unsatisfactory, old-fashioned heating methods.

An Interesting Booklet

There are many types of Oliver Oil-Gas Burners. There are types designed particularly for cooking stoves, for heating stoves, for base burners, for furnaces both large and small. An interesting booklet has been prepared which explains about this new kind of heat, tells about the years of pioneering and the development that successfully met the coal crisis. It will be sent for the asking. For those who have immediate heating problems we suggest that you write us fully about the kind of equipment you now have in your home. In many localities we have heating experts rendering personal service. If there isn't a representative in your immediate vicinity our factory service department will write you just the equipment you need, will ship it directly from the factory and see that it is properly installed.

The Oliver Oil-Gas Burner is produced in tremendous quantities. Manufacturing has been worked out to the last degree of efficiency. This means a price on the Oliver Oil-Gas Burner within the reach of everybody.

There is now really no good reason why any home in America should be improperly heated or should go through the winter without the benefits that accrue from the New Kind of Heat that solved the nation's fuel problem. No matter which method you now use for heating or cooking, let us send you this interesting booklet about the "New Kind of Heat." Just a post card or letter will bring you a copy.

FARM AND GARDEN

Annual Stock Show Rousing City to Its Debt to Farm

By Frank Ridgway.

AGRICULTURE, the mine where practically all the city digs its ore, is to exhibit train loads of its products in Chicago for the twenty-third time. Thousands of Chicagoans have been awakened to the true meaning of this great annual agrarian review, the International Live Stock exposition, opening Dec. 2 here. But others are apparently asleep and do not know how dependent they are upon the farmer and his advancement.

Chicagoans boastfully tell of having the busiest corner in the world, but few stop to think that big cows and hogs and horses and sheep are the real forces back of the traffic jams at State and Madison streets. Without the great agricultural development in the middle west there would be no need for traffic cops and whistles, skyscrapers would not be here, and bars would have never been pinned on the shoulders of our industrial captains.

Tracing Business Growth.

Within the last year or two some of Chicago's progressive business men who are at the head of many of the city's gigantic industrial institutions followed the red line back through history and found it originated in the farming fields over the rich agricultural section of the middle west. They know what farming has meant to them in the past; they know what a prosperous agriculture will mean to them in the future, and with reverence they stand uncovered when the producers of the United States and Candaa pass in review at the International.

Probably no man in Chicago has a better understanding or a clearer interpretation of what agriculture, revealed through the International, means to city people than Alvin H. Sanders, vice president of the International Live Stock exposition. As editor of the Breeder's Gazette and author of many books, including "At the Sign of the Stock Yard Inn," "History of Shorthorn Cattle," and "The Story of the Herefords," he has been called "the psalmist of husbandry." For a half century he has seen midwest agriculture and Chicago grow up together like twins.

Supreme Demonstration of Year.

"I wonder how many of the business men of this city have any adequate understanding of what the International Live Stock exposition really means to Chicago and the central west," Mr. Sanders mused as he sat the other day in his office on the eleventh floor of the Pontiac building, looking through an east window across the busy loop district.

"To begin with," he hesitated, and turned in his chair, looking out of a south window in the direction of the stockyards and across the great corn belt, "let me say that the International is not, as many imagine, just a stockyard enterprise, organized to promote the interests of Packingtown. I know, because I had the honor of presiding at the first conference of producers ever held, now more than twenty years ago, to devise ways and means of establishing this great exhibition in Chicago. It is the supreme demonstration of the year of progress in the animal breeding world, and it is high time that Chicago woke up to the fact, now finding splendid verification, that a prosperous midwest animal husbandry constitutes the foundation of this great city's material welfare."

ALVIN H. SANDERS.

He is vice president of the International Live Stock exposition, editor of the Breeder's Gazette, and was recently decorated by the French government with the cross of Officer du Merite Agricole. Agriculture, he says, is "the real power behind city's growth."

Capital of Cornland.

Turning back to take another survey of the loop, he went on: "Chicago is the financial anl industrial capital of cornland. Corn, the Indian corn which has been the poetic theme of Whitcomb Riley and John McCutcheon, is the greatest single soil product of the upper Mississippi valley states. 'The corn, the golden corn, within whose yellow heart there is of health and strength for all the nations!' Such was Oglesby's famed apostrophe.

"It is not corn that comes to market as such, but corn sent forward from the myriad farms of the great central valleys on the hoof that tells the tale. Corn converted by the herds and flocks of a thrifty pastoral husbandry into roast beef and steaks, into hams, lard, and bacon, into leg of lamb and toothsome chops. Corn, not wheat, is the corner stone of Chicago's greatness. The stockyards, not the Board of Trade, is our real financial heart.

"Corn, cattle, hogs, and sheep—not wheat—have made the territory tributary to Chicago the wealthiest agricultural region in all this world," said Mr. Sanders. "Stock farming, therefore, has created the buying power that made La Salle and State streets and THE TRIBUNE itself possible. The International Live Stock exposition is the annual flowering of that industry. Nowhere else can there be seen such overwhelming presentations of the wonderful achievements of those whose lives are devoted to the production of the flesh and blood machines that coin this western country's mountains of yellow corn into yellow gold for us and into food for all the nations."

Breeding Backed by Wisdom.

As dean of American live stock journalists Mr. Sanders knows full well the ideals back of the stock men who have built the strong foundation for the future husbandry of this country. And today at 62 his keen understanding of the meaning of good live stock breeding is backed by wisdom and knowledge of the romance of the cattle and horses of yesterday.

"Animal breeding is not, as some may think, just a rich man's fad," he said. "No farmer is rich enough to afford to keep poor, unimproved domestic animals. They are expensive boarders, consuming much but returning little. That is why the farmer comes to the International show to study the types that promise most for practical results in feeding crops out upon the land where grown.

"Drive down the highways of these midwest states and note the varying character of the land, fences, buildings, and equipment generally. You can tell every time where animal husbandry exists and where the fatal soil robbing, grain selling process is going on.

Well Worth Citizens' Visit.

"The stock farmer is growing richer, ever richer, year by year. The grain farmer is a miner, pure and simple, taking a lot off with every crop and giving no plant food back. Is it any wonder he is poor?

"No system of farming can be permanently prosperous that ignores the value of the golden hoof. Is Chicago interested in an opulent agriculture? I will say she is, and that her citizens owe it to themselves to visit and study this year's International exhibition as revealing the greatest single sustaining force behind the city's industries, the real power behind the city's growth."

Latest Methods for Gardeners at Convention

The Horticultural Society of Northern Illinois will hold its Fifty-fifth annual convention at Sterling, Ill., next Tuesday and Wednesday.

A fruit and vegetable exhibit will be held in connection with the meeting Premiums are offered in classes for apples, pears, plums, quinces, canned fruits, and a dozen or more different kinds of vegetables.

According to L. R. Bryant, Priceton, president of the organization, the meeting is free for all and will be interesting and instructive, especially to fruit and vegetable gardeners. The most successful and latest methods and developments in growing and handling fruits, vegetables, and flowers will be discussed.

New Farm Bulletins Ready.

There are dozens of good bulletins and circulars now coming off the press at Washington that every farmer should have in his library. These are sent free by the United States department of agriculture. Here are some good ones containing information that will be of vital importance to farmers during the next few months: Farmers' bulletin 477, sorghum sirup manufacture; 682, sample trap nest for poultry: 702, rabbits in relation to trees and crops; 828, farm resevoirs; 847, potato storage and storage houses; 970, sweet potato storage; 1100, coöperative marketing, woodland products; 1114, common poultry diseases; 1116, selection and care of poultry breeding stock; 1288, game laws for 1922; 1293, laws relating to fur animals, 1922. Department circular 148, farm woman's problem; 149, coöperative cane sirup canning; producing sirup of uniform quality.

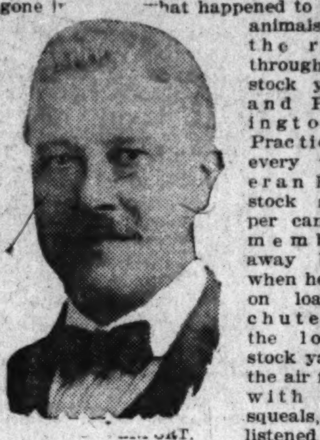
Dairymen's Jottings

In butter making on the farm it is a common fault to overwork it. Too much working gives the butter a salvy, sticky body. Overworked butter is dull and greasy in appearance.

Dollars slip through the cream separator in winter if the cream screw is not watched and adjusted properly.

Solving Riddle of Packingtown for the Farmer

CENTRAL live stock markets have always been as mysterious to the average farmer as ouija boards, especially to those who have never climbed into the caboose and gone [illegible]hat happened to their animals on the road through the stock yards and Packingtown. Practically every veteran live stock shipper can remember away back when he sat on loading chutes at the local stock yards, the air filled with pig squeals, and listened to the shrieking out of town whistle of the locomotive hauling the stock train that left him wondering what happens to hogs after they reach centralized markets.



[illegible]ORT.

When Arthur C. Davenport wrote his recent book, "The American Live Stock Market," he evidently had not forgotten the times he listened to squealing pigs in the stock train and wondered where they went. With a keen appreciation of what the producer of live stock would like to know, he has answered in this book almost every question concerning the functioning of a central live stock market.

Knows Both Sides.

Mr. Davenport, who is manager of the Drovers' Journal, Chicago, has lived on both sides of the fence. As a farmer boy he raised live stock and shipped it to market; later as a market reporter and editor he had a chance to study every cog and wheel of the big central live stock marketing machine. With this intimate understanding of the market he has written a book that will be of extreme value to producers of meat animals and to students of marketing and animal husbandry.

"Reading his book is like having an old timer in the stockyards take you by the hand and lead you through all the crooks and turns, stopping along the way to explain the complications of Packingtown," said a stock raiser the other day. "I've been bringing live stock to Chicago for years and thought I knew most of the ins and outs of the Union Stock yards, but by reading this book I have learned interesting things I would have never known about the marketing game."

Information is Practical.

From his intimate knowledge of this titanic industry the author has painted a picture that shows every step in the handling, grading and selling of livestock, typical of any centralized market in the country. The information may be put to practical use by the farmer who is growing and fattening cattle, hogs and sheep.

Eight pages are devoted to an explanation of the language of the market. It is a book that will fill a great need among producers who are today taking a great interest in what happens to their products beyond the local loading station.

GARDEN NOTES

As the leaves, lawn clippings, vegetable leaves, and stalks are raked up and thrown into piles to be composted during the winter, scatter in a shovelful or two of lime. Lime is often needed in gardens more than fertilizer materials, and this is one of the easiest ways of applying it. Ground limestone may be bought at a low price at building material yards.

Popcorn should be gathered and stored where it will dry. If harvested this early it will have time to dry and be ready for use by Christmas. The popping depends upon the amount of moisture in the kernels. If the kernels are too dry they will not pop, but if put outdoors in a shady place for a while they will absorb moisture from the air.

Illinois had a bumper crop of white potatoes this year. It is estimated that the state's potato bin will be heaped with 8,870,000 bushels this winter, compared with only 6,413,000 last year.

Judge a Truck By Its Maker

EVERY phase of the value and service you may expect or need in a motor truck is determined by the following attributes of its maker:

1. Stability	4. Policies
2. Financial Strength	5. Scope
3. Experience	6. Performance

Knowing these facts you will know the manufacturer. Know the manufacturer and you will know the truck.

INDIANA'S QUALIFICATIONS

1. STABILITY: A strong, old-established company, founded in 1898. Nearly a quarter-century of steady, solid, substantial growth.
2. FINANCIAL STRENGTH: Ample capital and strong resources, assuring the advantageous buying which makes INDIANA values possible.
3. EXPERIENCE: Twenty-four years of successful manufacturing, of which twelve years have been exclusively devoted to the manufacture of high-grade motor trucks.
4. POLICIES: A fixed determination to build nothing but the best, to put value and service ahead of all else, and to give the utmost for the money.
5. SCOPE: A nation-wide institution in manufacturing, sales and service: eleven stragetically located factory parts-depots covering the entire country, and hundreds of distributor and dealer parts-stocks available in as many cities.
6. PERFORMANCE: Thousands of Indiana Trucks in service in almost every country—many of them in daily operation 10 years and longer, and many that have gone a hundred thousand miles and more.

Thus the makers of INDIANA Trucks merit your confidence in them and their product.

New STUTZ Speedway Four

FOSTERING all those rare traditions for which the original and genuine Stutz is famed, the new series Stutz Speedway Four makes a triumphant entrance into the field of finer motor cars.

To that wealth of speed, power and stamina, which has been the heritage of every Stutz, now are added new qualities of comfort and refinement which make riding and driving free of even the slightest effort or strain.

A constant challenge to all who seek, by more complicated construction, to equal its pliant, tremorless, silent delivery of tremendous power, the Stutz Speedway Four stands glorified as a champion of champions—the sportsman's outstanding preference among motor cars.

DORT SIX

The Greatest Forward Step in Motor Lubrication

The wonderfully developed oiling system of the new Dort Six motor, which operates under a pressure ranging from zero to forty pounds, gives assurance that every bearing rides on a film of oil at all times. Even rocker arms are supplied with oil under pressure.

Result: Smooth, quiet operation always; no scoring of bearing surfaces; no clicking, chattering valves; a more even temperature throughout the various parts; over-heating prevented by overcoming all friction; much longer life for every vital part of the motor.

See the special display of this oiling system at our showrooms

These Thermalene Gas Advantages Mean Time and Money Saved and Better Work For You

THERMALENE GAS will cost you less to produce and one-third less oxygen is consumed in cutting and welding.

THERMALENE GAS is always uniform, therefore a neutral or slightly reducing flame is obtainable at all times.

The capacity of the THERMALENE Producer is unlimited as to volume.

The THERMALENE GAS Producer can be easily mounted on a truck and made portable.

No faulty welds due to impure and moist gas.

No waste of time due to insufficient supply of gas needed to complete work on hand.

No unnecessary waste of gas, as the gas remains in the THERMALENE Producer until the cartridge is used whether in one day or six months.

THERMALENE GAS is most practical and most economical for you to use. Send for further facts!

BIG FIGHT LOOMS IF 3 HILL ROADS ARE SEPARATED

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—A fight probably will develop between the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific for control of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy if the interstate commerce commission holds the Hill system should be split up, according to testimony today before the commission in the railroad consolidation hearing.

Though representatives of the three Hill roads strongly urged continuation of the present arrangement. Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern, said that if the railroads could not be kept together the Great Northern should not be separated from the Burlington.

Howard Elliott, chairman of the Northern Pacific, urged that the Burlington and the Northern Pacific be kept together—if the present arrangement were upset.

"My own views," Mr. Elliott said, "after having been closely associated with the Burlington and Northern Pacific since 1880, after living west of the Mississippi for thirty-three years, and having a pretty good knowledge of the western country, and of its railroad development, are:

"That it would be a mistake from the public's standpoint to separate the C., B. & Q., the N. P., and the G. N. systems.

"That permission should be given by the commission to still further unify the three roads, to permit the maximum development of the properties and the greatest service to the public.

"That separation of the three roads would not 'maintain' long established, much used 'existing channels of trade and commerce,' would do harm to many engaged in business of all kinds who have established their business based on the present railroad arrangements, and would retard the growth of the country served."

Where You Can Forget Coal

Away from the snow and cold and biting winds. Let the family bask in the sunny outdoors of the semi-tropics. Let them know what it is to eat real, ripe oranges and grapefruit right off the trees—in a clime where flowers scatter color over the green landscape.

A change that means comfort for the old folks—new interests and better health. Social delights. Sports galore for the young people.

Motor rambles through picturesque country. Boat trips on jungle-lined streams like explorations through the wilds. Bathing. Thrilling fishing in the Gulf, the many lakes and rivers. Hunting and sailing. Wonderful golf.

The kind of hotel, inn, furnished bungalow, apartment or boarding house that you want. And figure on the coal bills you save by this trip.

DRY GOODS AND GARMENT NEWS

[Copyright: 1922: Fairchild News Service.]

BERLIN.—A number of German textile mills are offering to do work on a wage basis for the more fortunate mills which are unable to keep within delivery limits. Some few contracts have been made with foreign mills to manufacture textiles on the same basis.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—A strike in the local cloak and suit trade is imminent, according to union officials. Most of the organized workers have left their jobs, they say.

BERLIN.—The Karstadt Department Store company of Hamburg has organized a stock company, capitalized at 100,000,000 marks. The purpose is to use the capital to finance factories and various branches of the company.

NEW YORK.—Black, relieved by color, is reported by wholesale dress market to be very popular. The color emphasis in some cases is developed entirely in sleeves and inserted panels at the side from shoulder to hem.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—The passing of the semi-soft collar and return to popularity of the old type soft collar is predicted by a buyer for one of the leading local stores. Semi-soft collars have a tendency to turn yellow, he says, and American consumers demand a change.

NEW YORK.—Ratine made from noils and selling for about 75c a yard is a popular number in the wholesale broad silk market. This fabric comes with plaids and prints, as well as plain.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—Retailers here report that New York importers are offering German wool and silk and wool hosiery at sharp reductions. The supposition is that these importers are heavily overbought.

BELFAST.—Linen handkerchiefs are now selling freely in this market, in both plain and colored border. Embroidered goods for the Christmas trade are also in conspicuous demand.

NEW YORK.—Despite the tendency to use woolen materials, cottons and silks continue to be the main fabrics for blouses.

NEW YORK.—Of umbrellas, which take on added importance as Christmas draws near, the club types appear to be still in favor. Carved amber handles are most popular, while brown seems to have eclipsed all other colors.

BERLIN.—American buyers are losing many favorable opportunities to make advantageous purchases by rushing their trips abroad, according to D. F. Kelly, general manager of Mandel Brothers, Chicago.

NEW YORK.—Gratifying response is reported by the wholesale corset trade to specially priced numbers for the Christmas gift trade. The bulk of holiday business is expected in brassieres.

J. F. Dailey of The Fair Going to Omaha Store

J. F. Dailey, senior merchandise manager of the Fair, will leave that institution the first of the year to become senior vice president and general manager of the Burgess-Nash company of Omaha. Recently several executives of the Fair have been selected for important positions in other cities. A. J. Jennings became vice president of the J. N. Adams company of Buffalo and J. J. Buell became vice president of the James McCreery company of New York.

Mr. Dailey rose in the employment of the Fair from stock clerk to his present position.

Wagner Electric Co. Plan of Reorganization Halted

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 18.—Suit for an injunction to prevent the reorganization of the Wagner Electric company under the laws of Delaware and asking that the officers be removed and a receiver be named was filed today by owners of 1,600 shares of preferred stock. The petitioners alleged the preferred stock of the company would be rendered valueless by the reorganization at this time.

A temporary restraining order, returnable Dec. 8, was granted. Waldo A. Layman, president of the company, said a meeting had been called for Dec. 29 to vote on a plan to reduce the capital stock and to have the stockholders ratify the reorganization. The company has outstanding $1,500,000 of preferred stock and 80,000 shares of common stock of no par value.

RAILROAD NOTES

Officials of railroads east from Chicago report no letup in the demand for cars. The grain shippers, coal dealers, and manufacturers and wholesalers in practically every line are in need of equipment. General merchandise is swelling the total tonnage to a great extent. In the south similar conditions prevail as a rule. Coal movement continues heavy. There is a fair run of grain to the gulf ports, cotton is being offered in fairly liberal volume, and the steel and pig iron tonnage is heavy. Officials of southern lines express satisfaction with the outlook.

The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway company has placed orders with the American Steel Foundries for 500 coal cars, for 500 box cars with the Western Steel Car and Foundry company, for fifty suburban coaches with the Standard Steel Car company, and for forty locomotives with the American Locomotive works.

The Southern Railway company applied to the interstate commerce commission for authority to issue $5,000,000 in 4 per cent general mortgage bonds. The securities will represent expenditures made by the company in additions and betterments.

The Canadian Pacific railway announced that its coach shops throughout Canada, which were closed a few weeks ago, would resume operations tomorrow. Three thousand men are affected.

STOCK DIVIDEND OF 100% BY OHIO STANDARD OIL CO.

The Standard Oil Company of Ohio yesterday declared a stock dividend of 100 per cent on common, payable Dec. 12 to stock of record Nov. 27. Holders of fractional shares of stock will participate in this dividend in the same proportion as holders of the full shares. Warrants will be mailed Dec. 12, or as soon thereafter as possible.

No special meeting of stockholders is necessary to authorize additional stock, as the company has already $14,000,000 common stock authorized, of which $7,000,000 has been issued. The remaining $7,000,000 authorized but unissued will pay the stock dividend just declared.

The stock representing this 100 per cent stock dividend will not participate in the cash dividend heretofore declared, payable Jan. 1 to stock of record Nov. 24. No dividend rate will be determined on this new stock prior to or until after the first quarter of 1923, and the amount determined at that time will be dependent on general business conditions and outlook then obtaining.

The Casey-Hedges company declared a stock dividend of 20 per cent. This action follows the recent vote by stockholders approving an increase of the common stock from $450,000 to $600,000.

Truck users buy Stewart after Stewart. Some operate fleets of 20, 30 or 50. In most cases they started with one. They say more for Stewart worth than all else. For instance the Eastern Massachusetts Ry. Co. now operate 53 Stewarts.
Stewarts cost $200 to $800 less. Many, built 10 years ago, are still rendering good, economical service. These are some reasons for Stewart's great popularity.

Grain Growers Turndown by Board Is Explained

Reasons for denying the application of E. H. Cunningham for membership in the Chicago Board of Trade were explained yesterday. The United States Grain Growers' Sales company, which Mr. Cunningham represents, has an authorized capital of $250,000, of which $50,000 has been issued. The rules of the Chicago Board of Trade require a substantial holding of any member of a corporation before he can be admitted to membership. It is said that Mr. Cunningham's holdings are small and that the United States Grain Growers' Sales company was buying the membership, while the rules require memberships to be purchased individually.

The Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce has admitted T. H. Hagen, manager of the United States Grain Growers' Sales company, to membership. Fred L. Jeklin, general manager of the Northwest Wheat Growers' association, also has been admitted. Rules at Minneapolis are said to be different from those at Chicago.

CORPORATION EARNINGS

NATIONAL TEA.

Gross sales for the nine months ended Sept. 30 were $14,698,469, against $11,589,647 in the corresponding period last year.

LEE RUBBER AND TIRE.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1922, net earnings were $278,351 after reserves for taxes and contingencies.

BUTTE AND SUPERIOR MINING.

The company reports for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1922, surplus of $108,821 after expenses and depreciation, but before depletion, compared with a deficit of $66,845 for the previous quarter and a deficit of $184,550 for the quarter ended March 31, 1922.

U. S. Commission Acts on Roumanian Debt Tomorrow

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—The American debt commission will meet on Monday to receive the proposals of the Roumanian financial mission for funding Roumania's $41,000,000 war debt to his country.

Preliminary negotiations with the Roumanian mission, treasury officials said today have been completed and all of the data covering the political and financial situation in Roumania is in the hands of the commission for study. So for the Roumanian representatives have given no indication of what funding arrangement they may suggest, but the impression at the treasury is that they will ask for a deferment of interest payments for several years.

Freezing weather didn't delay work on these big structures!
Builders and owners need never hesitate to start or continue concrete construction in cold weather.
The structures shown herewith, built with Marquette Cement, are representative of many which have been erected successfully while the thermometer hovered around zero.
Contractors will tell you that the additional cost incurred by the precautions used in placing concrete during winter freeze-ups is frequently offset by the increased efficiency of the labor available and by bottom prices on materials.
Then, too, the three or four months earlier occupancy gained by continuous, year round construction means a quicker and larger return on the money invested.
Schools, residences, apartments, hotels and office buildings are still urgently needed. There is no need of waiting until spring. Carry on with building now!

7% Buy Beak Bonds
On Buildings "Completed and Occupied"
Beak Plan Bonds, secured by first mortgages on land and buildings completed and occupied, are favored by investors who demand the highest degree of safety because:—
(1) The value of the security can be accurately appraised.
(2) Buildings built usually at lower than the present construction cost.
(3) The income can be accurately estimated.
(4) The buildings are satisfactorily rented, thus assuring steady income.
The fact that the buildings which are security for Beak Plan Bonds are usually rented and managed by our organization gives additional protection to the bondholder through efficiency in management.
We are now offering two new issues yielding 7% which are unusually attractive. Send for illustrated circular T 19.

GRAINS GO HIGH, BUT EVENING UP REDUCES GAINS

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

All deliveries of wheat, nearby futures of oats and May oats advanced to a new high for the season yesterday as the result of general buying induced by pronounced strength in Winnipeg, but the best figures were not maintained, due to week end evening up and profit taking, and at the last wheat was ⅝@⅝c higher, corn unchanged to ⅜c lower, oats unchanged to ¼c lower and rye ½@¾c higher. Lard was unchanged to 2½c higher and ribs unchanged.

With the exception of December rye, all deliveries of grain moved up into new ground for the season the last week, and the reactions from the extreme top were not severe, although corn was inclined to lag a little, as compared with wheat, at the last. Sentiment became decidedly bullish and there was little opposition on the way up at times. At the last wheat showed 3⅞@5½c higher; corn, 1⅜@3⅛c up; oats, 1@2c higher, and rye, 6½ higher. Provisions developed a reactionary tendency, and lard closed 7½@15c lower and ribs off 2½c.

Reports that the importation of Canadian flour into the United States had been prohibited were found to be correct, but the treasury department order was a technical affair and was construed as of little importance by the grain trade. Shorts in Winnipeg wheat, especially in the November, are being punished.

Export Demand Fair.

Export demand was only fair, and reports from the southwest indicated an increased car supply. Millers bought May at Minneapolis, and a good flour demand was reported from that section. Spot premiums on red winter here were 1@2c lower.

Corn showed a rather heavy undertone from the start, with persistent commission house selling in evidence, which found support less aggressive, although the strength in wheat led to local buying. No letup in the western cash demand was reported from Omaha, with sales from Iowa at the highest prices of the season, but the eastern call continues slow, and a slight change in sentiment was noted. Cash premiums showed little change on spot.

Oats showed moderate strength early, but reacted with other grains later. Winnipeg advanced 1@1½c early, only to decline later. Cash demand is only fair.

A violent advance in rye in Winnipeg, with buying by houses with eastern connections, caused considerable activity and a higher range here. Longs sold on the bulge, and the finish was a good reaction from the top. Some export business was under way at the seaboard.

Provision Buying Lacks Snap.

Provisions held within narrow limits, with a light trade. Cash demand was reported as good, and Liverpool lard advanced 6d@1s, but there was no aggressive buying. Hogs were lower, and expectations are for liberal receipts. Packing of hogs at Chicago for the season to date aggregates 488,000, against 403,000 last year. Prices follow:

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

The order prohibiting imports of Canadian wheat and flour it is learned applies only to Canadian flour. Wheat can be imported under the new tariff bill and the duty paid. The trade was mixed over the situation and reports from Washington failed to make it real clear otherwise. Canadian wheat is relatively higher than American, while considerable feed and screenings are said to have been imported of late and sold at discounts of $5 to $6 per ton. Millers and grain men here say the ruling evidently applied to this, as under the anti-dumping law imports can be excluded when they sell at lower prices than the home grown product. Treasury officials at Washington didn't regard the ruling as important. It was said that there will be no difficulty on imports based on fair market value, and such imports can continue. The ban will be lifted as soon as suspicion is removed.

Heavy selling of all grains at the highest prices of the season for all except corn was enough to give a setback at the last. It did not shake the confidence of the leading holders from their grains or their belief that the reaction was no more than usually comes at week-ends after a bull week. Reactions are to be expected at any time, but a majority of operators regarded them as temporary.

Seaboard houses sold December wheat and bought May in fair volume and also sold considerable long rye on the advance to 92c for December. A big lot of December corn came out through a few of the large commission houses, who in turn bought the May. December was only ¼c premium at the close. Canada is the best buyer of cash corn at present, having taken around 100,000 bu in two days.

Government November crop report confirmed the belief of the grain trade that the extremely hot and dry weather earlier in the season had caused heavy losses in some sections of the country. G. Walter Beaven, with J. S. Bache & Co., called attention to the fact that the government estimated the amount of merchantable corn at 2,463,000,000 bu, or 232,000,000 bu less than last year, whereas the total crop was given at 2,896,000,000 bu, or only 196,000,000 bu less than last year, showing that allowance has been made for corn hogged down, or put into silos. Total supplies of merchantable corn, including carry over, are 2,651,000,000 bu, or 349,000,000 bu less than last year.

COTTON MARKETS

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—COTTON—Was strong and advanced 6 to 12 points early on buying by Wall street and southern mills but ran into realizing sales toward the last, which caused weakness and a sharp break, the close being at the bottom, with net losses of 8 to 20 points from the previous day's finish. There is no change in the supply and demand situation, the market having been overbought. Prices follow:

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

A moderate export business was put through in Manitoba wheat at the seaboard.

Chicago handlers sold 50,000 bu corn, 20,000 bu oats, and 25,000 bu rye to exporters and 60,000 bu wheat, 65,000 bu corn, 145,000 bu oats, and 20,000 bu barley to the domestic trade.

No. 2 red winter wheat at Chicago declined 1@2c as compared with December, selling at 1c over. Hard unchanged, with No. 2 at 1½@2c over. Receipts, 31 cars. Outside markets were unchanged to 2c higher.

Cash corn was in demand, with elevator interests taking the new and industries the old. No. 2 mixed sold at 1⅜c, yellow 2½@3c, and white 2c over December for the old at the last. Receipts, 135 cars. Outside markets were ½c higher to 2c lower.

Offerings of cash oats were fairly liberal. Basis easier, with No. 2 white 1¼@1½c over December and No. 3 white December to ¼c over. Receipts, 144 cars.

The Oldest House in Chicago
AT THE VERY CORNER where in 1887 H. O. Stone, the second, created the present organization of H. O. Stone & Co., the last wild bear was killed just before the arrival in 1835 of the pioneer, H. O. Stone, his famous father. While everybody knows that the story of this House runs back to the days when the Potawatami, the prairie wolf and the bear prowled about Chicago, you still may ask "Which is the oldest business house in Chicago?" Here is the answer:
2 Years Before C. D. Peacock, Pioneer Jeweler, Began Business in 1837—
2 Years Before The Sherman, the Oldest Existing Hotel, Opened in 1837—
3 Years Before Burley & Co., China and Glassware, Originated in 1838—
9 Years Before A. C. McClurg & Co. Started Their Book Shop in 1844—
12 Years Before C. H. McCormick Founded the Harvester Co. in 1847—
12 Years Before the First Copy of The Chicago Tribune Was Printed in 1847—
20 Years Before Mandel Brothers Opened Their Dry Goods Store in 1855—
21 Years Before Marshall Field & Company Was Instituted Here in 1856—
28 Years Before The First National Bank of Chicago Was Founded in 1863—
29 Years Before Lyon & Healy Established Their Music Store in 1864—
32 Years Before Carson Pirie Scott & Co. Came into Existence in 1867—
40 Years Before E. J. Lehmann Opened His Store, "The Fair," in 1875—
H. O. Stone in 1835 Laid the Foundation of H. O. STONE & CO.
SO WAY BACK WHEN these fine, old, reliable Chicago institutions—business leaders of today—were founded, the name of H. O. Stone already stood for preeminence in the field of real estate investments. The above facts are given in The Daily News Almanac and Year-Book. The first name on its list of "Old Chicago Business Houses" is that of H. O. STONE & CO.

Hog values weakened as the day advanced Saturday, with late transactions mostly 10@15c lower, and the general average, due to poorer quality, off 15c at $7.90, being within 15c of low day of the year. Armour houses were out of the trade entirely, owing to a fire and the fact that they had 7,000 on hand. Best selected butchers sold early at $8.20.

Last week's receipts of hogs at 218,800 were third largest since January of last year. Estimated average weight for the week at 231 lbs stood lightest in over ten months, against 224 lbs a year ago and 212 lbs for the ten year average.

With the largest cattle receipts in two years, the market naturally slumped late in the week, with the general average price of good beef steers 25c lower than the previous week, yet $2.75 higher than a year ago, when the average was lowest since 1915. A year ago last week the hog average was down to $6.75, also the lowest since 1915.

Lamb Supply Small.

The week's receipts at 81,300 were smallest since week ending Sept. 16, being considerably below arrivals corresponding periods in recent years. A large percentage of the lamb supply consisted of western feeding stock, which sold dull after the start of the week, while eastern demand upheld fat lamb values on most sessions. Top, barring previous week, equaled the highest since May, at $14.75, while aged sheep and yearlings also fluctuated on the highest levels since early in the year. All classes at the close ruled strong with a week ago.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 28,000 cattle, 52,000 hogs, and 24,000 sheep, against 32,869 cattle, 47,398 hogs, and 21,219 sheep a week ago, and 16,793 cattle, 42,181 hogs, and 16,000 sheep corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 75,000 cattle, 200,000 hogs, and 80,000 sheep, against 51,654 cattle, 144,924 hogs, and 59,985 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs for Monday range from 45,000 to 63,000. R. Ellis and William Olson marked 45,000; E. S. Waterbury, 47,000; George Brittain, 48,000; Edward Morris and George Chandler, 50,000; F. W. Waddell and F. R. Burrows, 52,000; W. H. Overman and J. M. Waters, 53,000; Lester Armour, 54,000; R. C. Griffith, 57,000, and E. R. Gentry, 63,000.

In round numbers the twenty leading markets received a combined total of 1,549,000 head of all kinds of live stock last week, or 120,000 more than the next largest week this year, which was in January. Of the 1,549,000 at the twenty markets, seven leading western points were credited with 1,019,000.

Protection of Blue Sky Law.

A good many people seem to be under the impression that, because a company has qualified under the blue sky law to sell its securities in Illinois, these securities must be a good investment. Such an impression is erroneous. Many securities which have been so qualified are speculations. In fact, the law requires the statement, "These securities are speculative," to be printed on the subscription blank offering class "D" securities for sale. While this statement is not required in connection with the sale of securities in class "C," many securities which have qualified in this class are, nevertheless, speculative. Neither the state of Illinois nor the secretary of state assumes any responsibility for any statement made in the papers filed by the company to qualify under this law. Such papers contain the sworn statement of the company's officers as to the company's condition and purpose, the securities to be sold, etc., and there are certain requirements to which such statements must conform. Th principal object of the blue sky law is to prevent fraud in the sale of securities and to provide penalties and punishment for violators of this law, but it in no way guarantees that the securities which have qualified under it are sound investments.

It is well to be wary of securities offered for sale in this state which have not complied with the requirements of this law, but one's caution should not stop there. The careful investor will investigate thoroughly and seek impartial advice on a prospective purchase even though it has qualified under this law.

Although any solicitor, agent, or broker of any corporation or its officers, directors, or trustees selling or offering any securities in class "D" without compliance with the provisions of the blue sky law is deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and, on conviction, is subject to punishment, including fine or imprisonment, or both, nevertheless a great many securities are being sold in violation of this law all the time. For those who have been so unfortunate as already to have purchased securities in violation of this law, which may have proved to be of little value, the law provides a remedy, and many who have known of this provision have recovered the purchase price of such securities. For the benefit of those who do not know of this provision we quote from the Illinois securities law, paragrapn 37, section 1, as follows:

"Every sale and contract of sale made in violation of any of the provisions of this act shall be void at the election of the purchaser, and the seller of the securities so sold, the officers and directors of the seller, and each and every solicitor, agent, or broker of or for such seller, who shall have knowingly performed any act or in any way furthered such sale, shall be jointly and severally liable, in an action at law or in equity, upon tender to the seller or in court of the securities sold, to the purchaser for the amount paid, the consideration given, or the value thereof, together with reasonable attorney's fees in any action brought for such recovery."

Six Types of Investors
Which Group Are You In?

NO matter in which group you find yourself there is now an investment plan that helps you to save, protects your savings, and pays as liberal a yield as is consistent with this safety—a yield ranging up to 7%.

There is but one fundamental upon which the safety of your investment depends—the integrity of your investment house. This requirement is well met by George M. Forman & Co., who from a 37 year association with sound investments with attractive yields, have prepared a plan for you. Mail the appended coupon for the booklet, "How to Select Safe Bonds."

The Experienced Investor

The man who, as trustee or executor of an estate, or as investment official for a corporation, or who is seeking sound investments for his own funds, desires a non-fluctuating, non-speculative investment with as high an interest rate as absolute safety will permit. If you are in this group let us tell you about an investment field in which your funds will yield a steady and attractive income, ranging as high as 7%.

The Man Who Spends All

To the man who finds it extremely difficult to save it is especially important that a way be found that not only encourages him to make saving a habit but also assures him of absolute safety. A plan awaits every man or woman in this group.

The Woman Alone

The woman deprived of a husband's protection often has her interest intrigued by questionable investments. The best protection for a woman, upon the safety of whose investments rests the welfare of herself and those dependent upon her, is a connection with a reputable investment banker.

The Speculative Buyer

The man easily enthused and often misled by the mirage of big, quick profits. Were he to figure his losses on poor investments against an occasional profit he would find that his net income amounted to less than the same investment would have brought in safe securities, such as he can now learn about through the plan of George M. Forman & Company.

The Father with Foresight

The man, ambitious for his son or daughter, thoughtful of his family's future and protection. George M. Forman & Company's plan safeguards the interests of family and children against any emergency.

The Savings Depositor

As funds accumulate many savings investors take advantage of the Forman Plan which pays an attractive yield without affecting the safety of their investment.

THE PLAN FOR YOU

A special service awaits you, regardless of which type of investor you may be. Tell us your investment problems and let us send you our interesting booklet. Write or call for your copy, or phone Central 6929.

Why Electric and Gas Securities Are Good Investments

THROUGHOUT the United States a remarkable increase is taking place in the number of investors in the public utilities. It is said that there are now not less than 1,600,000 holders of utility securities in this country. Some of the reasons are given below.

These industries supply light, heat and power far more efficiently and economically than such necessities can be obtained from any other source by people living in communities.

They produce and distribute at the lowest selling prices as monopolies in a given territory, and for this reason are free of direct competition.

Regulated by the State, honestly and conservatively conducted, their affairs are an open book to all concerned.

The concentration of production in large plants, standardization of manufacturing practice and the monopoly method of distribution enable them to reduce unit selling prices in normal times as the volume of output increases.

In no other industries has economy of production and distribution reached the degree of efficiency attained by large electric and gas systems.

The electric and gas industries can be operated only by the creation of huge physical properties, part and parcel of the communities served, fixed and imbedded in the land itself.

* * *

Demand for the services rendered has increased steadily for many years and, so far as can be foreseen, must continue to increase indefinitely.

Management of electric and gas properties necessarily must be in the hands of specialists. The majority of American utility executives have devoted their lives to the development and perfection of these industries.

* * *

The securities of electric and gas companies as a class, are eminently safe as to principal, thoroughly dependable as to return on the investment, and command ready marketability. The rate of return is liberal considering the high degree of stability.

Checking Up Your Bond Holdings

During a long period of steadily declining yield, to secure the maximum return, it is essential that you liquidate those bonds that reach their call price or go above it and replace with equally desirable securities with either a longer maturity or selling considerably under the call feature.

In a rapidly changing bond market particular attention should be paid to the market price of your securities. Under all circumstances a line of bonds should be checked over not less than four times a year.

We have prepared a special circular for distribution to investors of about 150 Bonds in three groups, viz—Bonds that have been called; Bonds that are selling at or above their call prices, and Bonds that are selling near their call prices.

The New York Times.

New York, Nov. 18.—[Special.]—A week of exceptional variation in prices and of rapid changes in the financial mood ended today with a stock market so inert and peaceful as to suggest the trading of a midsummer Saturday. Transactions were in fact the smallest since the August vacation period.

This return of calmness so soon after Tuesday's overwhelming decline, with Wall street's accompanying despair, and Wednesday's abrupt recovery, with the return of financial hopes, may possibly mark the program for the next few weeks. A period of dullness and hesitancy usually follows just such violent unsettlement, always supposing that the professional speculators have reduced their commitments to a safe margin and that no unexpected good or bad news upsets calculations.

Prices Decline During Week.

Comparison of today's closing prices with those of the preceding week-end shows a long list of pretty substantial net declines in spite of the recovery since Tuesday, many of them running to 3 or 5 points. This might mean that the "bear party" had not abandoned its position, but it is quite as likely to mean that a good many of the purchases made in the middle of the week were closed out by sales on the later recovery.

Taken as a whole, the bond market also makes poor comparison with a week ago. In Liberty bonds and securities of home companies the week's net losses are considerable. Foreign bonds are the exception, though even in these the full scope of recovery cannot be grasped except by making comparison with last week's low prices.

Foreign Bonds Show Strength.

Most of the European bonds rose again fractionally today, making the advance from Tuesday's low prices 4 and 5¼ points, respectively, in the two French government loans, 4 to 4¾ in other French public securities, 4 in the Belgian bonds, and 2 to 5 in various other European issues.

It was natural enough that, after the week's rapid recovery and with European markets doing little business, foreign exchange rates should have fallen back a fraction today. The reaction was not great, however, and the Paris cables reported a movement of sterling on that market to a rate more favorable to Paris than has been reached on any day this month.

New York Bank Reserves Fall.

Reserves of the New York clearing house banks in today's weekly statement are shown to be $19,642,600 below legal requirements. Net demand deposits decreased $1,330,000 and time deposits increased $1,016,000. Loans increased $6,577,000. Reserves of member banks in reserve banks decreased $55,499,000. CHICAGO CURB MARKET

The weekly review of F. M. Zeiler & Co. follows:

While other security markets have shown decided weakness, local unlisted securities were more inclined to become dull without special pressure on any particular group. Packard common continued popular in the motor securities, advancing to sales at 19⅝ and closing at the top. The preferred was in demand at 93 bid, 94½ asked, with the majority of trading at 94. The reactionary trend in Timken-Detroit caused that issue to lose a point, closing at 28⅜ bid 29 asked. Paige-Detroit at 21½ to 22½ was off a point. McCord common was quiet and unchanged at 4½ to 5. Ford of Canada was firm at 400 to 405.

In the industrial division prices continued spotty. Kellogg Toasted Corn Flakes made a new high, selling at 61; stock was later in demand at 60, with none offered for sale. Butler Brothers, after reacting to low sales at 36½, improved to 37 bid, offered at 37⅝. Kellogg Switchboard and Supply continued quiet at 58½ to 59½. The demand for Creamery Package continued, stock advancing another 2 points to 26½ bid, 27 asked. Burroughs Adding gave way another point at 135 bid, 138 asked. Fairbanks-Morse was quiet at 53 to 54½.

Public utilities were generally neglected with the exception of Federal Sign preferred, which after selling at 40 improved to a close of 42 bid, 43 asked.

A FACTORY, as we see it, is not merely a building with some suitable machinery in place.

It is some suitable machinery in a suitable place with a suitable building built around it.

This is a distinction which became clear to Frank D. Chase and his associates years ago.

They have been building ever since, a wide variety of Trading in Chicago stocks in the week-end session yesterday was largely confined to a few issues. Stewart-Warner led in activity and advanced 1⅛ in anticipation of the declaration of an extra cash dividend tomorrow and the company's excellent business. Piggly Wiggly declined nearly a point, being influenced by a receivership for a New York concern of similar name, although there is no connection between the two companies. On small sales Yellow Manufacturing, Diamond Match and Consumers lost a point each.

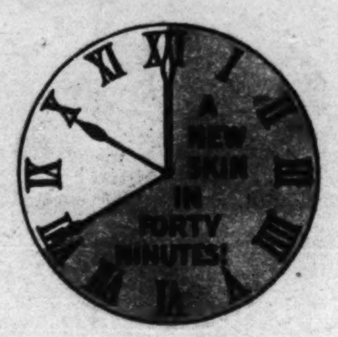
"MADAME TAKES HER DAILY CLAY BATH, IN HER EASY CHAIR, AND—



A NEW SKIN IN FORTY MINUTES!

—EVEN MADAME'S MAID MUST REMARK THE ASTONISHING RESULT!"

Do You Clay Your Face?

America's Loveliest Women Do!

By Martha Ryerson

WHEN I WENT abroad I little expected to uncover a secret that would bring any woman new beauty in a new way. Nor did I dream that the discovery would, in six months, have all America claying!

"I went away a slave to complexion cosmetics that all but filled a travel-case. I returned without them—and without the need for them. A wonderful clay peculiar to a certain section of sunny Wales removed every blemish my skin had known—in exactly forty minutes. I shall never forget the afternoon I first clayed. A maiden of the hills persuaded me to try it. I did so out of politeness, but the miracle performed left me fairly speechless. Impurities nothing had ever hidden were gone! Pores I had always powdered with such care were not to be seen! Color I had never hoped for, appeared—and stayed!

"One look, and father was an eager listener to the story. Together we returned to the tiny stream where Nature had deposited this marvelous clay. His knowledge of chemistry eventually made it possible to preserve its full beauty power and carry some back to America, where it brought the same remarkable results on every type of skin we tried. The story was printed, and father's laboratory soon resembled a post-office; letters asking for the English clay poured in from every state. Just one clay bath and the skin was always cleared—was it any wonder the clay bath was soon a fashionable furore? Four additional shipments were received and distributed, and still the letters of application piled up. Arrival of a fresh supply now bids fair to fill enough jars that all may have one who request it.

How to Clay

"I guess most women have tried a facial clay of some sort. Years ago I used a domestic clay that often had a good effect for an hour or two. But this natural English clay is a permeant that flushes out the whole skin structure and practically makes it over. Its application twice a week keeps complexions positively blooming. You may think you will wish to add an artificial touch to the result, but you will find there is nothing lacking and nothing to add.

"The whole secret is in the clay itself. Get this particular clay and your complexion troubles are over. Spread it on face and neck; slip into your easy chair; in forty minutes you wipe away every impurity that was buried in your skin, and your face looks and feels a dozen years younger!

"I trust it won't be long before every woman in the land knows that complexion ills melt away at a single application of this natural English clay. It is not just a fad, nor a vogue; claying is a hygienic habit that makes a new skin. No woman is without need of claying if past twenty—or will ever look her best until she does."

Two Months' Supply of the Genuine ENGLISH Complexion Clay

Only $1.87

Miss Ryerson's story is published at this time because a new importation of the English clay has arrived and makes it possible to resume general distribution. This is the largest quantity yet obtained and should allow one jar to everyone making prompt response to this offer.

For the present a full-sized jar containing two months' supply will be sent if you merely deposit the actual cost of getting the jar in your hands.

Do not send money, only the coupon below; the cost of $1.87 and postage can be paid the mailman on delivery. If results from just one application surprise and delight you, we will consider your deposit payment in full (only the first jar at this low price) otherwise you may have back every penny paid. This wide-open trial offer at actual cost through courtesy of William Ryerson, Head Chemist.

If handier to send money with application, $2 brings jar prepaid, with same money-back guarantee.

Je vous présente, chères dames d'Amérique, mes spécialités Djer-Kiss, elles sont l'oeuvre maîtresse de ma vie. Ayez, je vous prie, grâce à elles une toilette achevée. —Kerkoff, Paris

Translation: I present to you, my dear American ladies, my Djer-Kiss spécialités. They are the crowning achievement of my life. Attain through them, I beg of you, the toilette complete.

The Charm of France in la Toilette Complète

Would Madame achieve, in the toilette, that subtle harmony so decreed by fashion? Let her employ, then, these Djer-Kiss spécialités in their variety complete.

In the shop you like the best, you will find Djer-Kiss Parfum which always charms; Djer-Kiss Face Powder, pure, soft and adhérente; Talc Djer-Kiss, so fine, so French.

Djer-Kiss Sachet, a lingering refinement; refreshing Djer-Kiss Toilet Water; Djer-Kiss Vegetale, a milder lotion, Monsieur's favorite after shaving; Djer-Kiss Soap for the guest room. Djer-Kiss Compacts, both rouge and face powder in the fashionable shades; Djer-Kiss Creams, daily and nightly aids to complexion beauty; Djer-Kiss Lip Rouge, so natural, so delicately scented.

Where you see Djer-Kiss, there you see also the embodiment of French taste and Parisian daintiness.

YALE, 80,000; CHICAGO, 32,000. That was the football attendance score of the Yale-Army game at New Haven and the Princeton-Chicago game at Stagg field. There's a reason. The picture shows the great crowd which saw the Army eleven hold the Elis to a 7 to 7 tie in Yale bowl. That crowd would have been beaten here if it had been possible. But the estimated capacity of the stands and bleachers at Stagg field is only 31,000. About 1,000 more football fans were packed in for the Princeton game. About 100,000 other fans are still wailing because they couldn't get tickets at any price. What's the answer?

ITALY'S NEW STRONG MAN, Benito Mussolini, is a world war hero. He fought at Monte Nero and at Carso. In the latter engagement he was seriously wounded. His has been an exciting career. When 20 years old he escaped over the Swiss border in a foot race with Italian officers who held a warrant for his arrest. He was expelled from Switzerland and then from Trent in the old Austrian Tyrol for his radical utterances. In a paper he published later in Milan he fought for Italy's entrance into the great war on the allies' side. Thus he incurred the hatred of the Socialists, but his fight won him the leadership of the Fascisti, and eventually the premiership of Italy.

"First Aid for the Family"

For Sore Throat, Tonsilitis and the Daily Mouthwash and Gargle

SODIPHENE is not merely an antiseptic. It is also a soothing, healing germicide. It shows immediate results in the treatment of Sore Throat and Tonsillitis, and when used as a daily mouth wash and gargle proves an efficient safeguard against the many dangerous contagions which enter through the mouth and throat, also keeping the teeth and gums in a healthy condition.

Because Sodiphene is a healing germicide, it is effective for cuts, burns, bruises and infections. It quickly establishes its slogan as a real "first aid for the family."

Always smooth on Pond's Vanishing Cream before you go out. It protects your skin against wind and cold

Every normal skin needs two creams

One for protection—one for cleansing

No one cream can contain all the ingredients necessary to take perfect care of your skin.

You cannot have in a protective cream for day and evening use the oils you need for thorough cleansing. You cannot have in a cleansing cream the ingredients that while protective will be absorbed instantly and will hold the powder.

That is why two creams to meet these different needs were perfected at our laboratories after years of careful experiments.

The cream to protect the skin and hold the powder

Constant exposure to wind and cold will make an unprotected skin rough and coarse. Your skin is naturally moist but the wind and cold dry it out and a rough surface is the result.

You can prevent roughness and coarseness very easily by forming the daily habit of smoothing on Pond's Vanishing Cream before you go out.

This fragrant, greaseless cream was made for this purpose. Pat on just a little. It is absorbed instantly. You will feel refreshed and your skin will seem smooth and firm. Made of ingredients that are especially soothing, Pond's Vanishing Cream holds the natural moisture in the skin, and acts as an invisible shield against wind and cold.

As a base for powder, Pond's Vanishing Cream is perfect. It gives your skin a firm velvety surface, to which the powder clings for hours. You need never worry that your face will become shiny. The cream cannot reappear in a shine because it contains not a particle of oil.

A very different cream for a thorough cleansing

Your skin must be kept thoroughly clean or it will not look its best. It becomes dull looking. To remove the dust and fine particles of dirt that bore deep into the pores you need a good cold cream—ordinary washing will not do.

The cream that contains just the right amount of oil to penetrate the pores and remove every bit of dirt, yet not overload them is Pond's Cold Cream.

Every night, and always after a dusty trip, smooth this delicate oil cream on your face. Let it stay a minute, then wipe it off with a soft cloth. One look at the grime on the cloth will convince you how necessary such a cleansing is.

Smooth this cream on any little fine lines on your face. The oil will keep your skin supple and the little lines will not become deeper. This cream is so light and fine in texture that it requires only the very lightest touch in smoothing it on.

NUL
SHEFFIELD

"Nul's a life saver in an emergency. You can use it on a moment's notice because it dries so quickly. And it won't stain your dresses and it won't irritate your skin. I use it always."

You can use this deodorant whenever you want to. Just a little on the finger tips and rub in.

Folks who know say that Nul is the finest thing they've ever used for checking perspiration that causes discomfort and annoyance and that works havoc with dainty frocks. An occasional application destroys every trace of moisture and odor and leaves the underarms sweet, clean and dry.

Use Nul When You Want To

Best of all, you can use Nul whenever you need to. That's why it's such a blessing for emergencies and unexpected last minute invitations. If you're called upon to fill a social engagement that you hadn't planned on and realize that there is danger of offending on account of underarm perspiration, just use Nul 5 minutes before you're ready to go out. It dries quickly and leaves a fairy-like, gauzy film of dainty white powder which lasts for hours.

No Precautions——No After Treatments

There are no troublesome formulas to follow in using Nul—no annoying precautions need be taken in applying. No after treatments are necessary.

Simply apply Nul to underarms with your finger tips and allow it to dry. That is all. There is no cold cream to apply—no need of additional powder — no careful treating as a precaution against rash, infection or other injury to the skin. Nul is complete in itself—an unequaled perspiration odor and moisture preventive—a soothing cream—a dainty talc—all in one.

And remember—Nul can't spot or stain the daintiest fabrics. It leaves the most sensitive skin soft, smooth and white.

Where to Buy Nul

Nul is sold by all druggists and at toilet goods counters everywhere. You will want to try it yourself and see how it excels as a perspiration corrective. Get a tube today, or, if you prefer, send the coupon below with ten cents for a trial tube.

NOTE: If your dealer has neglected to stock Nul, send 60c in stamps to the Sheffield Pharmacal Co., 339 S. Wabash Avenue, Chicago, for full size tube in plain wrapper.

STANLEY
WILL NOT BREAK

Has yours failed you at the critical moment?

JUST when you need it most—just when you're counting on that cup of hot coffee—that's when the ordinary vacuum bottle is apt to fail you.

A slight jolt or jar—and the fragile lining is broken!

Made entirely of steel, the Stanley Bottle does away with the annoyance and disappointment of broken glass fillers. The hardest fall cannot break it. The first cost is the last.

The Stanley has been carried where only the sturdiest equipment could survive—on Antarctic Expeditions, on trans-Atlantic flights. You can take your Stanley where you know hard knocks will be unavoidable—hunting and camping trips, automobiling—everywhere.

Pint, quart, and two-quart sizes. The Stanley Lunch Kit is equipped with the pint bottle. For keeping solid foods hot or cold, use the Stanley Food Jar—also unbreakable. Every Stanley product is fully guaranteed.

The charmingly different new styles —you can make them with French success

THEY are distinctly more elegant, more elaborate, the new styles!

The mode has changed so that everything must be new! With the Deltor you yourself can make the new French styles that would cost you extravagant sums to buy.

One woman writes from Paris "The Butterick pattern with the Deltor foresees everything, a few hours' work and you are dressed as though with the aid of a great dressmaker."

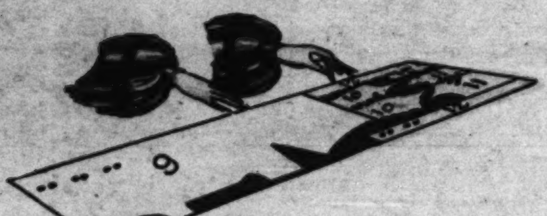
First the Deltor cutting layouts show you exactly how experts have laid the pattern to get it out of the least possible amount of material. You will find that invariably Butterick patterns call for less material than you would otherwise buy.

When you come to put your dress together, the Deltor pictures and directions show you how to work exactly as a great dressmaker would. You make your frock the same expert way that gives imported clothes that perfection of line you love.

Never did the finishing of a dress have more importance than this season. The Deltor shows you exactly how Paris would make and apply whatever new finish your costume calls for.

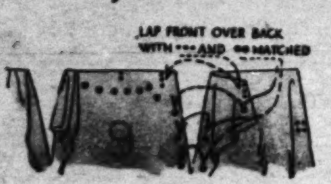
Every new Butterick pattern now gives you this complete dressmaking service. Stop at the pattern department—ask about the Deltor. Learn why it is considered the greatest aid to dressmaking since the paper pattern itself.

Butterick—New York—Chicago—Paris—London.



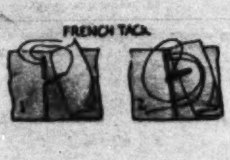
Save material as experts do

An expert has worked out just how to lay on your pattern to use the least possible material. His plan is your Deltor cutting layout. You will find your size and your view on the very width material you are using. By meeting your exact needs the layout saves you money on everything you make.



Professional putting-together

The easiest, quickest and most successful way to handle each step of the making of your dress is before you in pictures. Following them you give your dress that sure air of an expertly made garment. You will be delighted with the results you get.



Parisian finish

You know exactly how Paris would give the finishing touches your dress demands—it is all there in the Deltor. You give to your dress those knowing touches that transform it into a "creation." Notice what a difference it makes in your next dress.

Design 3979—The vogue for the draped frock and the vogue for lace meet charmingly in this model. Drapery is very simple with the Deltor.

Design 4071—The enveloping collar, capacious sleeves and long straight lines mark this coat as definitely of the season. With the Deltor you can really tailor a coat.

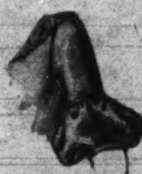
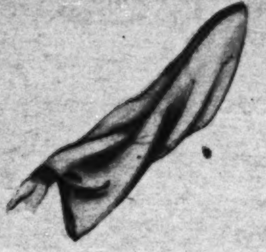
Charming things Paris is doing



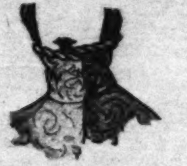
The silhouette governs even the sleeve

Design 3790—This brief little sleeve with its close cap and unexpected puff reflects clearly the vogue for bouffant frocks. For evening wear, the bouffant silhouette is much in favor, especially for débutantes. With the Deltor an evening dress is just as simple to make as any other and you are sure of making it with professional success.



The fascination of a sleeve

Design 4039—Sleeves keep getting more and more interesting as the season advances. The Autumn openings in Paris showed all manner of delightful sleeves. This one is very Parisian with its long opening to reveal a pretty arm. Notice the narrow cuff in which it ends—many of the new loose sleeves (they are often made of contrasting materials) perversely grow close at the wrist, which proves very becoming.



A French collar

Design 3974—To quite conceal the chin is very fashionable this fall! This enveloping collar belongs to one of the little blouse-jackets that Paris is so fond of this season. The twisted, stuffed tubing that trims it is much in vogue and you will find it quite simple to make with the Deltor.

"Each to his own taste"

CLICQUOT is such a friendly drink that it mixes well with the juices of any fruit you want to use.

It makes a drink that pleases everybody. They all like it.

Of course they do. Its sparkling, happy look is what they like, and its gingery old taste, and its leaping, sunshiny bubbles.

Grown-ups and kids, all ages, all dispositions, all genders—they all like Clicquot.

Natural that they should. It's such a jolly drink. It's so downright good. Seems as though there couldn't be a happier combination of good things.

They are good. Pure cool water from rock springs, Jamaica ginger—real Jamaica ginger!—fruit flavors, and cane sugar—all that goes into Clicquot is the best that can be had.

And these good things are blended and cooled and charged with bubbles to make the most popular of drinks—this Clicquot Club Ginger Ale, of which they say, "They all like it."

There are other Clicquot Club drinks—Sarsaparilla, Root Beer, and Birch Beer—and they're all popular too. It's good to have a variety case at home. Buy it from your grocer or druggist.

The TWELVE MOST BEAUTIFUL

Third Article Miss Julia Hoyt

Miss Julia Hoyt's beauty is synonymous with health.
[Photo from Fotograms.]

[Photo from Charlotte Fairchild.]

NEW YORK.—Unqualifiedly Miss Julia Hoyt, in private life Mrs. Lydig Hoyt, is a truly beautiful woman. Nature made her in a lavish moment and with special mastery, overlooking none of the many things needed for perfect beauty. She has been idealized by the brushes of many painters and materialized by the genius of dressmakers and milliners of extraordinary creative talent.

Walking down 5th avenue one afternoon at parade hour, I glimpsed one who, in passing, stood out and apart from the fashionable and the beautiful. She was beautifully dressed and very tall, with that air of distinction and pride of bearing which forces a "who is she?" into your companion's ear. I wondered who the superb creature might be. When I kept a telephone appointment to meet Miss Julia Hoyt that afternoon at the Ritz, I found her to be none other than my beauty of the avenue.

Hers is the quality of rare and unusual beauty enhanced by the art of dress. She is not that type of beauty which has special perfections. She is all perfection, with a refinement of bearing and expression such as is possessed by the marvelous women we admire in the frescoes of Botticelli, and she has that health which provides the clear and lovely coloring necessary to the harmonious beauty of the whole. She embodies the idea that beauty of person is synonymous with health and perfect organization.

Miss Hoyt's complexion, which has been misquoted as being of a whiteness verging on pallor, is, in fact, tinted with the roseate glow of health.

THIS astounding beauty stands 5 feet 9½ inches, carrying in a round and slenderly proportioned form 135 pounds. Right here I would insert for the benefit of women who complain of their unusual height that perhaps the two outstanding beauties of America, Miss Hoyt and Dolores, must give their magnificent stature no small share of credit for their enviable reputations as beauties. When I asked Flo Ziegfeld his opinion of the great beauties of America, he immediately suggested Miss Hoyt and Dolores as first inspirations.

Artists of great reputation, like Troubetsky, Sargent, and Helleu, have painted Miss Hoyt, and they surely know a beautiful woman. Sargent likened her to a panther—there is something so brilliantly alive about her. She gives you the sense of the power of beauty. You feel it in her color, her intellect, her "air" as some one has defined the latter—good health and a purpose.

Miss Hoyt's hands and feet are long, slender, tapering. Her jet black hair is long and full of vitality. Hers is an energized system highly developed. Daring, purposeful! A forceful personality, as you may well imagine a woman to have who forsakes a social career for the hard and troublous road to stage fame.

Nine years ago, as Miss Julia Robbins, she was a debutante in the most fashionable New York set. Later she became Mrs. Lydig Hoyt, her husband being a member of a family which has both wealth and position. From the time of her coming out she has been a social leader by sheer force of beauty and personality. Nothing she does but bears the stamp of efficiency, from an article on the code of good society to a tennis championship.

As in the case of Dolores, Miss Hoyt's tallness is merely another asset for her charms.
[Photograph copyright by Underwood & Underwood.]

Julia Hoyt's Secrets of Beauty

SHE stands superbly alone as a rare American product—that is Miss Donnelly's tribute to Miss Julia Hoyt. Here are Miss Hoyt's secrets of beauty culture:

Golf, tennis, hunting, and walking help to give her that abounding health which is the secret of her perfection of form and of her clear and lovely coloring.

She uses no face rouge. She does, however, use a lip rouge.

She has regular massages, and the same woman has treated her hair for years.

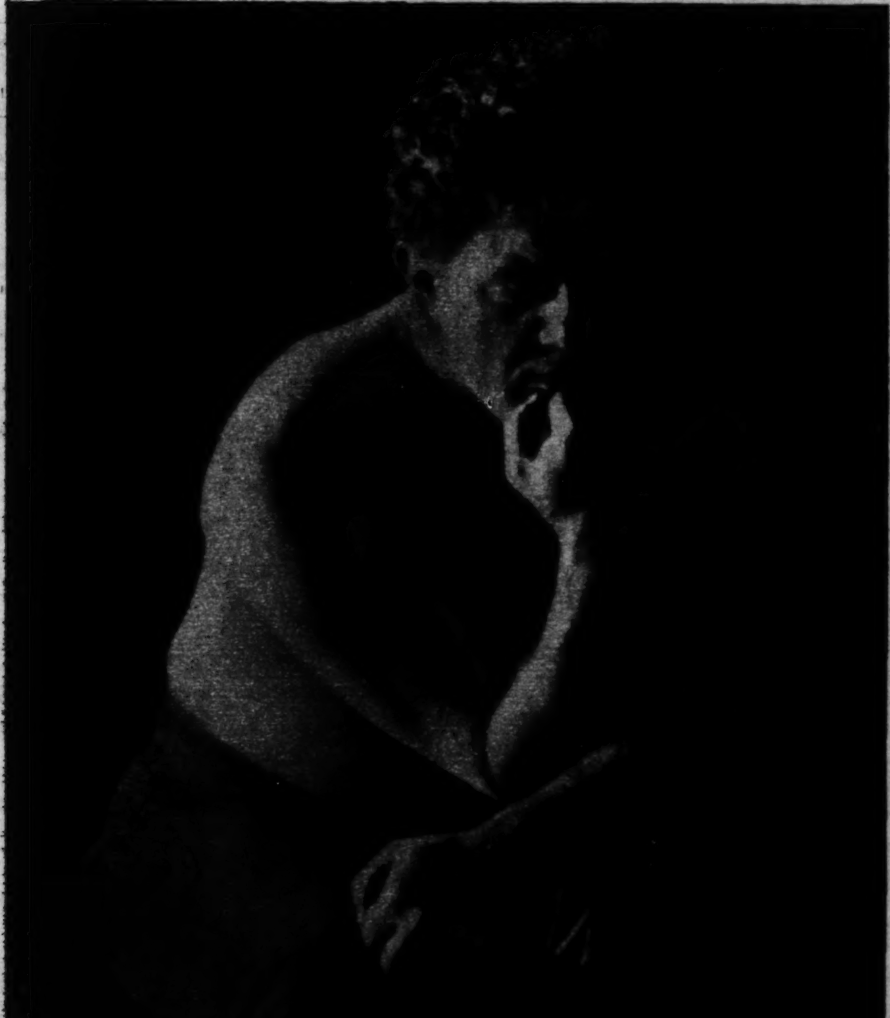
And now for the grand secret: She is a tall woman—5 feet 9½ inches—and her tallness is an added asset for her beauty. Tall women should study both figure and coloring in matters of dress, she says. They need not favor the statuesque always, but must avoid fluffy clothes. She likes dark things for day wear, and in the evening loves flame, orange, and black.

NOVEMBER in the THEATERS

MANY INTERESTING PEOPLE decorate the opulent entertainment known as "The Music Box Revue," and Miss Ethelind Terry is one of them. She sings and is much alive.

(Photograph from Apeda.)

LIFE IS NOT ALL ROSES for Miss June Walker in "Six Cylinder Love," but there's a happy ending, with Ernest Truex, her vis-a-vis in the play, beaming approval.



YANK SMITH, STOKER—otherwise Louis Wolheim, once an instructor in mathematics and now the central figure of Eugene O'Neill's vivid drama, "The Hairy Ape."

ACTOR AND PLAYWRIGHT BOTH is Frank Craven. Here you see him at his ease, though dressed up, in a pensive moment out of his beguiling comedy, "The First Year."

WOMEN IN AMERICA

by Antoinette Donnelly

There is something brilliantly alive about her. Sargent likened her to a panther.

Miss Hoyt's Striking Profile.
[Photograph from Charlotte Fairchild.]

At the suggestion of the stunning afternoon costume she was wearing at the moment, bearing out the simplicity of lines for which she is noted, we talked dress.

"I like simple clothes for the street," she said. "They're more appropriate. The reason the French women are better dressed is because they dress appropriately for the occasion, included in which is simplicity of street dress."

Her conviction on dress was practiced in her extremely smart black gabardine dress with high, round neck line, long tight sleeves, the straight lines with the length broken by two straight, ungathered flounces bound in braid, draped ever so slightly to be caught on the left side with two highly ornamental and colorful buttons, from which a panel of white broadcloth was inserted and extended to skirt hem, giving a thoroughly Parisian use of white and black.

When I asked if she had any theories on tall women and dress, she said:

"O, I do not think you can lay down any laws. The individual figure has to be studied. One may have big hips, small hips, broad shoulders, narrow, all of which must be considered. But simple lines are invariably the safest course. I don't think they must run to the statuesque always. On the other hand, they certainly ought not to wear fluffy clothes. You have to study both figure and coloring. Tall women look better in dark things for day wear, as a rule. For evening I love flame, orange, black. In fact, I have a tendency to brilliant colors or else dead white."

MISS HOYT'S eyebrows are darker than her hair and are of natural line, which gives character to the face that plucked brows rob one of. Her great natural beauty is further accented in the wholesome color in her cheeks. She uses no face rouge, although she paints her lips a brilliant tone, and is one of the few women who should do it. Her eyes are dark brown, large, full, keen, frank eyes.

The health she radiates must be explained by her devotion to outdoor life—golf, hunting, tennis, and walking. She is one of the best amateur tennis players in the country, who boasts proudly of having been defeated by experts such as Molla Bjurstedt Mallory and Tilden.

On the jewel topic, Miss Hoyt remarked: "I don't own much jewelry. I like only the very best. I love pearls.

"Yes, I have massages, rather regularly, too. And for years I have gone to the same woman for hair treatments. My hair is so long and thick I could never do it myself."

In addition to her many other advantages over her fellow women, Miss Hoyt has a speaking voice of rare quality, a deep, mellow, resonant voice that is so complementary a part of her rare beauty as to recall La Bruyere's words about the beautiful woman being in perfect harmony only when her voice is likewise beautiful.

"I don't want to be typed," Miss Hoyt protested, "I hope to be able to act all kinds of parts."

You would not "type" her even among beauties, for she stands superbly alone as a rare American product.

(Another article in this series by Antoinette Donnelly will appear in the Coloroto magazine next Sunday.)

THE TEENIE WEENIES

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

THE LADY OF FASHION TELLS A STORY.

BY WM. DONAHEY.

ALL day long the rain dripped from the branches of the bushes, dropping with loud splashes on the roofs of the Teenie Weenies' huts. It was a cold rain and the little folks sat shivering around their tiny stoves.

"Jimminie goldfish!" cried the Dunce, looking through the small window in the dining hut, where a number of the little people were spending their time. "It's an awful lonesome day. Won't some one tell a story or somethin'?" The Dunce glanced hopefully toward the Lady of Fashion, for that little lady was usually well supplied with good stories.

"Did I ever tell the story of Bigie Boo and Binjie?" asked the Lady of Fashion, looking up from her knitting.

"No!" shouted several of the little people so loudly they awakened Grandpa, who was napping behind the stove.

"Well, I'll tell it to you," answered the Lady of Fashion, straightening out a tiny ball of yarn and settling herself for the story.

"Bigie Boo and Binjie were two squirrels. They lived at the edge of a big forest, and they were most curious. In fact, they were too curious, and their mother quite often had to give them real sound spankings, for the little fellows couldn't keep their noses out of things.

"One day they were skipping along through the forest, chasing each other up and down trees and having a most delightful time, when Bigie Boo happened to spy a funny little house at the roots of a big tree. He called Binjie and the two little chaps hid behind a bush watching the place for some time.

"'I don't think anybody's at home,' whispered Binjie. 'Let's go and peek in at the window.' Hand in hand, the two squirrels tiptoed toward a tiny window in the side of the tree, but when they reached the window they could hardly see a thing, for it was quite dark inside. However, it was light enough to see that the window looked in on a long passage which led down under the ground.

"'Funny lookin' place, isn't it?' said Binjie with a twitch of his tail.

"'Let's see if the door is open,' suggested Bigie Boo.

"Carefully approaching the door, the two squirrels found it was open a trifle. There was a huge knocker on the door and, after some whispering, it was decided to try it.

"They lifted the heavy knocker, let it fall with a loud bang, and then scrambled up a tree nearby, where they waited to see what would happen.

"When they had waited a long time, maybe five or ten minutes, they climbed down and pushed open the door. Cautiously the two squirrels made their way down a long flight of stairs, and presently they came to another door.

"This door was partly open, and, after waiting a few minutes, they pushed it open and peered in. There was but little light inside, but soon their eyes became used to the dark and they could see some furniture in the room. No one seemed to be at home, so the squirrels stepped down several steps into the room. There were a stool, a cupboard, a folding bed, and a table in the place. On the table sat some soiled dishes, a teapot, a jug, and two dirty dice.

"'Look!' cried Binjie, clutching Bigie Boo by the front left paw and pointing at the floor. 'O, look!'

"Bigie Boo looked, and his eyes nearly popped out of his head, for the floor was littered with bones. There were squirrel bones and mouse, mole, and bird bones. 'I'm going home,' gasped Bigie Boo, and he bolted for the door, with Binjie about an eighth of an inch behind. Horrors, heaps of horrors! the door, which had swung shut after they entered the room, was locked.

"'O dear!' wailed Bigie Boo, twisting his whiskers nervously and swaying from side to side on his hind feet. 'What are we going to do, to do, to do?'

"'Well, we can't get out through this door, that's a fact,' growled Binjie, who had been hurriedly examining the lock. 'We'll have to gnaw through the door.'

"At that minute the two squirrels' hearts nearly stopped beating, for they heard the front door squeak, and immediately afterward they heard footsteps coming down the stairs.

"'Quick,' whispered Binjie. 'Under the bed.' Instantly the squirrels dove under the big folding bed, and not a bit too soon, for almost immediately the door opened and an old weasel popped his head in and squinted suspiciously around the room. He sniffed a couple of times and then sneezed so loudly it scared the poor squirrels nearly out of their whiskers. Bigie Boo was so frightened he had to put his foot in his mouth to keep his teeth from chattering.

"It was mighty lucky for the two squirrels that the old weasel had a cold, for otherwise he would certainly have smelled them and that would have been the end of them.

"The weasel carried something over his shoulder and, crossing the room, he dropped it on the table. Next he took a candle from a shelf and lit it, and the two squirrels could see the object which the weasel had dropped on the table. It was a leg of a bird. Poor Binjie and Bigie Boo hardly dared breathe for fear they would be discovered, as they watched the old weasel tear off great pieces of the meat and swallow them. When he had licked the bones clean, he threw them on the floor and then, picking up the dice, he played with them for what seemed to Binjie and Bigie Boo hours and hours, but really it was only a few minutes.

"Presently the weasel's head began to nod and, rising to his feet, he kicked over the stool and shuffled toward the bed. The frightened squirrels could hear their hearts beating like bass drums as the wicked old weasel came toward them, but he evidently was too sleepy to hear them and so he tumbled into the bed. Soon loud snoring told the squirrels that the weasel was asleep, and, cautiously, Binjie put out his head from under the bed and looked around. After a good look, Binjie put his mouth almost into the ear of Bigie Boo and whispered so low it was all Bigie Boo could do to hear him.

"'The old weasel's got the key to the door on a ring, and the ring is hanging on his arm,' whispered Binjie. 'Now I have a plan and you have got to help. We've got to get away or we're goners. This is a folding bed we're under and it folds right up into a hole in the wall. My plan is this: I'll reach out and grab the key ring from the weasel's arm and then we will push up on the bed with all our might. It will fold up and pin the old weasel in until we can get the door unlocked and get out.'

"Bigie Boo was so scared he could not answer, but he made a sign that he understood and the two squirrels quietly made themselves ready to push up the bed. Binjie reached out, snatched off the key ring, and at the same time both squirrels gave a mighty push, folding up the bed with a bang.

"'Hold him! Hold him!' shouted Binjie, dashing for the door. 'Hold him until I can get the door open!'

"Bigie Boo pushed on the bed until he nearly strained his back and held the weasel tight in spite of his frantic squirming.

"Binjie soon unlocked the door and the two squirrels lost little time in getting through the opening. They slammed the door shut after them and fairly flew up the stairs. They could hear the weasel's screams of rage, and just as they reached the outside door they heard the old fellow pounding at the door below.

"Well, there is nothing more to the story except that those two squirrels were mighty particular where they went after that," said the Lady of Fashion, looking around at the open mouthed Teenie Weenies. "They were not nearly as curious and they stopped their snooping, much to the joy of their mother."

"What became of the weasel?" asked the Dunce.

"He probably broke up the furniture in his rage and then quite likely gnawed his way through the door," answered the Lady of Fashion.

The Teenie Weenies were much impressed with the story, and they sat in silence for some time while the raindrops splashed loudly on the roof of their tiny hut.

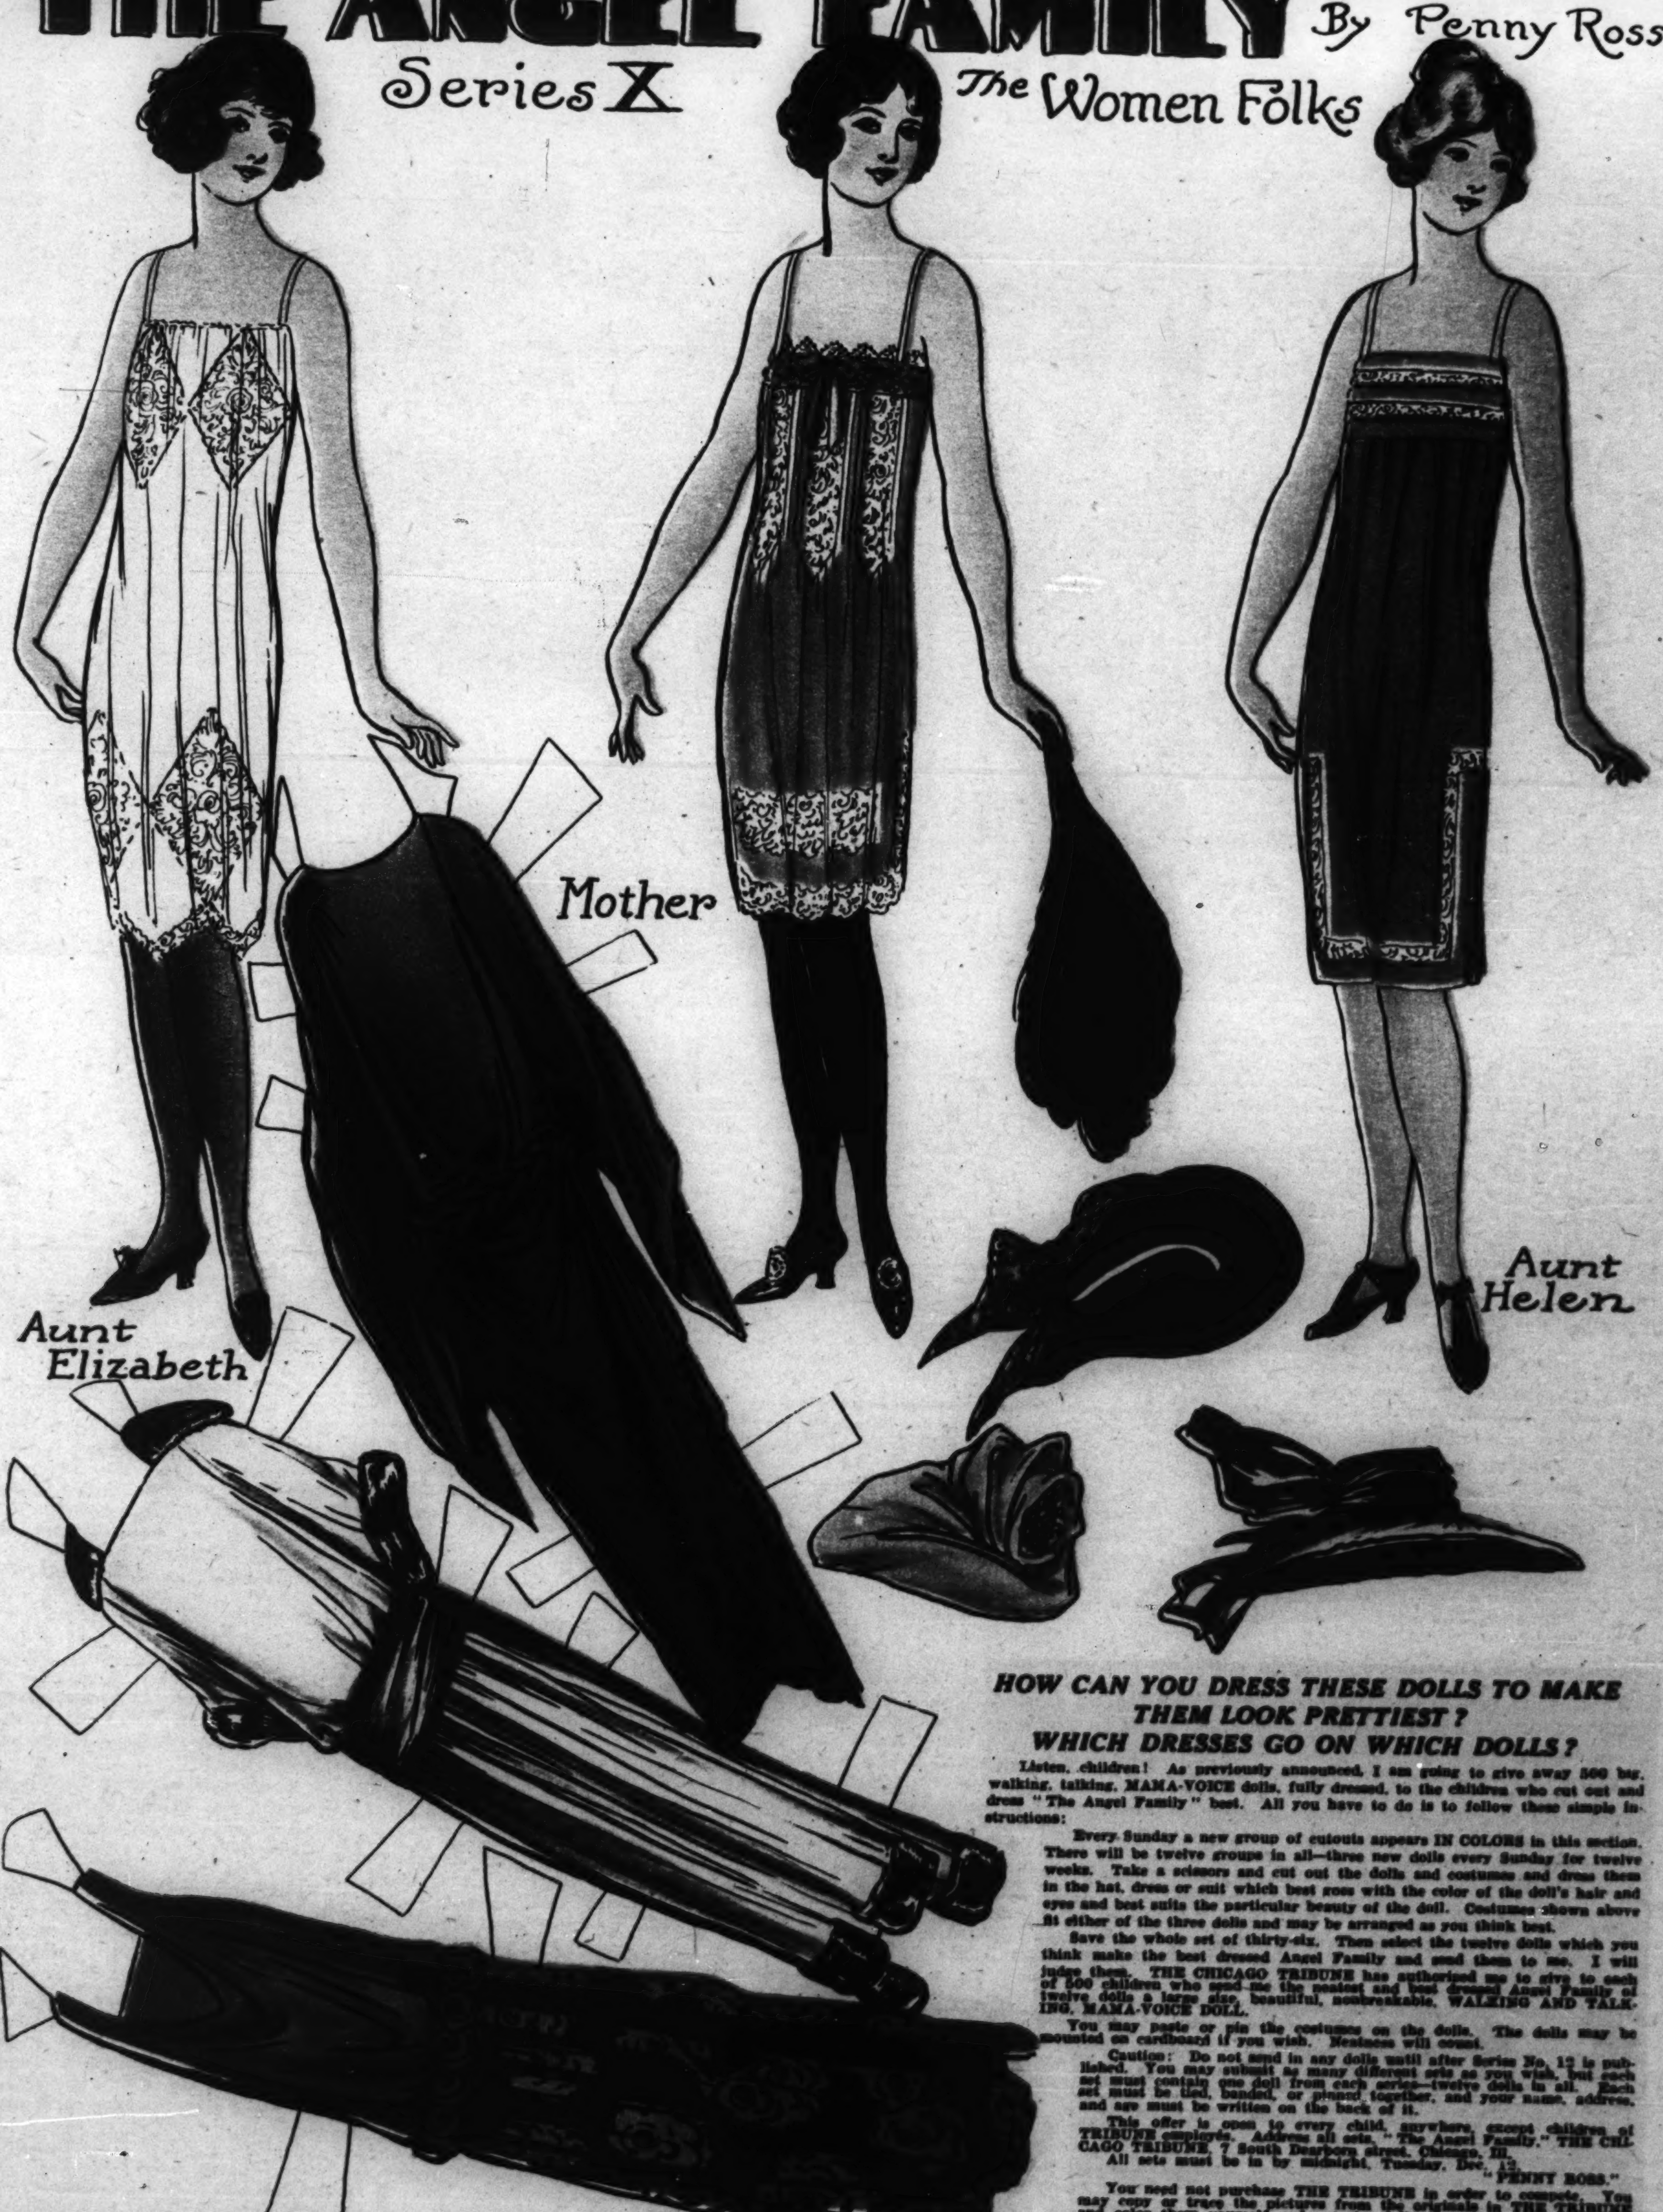
THE ANGEL FAMILY

By Penny Ross~

Series X

The Women Folks



HOW CAN YOU DRESS THESE DOLLS TO MAKE THEM LOOK PRETTIEST? WHICH DRESSES GO ON WHICH DOLLS?

Listen, children! As previously announced, I am going to give away 500 big, walking, talking, MAMA-VOICE dolls, fully dressed, to the children who cut out and dress "The Angel Family" best. All you have to do is to follow these simple instructions:

Every Sunday a new group of cutouts appears IN COLORS in this section. There will be twelve groups in all—three new dolls every Sunday for twelve weeks. Take a scissors and cut out the dolls and costumes and dress them in the hat, dress or suit which best goes with the color of the doll's hair and eyes and best suits the particular beauty of the doll. Costumes shown above fit either of the three dolls and may be arranged as you think best.

Save the whole set of thirty-six. Then select the twelve dolls which you think make the best dressed Angel Family and send them to me. I will judge them. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has authorized me to give to each of 500 children who send me the neatest and best dressed Angel Family of twelve dolls a large size, beautiful, nonbreakable, WALKING AND TALKING, MAMA-VOICE DOLL.

You may paste or pin the costumes on the dolls. The dolls may be mounted on cardboard if you wish. Neatness will count.

Caution: Do not send in any dolls until after Series No. 12 is published. You may submit as many different sets as you wish, but each set must contain one doll from each series—twelve dolls in all. Each set must be tied, banded, or pinned together, and your name, address, and age must be written on the back of it.

This offer is open to every child, anywhere, except children of TRIBUNE employés. Address all sets, "The Angel Family," THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, 7 South Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.

All sets must be in by midnight, Tuesday, Dec. 12.

"PENNY ROSS."

You need not purchase THE TRIBUNE in order to compete. You may copy or trace the pictures from the originals in THE TRIBUNE and color them yourself and cut the dolls from the copies you have made.

Copies of THE TRIBUNE may be examined at this office or at public libraries free of charge.

NEXT SUNDAY—SERIES 11, "THE MEN FOLKS."

The Cathedral—Amiens

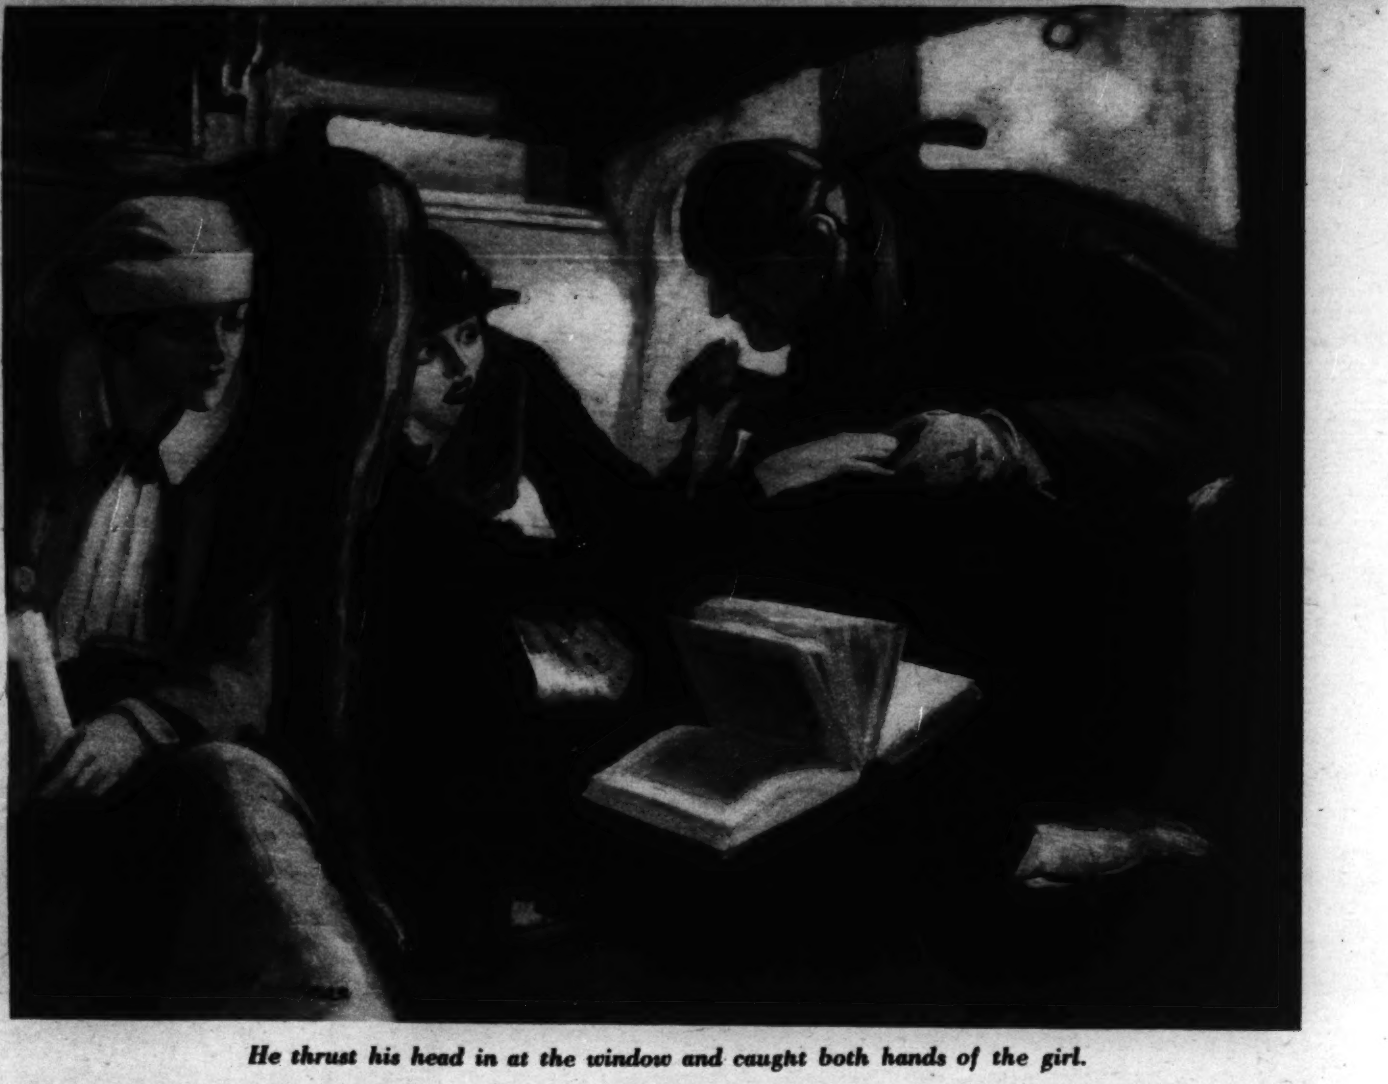
"With its flame-like tracery, its complicated pinnacles, its glimmering niches, pierced parapets, dainty filigree work and sculptured lace, it was a marvel of imagination, dramatic sense and consummate craftsmanship. . . . . . All now is gone—overwhelmed in indiscriminating ruin. The glass and the statues shattered in fragments, the roofs consumed by fire, the carved stones calcined and flaking hourly in a dreary rain on blood stained pavements."

Over eighteen hundred architects are in competition for the hundred thousand dollars offered by The Tribune for designs of the most beautiful modern building in the world. The new building will be erected in front of The Tribune Plant at North Michigan Boulevard and Austin Avenue.

The PRINCE'S KISS

by BERTA RUCK

She Was a Sleeping Beauty of the Name of Mary Smith, and She Was Engaged; Then Came That Caress, "Like a Bolt from the Blue."



He thrust his head in at the window and caught both hands of the girl.

MOST love stories end with a kiss; this, however, begins with one. Rather an unusual sort of one, too!

But to begin with the girl of the story. She, at that moment, appeared as one of the most usual sort of girls you could find. Commonplace little thing, most people thought her. Her very name—Mary Smith—was a label. Her clothes you see everywhere—dark blue tailored suit, cream silk jumper (home knitted) just showing under the coat; small, neat hat, neat fur around neck, neat shoes and stockings, nice suède gloves.

Quiet neatness (a trifle dowdy!) was the keynote of this Mary when you first see her.

She sat in the right hand corner of the third class carriage of a railway train that was just about to start out. Her back was to the engine. Above her head on the glass of the carriage window appeared the announcement, "Ladies Only." Her umbrella and despatch case were in the rack. On her knee, a dark blue leather bag and a book, not a mere love story but a thoughtful treatise all about the trend of people's minds. This had been sent to her a week ago by her fiancé. He was an earnest young man to whom Mary had been engaged for two years, and he was on the teaching staff at a good school. Mary had not yet read this book. She had been saving it up for the railway journey, as she was off on a visit to the country house of some old family friends of her mother's.

You see how highly conventional, how quietly correct everything sounds? How eminently sedate, how arrestingly unlike what happened next?

For mark what did happen:

The train was just off, the whistle was at the guard's lips, when a sort of commotion occurred in the little crowd of see-ers-off collected on the platform.

The tall figure of a young man in a big brown raincoat and the close fitting leather cap which is worn by flyers, motorists, and motor bicyclists came storming up to the train.

"Hurry up, sir! Take your seat!" cried a porter, and held open the door of the first class smoking carriage next to the "Ladies Only" in which Mary was sitting. The young man took no notice.

He sprang on to the footboard just in front of Mary. He thrust his flying capped head in at the open window, caught both hands of the girl sitting in the corner seat, drew them up to his chin, exclaimed in a fresh, pleasant voice, "Well, good-by, darling! I hope you have a splendid time! The best of luck!" He then kissed her heartily; yes! kissed her on the mouth. And jumped back on to the platform and in amongst the group of people there assembled as the train moved out in a series of quickening jerks and a long, outstreaming scarf of white smoke from the engine.

He then walked back to the barrier, giving up his platform ticket with all the other people who had come to see friends off by that train. Those onlookers probably saw nothing more in that little parting scene than was to be observed any day of the week, on any train of the day, at any railway station in the country.

But to return to Mary Smith sitting there in that corner seat of that train as it sped into the country.

Mary, gasping!

Mary, who had never seen that young man before in her life!

IN that carriage for "Ladies Only" there were three other passengers, each occupying a corner seat. Opposite to Mary sat a school girl with two black pigtails dangling, an apple-cheeked face, a black straw hat with a hockey ribbon on it, and large gray eyes mirroring every thought that came into her mind. She was at the age (fourteen) when only two thoughts ever did come; one was "How lovely!" the other was "How awful!"

That flapper, having observed that parting embrace, instantly registered the thought, "How lovely!"

So it wouldn't have mattered her seeing it.

In the corner seat on the side next to Mary sat a hospital nurse in uniform. There were war ribbons on the breast of her coat, a shrapnel scar on her forehead under her little bonnet, and the look in her face of a woman who has watched so many amazing sights in the first twenty-five years of her life that for the rest of it she will be surprised at nothing whatsoever.

So it wouldn't have mattered her seeing, either.

Unfortunately, the remaining corner seat was occupied by a lady who did matter.

She was going to stay with the same people that Mary was, having arranged a week ago that she and Mary should travel together. She was a distant cousin of Mary's mother. She wore (amongst other unattractive items) sensible black leather shoes and an investigating look.

And now she turned this look upon the petrified Mary. Mary was stooping to pick up her bag and her book from the floor where they had dropped at the moment when that inexplicable farewell scene had been avalanched upon her. When she lifted her head again it was to meet this amazed, this gimletlike glance of her mother's distant (but too near at the moment!) Cousin Elizabeth.

"I didn't know," began this lady, "that any of your brothers were at home now, Mary?"

"They're not," admitted Mary, feeling she was now in for it. "Harry's in British East Africa," she went on, talking to mark time, "and Bill has gone back to Canada, and Arthur has just sailed for China."

"O? I thought perhaps one of them had altered so much that I shouldn't know him again?" continued Cousin Elizabeth, eyes still firmly gimleted upon the face of the girl opposite to her.

It had often been said that "it was a pity dear Mary was rather pale and anaemic looking. She would have been quite good looking but for that. What she wants is a little more color." The uncle who said this might have been pleased to observe the improvement in dear Mary's complexion at this moment.

"But, of course, that gentleman just now didn't really look a bit like Arthur or Harry or Bill," added Cousin Elizabeth. "I suppose it was one of the cousins, Mary, that I haven't met?"

A wild impulse took the badgered Mary. Supposing she did allow this to pass as a hitherto unmet cousin?

Too thin; too thin! Besides, think of the strings of questions that would ensue! The inquiries as to name, profession, place of residence! Further, Mary was a fundamentally truthful girl; so, at this juncture, she reacted to type. She blurted forth a straightforward, indignant "He wasn't even a cousin! I don't know who that man was!"

"Don't know who he was?" echoed Cousin Elizabeth, staring. The eyes of the other two people in the carriage turned also upon Mary. The nurse's with restrained amusement, the school girl's with an almost audible "How awful!"

"What can you mean, Mary, you don't know who he was?"

"I mean I don't know who he was any more than you know," faltered poor Mary, gazing round from one to the other of the three faces, "I mean I never saw him before that minute!"

"What? You mean to say he was a complete stranger and he came up like that and spoke to you? Did you hear him say 'darling'?" uttered Cousin Elizabeth with growing horror. "And, am I right, or did I dream it? Didn't he kiss you?"

"Yes," admitted the dazed Mary. "He certainly did."

Here the eyes of the school girl opposite changed to their other expression, "How lovely!"

"It must have been a dangerous lunatic," declared Cousin Elizabeth. "I ought to write to the railway company and The Times and the police about it," she added largely. "Either the wretched creature was quite insane——"

"He didn't look insane," put in the nurse's cool professional tone. "Seemed perfectly normal, I thought."

"Or else he had been drinking; heavily."

Mary, without knowing why, protested quite warmly. "No! He hadn't been drinking at all."

(Then blushed more deeply than ever.)

"Surely it must have been one thing or the other. Most extraordinary in either case."

Here the train drew up at the first stop. Both the other passengers prepared to alight. The nurse, twinkling, gave Mary a pleasant "Good afternoon" as she passed out. In the school girl's bright eyes there could plainly be read this variant of their usual comment, "How lovely, but how awful! How awful, but still, how lovely!"

It was soon obvious that the spinster cousin's comment remained, "How disgraceful!"

Truth is stranger than fiction; it is therefore harder to believe. Whatever Cousin Elizabeth believed, it was not Mary's protestation, "I never set eyes on that man before; I mean, I certainly never 'looked at him in the crowd,' Cousin Elizabeth! I was as much flabbergasted as you were when he pranced up and behaved in that—that—that manner!"

"There are no manners left nowadays," decreed the spinster darkly. "Nothing but the break up of all decent conventions and tradition. An engaged girl! I don't know what poor Mr. Ferguson would say." (Mr. Ferguson was Mary's fiancé.) "Or your poor mother. Or the Homeleigh-Brownes" (these were the people where they were going to stay). "What they'd all think I cannot imagine!"

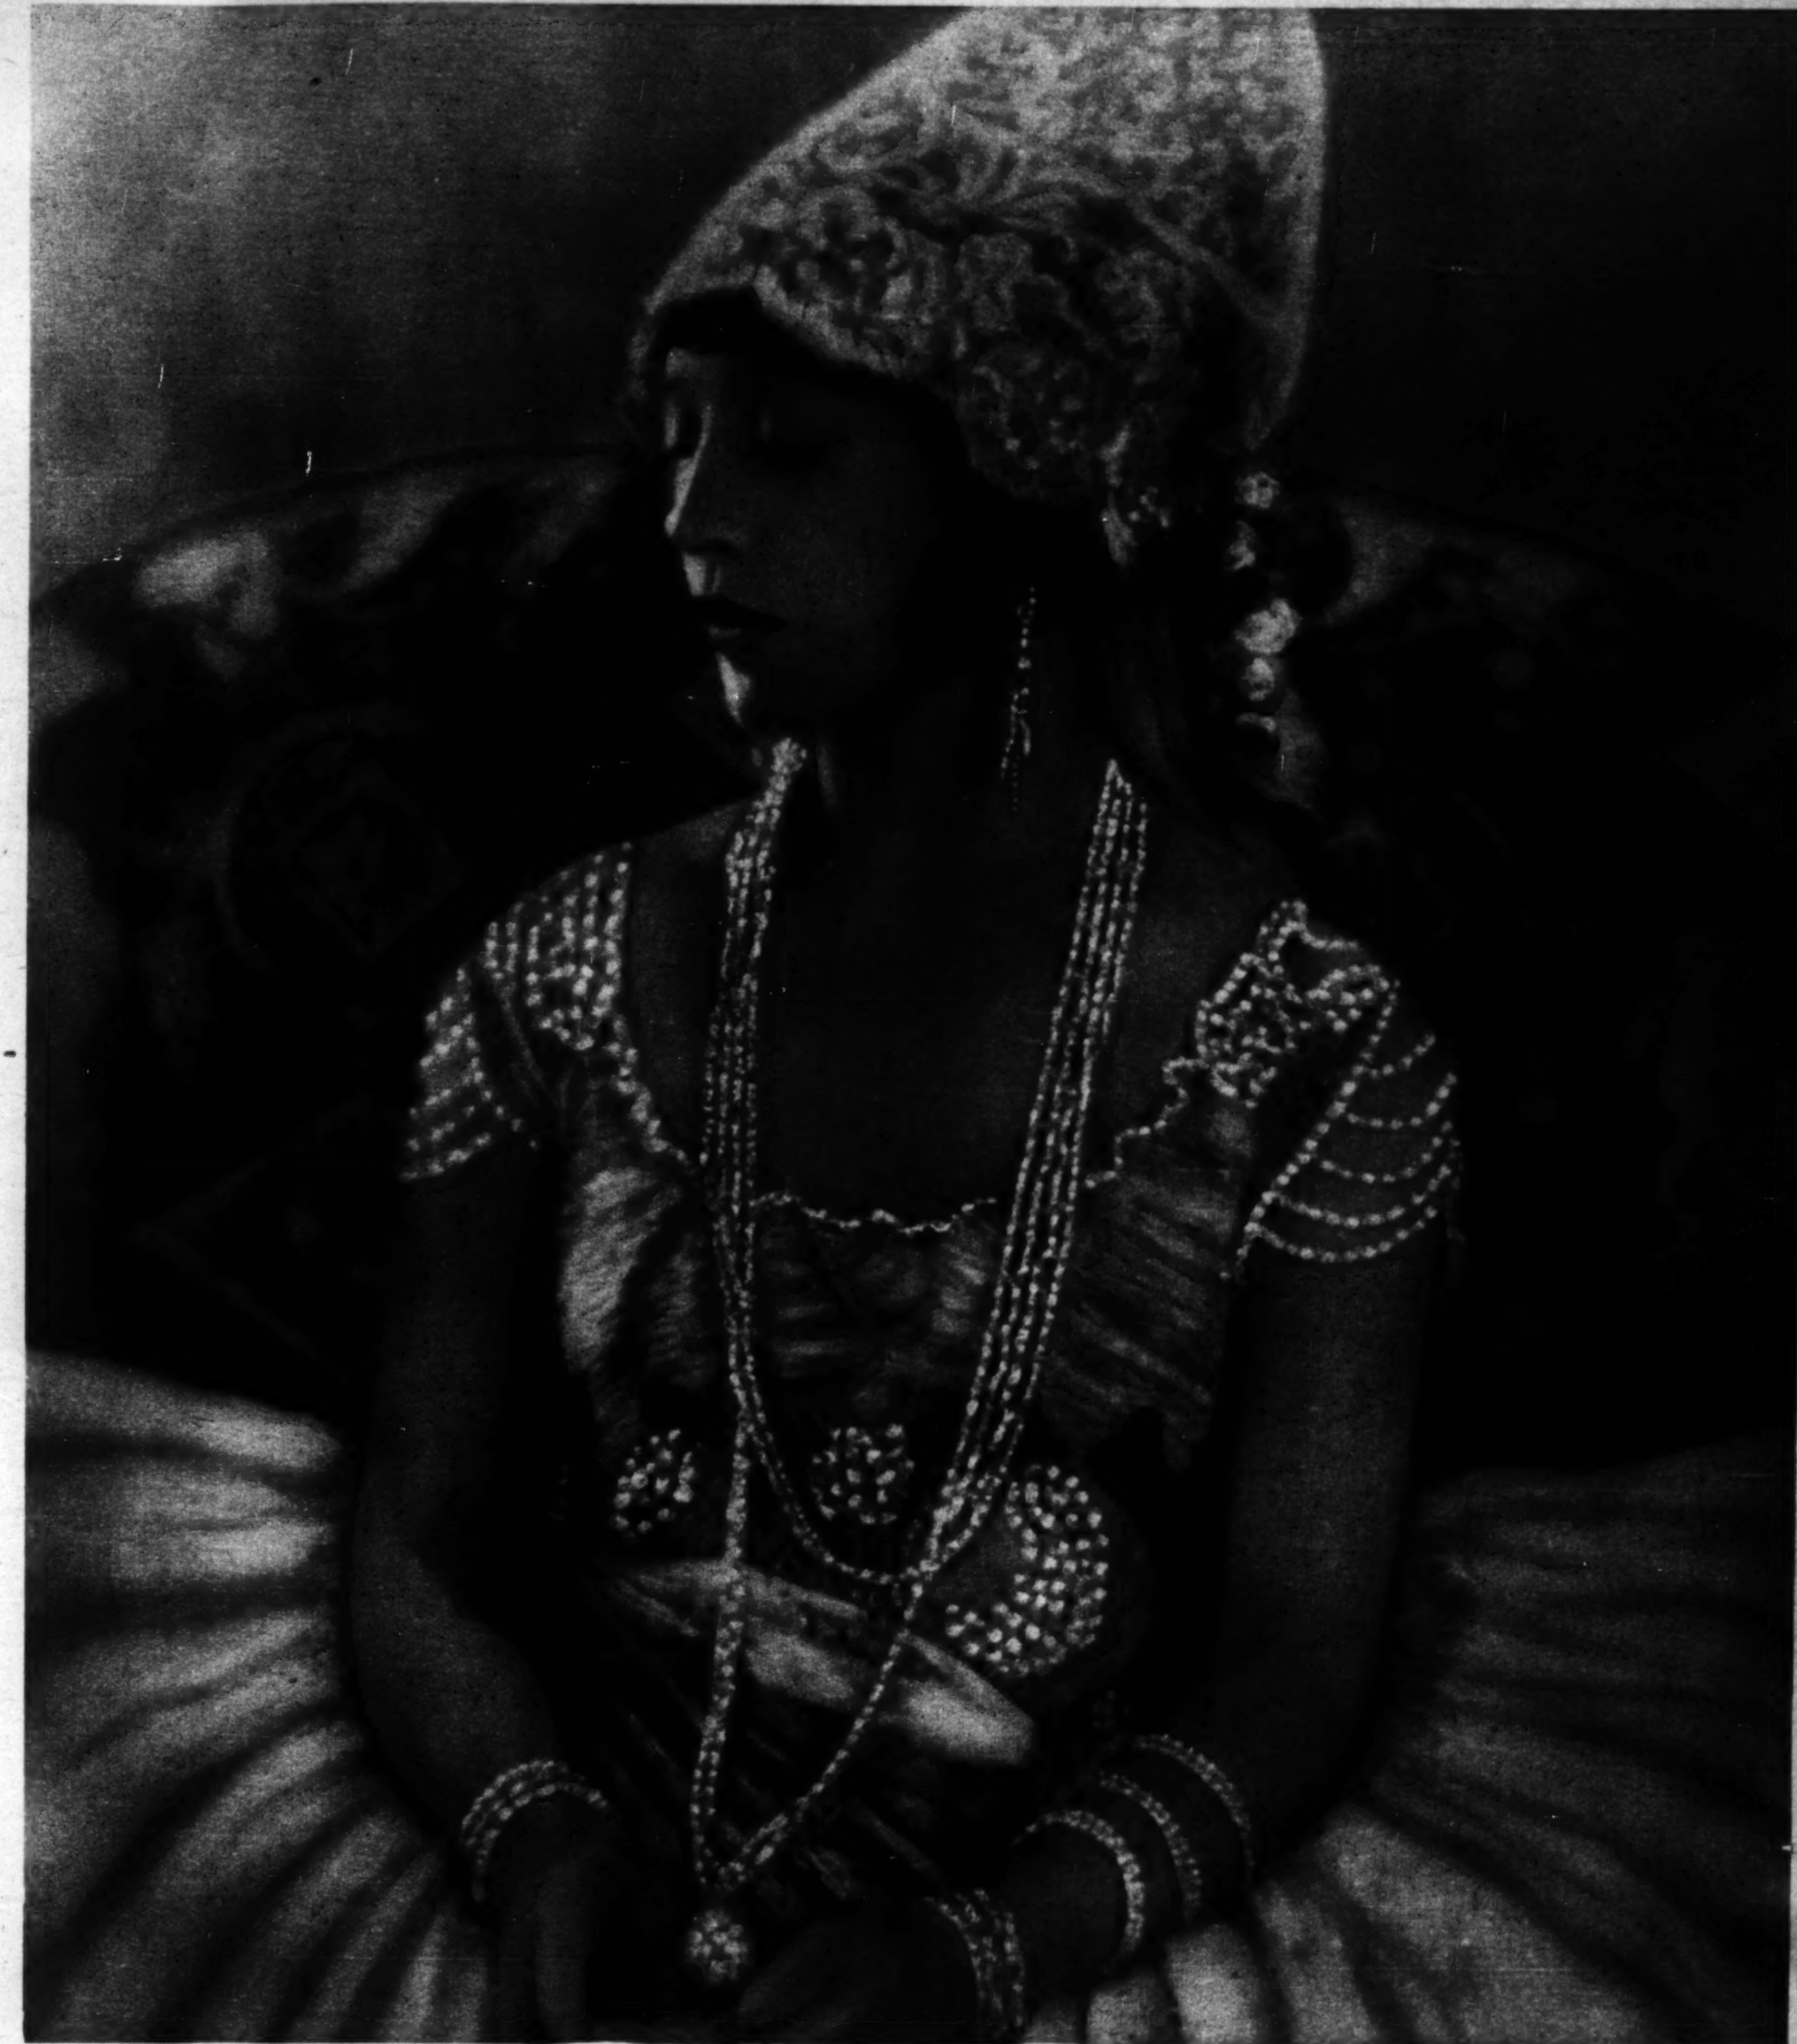
It was only too clear that Cousin Elizabeth meant to find out, by the simple process of letting all these people know the whole story!

THE Homeleigh-Brownes were a cheery family who'd known Mary from her earliest childhood, who'd been nice to her from a sense of duty, but who'd always considered her the dullest of the dull.

When, two years ago, they'd heard she was engaged to a staid young schoolmaster, they'd all exclaimed, "She would. How suitable!" They'd all written prim notes to congratulate. They'd never dreamed of her as a girl to whom one could show a glimpse of real fun or chumminess, even though the eldest Homeleigh-Browne girl was engaged herself.

But now a change came o'er the spirit of their dream. Cousin Elizabeth (that deadly nuisance who had invited herself for the week-end when they were giving a dance and all!) had a tale to tell to Mrs. Homeleigh-Browne, about Mary Smith.

"SHE'S A JOLLY GOOD FELLOW!"



MABEL NORMAND sat, not long ago, to have her picture painted. Mr. Sennett, thinking that you would like to see it reproduced in the roto section hurried it to this department. You will agree that in it Miss Normand is "a thing of beauty and a joy forever"—but you may be inclined to wonder what she has in her hand. I THINK it is a ham sandwich.

You will wonder also, probably, what she is gazing so interestingly down upon. I THINK the something is a king, who, visiting Deauville to take the bawths at the same time Miss Normand lit upon the scene of action, seeing her so beautiful and everything, decided to prostrate himself at her feet and offer his crown and hand. (Pure surmise, you understand.)

Anyhow, what I meant to write about was WHY is this young woman adored by her followers?

Because, don't you think, she gets across to you the idea that she's jolly and square and brainy—besides not being hard to look at? Do you believe she'd be catty? Hardly. Or cross over to the other side of the street to miss meeting a friend down on his—or her luck? Never! Or fail to give that same person a lift if she could? Don't believe so.

I reckon she'd laugh at your joke—even if it had whiskers on it—and so whole-heartedly that you'd never guess she'd kicked the slats out of her cradle laughing at it.

Have we sized the lady up right to your way of thinking?

R. S. V. P.!—Mae Tinee.

"Mary? My dear, there must be some extraordinary mistake."

"I wish I could think so," gloomily from Cousin Elizabeth. "I was myself shocked beyond words. I can only repeat to you what I saw with my own eyes" (she repeated it with zest) "and tell you that the girl had no explanation to offer, except such as no reasonable being could possibly accept."

THE story, and Mary's unreasonable explanation, permeated to the rest of the family. Were they shocked beyond words?

Sad to say, they revelled in it.

Mary, the meek and mouselike? Mary, the nice, quiet, sensible girl who had always been held up to them as a model? Mary, a dark horse? Mary, with the pearl ring of the blameless Ferguson gleaming on her engagement finger? Ha, ha!

Curiosity seethed in the household. Who was the other young man? What was at the bottom of it all?

Nobody actually said a word on the subject to their younger guest. Only—O, the difference in their behavior towards Mary Smith! Rightly, perhaps, they should have treated her more standoffishly than usual. But not they.

The reprehensible, the cheery family suddenly took Mary to their hearts! After all these years of family friendship (which means nothing) they found they could make a friend of the girl. She was human. They treated her as such. The girls confided in her various love affairs and near love affairs of which she had never, on previous visits, heard a whisper. They ran in and out of her bedroom and "talked trousseau" without restraint. She confided to them the sad news that her dance frock of pale blue georgette might not be finished in time for their dance, in which case she'd have to wear her ordinary dark dinner dress, and the eldest Homeleigh-Browne girl vowed that she'd lend Mary an absolutely stunning trousseau frock of her own that she'd got to go out to Egypt!

"It's a gorgeous color, Mary, and I'm sure you could wear a rich vivid color, now," said the other engaged girl, with emphasis on the "now."

As for the boys of the family; they also looked at Mary Smith with new eyes. They spoke to her with a new tone in their voices.

The medical student once said to her, "You know, Mary, I've the greatest respect for your young man Ferguson. Not that I've ever seen him. I go by the difference in you. Of course! You're a different girl since last time I saw you. You're alive. You're awake. This is 'the touch by love's finger' that we hear such a lot about. Must be. You're the Sleeping Beauty come to life at last under the Prince's kiss. Lucky Prince! I mean, lucky, lucky Ferguson!"

"What nonsense," laughed Mary, quite aware that this old family friend was now ready to flirt with her himself. Certainly he was different. Before, he had been bored and brotherly. She bloomed under the new treatment; sparkle, color, and animation lighted up her once rather colorless little face. Enormously she began to enjoy the visit to which she had come as the merest duty, knowing that it was as a duty that she had been invited.

The only blot on her enjoyment of her first twenty-four hours there was the stern face at meal times of Distant Cousin Elizabeth. Even that was not entirely a blot. In all her life nobody had been shocked at Mary before. Impossible to describe how the nice, quiet, sensible girl appreciated the charm of this novelty, just as she did the novelty of homage from young Homeleigh-Browne.

Both were a tonic that suited her! Only——

Only she was a little nervous about letters from other people. Her mother! Her fiancé!

SHE knew that Cousin Elizabeth would have written to her mother. Now her mother was up in Scotland on a visit; with Sunday post in between this would mean delay. Mary's own letter would get to her mother first. What about a letter to her fiancé? Surely Cousin Elizabeth would not write direct to Henry? She would count upon the awful warning filtering through Mary's own family? Mary would be able to give her lover the truthful account of everything that had happened at the railway station before any scandal mongers interposed.

She began the letter:

"My dearest Henry: Thank you so much for sending 'Trends of Mind' for me to read on the journey down. It was thoughtful of you. We will discuss it when I see you in the Christmas holidays; so much more satisfactory to talk things than to write them, don't you think? By the way, the most absurd little incident happened just as I was starting off——"

Here she put down her pen and laughed, light heartedly.

She was writing in the drawing room and had not noticed that the elder Homeleigh-Browne girl was sitting writing out ball programs on the window seat. This other engaged girl now looked up and smiled at her. "What are you laughing at, Mary?"

"O, my dear, how you made me jump! I was laughing at something I've got to tell my young man," explained Mary, blushing in that new and becoming way. "I—er—I expect you've heard what it is from Cousin Elizabeth."

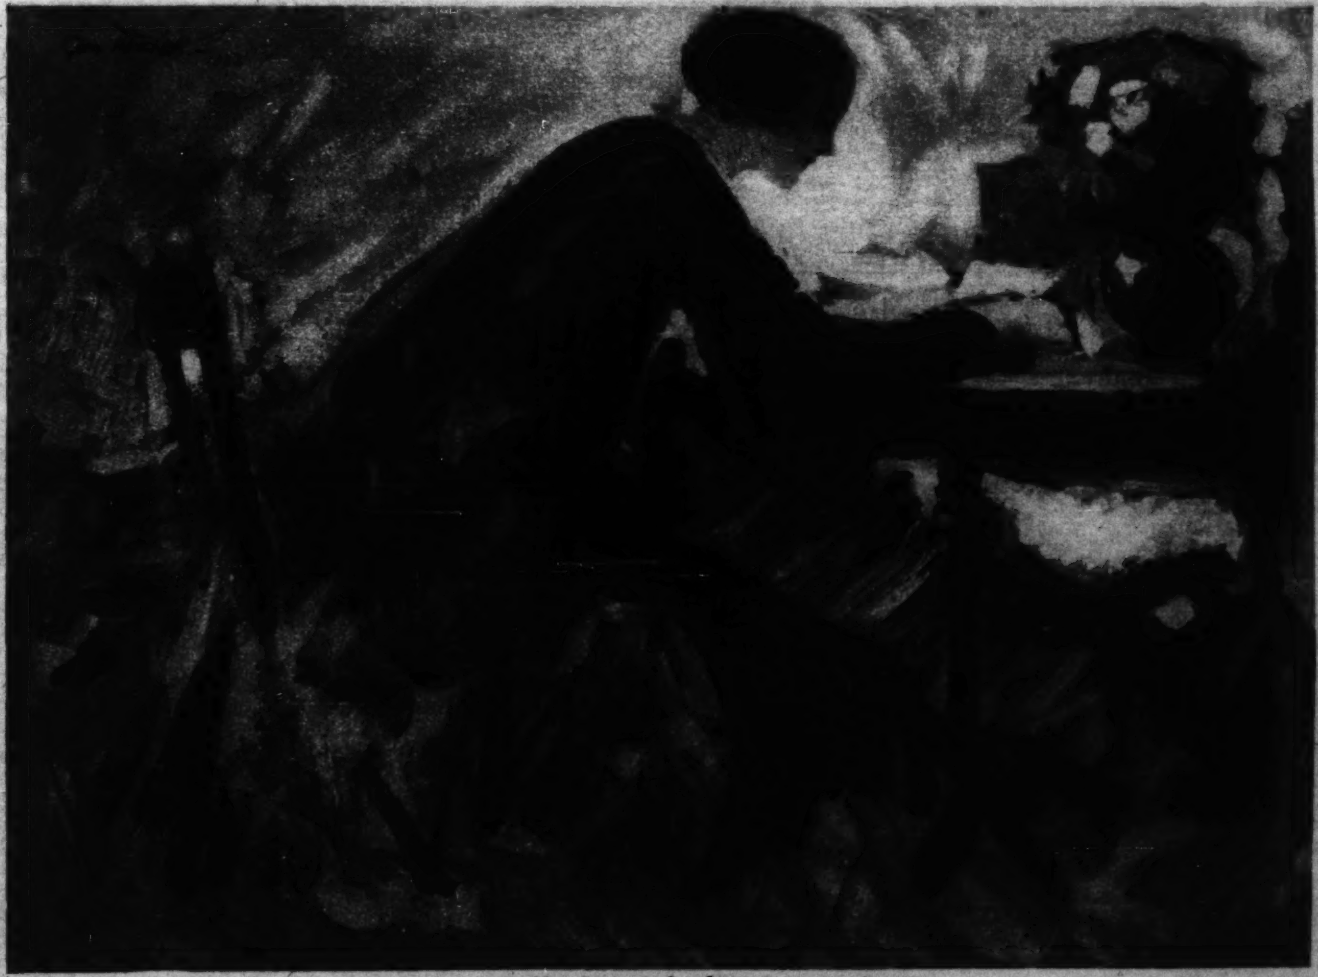
"You mean the awful scandal about the affectionate stranger who saw you off? I should think we had all heard of it. Priceless! Do tell me what you're going to tell your schoolmaster young man."

"Why, the truth," said Mary, "as I told Cousin Elizabeth, only she doesn't believe it."

"Do you mean to say that you think that your fiancé will believe it?"

Mary looked up, wide eyed. "But—do you mean to say that you don't?"

Slight pause; then, "I do believe it now. I can see by your face. But, you know, Mary, men don't see things as we do; that's why they don't always believe the same things."



She began the letter.

"But, my dear," faltered Mary, with a sinking heart, "if I write everything in full detail to Henry——"

"Don't write. Always a mistake. If you have got to confess anything, it is much easier by word of mouth."

"But that means letting him hear through other people, perhaps. O, why was Cousin Elizabeth ever born? That means waiting until——"

"It doesn't. I'll let you into a secret a week old," said the other engaged girl. "We've asked your Henry to this dance tonight. He's got leave for the week-end. He's coming by the 4:45."

"Henry?" exclaimed Henry's fiancée in delight. "He's coming?"

She was overjoyed. She was eager for Henry to see her in such good looks (she knew she was in good looks as never before). It seemed ages since she had seen her own lover. It would be wonderful to dance with him. And—this was a new thought to Mary, who had always been rather too sensible and quiet for such ideas—it would be still more wonderful to be kissed by him again. She, who had never been one of these girls who are positively fond of kissing, actually wished for that!

The other engaged girl went on talking about the party there would be: "The boys, my young man, yours, the boys' Air Force friend. O, look out of the window, Mary! One of them is turning in at the lodge gates now."

Mary thought, "Here's Henry."

But the maid announced, "Captain Prince."

Enter—the young man who had kissed Mary in the train.

FOLLOWED a bad quarter of an hour; hectic prattle about Captain Prince's motor run down to this place over swirling undercurrents of embarrassment. Instantly he had recognized Mary: she him. Girl-like, Miss Homeleigh-Browne had leaped to the right conclusion, guided thereto by the look upon their faces.

Nothing was said. The others came in to tea, the Homeleigh-Browne boys escorting Mary's fiancé from the train.

What Mary went through in ten minutes of that tea time aged her, she felt, by at least ten years. It also beautified her, adding the sparkle of tension to her eyes and keeping that lovely, fluctuating color blazing up and down in her cheeks.

"You are looking extraordinarily well for your change into the country," said her fiancé's voice, sedately approving.

Mary felt, rather than saw, that his approval was echoed by the eyes of all the other men there. Especially by the handsome eyes of that young man who had come on the motorcycle. Was it possible? Yes, he did; yes, he thought her lovely. As for young Homeleigh-Browne, he made no secret of what he thought of Mary now she'd "come to life!"

But what is the use of coming to life when there is some one staying in the house who makes it clear that what you deserve is to be put to death?

Cousin Elizabeth entered, in fact, at that moment. Desperately Mary had hoped that when the young airman was introduced to her Cousin Elizabeh would think that this Captain Prince was some one she had not met before.

Vain hope. By the icy bow and the polar atmosphere that spread around the room Mary realized that the scandalous one had been recognized.

All this undercurrent, you understand, surged below ripples of polite afternoon tea conversation appropriate to any country house party on the afternoon before any dance. Further, Mary became in some curious way conscious that two of the young men, not only one, but two of them were impatiently waiting for the opportunity to talk to her alone. One, of course, was her legitimate fiancé. Natural enough! The other was the eccentric airman, Captain Prince.

Also, perhaps, natural enough. Obviously he must explain to this girl that he had ophthalmia or night blindness or myopia, which had caused him to take her for somebody else.

At last she found herself alone with Henry.

They went into the appropriate rose garden pursued by a glance from Cousin Elizabeth which was the equivalent of a hope that now Mary meant to confess her awful crime.

In the rose garden it was Henry who had most to say.

Having kissed his betrothed's flushed cheek and told her once more that she was looking well, he began to ask her opinion on the book he had sent her which, of course, was in the circumstances an unfortunate opening. (She hadn't read a word of it.)

It dashed Mary's spirits.

Then he told her about the offer he'd received of a better post, which meant that they could get married so much sooner than had been anticipated. Curious! This, too, did not elate Mary as might have been expected. She thought to herself "Something's making me feel wretched. Cousin Elizabeth, of course, would say it was a guilty conscience, but I feel just as if something most depressing had happened." She hadn't realized what it was when the dressing gong already thundered out from the house.

"We must fly," exclaimed Mary.

Midway on their flight to the house they encountered the young airman bent on some errand to the motor bicycle.

Without preamble he said to Mary, "Can you spare me some dances?"

"Yes," said Mary. (Well, she couldn't very well say no, could she?)

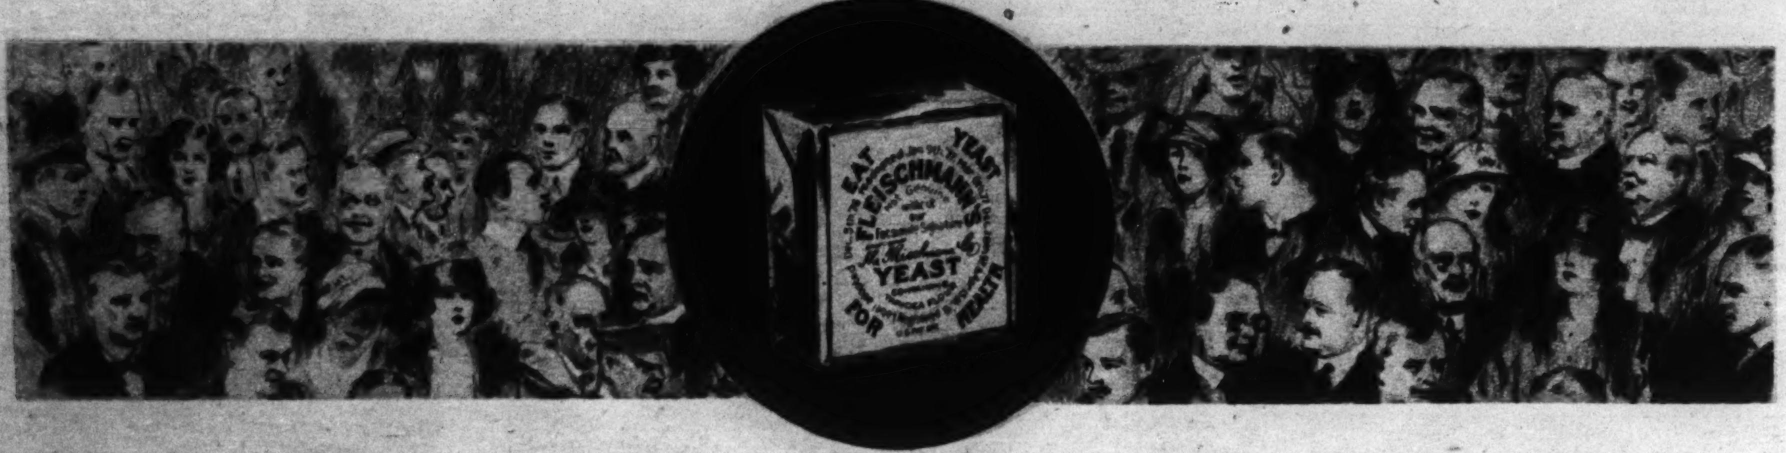
"Will you give me three and nine to start with, then?"

Again she could show absolutely no reason for refusal.

As they turned into the house her fiance said, "Have you ever met that fellow before?"

"Once," faltered Mary, and fled upstairs, for she saw Cousin Elizabeth looming in the hall.

In her room it suddenly occurred to Mary



RAISED TO A NEW IMPORTANCE IN THE LIVES OF MILLIONS

Science has found in the familiar cake of Fleischmann's Yeast a food to combat three common complaints

For fifty years the familiar little cake of Fleischmann's Yeast had been in daily use in millions of American homes. Yet until three years ago it was considered merely a necessary item in baking the most wholesome bread.

And then a series of experiments in some of the country's greatest laboratories raised the familiar foil-wrapped cake to a new importance.

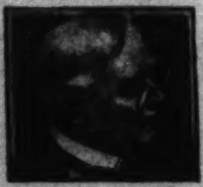
In three years — three astonishing discoveries

First it was discovered that Fleischmann's Yeast was peculiarly rich in vitamin, without which no amount of food can nourish the body properly. And now millions of weakened, undernourished men and women are finding in it the very elements necessary to regain their health and strength.

Then came the discovery that the tiny living cells of Fleischmann's Yeast help to cleanse the body of the poisonous waste that constantly accumulates. And an ever-widening circle of users throughout the nation are finding freedom from the bondage to dangerous cathartics.

And now it has been shown that Fleischmann's Yeast by increasing the number of white corpuscles in the blood acts as a powerful agent in clearing the complexion of many skin disorders. And so a third group, large and growing, are finding relief from painful and embarrassing skin disfigurements.

Everywhere physicians and hospitals are prescribing Fleischmann's Yeast today. Eaten regularly (for it is a food, not a medicine), it is helping hundreds of thousands of men and women to regain the joy of perfect, vigorous health. Letters pouring in from every state in the Union bear daily witness to the new place Fleischmann's Yeast has achieved as a health-builder for the nation.



Appetite and digestion restored

Men and women troubled with loss of appetite and faulty digestion have found that these troubles disappear when they eat Fleischmann's Yeast regularly. The great problem for such people is first to stimulate the appetite; and at the same time make it possible to digest the increased food that is eaten. Fleischmann's Yeast has this remarkable effect on the digestive system. It enables you to eat more, and to get more benefit from the food you eat.

Laxatives made unnecessary

Fleischmann's Yeast does for you naturally and permanently what drugs at their best do only artificially and for a short time.

In hospitals, even chronic cases respond to it, and normal functions are restored in from 3 days to 5 weeks.

Fleischmann's Yeast is assuring to thousands a complete daily elimination of waste matter—a body kept clean and free from poisons.

Skin and complexion cleared

Skin troubles are often danger flags of lowered vitality. Fleischmann's Yeast is now established as a food which corrects the basic cause of many disorders of the skin.

That ruddy glow of health—that freedom from such unhealthy skin conditions comes only from perfect health within. Fleischmann's Yeast rids you of these disorders by building up the whole system and keeping stomach and intestines in a natural healthy state.

An absorbing free booklet tells what Fleischmann's Yeast has done for others and can do for you. Send this coupon for it today!

why she had felt wretched in the rose garden.

After all, she hadn't liked it when Henry kissed her!

The PRINCE'S KISS

THE quarrel—the first quarrel she'd ever had with her Henry—took place at the beginning of the dance, during numbers one and two, which, of course, she'd booked with him.

Now the two first items on a program are usually peaceful if not slow; people haven't got worked up.

Mr. Ferguson, however, had. He wouldn't dance. With a look of purpose he led his Mary to a secluded stairway corner, and, sitting out there, he made a row royal.

Immediately he demanded to know what she meant by her behavior; then, without waiting for the girl to reply to this question, he supplied the answer. He supplied the truly terrible fancy picture of Mary's character; hypocrisy, duplicity being the keynotes. She, whom he had always considered so different from the jazz girl, the modern hussy who has no charm or reverence or modesty—she was just like them all. Only far, far worse, because she pretended to be different, and they didn't. At last she was sailing under her true colors!

Here he gave a searing glance at her frock—the one lent by Miss Homeleigh-Browne. It was a daring little gown of flaring tangerine color; glowing, passionate. Never before had Mary worn any color but washy pink or subdued saxe blue. This vibrant orange made another creature of her.

At last, said Mr. Ferguson, he saw her for what she was. Her own cousin had let him know the whole story of Mary's disgraceful behavior at Paddington.

"Yes, I wish to explain about that," Mary put in.

Useless. Mr. Ferguson would let her explain nothing. He was well into his stride as a lecturer of little boys; he held forth to Mary as if she were some small defaulter in the Lower Third. He told her just how "thin" he thought her story about only having seen the young airman once before.

"But you can ask him," protested Mary, the pink flame in her cheeks just as vivid as the orange flame in her gown. "He will tell you."

"Yes, more variations on the same theme," retorted Mr. Ferguson bitterly.

"You mean you don't believe either of us?"

"Is it likely I should? I have your own cousin's word for the way in which you behaved at the station. I meet the young man himself staying in the house. Too much of a coincidence altogether. Then the change in you—in your dress, your manner, your appearance generally"—here another glance at Mary's quite lovely shoulders. Never before had she shown so much of them at any dance. Mr. Ferguson disapproved of every dimpled ivory inch. He wound up with a curt "Quite enough."

"More than enough," cried Mary flaming again. "You don't expect me, do you, to go on being engaged to a man who can't trust me?"

Henry Ferguson, who had been working up to the climax of saying, "You don't expect me, do you, to go on being engaged to a girl whom I cannot trust?" found the wind taken out of his sails. He could only hold out his hand to take the pearl ring which Mary, with an unmistakable gesture of finality, handed back to him, when a voice at the door said in a tone not to be denied, "Our dance, I believe?"

It was the airman.

Mary rose and floated off with him, looking like a flame blown by the wind.

THREE and nine were the dances for which she had been asked; actually the program showed something more like three to nineteen and the extras. There was so much, so extraordinarily much to be said by both of them. Perhaps you think Captain Prince began by his apology and his explanation of the scene in the train? No, the first thing he said was, "Did my eyes deceive me or did I see you giving back a ring just now to that chap with glasses?"

"You did see me," admitted Mary, who indeed could scarcely keep from laughter as they danced; "but what do you mean?"

"What do you mean by ever having been engaged to such a dud?"

By this time Mary herself wondered. It wasn't until number nine, after many other things had been said, that the audacious Prince asked her if she had forgiven him yet for what happened the first time she saw him.

"I shall never forgive you," said Mary, with palpable insincerity.

"What a pity," returned the young man, perfectly unmoved. "You see, unless I knew you had forgiven me, I couldn't explain to you what and how it happened."

"O, very well, then," said Mary, resigned. "I forgive you. Explain, please."

And, after all, the explanation seemed almost as impossible as the rest of the incident. "Why did I do it?" explained the airman. "Because I wanted to. I spotted you five minutes before, getting your ticket to somewhere (never dreaming it was to here!), and I thought, 'What a dear little face! Only, how sad; how easy to see that it has never been kissed.'"

"How easy to make mistakes, you mean! I was engaged: I'd been engaged for two years."

"Well, doesn't it show that that didn't count? There are kisses that don't," he informed her. "They don't count any more than the wind blowing a dead leaf against your lips. They haven't. Have they?"

"Go on, please."

"This," went on the young man, "was when I'd gone to get my motor bicycle out of the Left Luggage Office. Instead, I followed you to the train. I just wanted to see the last of a very taking 'asleep' little face."

"I'm not asleep."

"You aren't now. You were then. I saw you sitting at the carriage window, alone, as I thought. I thought, 'What a frightful shame! Nobody to see her off! Never has been any one to see her off yet: quite possibly never will be any one in our moth eaten state of civilization, when we all behave so circumspectly.' I thought, 'What a miserable world when a girl like that can be left to pine away unkissed until she's fifty, perhaps! I shall never see the little thing again,' thought I. Pity I can't give her one really decent kiss and wish her luck for a sendoff! Can't do her any harm, just for once in her life, so here goes!'—and there went."

"With a vengeance!" exclaimed Mary, indignantly (though she realized that the indignation was a little late). "As for 'no harm being done,' can't you see that you've completely wrecked my reputation for being a nice, quiet, sensible girl? You've given Cousin Elizabeth a stick to beat me with for the rest of my life. You've 'crashed' my engagement——"

"To a dud; and I've shown you what being engaged really means. Yes! Don't be silly, darling," this child of impulse stifled Mary's protests. "Of course we're engaged. What else is there to be done? We shall never get anybody (except our mothers) to believe this wild legend of our not having met before. Consequently we may as well fall in with theirs: that we've known each other secretly for ages. Perhaps we have, sweetheart. Anyhow, there's going to be another existence for us from tonight on," and he slipped his arm ingratiatingly about her shoulder, "a pretty different one. For the sake of appearances——"

"Yes. Do let's study those," Mary begged him, with a last attempt at satire.

"For the sake of appearances we won't give it out officially until—whatever the usual time may be. Unofficially, and in your ear"—which was already close against his lips—"I intend to take my answer here and now."

As I said, this story begins with a kiss. It also ends with one. Or, rather, with a great many.

THE FOX

By Owen Oliver

PEOPLE who do not know me think that I am nineteen and shy and stupid and sentimental. I am not any of them. I was two and twenty last fall. My dressmaker keeps me young. She says that it suits me. Shyness goes with the dresses. It is merely a superficial adornment. I am not stupid as people go. How could the daughter of "Hard Hardy," the millionaire, be a fool? Ask him. He knows his little daughter! As for sentiment, I may have had a leaning to that line; but I've been hunted through three continents for my money. The fox can't look upon the hunt romantically if she is to escape. And I have.

Last spring I got fairly sick of being a fox, and I spoke to Cousin Frank about it. He looks a fool with his single eyeglass, but the eyeglass is the fool, not Frank. When he takes it off he's six feet of good looks and strength.

"Pull that thing out of your eye," I commanded, "and talk to me. I know you'll talk wisdom. You can't help it, poor chap. But I shan't believe it is wisdom while you wear that. When you get a wife she'll smash it for you."

He removed it unwillingly and looked at me. Somehow he can make me feel like a naughty child.

"Thinking of marrying me?" he drawled.

"Don't be an ass," I said. "Though I don't know that your suggestion is so asinine. It seems to me that the only way I can escape being married for my money is to marry some one who doesn't need it; somebody like you!"

"Heavens!" he cried. "Of course, I'd be delighted for myself; but I must put up a fight for my eyeglass!"

I couldn't help laughing.

"Really and truly, Frank," I said, "I'm hipped. Tell me honest. Am I so bad that no one would marry me for myself? Don't chaff."

He lit a cigaret.

"Honest Injun, kid," he pronounced, "you're quite nice. A man might marry you for your looks; and for several other reasons. But for one reason I'd do it myself."

"The eyeglass!" I shrugged my shoulders.

"No," he denied. "The reason is that I've always had a cranky fancy about my wife. I'd like her to be in love with me."

"O, gracious!" I cried. "Would you! Now don't chaff me, Frank. Please don't. That is just what we all want. What I do. Help me, like a sport. You know I tried to go off incog last year; and they all spotted me. All the hunters went incog, too! Well, this time I've got a plan that really ought to work to dodge the reporters and the rest of them. Only you can never be sure. They're so artful. I want you to turn on some people that you can really trust; to watch the men who hang round me—if any do—and report whether they have found out who I am. Then you can wire and let me know. See!"

"I see," he said; "but a chap might be after you for yourself and yet not be the right one, you know. You mustn't take up the first disinterestedly affectionate ass!"

"As if I would!" I cried.

"Well," he said, "promise me to be sensible, and I'll help."

I PROMISED, of course. Frank's word is always as good as the bank. So I made my preparations at once, and he arranged things; and then I went. He wrote that he believed that I had evaded the reporters. Anyhow I was at Mossydene Sanatorium for a week, and no one made love to me. There was no one there that I wanted to. So I moved on to Wood Springs.

I lived at a country farm there. The cows and pigs and chickens were friends directly; and so were the farmer and his wife. All the rustics tried to make love to me. Unfortunately they were simply impossible, except the village schoolmaster. He was a superior young man. He had a taste for poetry and all sorts of culture, and a way of looking at you that was—O, a way! I wasn't exactly in love with him, but I thought it possible that I might be. I had told him that I was a poor orphan and was going out as a governess or something. But somehow, as I stood him up beside Frank (without the eyeglass) or father, he seemed outclassed. Still, I wasn't quite sure until a wire came from Frank in the cipher that we had arranged.

"Some leakage evidently taken place. Beware fair young man with rather curly hair and blue eyes. Suggest rapid move to E on list. Leave clothes behind, as if going out for short time only. Smith will send new outfit to E. I will call and pay landlady. Wire reply."

I WIRED that I would go; and I did. From E, I wrote to Frank, through the channel I arranged, thanking him. I said that I had never felt quite sure about the schoolmaster, and it was dreadful to think that people could be so deceitful.

E was quite a lively place—Water's End, in fact—and there were a lot of young fellows at the boarding house. But they seemed to prefer girls who were freer in their ways than I; ready to let anything in trousers take them out. However, there was a nice old colonel and his wife, and they were kind to me; and their nephew came down for a week-end and stayed till Wednesday, instead of going back on the Monday. He spent most of the time looking after me. He seemed to be quite a possibility. We all went to the theater on Tuesday evening; and he squeezed my hand. He told me, when he said good-bye, that he should come down the next week-end also; and possibly the one after, if I was staying on there. I was inclined to think that I shouldn't be, cause somehow I didn't think I really wanted to fall in love with him. You see, I felt that I was cleverer than he was, and stronger. The men of my family are real men; especially father and Frank (behind the eyeglass). You get them in a tight corner and see!

Still I was bucked that Capt. Grayson was really gone on me for myself, until a letter came from Frank. That was also in cipher.

"Have ascertained that tall young officer, calling himself Grayson, is a notorious adventurer. Presumably he has traced you, though unable to ascertain how. Wilson, disguised as a hawker, will tell you how to get away while you are inspecting his wares. New outfit already at H. Am taking special precautions to prevent tracking this time."

Mr. Wilson—he was one of the detectives that Frank had engaged—picked me up in a fast motor the next day and drove me right off to H—which was Gaytown. We called at a village on the way and I went to a cottage—he had arranged it splendidly—and I dressed up as a young and rather countrified girl.

The men simply ran after me as a flapper girl; and some of them seemed quite nice men. It was a pleasant experience, and made me think better of men as a class. Only they didn't fall in love with me, and I didn't fall in love with them.

So after a fortnight I wrote (in cipher) to Frank: "Nothing doing. They take me for a kid. Move me on, and move Mrs. Dunstan off. Am afraid she's going it with head waiter. Must have older outfit. Why don't you come to see me? Leave eyeglass at home. I'll chaperon you!"

HE wrote arranging for me to go to J, but pressed that Mrs. Dunstan should accompany me. However, she accepted the head waiter and they decided to be married at once. That settled her. I had a maid Frank sent instead; and we went in a closed motor, and I changed to about twenty on the journey (awfully swagger!). I can't make up older than twenty.

J was the hydro at Marley Mountains, and I had quite a good time. There was a big, rough, unpolished man, who had been a great traveler in wild parts and had made some money at the diggings. He had a wonderful knack of managing horses, and the dogs simply adored him; but he was awkward with ladies—almost rude. He was rude once with me; only once! I told him what I thought of him; and he thought over what I thought; and then he said, "You're quite right. I am an uncivilized boor, as you say; but if you'll give me a few lessons in civilization I'll take them in all right."

So I set to work civilizing him, and he was a splendid pupil; only the more civilized he became the less I liked him. You see, I could order him about just as I pleased. You can't do that with the men of my family. Of course, I can manage father in lots of things; and even Frank; but in some things I can't; and in a few they can even manage me! I do like pigheaded men!

Frank was pigheaded about my staying on at the hydro. Before I had nearly finished civilizing the rough man he came down in disguise and said he was my guardian and took me out in a motor. He didn't

THE STORY THUS FAR

MARY'S island had been held sacred for many years because it was the burial place of a bride who had been drowned. Her husband had purchased the island as a perpetual memorial. Alison MacNair, daughter of a famous astronomer, paddles in her canoe to the vicinity of the island, curious about reports that strange building operations are in progress there. She finds the intruder is Richard Douglas, nephew of the owner of the island, and that he is cheekily building a stone house single-handed to convince his Uncle Jonathan that he is good for something, that he can finish a project as well as start it. His idea is that if he can get the house up before Uncle Jonathan discovers him the latter will take him back in his good graces and give him the house. Alison and Richard become friends and she helps him. Her innocent visits to the island result in an estrangement between Richard and his fiancee. Finally one day Uncle Jonathan, supposed to be in Scotland, bobs up wrathfully and stumbles upon Alison. Studying him, she decides he looks like Capt. Kidd or Morgan might look in modern garb.

PART II.

Uncle Jonathan's Decision.

ALISON discovered then that Uncle Jonathan's eyes were the most terrible of all, perhaps because they held so luminous an intensity of expression. Or, to be more accurate, of observation. They were devouring eyes and gave the impression of absorbing all parts of her with a sort of X-ray omnivorousness, noting, recording, assaying, whilst yet giving no clew as to the result of their analysis.

Alison, under the assimilation of their gaze, felt as though she were standing bare and exposed, less before the scrutiny of one man than a hundred. But one fortifying feature they held for her at least, and this lay in their knowingness. She felt that no man with eyes like that could read wrongly the motive of her presence there.

Uncle Jonathan was the first to speak, and his voice harsh but not unpleasant acted as a tonic on Alison because it was not unlike that of Richard, and it was tinctured by the suggestion of a Scotch accent.

"And are you a party to all this flumduddery, young lady?" he demanded.

"Yes, sir," Alison answered firmly enough, yet a little surprised at her admission of the fact.

"O! are you? So! Well, that is good hearin', as it lets me out immediately," said Uncle Jonathan with a sardonic grin, and it did not need his next words to tell Alison's quck wit how she had erred. "I thought just now while lookin' over his amazin' work that this wastrel nephew had me by the thrapple. But if he has had any help, however great or small, then the agreement is null and void and his work may stand as a monument to cheek."

"Why, that's exactly what Richard said," Alison exclaimed; and added quickly, inspired by the gleam in Uncle Jonathan's eyes. "He said that, of course, anybody could wriggle out of such a contract if he chose to take it literally and not in its broader sense. Because nobody ever can really accomplish anything by his own unaided efforts without help of some sort."

"O, can he not?" growled Uncle Jonathan, as the luminosity of his eyes returned. "You are a bright girl to see so quickly the joker in the proposition—and the more fool he to have overlooked it."

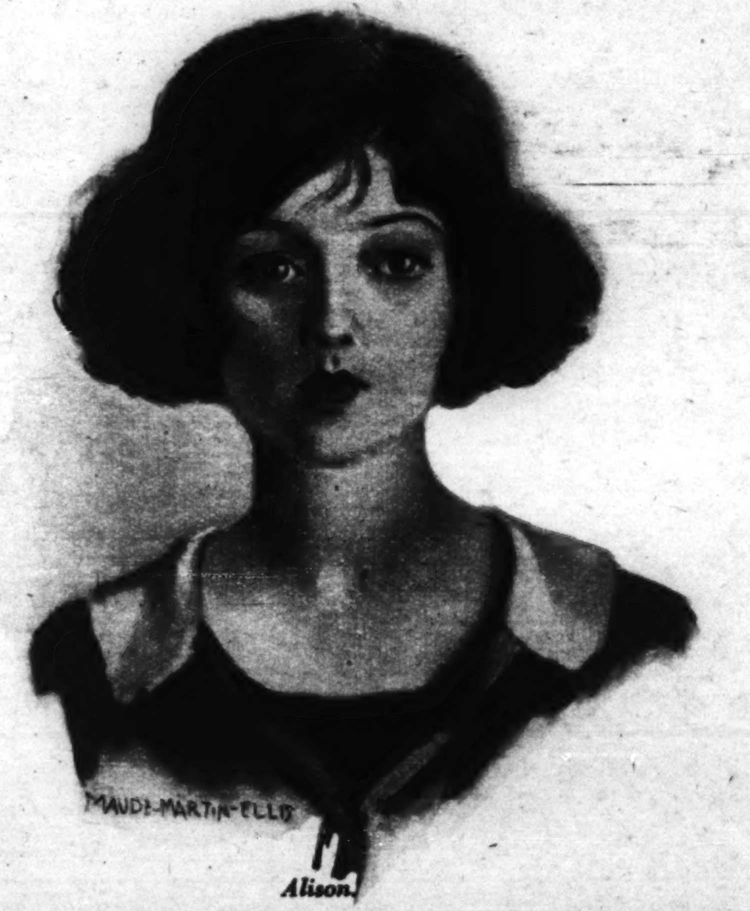
"He didn't overlook it," Alison retorted; "he merely played a bet that you might."

A grin, a little less sardonic, gave a more human aspect to Uncle Jonathan's grim mouth. "How much did you help him?" he asked.

"Mostly by encouragement," said Alison, "though sometimes I held a turn of rope or mixed cement or something of the sort. But since it was unpaid labor we decided that it could not be considered as practical aid."

"And were there no gratuities of any kind for you?" asked her tormentor. "And if not, why should you be wasting your time?"

"For the same reason that you might waste yours playing golf or riding horseback," Alison retorted. "It amused me in my idle moments, and besides I might build a stone house myself some day and thought I'd like to see how it was done. Call it an apprenticeship."



Alison.

HER quick wit seemed less to amuse Uncle Jonathan than give him food for thought.

"There is something in what you say," said he, "and I am not so sure that strictly speaking in a business sense he has kept within the letter of his agreement so far as your aid is concerned. But surely now"—his eyes seared into hers—"there has been another helper or helpers. He cannot have managed all this alone and in so short a time."

"He has, though," Alison answered. "Not one living hand has been raised to help him but mine. I live with my father over on the mainland. I paddled over to see what he was about and got acquainted with him. After that I came from time to time to see how he was getting on and he let me help a little, just as the carpenters who built our bungalow let me help when I was a little girl."

"And who is your father?" asked Uncle Jonathan, "and how did he come to let a girl like you go paddlin' about alone and pass her time with a strange young man?"

Alison flushed darkly. "My father is an astronomer named MacNair," said she, and wondered at the sudden glow in the observant eyes. "He lets me go about alone with the understanding that I shall never be out of the field of the telescope on our porch if he should want to know what I'm about. And I never have."

Uncle Jonathan looked interested. "A sensible arrangement," said he, then turned abruptly on his heel. "Let us go look again at the work."

ALISON was surprised that he should take no notice whatever of the lonely cairn, and yet some instinct told her that he had been impelled to visit it against his will and was on the whole relieved at the unexpected living presence there. No doubt his nature was one of those who, having entombed a loved one in an impenetrable recess of the soul, prefer to avoid the material reminder of a loss. She had long since decided that there must be some deep poetic stratum in a man who had departed from conventions as this man had done in the purchase of a lovely island as a family cemetery for a solitary tenant and that no doubt it would be discovered on his death that he had made provision for the removal of his own earthly tenement to share the cairn. But for the moment he seemed to have put the latter from his mind and together they walked back to the site of the unfinished house.

"Where is Richard?" he asked.

"Gone to the mainland for a load of cement," said Alison. "He never leaves the island except for material or supplies."

Uncle Jonathan appeared to be silently weighing the component parts of the structure stone by stone. He noted the manner of their placing, the massive keystones of the Gothic windows, the heavy oak floor beams, sawn and ready to place, and his constructive eye appeared to miss no detail of the simple but efficient mechanical devices that had made such achievement possible to one working single handed. He observed the galvanised iron pipe leading to a tank from the inexhaustible spring, the solidly constructed hoist and derrick, the forge and anvil under a rough shack of slabs. There was a deeper glow than ever in his cavernous eyes as he turned suddenly to Alison. "It seems a pity," said he, "that all of this should go for naught."

Alison's heart sank. "O, must it?" she cried. "Aren't you going to stand for the general sense of your agreement?"

"It is not a question of that," said Uncle Jonathan harshly. "He has broken it from the beginning—not through any aid from your childish hands, but because no house can be the lawful property of a man so foolish as to take pains to erect it on the land of another; waste land though this may be or of governmental ownership. By the terms of the agreement the home was to be Richard's when finished and as the case stands he would be havin' not so much as a squatter's sovereignty. But"—his voice grew a little deeper—"I might overlook his trespass if it were not for one thing—one poor and miserable and calculatin' thing."

"What?" murmured Alison, though she already guessed. He gave her a searching look, then seemed to realize that she knew.

"That minx he's engaged to marry," said Uncle Jonathan. "Belike you saw her when she came here. She and her avaricious mother tattled to me of a girl they saw paddlin' away from the island in a canoe on their approach. Now, mind you, lassie, I would not object to sharin' this island, where all that I love is enshrined and where one day my own poor clay is to be likewise laid, with a young kinsman and one he loves as I have loved and loves him in return as I have been loved."

Alison's mind flashed instantly to the thoughts that had so recently filled it and her doubts as to whether the island were destined to be actually a love island or one of discord. It seemed to her as if this craggy, uncanny man had read her mind and advanced an argument to which he knew she could find no defense. There seemed nothing for her to say. Uncle Jonathan looked toward the western sky in which lingered a bright afterglow.

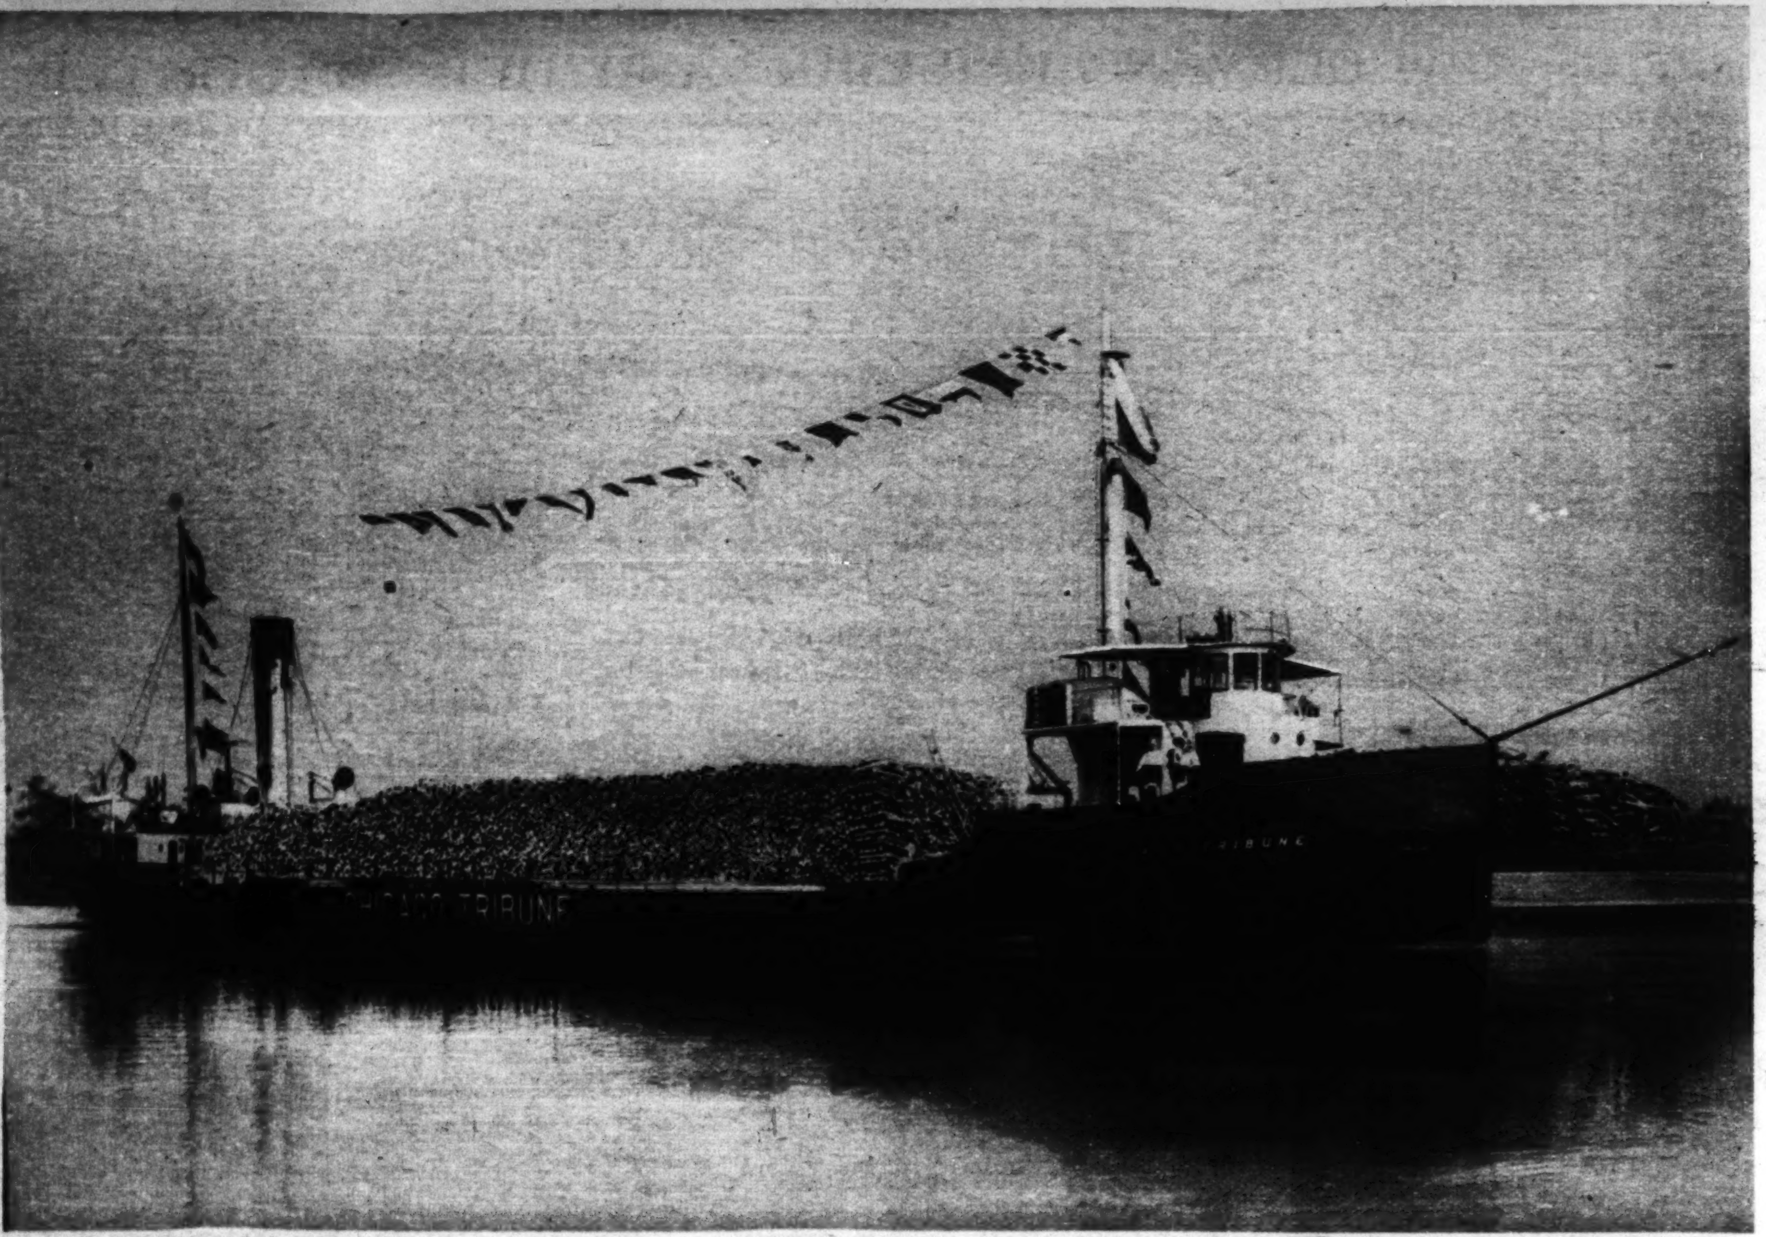
"I must be leavin'," said he, "and it is time that you yourself were gettin' back."

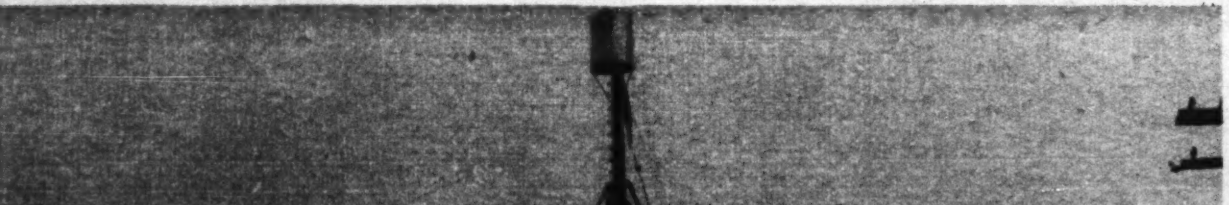
Alison, who had lost all sight of the lateness of the hour, glanced toward her house a mile away and saw the flag fluttering at the corner of the pier—her recall signal. No doubt at that moment her father was watching her curiously through the telescope and wondering why she should be standing there in conversation with this big man from the yacht.

"We must go," said Uncle Jonathan. "I shall inform Richard that it is useless for him to continue with his work. But I shall not tell him that if the girl with whom he planned to occupy the island were your brave and bonny self, the sweet lass who has helped him at his toil, then I would not even wait for him to finish his house but deed him the whole place on the spot, reservin' only for myself yon rocky point—and I would see to it that you did not starve here. I wish you good day, my dear——" and with a grave and courtly bow he turned, waved his panama and stalked off to the jetty for which the gig was already under way.

FOR reasons not immediately apparent, Alison avoided Mary's island for the next three days. But she kept her eye upon it through the telescope, and discovered that Richard was still engaged in some sort of activity the nature of which she could not determine. He appeared to be working about the foot instead of the top of the walls, and Alison was at a loss to guess the reason of this, the connections for drains and water pipes having been laid. She observed also that he worked fitfully and with long intervals of absence.

Then late in the afternoon of the fourth day she found herself quite unable to sustain the suspense, and slipping off in her canoe she paddled over to find Richard sitting listlessly in a window casement smoking the pipe that he had discarded during working hours, staring out across the water where





HERE is efficiency in newspaper making! These great steel steamers were specially designed and built for The Tribune to carry pulp logs from its timber lands to its paper mill. They possess greater capacity than any other boats navigating the St. Lawrence and Welland canals. The high crow's nest enables them to navigate while other boats are held up by the low-lying fogs which settle between the banks of the St. Lawrence.

The Tribune has had to go to great lengths to be able to give its readers the value that there is in every day's issue and to be able to sell advertising space at such low rates. Practically all the pulp wood forests of this country are closely held by the great paper-making corporations. To secure an economical source of supply, The Tribune had to explore tractless virgin forests in northeastern Quebec, it designed special ships, and built a paper manufacturing plant.

These great steamers, and others, ply their slow way up and down the St. Lawrence in order to keep filled the hungry maw of Tribune presses. So it is that the substance of these North-woods spruce trees becomes the parchment upon which is written that daily epic of man's coming and his going, of his deeds of high adventure, of his great achievements, which we call the newspaper. So it is that the greatness of The Tribune is heralded in billboard letters in the silent reaches of northeastern Quebec. For The Tribune believes in advertising—always.

a faint breeze was stirring. Alison sensed something very wrong. There was a sort of fatal atmosphere about him. His face looked strained and haggard as it had never done when nearing the completion of a day of terrific toil. It was hard and reckless, too, and his eyes burned with a dull glow that reminded Alison of the eyes of his uncle.

"What have you been doing?" she asked.

Richard gave a short laugh. "Call it mining and sapping," he answered.

"What!" Alison exclaimed.

"Mining my vain hopes and ambitions for the future of myself and my one-time fiancee, and sapping my strength in self-condemnation equally vain. I have had my moving orders from Uncle Jonathan. He came here in that little yacht you may have noticed just after we parted the other day. But this bum bet of mine shall not stand here as the monument to cheek as he suggests, and I have taken measures to obliterate the appearance of vandalism by setting out small trees to replace the ones I have cut."

"But the house!" cried Alison.

"The house," said Richard, "is mined in four places with high explosives so placed that when detonated simultaneously the mass of masonry should slide for the most part down the slope of the cliffs. What is left of it should soon return to a perfect mimicry of nature. I propose to leave the place as nearly as possible as I found it."

Alison turned white. "Did your uncle order you to do this?" she asked.

"Why, no," said Richard. "As a matter of fact he did not order me to quit the premises. He merely informed me that I was not fulfilling my agreement by building on a property to which I had no legal claim, and hinted that if I cared to finish something that I had started for the first time in my life, I was quite at liberty to do so, but he warned me that on its completion he would seize the building and make use of it as he saw fit. Well, after all, it's no worse than playing a poor bet on an oil well or gold mine or suburban real estate."

Alison's strong little hands clenched into firm fists.

"Then in blowing up your house," said she, "I take it that you're blowing up your future matrimonial intentions at the same time."

"Quite so," said Richard, "and a darned shame I didn't blow them up first, but she has beaten me to it."

"O, Richard!" cried Alison. "I am very much afraid that they are right—your uncle, your fiancee and her mother. I'm afraid that you're a quitter after all."

Richard's face darkened.

"'Fraid so," he answered, "but there's a shade of difference. When I get through here things will look rather as if I had never been a beginner."

"Well," said Alison, "but here's another. Why not assume that their intervention is of no importance at all to your original determination to start and finish a house. It may be of no value to Uncle Jonathan even after he has seized it, and it would be of purely negative value to your fiancee because you couldn't sell it and she'd never live here now under any circumstances. But it would be of tremendous value to you if only to have it stand as a monument to your fixed and inflexible purpose in spite of any opposition and to your strength of body and mind and craftsmanship and patience and industry and courage and all those things that go to make a man."

Richard stared at her for a moment, then sprang to his feet. There was now more than a suggestion in the resemblance of his eyes to those of his uncle. For there was between them a common tie, stronger than is oftener that of blood; this was the tie of craftsmanship, of indomitable builders. They had both the pride of craft and the love of craft, as intrinsic a quality in some natures as the maternal. They were of the breed and mettle that would settle and build in a hostile country to which they had none but a predatory right, see their homes razed, themselves driven into the wilds, return to their sites to build again and fortify, fight for their tenure and eventually hold fast to it.

Something in Alison's words had now fanned this smoldering ember of Richard's nature into flame. The imaginative quality of his nature was not all whimsy. He saw suddenly the situation as she saw it, even as it is probable she would have seen it without those astonishing parting words of Uncle Jonathan.

"By gad, you're right, little chum!" said Richard, and as his eyes rested on her inspired face his whole countenance became ignited from their flame. "I'll carry on to the bitter end!"

"Of course, you will," cried Alison rapturously, "and when you've finished you'll go to Uncle Jonathan and say, 'do what you like with it! I started to build it and I've finished building it. It may be a monument to cheek, but you've got to admit that it is no ruined monument.'"

Richard, staring at her, appeared to be the object of some sort of magic spell—fairy spell. The fatigue sloughed off him as he might have thrown aside a tattered work stained garment. The hard contours of his features lost their purposeless rigidity, became pliant and supple, like muscles stiffened in an interlude of action resuming their function again. He looked from Alison to the house, then back to Alison again. His low cheerful laugh rippled out.

"This builder's strike is nipped in the bud," said he, "and the sabotage arrested just in time. Work resumes at sunrise tomorrow."

THE stone house on Mary's island was by this time, late September (Dick had broken ground early in March), finished so far as could be discerned by the passing eye of the curious. It was, of course, not a big house, but a sort of nucleus for future extension, and snugly habitable for its builder to carry on the work of the interior throughout the winter.

On the eve of her departure Alison paddled over to bid Richard farewell until the summer following. She found him in a state of curious suppression, yet cheerful, and giving less the impression of the human derrick than the human dynamo.

"I'm getting ready to go into winter quarters," said he. "Part of this place will be machine shop and saw and planing mill, and I'm installing an electric lighting system. You'll see some changes the next time you come. And I've figured it out that it's not going to be entirely dead loss. When Uncle Jonathan comes to look over the finished premises I propose to present him with, the least he can do will be to give me a real job in one of his construction plants, and that's more than he'd ever do before."

Alison nodded. "Besides," said she, "you're not really making him a present. He gave you the money to buy your material when he told you to clear out. But aren't you going to get awfully lonely?"

"No," said Richard shortly. "I shall have plenty of companionship in my thoughts."

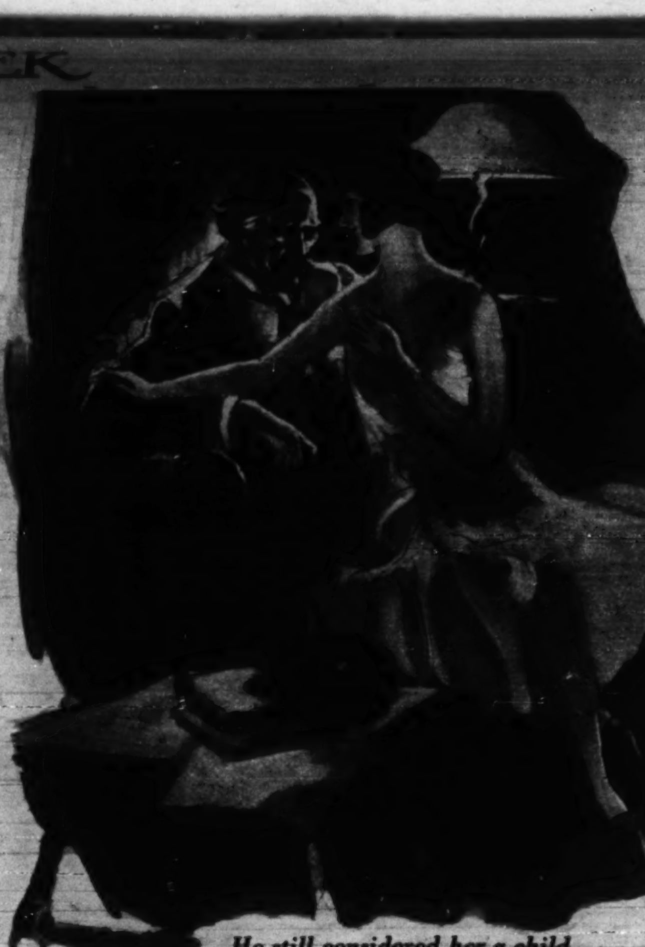
Alison's lips quivered with the query, "thoughts of what and whom," but she forbore asking it.

"Good-by," said she a little tremulously. "Don't come with me." She left him standing on the threshold and walked around to the point where stood the cairn, having left her canoe on the edge of the rocks beneath. Then hidden from Richard's sight by the bulk of the tomb no longer lonely—she dropped on her knees. Her brief prayer was singular.

"Take care of him, Mary, dear," said she, "and help him to win."

NEARLY ten months passed before Alison saw Mary's island again. She had finished her school—a stylish one, yet curiously enough the sophistication of the modern school girl had seemed unable to attach itself to her any more than tarnish can attach itself to precious metals, gold or platinum.

Her first eager view of the new stone house on Mary's island struck her with a sense of dreadful disappointment. It looked precisely as she had left it, as in the nature of its construction it was bound to look, where a new frame house would have shown marked embellishment in paint and lattice work and trimmings of various sort. It took Alison several moments to reflect that a building of solid masonry must depend for its adornment on landscape gardening, lawns, and terraces, or courts and gardens, and that winter had offered no opportunity for such work.



He still considered her a child.

But the rugged boldness of it quickly gripped her, also the charm of its pleasing proportions, and she saw presently that Richard had evidently commenced a small tower at its seaward end. His brief infrequent letters had told her only that he was getting on with the interior work, and Alison thrilled with eagerness to see what this might show.

The task of getting installed for the summer took all of her time for the next few days, for the astronomer's salary was small, his scientific contributions labors of love, so that he and Alison lived as simply as any of the local population. Her father had never shown any more than perfunctory interest in the builder on Mary's island, or in his work, or in his daughter's acquaintance with him. His faith in Alison's discretion was as unlimited as his respect for her good sense. She had always shown a tendency to pick out choice if chance acquaintances and was apt to retire before a massed attack of such, so that her friendships were few and strong. And the astronomer had long since discovered that as a chooser he had never known her intuition to go wrong. It must also be remembered that he still considered her a child and, owing to the lack of selective costume for age, there had been no physical signs such as obtained in his day, the lowering of skirts and putting up of hair to announce the transition stage.

Alison, in fact, might at this phase of her life have been to any but the feministic eye either a big little girl or a little big girl, though her stature was about the average in height. But her athletic exercises had rounded her slenderness femininely, and without emphasis on muscular development. The smallness of her waist might have proclaimed her withdrawal from infancy if it had been apparent, but in her slight sailor blouses this became so only when the wind blew. Her hair had never been clubbed, but it was curly and she gathered up its ends and coiled them on the top of her small head in a way to suggest the prevailing fashion.

On the third day after their arrival there drifted in from the sea a white, smoky fog with the sun burning at its top so brightly that, although the vapor was impenetrable, one felt cheered by the reminder of sunshine not far away and the promise of a dissipation of the mist at almost any moment. Alison determined to take advantage of its friendly screen to visit Mary's island and Richard.

She desired to scout the premises a little before actually announcing herself, because she felt that it was going to make a tremendous difference in her state of heart toward him if she were to find that he had passed his winter apathetically or absented himself or lost heart in his undertaking, and of this she had a dreadful fear from the outward visible aspect of the place. She had counted on his sustained energy to keep on as he had begun and accomplish something really as extraordinary as had been accomplished at the time of her departure. But if on the contrary Richard had permitted himself to sink into sloth, gradually diminishing his efforts to the vanishing point, then Alison felt that she must admit failure for herself as well as for him and that she would be very much to blame for having urged him to carry on his work to completion.

There is something admirable about a purposeful hermit whose retirement is effective, such as a scientist who retires to the wilds to study some phase of natural life, or the prospector or Arctic explorer. One may admire a man who lives alone in the wilderness if only to study the chatter of monkeys, or even the religious recluse who passes his solitude in prayer and meditation for humanity's good. But nobody can feel much respect for one who prefers to live alone without the accomplishment of anything. It is too much like an admission of failure to support contact with his fellowmen, and even the harmless dreamer is rather a contemptible object.

A GOOD deal of this was in Alison's mind as she paddled her way through the white fluffy fog with the accurate if unconscious orientation of the sea pigeon she sometimes suggested. No local lobsterman could have more accurately hit the tip of Mary's island on the nose than did she, and, having secured her canoe in its accustomed niche, she made her way up over the rocks, suggesting in her light gray jersey dress some spirit materialized from the enveloping vapor.

Then as the rough gray facade of the house reared suddenly above her she stopped with a quick indrawing of her breath. Voices were coming through the fog and they were not pleasant voices, nor were their accents amicable. One of them she recognized instantly as that of Uncle Jonathan, the other was Richard's, though its intonation was not such as she had ever heard. It was evident that a quarrel was in progress, and Alison was more surprised at this than at the presence of Uncle Jonathan. It didn't seem to her that there was anything to quarrel about, because it had been understood that Richard had no claim to advance against the work that he had done.

There is a great deal to be said in the censure of eavesdropping which, taking it full and by, is a contemptible way of gathering information. Yet, when one stops to think, most of us are constantly eavesdropping whether in peace or war, in hunting or in the attempt to discover the secrets of nature. We even listen in to glean if possible the private workings of the mind of the one with whom we are in contact. The most devoted of mothers would not hesitate to overhear the converse of her child, nor the most honest or astute of politicians or financiers to gain corruptious information. Ethically, it would seem the dishonor of eavesdropping lies in the motive for so doing and then in the use made of knowledge thus obtained.

WHATEVER the excuse offered, it may be said that Alison, a straightforward character, did not hesitate to listen to what was being said. If she had stopped to question this act, which she did not, the chances are that she would have found justification in the fact of herself being so intimately involved in the business that it was actually her own. From the suddenness with which the altercation had broken out, it would seem to have been carried from a farther corner of the house to an open window directly under which she stood.

"You brought it on yourself," rasped Uncle Jonathan. "Why did ye keep on after my warning? I will not say but that ye have made your point, so far as sheer dogged obstinacy goes. But a more important one is, what good did ye count on its doin' ye?"

Richard's voice, hard, cold, and offensive in its curtness to Alison's ears, answered, "I don't feel called upon to say. Call it mulishness."

"That would not be the word," snapped Uncle Jonathan. "A mule stands still, refusin' to go ahead, while you have gone ahead, refusin' to stand still."

Alison's heart gave a sort of triumphant leap. Then Richard had really gone ahead, for Uncle Jonathan had seen the place as she had last seen it. Richard had gone ahead, and that was the main thing.

"I do not see how you have managed to accomplish all this," Uncle Jonathan went on, "and I started life as a stone mason and have been a woodworker as well."

"If you think I've had any help"—— Richard interrupted.

"I do not, barrin' your own hot head and cool cheek. That is what stumps me. What led ye to think it would do ye any good?"

"Never mind what I thought," said Richard, roughly, "but I thought right. It has done me more good than it will ever do you, whether you choose to blow it up or live in it yourself as you hinted a moment ago, or let it stand a monument to cheek. It has made a man of me. It has brought back my faith in myself—in my ability to finish what I start."

"Well, that is something, I must admit," said Uncle Jonathan, but not graciously, for his tone suggested to Alison a sneer. "Let us hope that it may satisfy you. But was that all?"

"If there was any more," said Richard, "it's none of your damned business. Here's your house, all finished inside and out, and let me tell you this much, that in all your real estate transactions, note shavings, mortgage foreclosures and the like, you never made a better investment than when you gave me that five thousand dollars and told me to go to hell in my own way. You've got it all back and sixteen months' hard labor for nothing."

"And you have got back your self-respect," sneered Uncle Jonathan. "Well, then, if we are both satisfied with our bargain, there is no more to be said."

"Absolutely nothing," Richard answered. "I'll clear out of here as soon as you want to move in."

"That will be next week," said Uncle Jonathan, with a sort of fatuous complacency that struck a state of anger through Alison. It seemed to give justification to Richard's hot words about note shaving and the squeezing of the mortgage, and the millionaire's next words confirmed this. "It has always been in my mind to build here just such a bit of stone house as you have built and to pass here the summers of my declinin' years. But my conscience would not permit that I should profit by the same through any foolish error of yours, however unwarranted. So I will be payin' ye the full wage for your time, which my experience tells me must have been about sixteen workin' hours in the twenty-four."

ALISON could stand it no longer. She moved away toward the front of the house, intending to rap or ring or in any other way announce her presence, enter and tax the old man with the mean and subtle avarice that had trapped her into urging Richard to carry on the work to completion. Then with one foot on the lower of the broad stone steps, she paused. What was she to tell him? His words to her had been that if his nephew were to make his home there with herself he would deed over the property without waiting for the completion of the house. How could she be sure that this statement had not been sincere? How did she know but that he had conceived immediately a tremendous approval of herself, and that judging from her mere presence there and her own admission of helpfulness had been convinced that she and Richard were already in love with each other?

Alison experienced a sudden volte-face of her estimate of Uncle Jonathan. She had just heard him trying to sound Richard as to his motive for having kept on. The old man desired to know whether his perseverance was due to anything Alison might have told him—the hope of reward—and Alison having told Richard nothing of this, he had angrily resented what he took to be an insinuation that he had counted on his uncle's softening of heart. She knew that Richard had not counted on this, and by this time it was pretty evident that Uncle Jonathan must know it also.

For a moment Alison was tempted to slip back to her canoe and withdraw permanently from the whole singular affair. But that same curiosity previously referred to made it impossible for her to leave without at least one peep at the interior. She desired intensely to see what Richard had accomplished during all those long, dark, dreary winter months. The big front door of heavy oak, still in the rough, but solidly imposing, was slightly ajar.

Alison went up the steps and pushed it wider, when the refracted light from the shimmering fog shone in to bring out every detail. Alison could scarcely believe her eyes. She had on a visit to Edinburgh with her father, where he addressed a convention of the Royal Astronomical society, been entertained in two or three old Scotch country homes, and aside from the softening and enriching of age this might have been the main hall of one of the more modest of these houses which she now surveyed.

The floor was of square red tiles, and at the far end of the room a big stone fireplace and chimney of white water smoothed stones that she remembered but had never thought could prove so effective, like the big floor beams overhead, cut from the white oaks in the island. The walls had a wash of white cement with which plaster had been mixed to relieve the somberness. But the most striking feature of the room were its beautiful proportions of length and breadth and height, and the even light diffused through the long Gothic windows. From one corner a massive stairway led up to the floor above.

THIS much Alison observed when she was herself discovered. Lost in her wonder for the undecorated result of Richard's toil, her immediate possessing thought was precisely what most women's would have been, this: how distinguished, yet comfortably intimate her own idea of furnishing could make such a room. She had not noticed the abrupt cessation of distant voices nor heard the soft pad of Richard's moccasins and his uncle's deck shoes on the tiles as they came from the other corner of the house.

They saw her simultaneously, a charming silhouette against the white impalpable background. There was a moment's pause, then Richard came forward swiftly and held out both his hands and said cheerfully and with a thrilling change from the rough angry voice which she had overheard:

"Well, Alison, here's the hut finished so far as the rough part of the construction is concerned, and here's Uncle Jonathan come to claim it just as we counted on his doing."

He turned to the grim, sardonic figure in the farther doorway. "Uncle, I have the honor to present Miss MacNair, who was my only helper in the building of the house, and after all," he added lightly, "when it comes right down to brass tacks she did help a lot, so that alone would let you out."

Uncle Jonathan made a stiff but stately bow. "Miss NacNair and I have already discussed that point. As hers was not paid labor I waived it," and the wide focused eyes that Alison remembered missed no detail in the expression of the faces of Alison and Richard.

They had no need. Richard's look of astonishment could not have been registered by the most skilled artist.

"The deuce you did!" said he, and looked at Alison. "You never told me."

Alison found herself for the first time in her life quite unable to speak. The sight of Richard and the touch of his hands had brought a sudden rush of emotions for which she was entirely unprepared. To her intense chagrin, she could feel her eyes filling with tears. Then as she stood there inarticulate, Uncle Jonathan's deep voice boomed out in a way to prove the beautiful acoustics of the room.

"I told the young lady she need not tell you what I said, nephew, but of course she was quite free to use her judgment in the matter. I am glad to see she acted as she did."

This statement braced Alison. "I should think you would be, to judge from what I just overheard in passing the windows," said she. "But, of course, you must have known you were perfectly safe in telling me that and that there was no danger of Richard's profiting by it in any case."

"Bosh!" said Uncle Jonathan. "Then I am more than ever puzzled to know why he should have kept on."

Alison's eyes flashed through her tears. O, you are, are you?" she jeered. "Then I'll just tell you so that there need be no further misunderstanding. He kept on because in spite of what you thought, and his fiancée and her mother thought, and any other fools may have seen fit to think, he is no quitter and never was and never possibly can be. He kept on, Mr. Douglas, because he is a MAN, and I urged him to keep on because I knew he was a man and I wanted him to prove it to the rest of you."

Richard was staring at her with glowing eyes. He seemed more on the verge of an explosion than the house had been at the moment of Alison's intervention. But Uncle Jonathan stepped on the fuse.

"Then in all fairness, my dear, and that he may feel some shame for his recent intemperate words, suppose you tell him what I said to you, and what you have not seen fit to repeat."

Alison gave a gasp. "I—I—never"——

"Then I shall," said Uncle Jonathan, "if only in my own defense," and before Alison could obey the impulse to leap upon him and clap her hand over his mouth, he continued. "I told her, nephew, that while I could not endure to see this island that is consecrated to the dearest memories of my life profaned by strife, I would gladly have it hallowed and enriched by love. It was plain to me that you and that avaricious Boston minx could breed naught but discord here. And not being entirely a fool, it was equally plain that this young lady's comin' here had neither coquetry nor entirely diversion for its basis. It seemed to me also that a man with the strength and brains and determination and other qualities to go with such a builder as you have shown yourself, could not possibly be such a blind fool as not to see the riches that the high gods had laid open to his hands. Nor am I sure that I was altogether wrong," and those extraordinary eyes betrayed now a twinkling at the corners as they rested on the younger man. For Richard appeared to be in danger of going suddenly to pieces. But as he looked at Alison these pieces were as quickly restored to their proper relations and welded there and infused with some sort of radioactivity of dazzling brightness.

HE started to speak, bungled it, swallowed hard, and tried again, this time successfully.

"Well, then," said he, "since it has come to a showdown I no longer withhold the motive that I thought you were trying to pry out of me in a fit of rage, Uncle Jonathan. I stuck not because of any sticktoitiveness in me nor because I loved the slavery nor particularly admire turning myself into a human winch. I stuck because Alison wanted me to stick and because I wanted Alison, and something told me that she would never want me unless I did stick. I never counted on your change of heart nor giving me the place, but I did hope that when you'd seen a practical and profitable and solid demonstration of what I could do, if I really made up my mind, you might give me a job along these lines that would make me feel justified in telling this darling girl how much I loved her and asking her to marry me."

Alison leaned back against the massive oak of the doorway. Uncle Jonathan surveyed her with a grim visage that had become suddenly luminous. His craggy face was not unlike the rough stone facade of the house against which the sun, having succeeded in burning a peep hole through the fog, was beating.

"Then here we all are, out of the fog at last," said Uncle Jonathan. "There was a moment not long since when I thought we were about to hit a rock. But since we have found the channel and made our landfall, you may be droppin' the pilot, which is myself. So I'll be wishin' you good day and go call on my old friend, your father. I wish you joy of your own new house, my dear, and for you, nephew, we shall talk later about that job ashore."

His big bulk seemed to bear down upon Alison, to overwhelm her. She felt the grasp of two huge hands upon her soft shoulders, and a light but bristling kiss upon her cheek, both cheeks. Then he was gone out into the mingled fog and sunshine, and toward the jetty and his waiting gig.

THE END.

THE ROOM

was going to Chicago in the morning to be Mr. Harwood's secretary. They visited a few minutes, and he promised to come and see her in Chicago—"unless olt Gurlin knocks my head off. Some day he do that, I guess." She laughed it away again and went out.

BUT, turning homeward, she found that something was sticking in her mind—namely: a big, unhandsome young man in a cap and loose flannel jacket. She had formed a professional opinion that this young man was strong and fast; that, for example, he could handily knock Peter into kingdom come; that he'd never had any doubt on that subject himself. She liked spirited people—young men, especially with chin up! This young man could hardly be said to have shown spirit. He had patiently swallowed from Peter Green an epithet which some young men of spirit consider a homicidal matter. All through he'd been mild, conciliatory, pacific. But cool.

It stuck around in her mind. Although she was all alone, some bubbles of laughter escaped her lips as she recalled how perplexed he'd looked when—after having quieted down that outrageous old man—he found idiotic Peter Green dancing at him, begging him to fight. It had been like trying to drive two stubborn pigs into a pen—one no sooner in than the other was out. And he'd looked so perplexed about it! She bubbled with indifferently bottled laughter as she recalled it.

But what had those men been doing at the factory? Trespassing, without doubt. Presently she discovered, with a touch of indignation, that she didn't propose to have a young man sticking around in her mind—trespassing, as one might call it. Probably he was a good young man, a nice, lubberly young man; but that was no reason why he should be trespassing in her mind. She threw him out She had more important things to think about—Chicago!

That was never far from her mind now, and steadily looming like a mountain range that one approaches across a plain. Looming nearer and nearer until she was stepping from the train under an enormous smoky shed and falling into rank with other passengers.

HARWOOD had told her to go to the Deermoore hotel, on Superior street, and said he would have a room reserved for her there. From the cab she looked up at its tall, narrow front of yellow pressed brick. A flight of stone steps led from the sidewalk to the entrance; and when she wrote her name on the register the clerk's manner at once changed from the impersonal to a friendly little glow.

"O, yes; Miss Malden!" he said. "We've been expecting you. Mr. Harwood had a room reserved." Obviously Mr. Harwood's name was open sesame to the best. This was the first wave of the wand.

Harwood had said this was a new hotel of the "family" type; being new, it would be clean. She surveyed, with little shivers of delight, the pleasant bedroom with a broad front window in the fifth story; bright chintz, fresh, clean—and the wonderfully compact white bath. She was no longer a co-ed, or a "girl," or merely Judge Liscomb's stenographer, living at home. She was a regular person now, on her own, settled in Chicago! So much the wand had waved to her.

It was noon when she arrived at the Deermoore, having taken the early train. She went down to luncheon; thought the dining room charming and the food excellent. Then her heart beat high as she set forth on the greater adventure—going downtown to the office which was to be her foothold in this big, smoky seethe of a town.

She had studied it all out on a map of the city, and she proposed to walk; the names of the streets at which she turned were fixed in her memory. Yet she experienced a distinct elation when she found herself on the big new bridge over the river and saw Michigan boulevard stretching interminably from the other side. She hadn't been lost for a minute! Then that was the Art Institute over there; she got a little thrill out of recognizing it. She turned and read off the streets from the signs on the lamp posts—Wabash, State, Dearborn, Clark . . .

This was La Salle—this cañon with beetling sides! She was watching the street numbers now—with a little flutter in her heart as she saw the sign "Balknap Building" carved in the granite arch over a broad doorway. There she was, without having gone a bit out of her way! She was proud of herself. A long, dazzlingly white tile tunnel, flooded with electric light, lay before her—people streaming in and streaming out; a bank of elevators on the right.

STEPPING out of the elevator on the eighteenth floor, she saw before her double glass doors, each panel bearing the sign "Law Offices: Ellis, Martindale, Harwood & Smith." With a vague surprise she looked through the glass panels, and entered a very large and very busy room, with a dozen or more desks in it and a clatter of typewriters. It was not like any law office she had ever seen or thought of; it appeared more like a factory. A stout, dark young woman at a desk near the door was looking at her inquiringly.

Then a slim boy was leading her through this big, busy room and down a short inner hall, past doors to private rooms. The boy halted at the end of the hall and with a motion of his hand indicated the door she was to enter. She stepped into a rich, snug cabinet, twelve feet square, ceiled with polished wood; but before she had time to take it in Harwood was entering from the opposite side, holding out his hand. She squeezed his hand tight—as though she had been on the point, after all, of getting lost. He seemed nicer and handsomer and pleasanter than ever.

He showed her his spacious office, back of the little cabinet which was to be her room. It took her breath—its size, the silk and silver; not at all like any law office which she had ever imagined. She bubbled and twinkled over it, prowling around it delightedly. And the view from the broad windows took her breath again.

She and Harwood stood beside one of them looking out at the great view—roofs, roofs, roofs, of all sorts and at all heights, under a haze of smoke which seemed an emanation of enormous energy, millions of people, toiling. He pointed out various recognizable objects. She stared her eyes full.

Her eyes were full of the view as she presently turned to the handsome man beside her. Of course, he hadn't made that smoky immensity beyond the window. But he was one of those who had made it and to whose will it answered—one of the masters of these cluttered, piled up kingdoms of the earth!

She was not likely to withhold admiration. Her shining eyes, full of the great view, did not withhold admiation now. With a sudden, heady leap of the blood Harwood felt that he could take her into his arms now—almost—almost! She was turning to look again at the view. That surge in his veins subsided and left his nerves in a turmoil as though he had received an electric shock.

She laughed: "You'll have to keep the shades down. If you don't I'll be spending all my time looking out of the window. You must tell me what I'm to do, you know." So they were back on a business footing.

"You'll find out as things come up," he said.

They walked to the cabinet, and as they stood in its doorway Krom entered at the opposite side from the inner hall of the offices. He was carelessly dressed, as Bess remembered him at Slow River, and she thought he was surprised at seeing her there—as she was at seeing him walk in as though he were at home.

Harwood said pleasantly, "Good morning, Krom. This is my new secretary, Miss Malden." And to Elizabeth: "Mr. Krom."

"But I met Mr. Krom at Slow River," said Elizabeth, always willing to be friendly.

Krom muttered something, evidently meant to be polite, and stepped diagonally across the cabinet, disappearing through the door in its west wall. He was vaguely wondering, as he went upstairs, why she disconcerted him; made him act like a fool. So she was to be Harwood's secretary!

Elizabeth had noticed that her secretarial cabinet had three doors—one to the inner hall, an opposite one to Harwood's room, and one in the west wall. As Krom opened the latter door she caught a glimpse of the cell-like stairway, with its bare cement floor, and looked inquiringly at Harwood.

"Bluebeard's chamber," he told her; "only you may explore it any time you like without losing your head." More soberly he explained, "I've got a room up on the roof. This man Krom is using it now—sometimes Steinman, too." There was a titillation in his nerves from having her there on his own ground, close to him, so he went on, his voice taking a confidential inflection: "Those two men are on the track of a big invention—motion pictures. As many millions in it as you care to think about. But it's a secret till they finish it. Krom will be going and coming."

That confidence set up a little excitement in her mind—a big secret! And more millions on the way! Then he began telling her something about her duties as secretary.

She'd had a predecessor, it appeared—a Miss Babcock, who had been promoted to the post of manager of the office force in the big work room in front. In case of doubt, when Harwood was not at hand, she could call on Miss Babcock. It also appeared that Harwood had many activities outside of law—civic and political activities which kept his name pretty constantly in the newspapers. She recalled that the Globe, which objected to some of these activities, had sneeringly referred to him as a "professional leading citizen and reformer"; but the Globe's tone was low. From what she gathered in this brief first day talk her duties as secretary would be connected rather more with these outside activities than with the law. He mentioned to her that a man who was trying to accomplish large civic aims must keep on as good terms as possible with the press.

THE FOX

take me back to the hydro, but dumped me at Freshville (that was K). He had taken rooms there, and planted a new outfit and Smith—my own maid—at the place. It was horrible cheek, and I had an awful row with him and said I wouldn't stop. He said he'd fetch the old man down to bring me home if I didn't. I said I was of age—(he said, "Then behave like it!")—and father couldn't make me go. "And," I cried, "if I get my back to the wall I'll fight father and you, and every one. So there!"

"Then come away from the wall!" he said; and he picked me up and carried me to a big chair in the middle of the room. I hit and kicked, till I caught him one on the shins and saw him wince, though he didn't say anything. Then I was sorry, because he'd always been fearfully good to me, and, really, I rather like him. You see, he's the one I always tell about things, and I know I can trust him.

"I'm sorry for that, Frank," I owned directly. "Ever so sorry. But you shan't bully me. I'm sorry, though."

"That's all right, kid," he said. "I seem a brute; but you're all the kiddie sister I ever had, you know." He stroked my hair. "I won't have you hurt; and I won't have you do wrong. Kid, he isn't the chap for you."

"I know that," I grumbled. "Why do you take me for a fool?"

He laughed and patted my shoulder and gave me a peck on the forehead—and we were good friends again.
him go and bind up his leg—poor old dear!
—and we were good friends again.

Freshville was fairly exciting. There was a boy who kissed me in the conservatory the second night. I smacked his face. O! It was such a beauty! (I mean the smack.) And there was a foreign count who made love so funnily. But I don't think he meant it. And there was a poet! O! He was a fool. His verses were himself, he said. They were almost worse, I thought. I wrote to Frank about him—cipher, of course.

"At last," I said, "I am sure that a man loves me for myself alone."

I really was sure, though I wouldn't have accepted him (in fact, I had refused him four times in three days) if he had been the only man in the world. But it was so nice to think that people could love me just for my funny little self. I cried when I had Frank's cipher.

"Afraid some one has betrayed us; possibly one of the servants, but I cannot help doubting the detectives. The man Springoder certainly knows. He has unwittingly betrayed himself in the atrocious verses which you send about 'the gold beneath the gold that's hidden' in your coppery yellow head. Your hair is not golden. If your secret has been betrayed to him it will have been betrayed to others. The game is up this time. You had better return home and make a fresh start."

I returned. I was inclined to think that Frank had made a mistake about Mr. Springoder. I could not believe that he was mercenary. I decided to make father buy about a thousand copies of his book when it came out.

The real reason why I went home at once was that I had a letter from father. He said that he had had a terrible hit over Deep Sea Universals. His managing clerk had let him in (Frank and I always said that he gave Carter too much authority to pledge him). Also other things had gone badly; and we were "done as millionaires," he declared; and he thought he'd take up farming.

I hugged the old man for ten minutes, and told him not to worry, because he'd make a hit at farming or anything, and, anyhow, he had a daughter worth at least five millions to him. He said, "From twenty to fifty."

THEN I went and saw Frank. He quizzed me with the eyeglass. So I took it out of his eye.

"Well," I said, "here I am. Back on your hands!"

"Ah!" he said. "So I see. Do you know, kid, you've grown prettier."

"That means I was pretty before," I remarked.

"You were," he stated. "Well, are you going out again—with the lantern?"

There was some grumpy old philosopher who did that to look for an honest man.

"No," I denied. "I'm through with the lantern stunt. I've come to the tub. He ended by living in one, didn't he? That's what I shall have to do!"

"O, no," he declared. "Not as my wife!"

"But," I said, "but—don't you know about father?"

He got up and shook me.

"Do you think I like you any the less for that!" he growled.

"O-h-h!" I cried. "Do you want to marry me because—you do!"

You see, he'd never made that plain before. Clever men are so stupid in some things.

"Exactly that," he stated. "And you, little girl?"

"O-h-h!" I said again. "I—I might, only—if you wanted me why did you let me go off to try and find some one else? I might have found him!"

Frank and father both say I am quick. I think I was smart that time, anyhow. It was only the tiniest bit of grin at the corners of his mouth; but I noticed it and saw through the whole business.

"O!" I cried. "You horrible, deceitful, mean wretch! You beast! They never found out at all! Directly there was any one who took any notice of me your detectives told you, and you wrote and made out that they had!"

"I did," he agreed.

"And you meant to, from the first!"

"Of course," he owned, unblushingly.

"It was all a fake from beginning to end? Cipher and all?"

"Exactly!"

"And—and father's in it, too! He hasn't lost his money?"

"I don't know about that, kid," Frank said. "That isn't all fake, worse luck. He's got a real knock; but he'll save a good deal out of the wreck. He's a wonderful man."

"And," I said, "you think his daughter is a fool!"

He gripped me in one arm and nearly smashed me.

"I know," he said, "that she's—she's—my God! I wonder if you've the faintest idea how much I want you, kid? Tell me straight? Do you care?"

I told him straight, like the straight daughter of a straight father.

"Yes, Frank," I said. "I care very much for you."

I do. I shan't even smash the monocle; but I shall buy him rimless eyeglasses for a present. I think it will have the same effect!

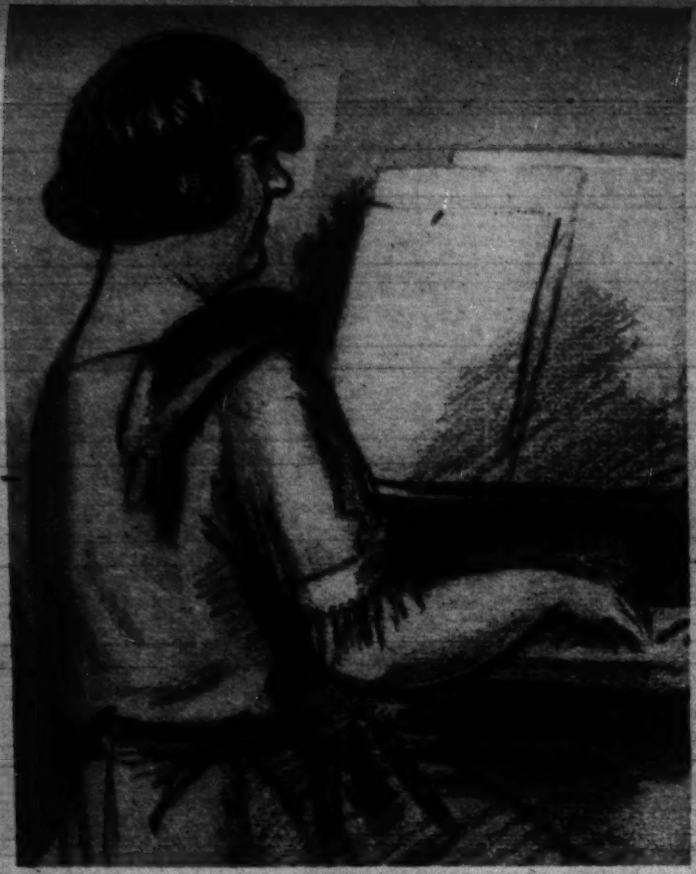
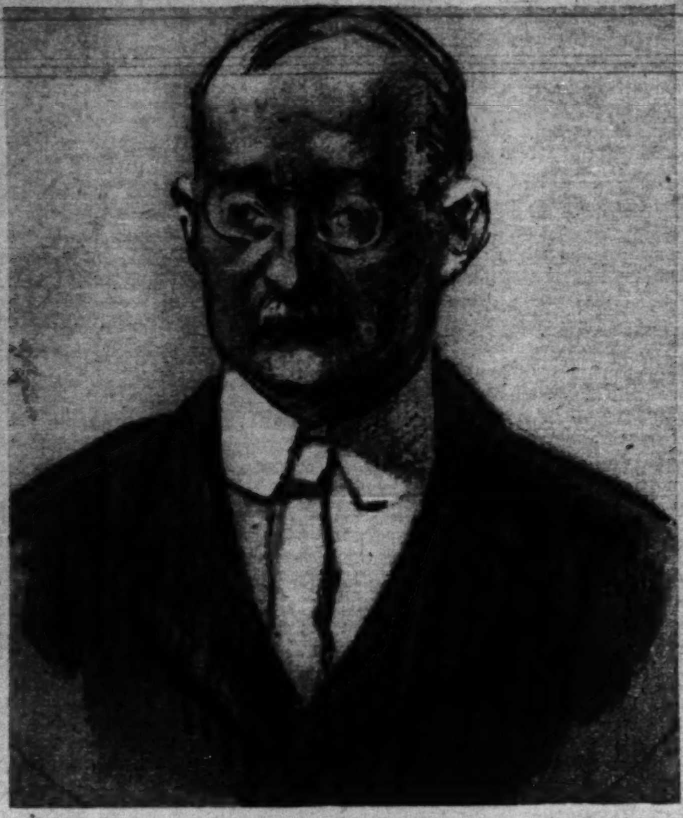
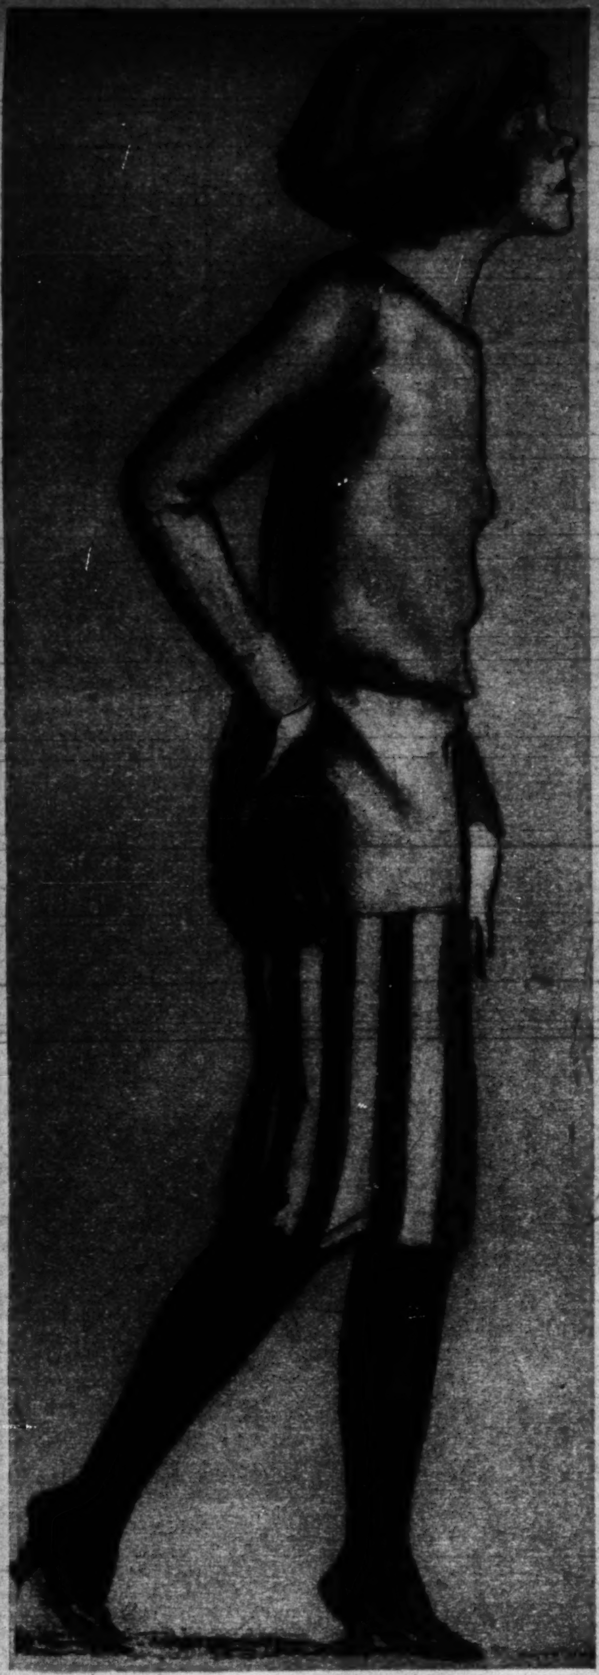
Blue Ribbon Comics



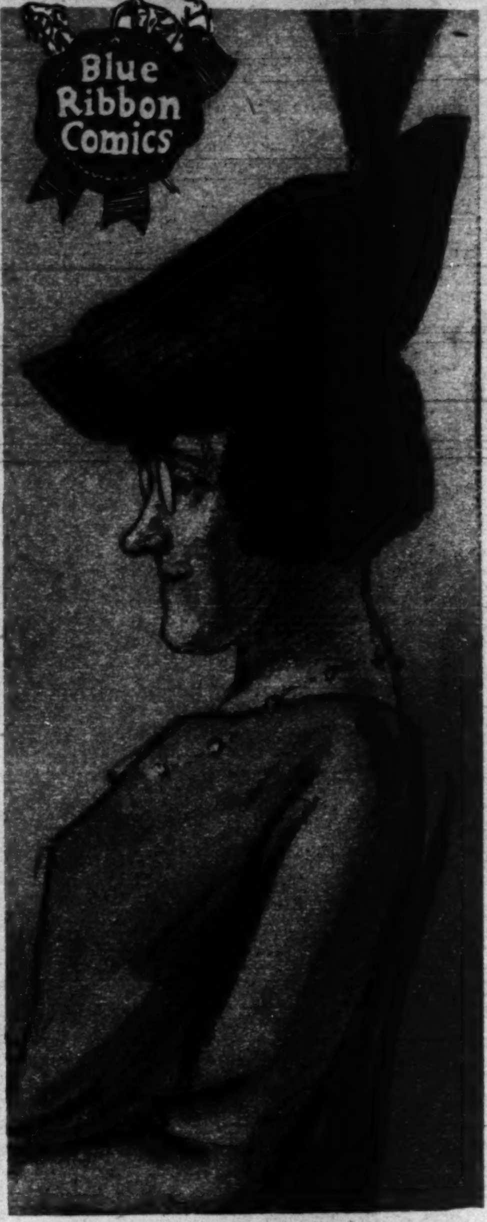
Beautiful lady piano player galloping gayly through "Ten Little Fingers and Ten Little Toes" during that portion of the news weekly showing the funeral of somebody or other.



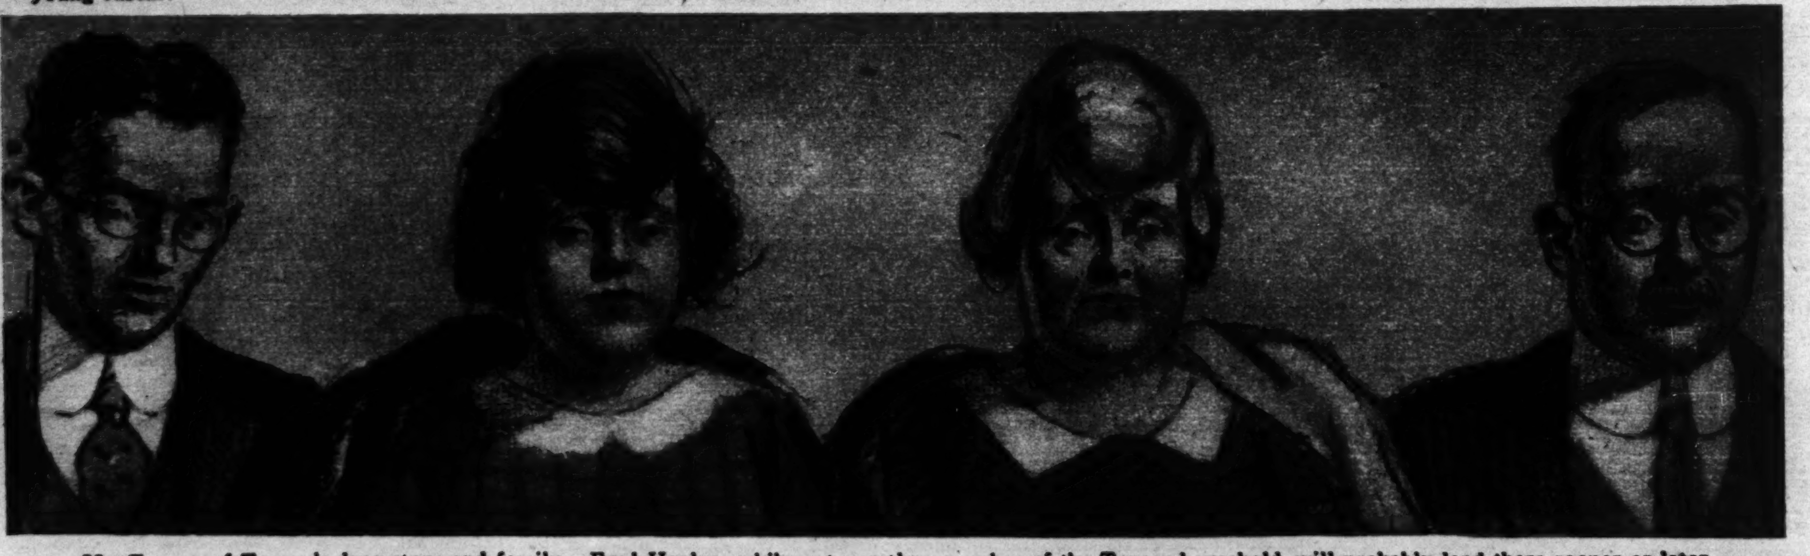
Old Mr. Hooper, sexton of the Meridian Street Congregational church, is about to give orders that Archie Walters shall give Clarence Underhill's cap back. The young rascal!



Hazel, the beautiful daughter of Mrs. Grady, the laundress, has been simply eating up a society film. Her whole life is to be altered. See how grandly she is gliding homeward, and say if you dare that Gloria Swanson or Bebe Daniels has anything on Hazel's queenly carriage. Tomorrow Hazel is going to have a talk with her momma, and if Hazel's momma doesn't promise never again to shame Hazel by taking in washing, Hazel will leave for Hollywood.



Miss Ethel Simpson, milliner, (goes to the city twice a year)—in one of her advance styles.



Mr. Tansey of Tansey's drug store and family. Fred Hanlon, while not exactly a member of the Tansey household, will probably land there sooner or later. Hasn't he been calling on Berenice Tansey every Wednesday and Sunday evening for going on two years? Berenice is very fond of the pictures. Many's the time she's been on the point of having a screen test made.

THE ROOM
THE ROOF

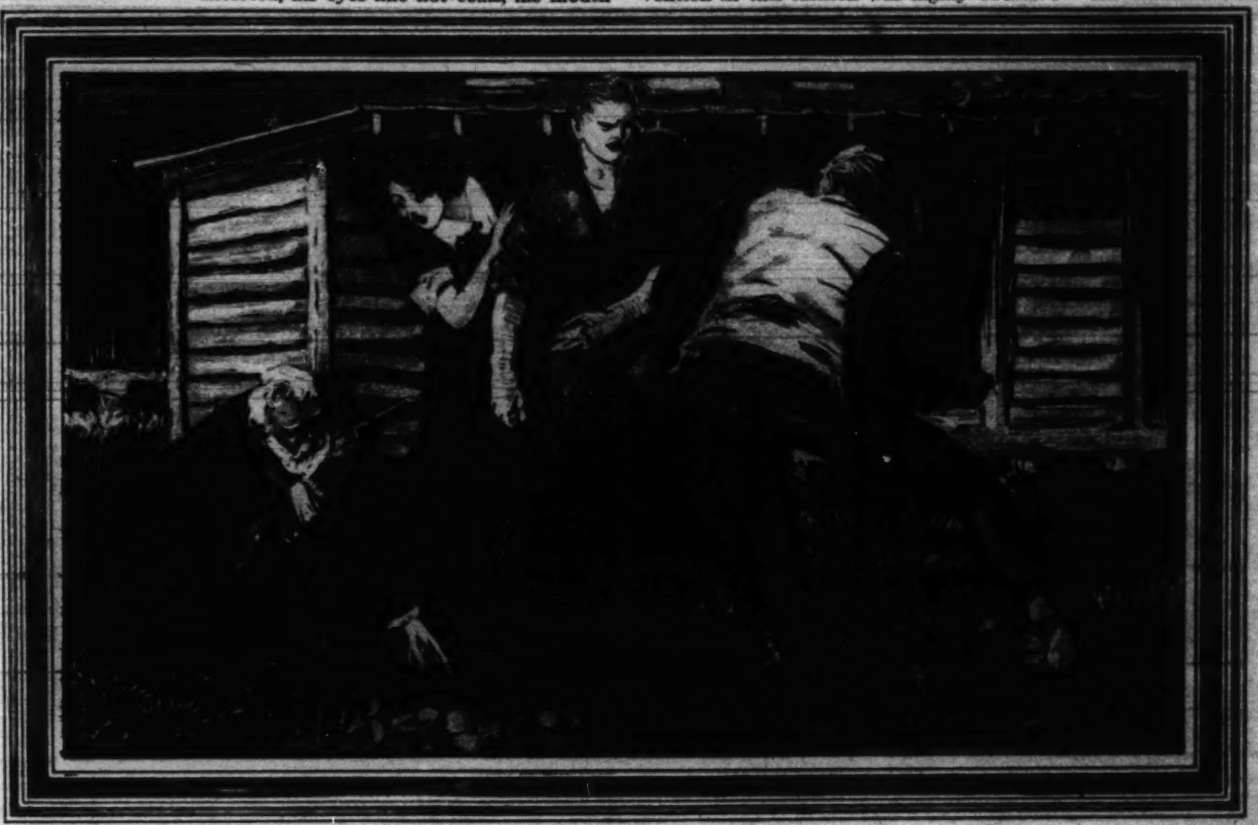
Nearing the factory she heard high, angry words from within. Then a hatless, gangling old man came flying out of the open door, evidently projected by some powerful force, and reeled across the broken cement walk and fell sprawling in the weeds beyond.

He was immediately followed by Peter Green, also hatless, and in high wrath. Peter uttered some unprintable words as he advanced upon the prostrate man, who rolled over to get out of the way.

Then a large young man, in a cap and loose flannel jacket, ran out of the office. Peter had already drawn his foot back to kick the man in the weeds. The young man seized his arm, with a jerk to spoil the kick, saying, "Here! Here!" He was frowning, yet he seemed not very angry.

Peter swung around a bit and drew back the free arm for a blow. The next instant he was on his back in the weeds and Elizabeth was looking at the young man with decided and admiring interest. The sudden trip that sent Peter on his back was a masterpiece. It took a good man to do that.

At Ann Arbor her lively interest in athletics had led her to study the best men critically; she had a wise eye in that direction. This young man in the loose flannel jacket looked promising, and that trip was corking! But all this was a swift, subconscious by-play in her mind.



"I'm goin' to stop yer clock!" he declared, and squared to strike.

For a moment Peter Green was vastly disconcerted at finding himself on his back. Then the young man was holding a hand to help him to his feet, saying, "Get up. Don't be foolish." He was frowning, but it was clear to the spectator that he was not very angry.

Peter had recovered himself, then, and sprang agilely to his feet, avoiding the extended hand and swiftly taking the position of a boxer. He called the young man a name which is sometimes considered sufficient provocation for homicide.

"Don't be silly," the young man reproved him, gravely. "You know we did no harm."

To Peter Green this was proof that the young man had no stomach for a fight. He thrust his heavy jaw toward the pacifist's face and bawled:

"Sneakin' skates! Damn pickpocket rubbernecks! Smell o' that!" and extended his balled fist within three inches of his opponent's nose. But the opponent merely looked at him reprovingly, with an annoyed little frown. That further confirmed Peter's belief in the young man's lack of spirit and further raised his ire. Impatient at the feeble medium of speech, he put a mighty paw against the young man's breast and gave him a push that sent him two or three steps backward.

"You're acting foolishly," the young man soberly reproved. "We simply made a mistake."

Peter's reply was prompt and to the point: "Yer a stinkin' liar! You saw the sign plain enough! Damn stinkin' liar!" He shouted the insult, and seemed provoked beyond endurance by the other's passive attitude, hands at side. "I'm goin' to stop yer clock!" he declared, and squared to strike.

Elizabeth then screamed. In a flash she saw that the old man who had been thrown out was on his feet, with a leveled pistol in his hand, about to fire.

THE young man sprang back. The gangling old man with the pistol pulled the trigger, and all of them heard a metallic click as the hammer of the weapon fell on a cartridge that failed to explode. Peter Green's blow expended itself harmlessly in air.

In a flash the young man comprehended the cause of Elizabeth's scream. Fairly before the hammer of the pistol fell he was moving with great agility upon the shooter. He grasped the pistol wrist, forcing it downward, and as the old man pulled the trigger again a cartridge exploded, the bullet burying itself in the ground. There was a struggle for the weapon then.

"Drop it! Drop it!" the young man was saying. The old man managed to swing with his left fist, striking his captor on the cheek. The captor merely held on to the wrist, repeating, "Drop it!"

The old man gave a sound that expressed pain and rage—a sort of muffled, snarling scream—as the powerful hand twisted his wrist. He dropped the pistol into the weeds and struck at his captor again. The captor, however, had got his head down and a shoulder hunched up defensively, so the blow merely glanced on the top of his head. He released the twisted wrist and put a big arm across the old man's chest to stop further blows. The old man backed away, glowering at him.

Elizabeth thought she had never seen a more disagreeable sight than this lank, loose jointed old man then presented—speechless in a paroxysm of rage, his red, leathery face distorted, his eyes like hot coals, his mouth open, the lower lip, beneath his straggling, grizzled mustache, thrust out—a mouth ready to bite.

The young man followed him a step or two and spoke—cool, emollient, as one speaks to a child in a fit of temper: "Steady, uncle, steady! We're all right. Keep cool."

The old man glared at him and stammered, "Damn dog! Damn yellow dog!"

The young man repeated, kindly, "Be cool. We're all right. We can't do anything here, now, you know. We must go back."

Peter Green stood gaping at this—not yet quite able to adjust his mind to the sudden change in the situation.

"We must go back now," the young man was saying to the elder, low and coolly. "There's nothing more we can do here. Some people are coming."

Indeed, several men and boys, attracted by the shot, were coming up the disused street. Some glimmer of reason evidently was returning to the old man't congested brain. But he couldn't quite tear himself away yet. He turned to Peter Green and hurled a couple of insults at him:

"Thug! Blackguard!"

A tame ending to this scene was by no means to Peter Green's taste, especially now that a larger audience was on the way. He took up the challenge instantly, striding forward, fists balled and jaw outthrust, and threw down the gauge of battle thus:

"Sneak thief! Stinkin' old porchclimber! Open yer head again and I'll land on you!"

The sorely afflicted peacemaker thrust himself between them, frowning with great perplexity, but still perfectly cool. He reasoned with Peter, mildly:

"Don't be foolish. You see he's lost control of himself. Just keep quiet a minute and we'll get away."

By that time Peter was perfectly assured of this bulky young person's pacific principles. He therefore sounded a scornful challenge:

"You! You big stiff! Putty face! I'll slap you to sleep!" Again, swiftly, he assumed the attitude of a boxer, ready to strike. The hard tried young man seemed almost in despair.

"Be reasonable," he urged, his eyes on Peter's dancing fists, but without putting up a defense.

They all knew that Elizabeth was there, for they had heard her scream. Yet the rush of action had, so to speak, swept her aside. The three men had been so busy watching each other that they'd had no time to notice her.

At this point, however, she came into the scene decisively, stepping swiftly toward Peter Green and exclaiming in a voice of authority:

"Peter! Let them alone! Behave yourself! Go back to the office!"

It was, vicariously, the voice of authority, since in a way she represented his employer, Judge Liscomb. But a young female's intervention in this fashion was highly offensive to him—particularly as half a dozen men and boys, before whom he might play a stellar rôle, were coming on at a rapid walk.

"You keep out of this," he growled. "'Taint your affair. I'll tend to my own business. You tend to yours."

She had already drawn herself up, chin lifted. Her dark blue eyes flashed at him; color rose in her cheeks. Her voice rang: "It is my affair! Let them alone!" She looked obliquely over her shoulder at the young man in the flannel jacket and subdued her voice to a courteous tone: "You'd best go now."

FOR a moment she felt it was just touch and go whether or not Peter Green was going to defy her authority. He was scowling at her. His defiance, if it came, was quite sure to take a rude form. She was aware that the young man waited also, regarding Peter very soberly. For the moment she and the young man had joined moral forces and for an instant the issue hung in the balance; but for that instant Peter held his tongue, and they felt that they had won.

The young man took off his hat. He was sweating, from the heat of the day and the struggle with his uncle. A spot on his cheek bone where the uncle struck him was abraded and a trickle of blood ran from it. Elizabeth thought he was only two or three years older than herself. He was not a handsome young man. His hair was kinkly and yellow. There was a funny little horizontal crease in his forehead. His nose was anything but Grecian. Instead of a fine, tanned bronze, his face was sunburned. He was so big that a casual observer might have called him beefy. Hat off, he smiled and spoke to her very politely:

"I'm sure we're very much obliged to you. We made a mistake. I'm sorry."

He made her a funny, bobbing little bow and turned away. The audience was near then. The young man tucked a hand under the old one's arm and they walked away, passing the curious audience without speaking.

Actually, Peter Green was defeated; but he could go down with flags flying. He bawled after the retreating figures: "Rubbernecks! Skates! Don't come back here if you know what's good for you!" That restored his self-respect.

Elizabeth was aware of an object at her feet—the pistol which the outraged old man had dropped and which, evidently, everybody had forgotten in the turmoil. Peter Green, with a fine swagger, moved toward the office door and waited for the audience. Elizabeth stooped, picked up the weapon, and hid it behind her handbag. When she reached the office door the audience was already assembling, and she knew that Peter was about to enjoy a very pleasant quarter of an hour explaining the episode to them. In the empty office she looked more particularly at the weapon which she had recovered from the weeds. It was an old fashioned revolver, short, fat, nickel plated, with a white horn handle; the nickel plated barrel was fluted. For a moment she wondered what to do with it; then stepped over to one of the two office desks and dropped it into an empty drawer.

Already Peter was launched on his explanation to the audience:

"The perfessor give a squeak and I come runnin' up to see what the matter was."

She waited a moment for her nerves to quiet down and then went on into the shop. There was an unfurnished basement containing a furnace, a coal bin, and much litter. A plain pine partition inclosed the stairway. The stair door was open half way. Little Steinman stood inside it, his hand on the latch, listening, furtive, like a mouse, ready to dodge down into its hole.

"All right! They've gone!" Elizabeth sang out the moment she saw him. She wanted to laugh, yet there was a caressing lilt in her voice; this queer, unaccountable little man was so much like a child. He at once came out of the stairway.

"My goodness, I think mebbe I'm a goner this time, sure pop!" he informed her with that whimsical gravity which he often assumed. "Gurlin gome up here to kill me. That iss the way it goes. You hire a watchman and he watches all time excepd when he iss needed. Then he's down cellar getting a drink."

He told her that Krom kept some whisky down cellar; Peter Green knew that, and periodically treated himself to a sample of it; Peter had been down cellar, the office door probably wide open.

"I hear somebody, and there's Gurlin and the young man Whideside. I calt Peter. The young man Whideside come over to me at the bench. I ain'd afraid of him," he informed her, "but Gurlin kill me, sure pop. Peter he come up and chucks Gurlin oud and the young man runs after them. I hear some shooting, yess?"

"The pistol went off accidentally," she told him, for reassurance. "Nobody was hurt. They've gone away. They'll not come back."

He plucked his beard and replied: "Gurlin come back, I guess. He iss obstinate. He nefer be satisfied till he knock my head off now." In spite of his timidity he seemed to contemplate that with a sort of fatalistic resignation.

"But who is this man? Why should he wish to hurt you?" she asked.

He gave her a sidelong look and replied: "I worg for this man Gurlin some years. He iss mad at me because I tage my invention to Mr. Harwood. He kill me some day."

She laughed that aside, and told him she

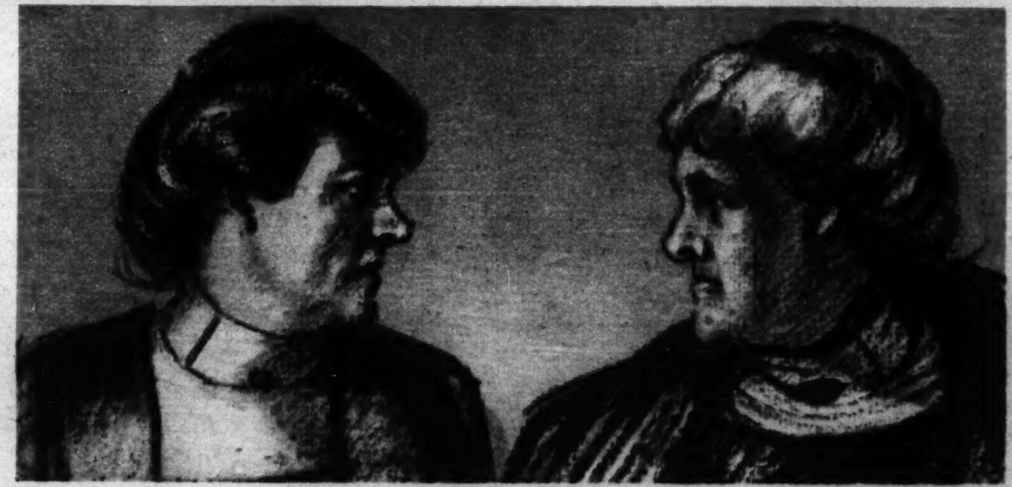
The lobby of any small town picture palace on a Saturday night is a pretty gay place. What with the young bloods of the town eyeing the girls as they come in and all that! Tonight we have with us Art Levinson, "Fat" Griggs and the Sternberger boys, Milt and Lewis, of Sternberger & Rowe, purveyors to the well dressed men of Rumsonville. The Misses Bagley have just passed by. The youngest Miss Bagley can hang her hat in Fat's front parlor any old day. So says Fat, who really knows what's what. Fat saw "Bits and Morsels of 1922" in New York last spring "and maybe they didn't have a swell looking bunch of girls! Hot dog!"



Between the news weekly and the feature film—"Weak Women" is showing tonight—Mrs. Ed Meeker remembers to tell Mrs. Charles Sodaberg the terrible bit of news that Mr. Meeker brought back from a business trip to New York. Listen —————— and you will hear how Mr. Meeker saw old Asa Pratt's daughter—the wild one, you remember—in the city all dressed up with furs and everything! Now what do you make of that?

THE ROOM ON THE ROOF

The Story of a Crime in a Skyscraper - - - - - - by Will Payne

THE STORY AT A GLANCE

NATHANIEL HARWOOD, a handsome widower 43 years old, has dissipated the greater part of the fortune left to him and his daughter when—

ADOLPH KROM, a lens grinder, offers him a chance to recoup by financing a project to produce motion pictures in natural colors and in relief by means of a camera invented by—

SIMON CURLIN, a crusty old camera manufacturer who is Krom's employer, and who is perfecting a lens for the camera with the aid of—

PROF. STEINMAN, a dry little wisp of a man who says he originated the invention. Krom brings Steinman to Harwood's office on the eighteenth floor of the Belknap building in La Salle street; the three strike a bargain, and Krom tears up Curlin's contract with Steinman, which he had stolen. It is agreed that Steinman and Krom shall work secretly for Harwood while pretending to remain with Curlin. When the matter of a secret workshop is discussed, Harwood leads them to—

THE ROOM ON THE ROOF of the skyscraper, but Steinman looks down the dizzy height and is fearful. So for the time being he is given a shop in Slow River, Mich., where Harwood, Steinman, and Krom meet—

ELIZABETH MALDEN, 23 and beautiful, who is Judge Liscomb's secretary. Harwood at once is attracted to her, although practically engaged to Letitia Belknap and her $10,000,000.

SECOND INSTALLMENT.

Curlin Makes a Raid.

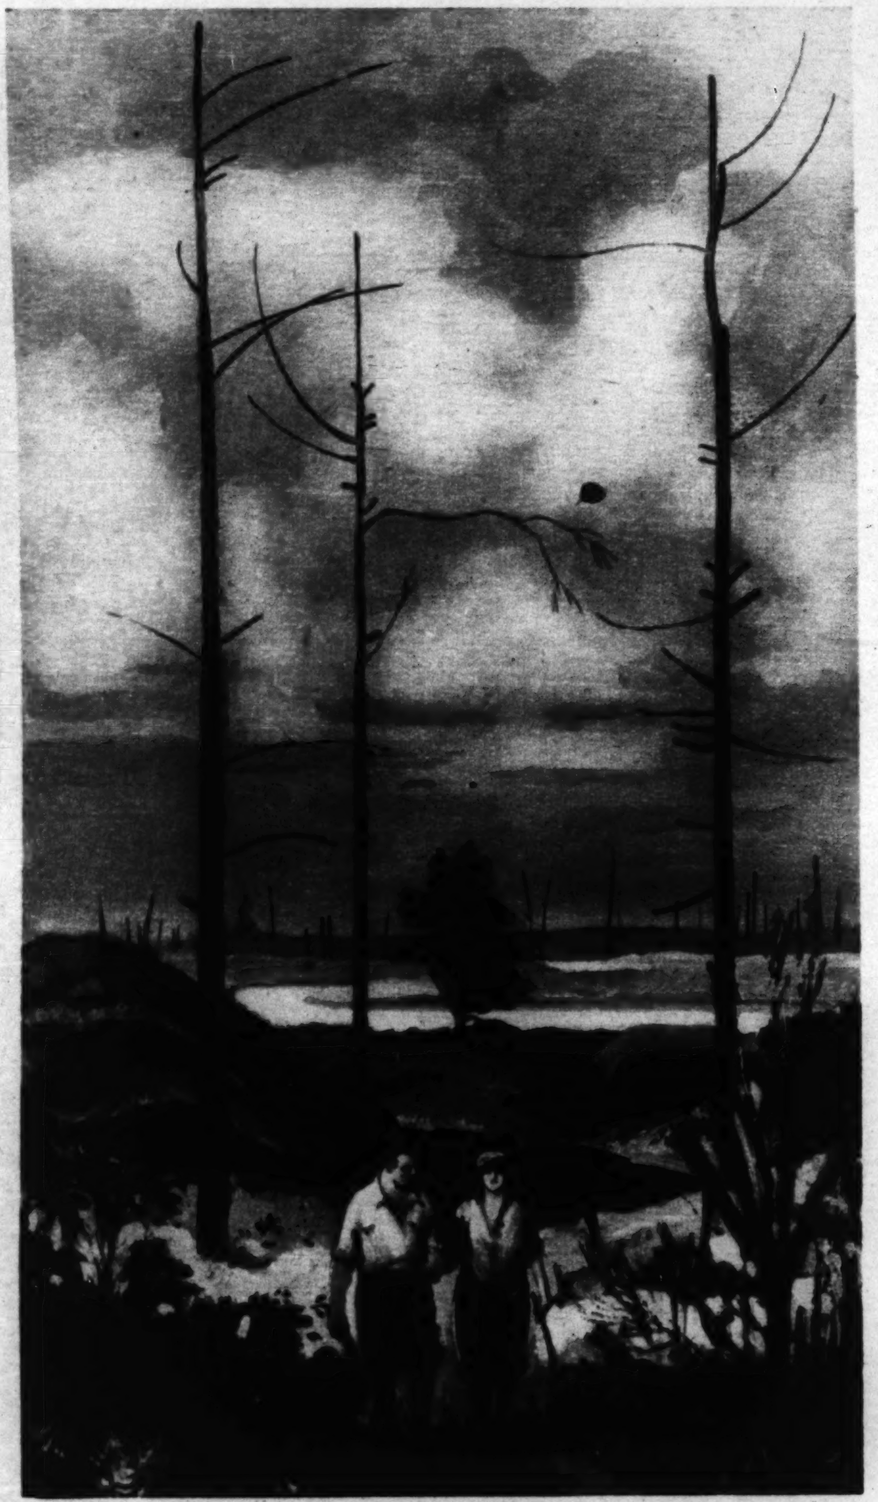
WHEN Harwood started for Slow River that April day his life appeared to be firmly arranged on a spacious and lordly pattern. There had been a misfortune with his investments, but he could wave that aside. If he had lost the money in stock gambling or the like he would—he said—have blamed himself bitterly. But he had gone into legitimate business, on good advice. The times had been adverse; he'd suffered some poor luck. As Letitia Belknap's husband there would be no real difficulty about accounting to his daughter for her share of the estate. It would involve a somewhat humiliating explanation to Letitia, but he could show her that he'd simply been unfortunate. He was sure there would be no real difficulty. And as Letitia's husband there would be no further bother about money.

So the pattern had been arranged. He could not conceive of an acceptable, or even tolerable, pattern of life which did not include an ample, secure income. He was not a gambler or profligate, but he had a fine flair for spending money. His shapely, nervous hands shed it as naturally as he breathed. The luxurious furnishings of his law office and the conceit of a cabin on the roof were only two instances. His income from the law firm ran from forty to fifty thousand a year; but that was mere beggarly hand to mouth. Letitia would solve the money question.

Then he had met a witch who cast an inescapable spell upon him. Her clear laughter rang in his heart, dimming all other sounds. When he started in his car for Slow River or took the train his pulses leaped. At Slow River he couldn't rest until he was in her presence and felt the charm anew. And every time the miracle happened over again; across twenty years youth and love were poured through his veins.

But at forty-three one has learned some caution even in love; he was canny, apprehending her attitude toward him. By July many of his friends were out of town for the summer; but he stayed on, alleging important business—which took him back and forth to Michigan. In August he did take a two weeks' vacation at Long Lake, three miles from Slow River. The end of the month he was back again for three days.

When Elizabeth went home, the last of those days, the long, shiny car stood in front of her mother's cottage. Harwood and her mother sat on the veranda, with a honeysuckle vine at the end. Bess hardly climbed the steps before being aware that they had been talking about her; there was open conspiracy in their smiling faces.



In August he did take a two weeks' vacation at Long lake, three miles from Slow River.

Harwood spoke: "Sit down, Bess"—for by now he used her nickname. Sitting down, she wondered what the conspiracy was. He at once told her:

"How would it suit you to go to Chicago as my secretary? I've got to have somebody. You can read law there, too."

Her eyes opened and shone at him. "Really?" she breathed incredulously.

"Yes, indeed! You can do it better than anybody I know."

Mrs. Malden was beaming with gratification.

"Of course I'd like it!" Elizabeth declared, with a laugh for her candor.

A little later Mrs. Malden went into the cottage, leaving them to talk over the details.

"I can pay you seventy-five dollars a week," said Harwood.

She caught her breath and protested earnestly, "O, I'm not worth that!"

"Well, if you're not I can send you back here," Harwood replied with a smile. "A secretary who's capable of doing my work must be worth that much. We can try it out and see whether or not you are."

He was speaking pleasantly, yet it all sounded tremendously businesslike — even down to the dry dollars and cents. And Bess was aglow over the prospect: Chicago, seventy-five dollars a week, a big law office!

NATHANIEL HARWOOD had given her a wonderful summer. That first evening when she found him in her mother's cottage she had fallen in love with him and declared the fact to her mother as they ate their canned supper on the kitchen table. She had mentioned it with enthusiasm to Judge Liscomb the next day. It was somewhat different from the falling in love with Steinman because it was more deferential, admiring; but otherwise it was much the same.

She had a sort of personal pride in his good looks—the handsomest man she had ever seen. And in his clothes that were always just right without being like a tailor's dummy. She eagerly admired his air — so pleasant, so amiable, yet assured; bearing himself toward the world with a smile, yet with poise, and with that effect of alert, vigorous capability. He was a big man, moving at ease in big affairs!

She was by no means above a certain invidious pleasure which his companionship conferred upon her. For example, she was abundantly willing to let other Slow River ladies, young and old, see her sitting beside him in the long, shiny car. Here and there one of those ladies had been inclined to look down upon the shabby genteel Maldens! She had a very sincere, warm hearted admiration and regard for this rather splendid visitor from Chicago.

But of late there had been a troublesome interrogation mark in the back of her head. She could account for Harwood on the ground that he was coming up there on business; he found her good company; he was old enough to be her father; he liked to visit and run around with her. But of late—well, she seemed to feel a temperature above mere friendship; an ardor behind this pleasant companionship. Was she possibly going to be asked a momentous question?

Of late there had been such an interrogation point in the back of her head. But this offer of the secretaryship seemed to erase the question mark. He was proposing a perfectly matter of fact professional relationship; and a wonderful opening for her in a business way! She was unreservedly happy over that. She was to go to Chicago a week from the following Monday.

HER last Saturday in Slow River. Three o'clock in the afternoon. Judge Liscomb returned to the office from the courthouse where he had gone to look up a client's taxes—noting the time, as he came in, by a massive, old fashioned silver watch. A glazed brown straw hat, whose age nobody knew, was pushed to the back of his bald, perspiring head. An alpaca jacket dangled from his lean shoulders, the left sleeve empty—since Shiloh. His Grand Army button was in the lapel of the jacket. He seemed to Bess a kind of beloved ghost—more than ever ghostly since the country was full of smooth cheeked veterans of another war.

"Proper hot!" he confessed, as he replaced the watch and wiped his forehead with a hand that had long done the work of two His thin, parchment face, with a pendant nose, wrinkled deeply in a smile which confessed the joke of its being so hot in September. He retained some of the smile as he added with a casual air:

"You'll be having errands. No use your staying here any longer. There'll be nothing for you to do." The stump of his left arm flopped in the empty sleeve. When he was nervous the stump flopped that way. His speech meant that her employment in his office was ended.

She knew well enough that Judge Liscomb was no longer the leading lawyer of Slow River, nor by any means the most prosperous. This office was old and shabby. But it had been a haven. The old man, with his empty sleeve and Grand Army button, loved her; she had a port of call in his heart. She wanted to catch him in her arms and hug him; she wanted to kiss him. But his lifelong, prim Yankee decorum would have been vastly disconcerted at either demonstration.

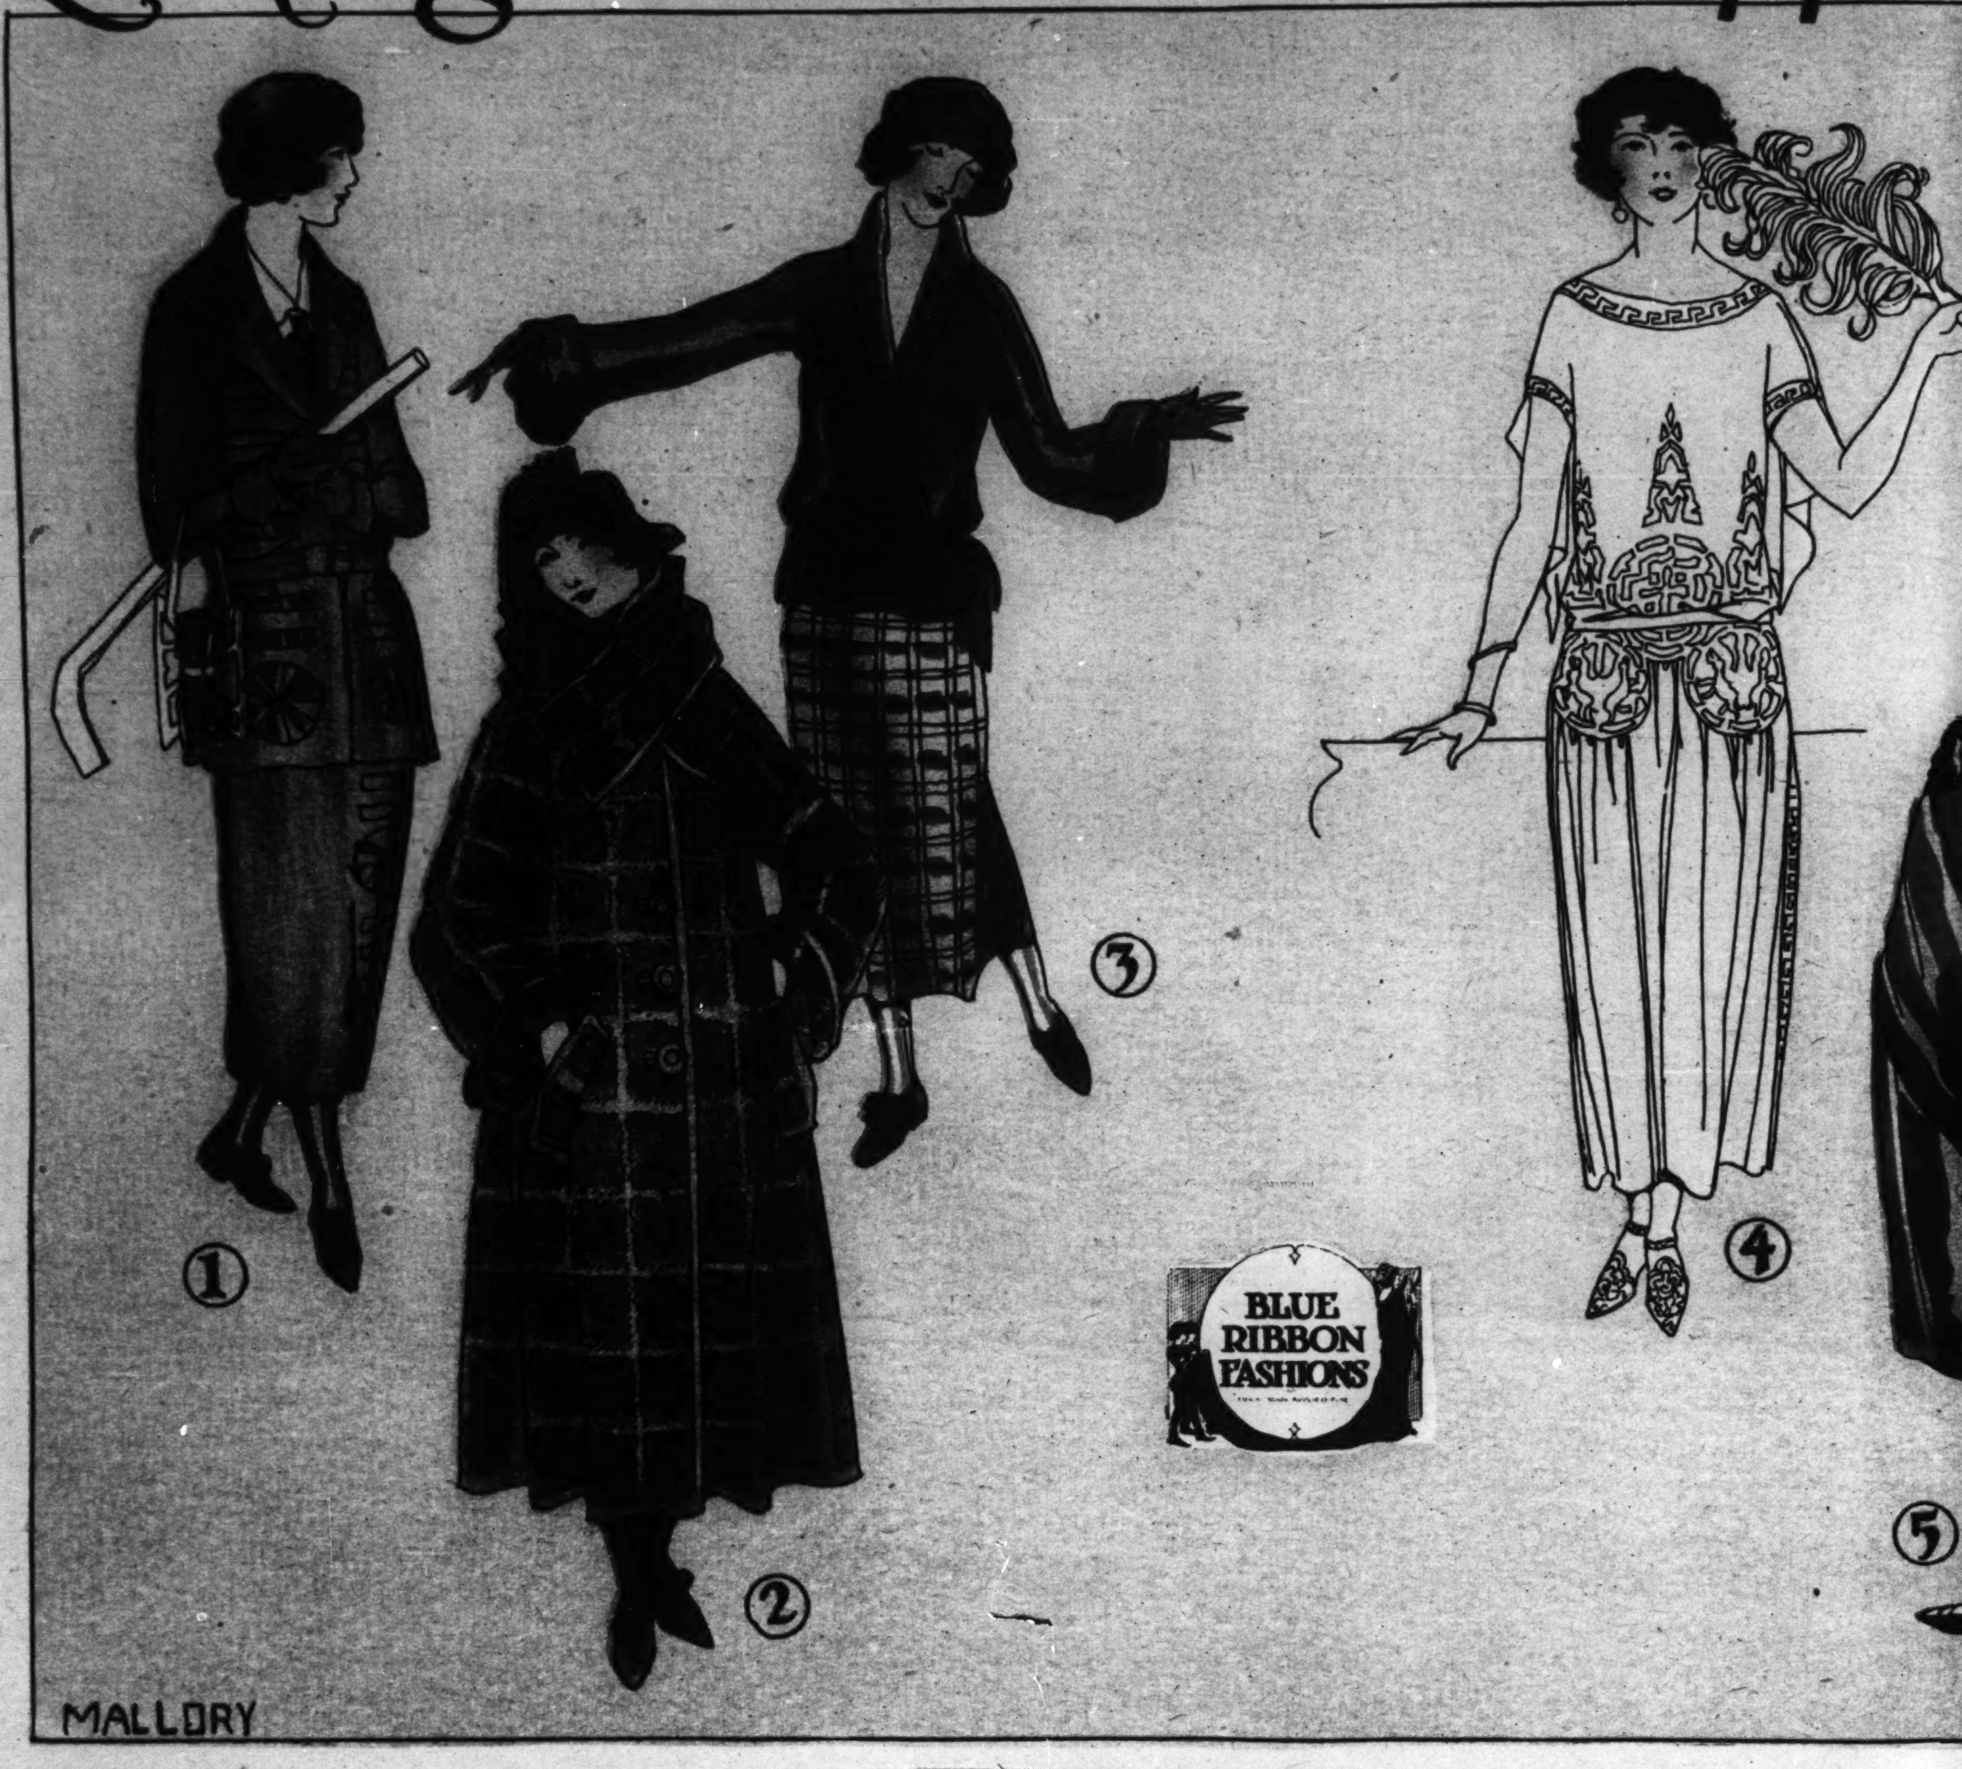
"Of course, I'll run around tomorrow to say good-by," she assured him.

Yet this was the real leave taking. Monday the stout Harrington girl, who chewed gum, would be his stenographer. With a bright nod and smile she went out—and paused a moment in the dingy hall to bite a corner of her lip and wink her eyes rapidly.

When the door closed on her bright nod and smile the judge stared at it a moment, very thoughtfully. Sort of ghostly, for he had reached that old age when a loved face that disappears behind a door may never be seen again. It tugged at his heart. Then, with a vague smile under his white mustache, he sat down at his desk, took off the glazed straw hat, and began writing out a memorandum of the tax matter.

SHE had another good-by to say and was presently approaching the squat brick basket factory. The street which it fronted had been but little used since the basket enterprise failed; grass and weeds grew in the roadway; the cement sidewalk was broken here and there, grass sticking through the cracks.

Looking Toward the Flapper



This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—"Come seven, come eleven," and there comes along also Dame Fashion. This active old person, as I have so often said, takes as much interest in the juvenile as she does in the adult, and often she prescribes for 11 exactly what she does for 55.

I am illustrating today some flapper modes with a particular view to the mother who makes a special effort at the reorganization of her daughter's clothes for the holiday season. At the right I include an effective little afternoon frock of blue duvetyn banded with gray squirrel and trimmed with red braid. The front of the skirt is plaited and a particularly successful movement is executed by puffing ever so slightly the plaits of the front section between two boundaries of braid. Plaitings, by the way, are one of the most insistent notes of children's and juniors' modes, and to the thin girl in her teens they are particularly becoming.

As will be seen, this frock features the long, tight sleeves which I deplored in the case of the tall and scrawny miss. Logically, therefore, I do not recommend this model to the young girl whose elbows have as many facets as a diamond. The plump may turn to this, while those less gifted with fat will prefer for an afternoon dress the charming little model of black satin at the upper right. Here the wide lower section of sleeve rises from a fitted upper section trimmed with a band of the blue and silver embroidery composing the roll collar and the wide girdle.,

For the frock which the girl of from 15 to 18 will want for her Christmas and New Year's dance there are two leading nominations. One is the familiar 1830 model with its quaint tight bodice and its wide skirt. To the slim girl there is no fashion more becoming than the 1830 style, and this is particularly true when the material selected is the crisp and bouffant taffeta. Both here and abroad this is the favorite medium for the young girl's party frock, and one cannot do better for one's daughter's dance card than to choose it in a soft pink. A trimming of Nattier blue ribbons is charming on an evening frock of this color, and so, too, are metal laces.

Just at present a wide bertha of gold or silver lace appears often on these wide skirt taffeta models, and some of the newest versions are draped slightly at one side to reveal an underskirt of matching lace. Rosebuds in pastel colorings are sometimes arranged nowadays in circle motifs over the skirt, and there is frequently an old fashioned nosegay embodying these pastel shades to punctuate the side of the waist line.

The other nomination for evening wear is a crêpe on slender lines and sometimes of classic tradition. This also is not for the thin girl. All others, however, will welcome the suggestion contained in No. 4. This is made of citron yellow crêpe de chine, and the Grecian suggestion of line is furthered by bands of Greek fret embroidery in white and gold thread finishing sleeves, neck line, one side of the skirt, and the back of the bodice. More elaborate motifs of the same embroidery appear in front on both skirt and corsage. Triangular pieces of self material, now so much in vogue, are attached to the tops of the shoulders and fall loosely in the back.

For her evening wrap we find in No. 6 a blue velvet model which in both its dolman effect and its trimming inspiration has gone back to dear old Godey's Lady's Book. The latter consists of the bands of self-puffing so dear to the mid-Victorian heart, and, in addition, a charming result is obtained by the circular piece attached to the garment just above the slits where the arms emerge and encircling the back. The garment is collared in brown fox.

Right beside this is an evening wrap for the younger sister of from 8 to 14 which shows that we need only a touch of alteration to make Little Red Riding Hood a fashion authority. For this is a red velvet cape placing its accent on the familiar hood. Here, however, the hood is expanded and its emphasis is further assured by a long tassel of gold fringe. The collar is gray squirrel.

For all ages and for various types of costume velvet is as popular with the designer for the younger generation as it is with those dedicating their efforts to maturity. The velvet frock for the girl of from 14 to 18 is perhaps most fashionably built on the simplest and straightest of lines. However, it benefits by all manner of sophisticated trimmings such as insets, ribbon embroidery, and appliques.

No. 7 shows for the flapper a dress up suit of either brown velvet or brown duvetyn, which is set off with brown fox collar and cuffs and which finishes the hip boundary of its jacket by rows of narrow brown braid. In a different mood from this is the sports suit of brown knitted material at the extreme left. The rage for this knitted fabric has not been limited to those past their teens. It has engulfed both the tots and the tottering. For the school girl nothing could be smarter than frock or suit of this weave. Here I show it in brown with a design of brown and rust color.

The remaining models on the page are the smart coat of plaided camel's hair and the combination of sweater and separate skirt. The former occurs in tones of brown and beige and it is banded in plain beige camel's hair. Aside from the smart flare and the raglan sleeves, distinction is conferred on this model by the buttoning of the detachable scarf collar on either side. As to the latter, the new jacquette sweater is combined with a wool skirt plaided in white, red, and black.

THAT OLD ROCK- I'D GIVE ANYTHING TO GET THAT OUT OF THE WAY- IT'S TOO HEAVY TO HAUL ANYWHERE AND IT WOULD COST A FORTUNE TO MOVE IT- I WOULD HAVE TO HAVE A WAGON BUILT TO ORDER AND IT WOULD COST A BARREL OF MONEY TO BREAK IT UP- IT'S SUCH AN UNSIGHTLY THING AND NO ONE WILL LET ME DUMP IT ANYWHERE- I'D GIVE $40.00 TO GET RID OF IT-
I'LL GET RID OF IT FOR YOU FOR $10.00
YOU WILL- HA! HA! HA! WELL IF YOU THINK YOU CAN, CHESTER, YOU'LL GET THE $10.00- THAT WILL GO A LONG WAY TOWARD BUYING THAT PONY- YOU KNOW YOU ONLY NEED $19.35- GO AHEAD SAMSON- GET A SHAWL-STRAP AND TAKE IT DOWN TO THE LAKE AND DUMP IT IN-
OH! I KNOW HOW TO GET RID OF THAT STONE! IT WON'T COST TEN DOLLARS EITHER-
HELLO, MR. HOUGH- HOW MUCH WILL YOU CHARGE TO DIG A BIG HOLE IN MY YARD ABOUT UP TO YOUR NECK?
OH I DON'T KNOW, CHESTER- I'D CHARGE YOU ABOUT A DOLLAR AN HOUR-
IS THIS THE PLACE YOU WANT IT?
YES- DIG IT RIGHT NEXT TO THIS STONE- ABOUT HALF AGAIN AS BIG AS THE STONE-
IT'S A BIGGER JOB THAN I THOUGHT IT WOULD BE, CHESTER- IT WILL TAKE AT LEAST FIVE HOURS-
NOW CAN YOU DUMP THAT ROCK INTO THE HOLE?
SURE- THAT'S DUCK SOUP-
WHEE! THAT'S FINE!
THERE SHE GOES-
NOW COVER IT UP AND SMOOTH IT DOWN-
I WANT YOU TO HAUL THE DIRT AWAY TOO- HOW MUCH DO I OWE YOU FOR THE WHOLE JOB?
ABOUT EIGHT DOLLARS, CHESTER-
WELL POP- I GOT RID OF THE ROCK ALL RIGHT- NOW GIVE ME THE $10.00 YOU OWE ME- IT ONLY COST ME $8.00 TO HAVE IT BURIED AND HAVE THE DIRT HAULED AWAY-
WELL, CHESTER, YOU CERTAINLY SHOWED BRAINS- YOU'RE ENTITLED TO ALL YOU MADE AND I OWE YOU $20.00 MORE- THAT MAKES $30.00-
WHEE! I'VE GOT ENOUGH MONEY TO BUY MY PONY AND CART AND HAVE SOME LEFT- WHOOPIE!

Fashions Beauty Contests

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

BAN ON WHITE GLOVES.

By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—We were sitting round the radiator in the hotel salon talking about how cold and gloomy it was and trying to think of the advantages of living in Paris.

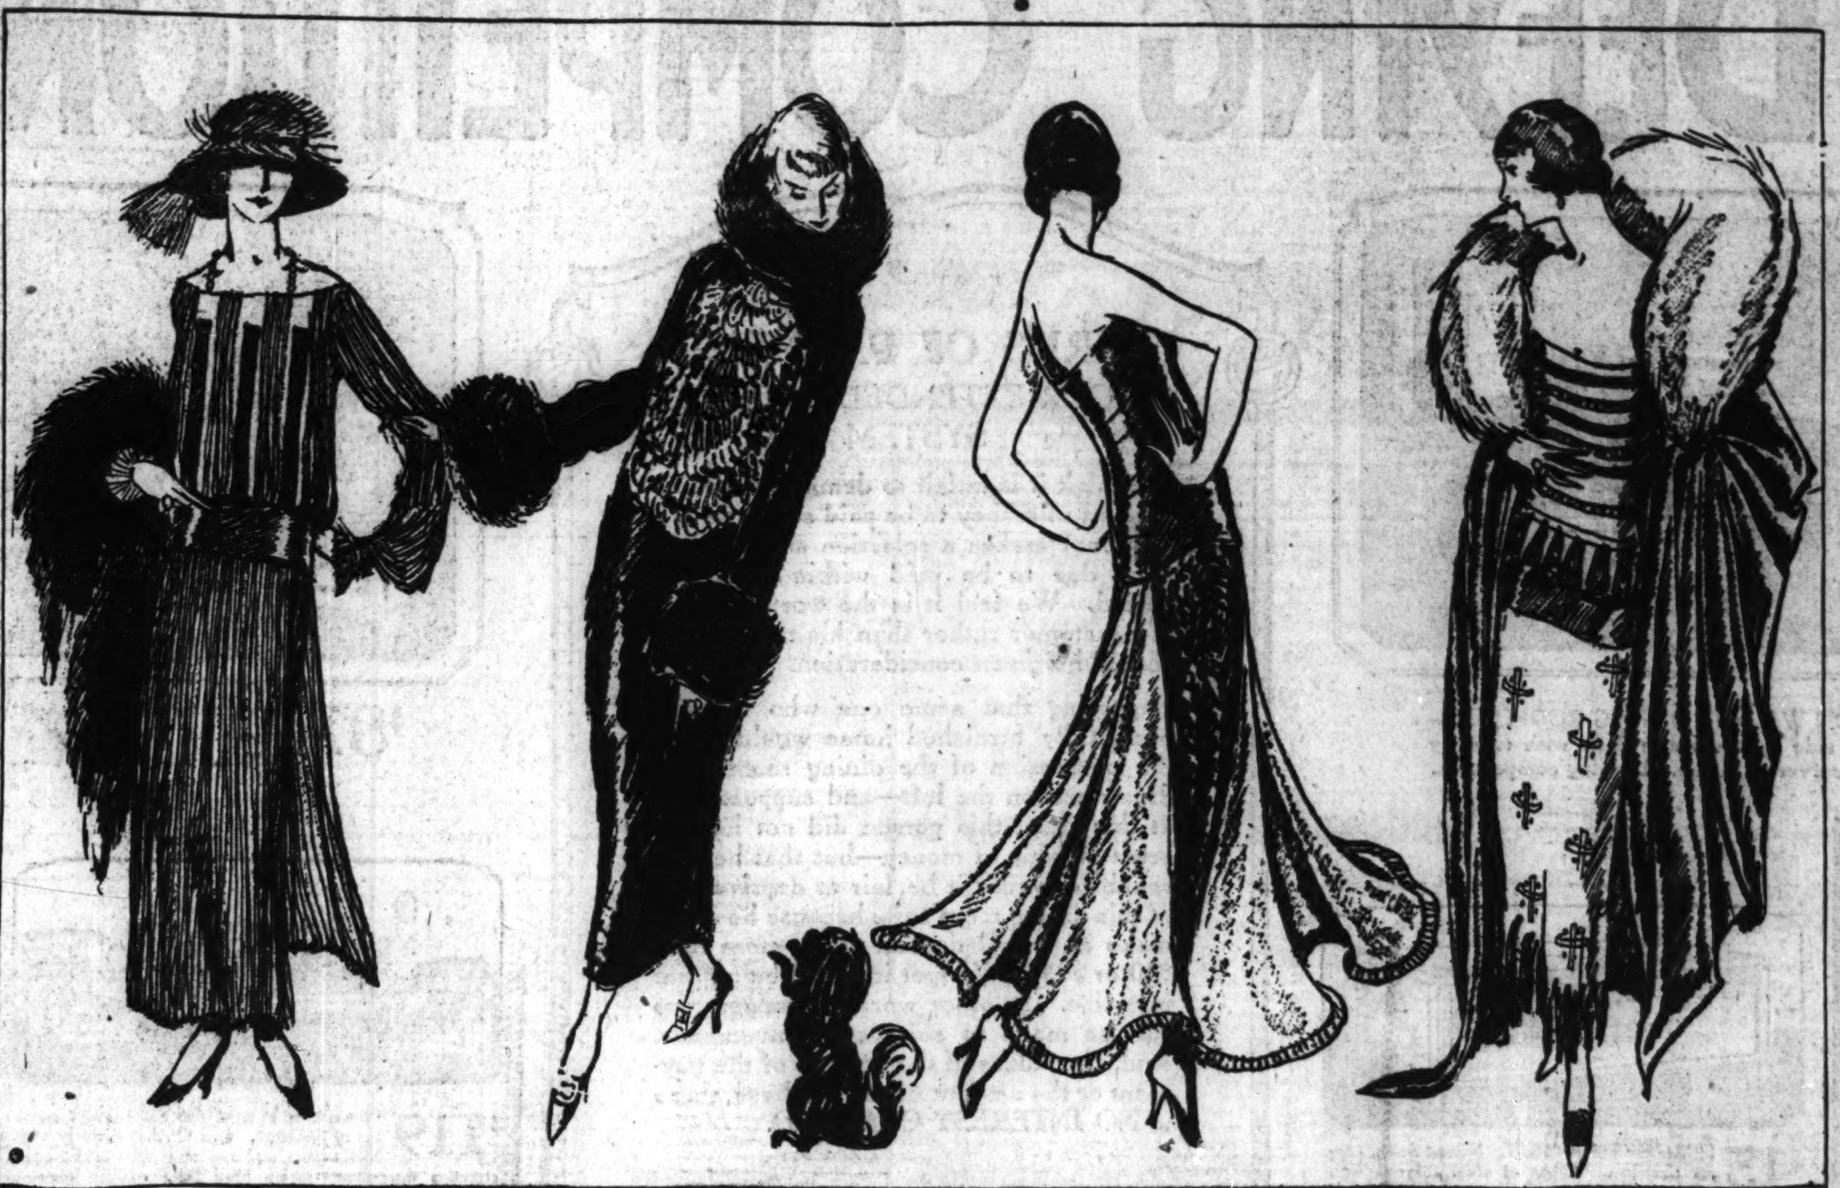
"What are they?" reflected one of the women. "There must be some."

And then she thought of the first one. You do not wear white gloves. Perhaps it is because they do not fit in with the pervasive gray of the French atmosphere, but we Americans look quite conspicuous when we first arrive and signify we are dressed up by putting on white gloves. After all, it probably isn't the atmosphere at all, but a passing phase of the French fashions that has rejected them for a time. And in the next letter I may tell you not to close your charge account at the cleaners' immediately, because they are coming in again. For I have seen them, fierce looking and gauntleted, in the shop windows of the greatest glove makers of the world.

At any rate, have your gloves gauntleted and suit yourself as to the shade. You might have the gauntlets embroidered in some sour color. Yellow on purple is a good combination for chic.

The woman of the first sketch wears them on the street. Also she has on a hat that bears the latest trimming. Have you seen it yet? You know that brushy, bristly, gruff looking clothes brush of a thing that a bulldog wears around his collar when he is dressed up. The milliners of Paris must have borrowed an idea of him—have "turned to him for inspiration," as the fashion writers say.

For hat trimmings on the costliest millinery consist of round pompons, sticking out at one side of the hat in exactly this material that he affects. It is light in color, you know, like real bristles of the kind the English make hair brushes of. These that they used in millinery darken and even shade into black tips at the end. Some of them are shorter and rounder than this one, and many of them in the shops are accompanied by long ends, as was this one, that wrap round the hat.



Brown plaited crêpe de chine; worn with modish felt hat. Black skunk collar and cuffs feature this black velvet frock. Dancing frock with circular skirt of green and silver brocade. Gown of green crêpe embroidered in crystal beads.

I think the woman is wearing a nice type of dress. It is finely plaited to its minutest detail, with insets between the long strips of plaited box plaits (do you get it that even the plaits are plainted?) These insets are in silver tissue. There is a double apron running down the front and the back, like the sandwich man, and it is plaited, too. That is an awfully good hat she is wearing—to revert to it for one moment. It is of reddish or terra cotta colored felt. You will observe her belt is a little higher than formerly. She carries a silver fox.

The black velvet dress represents the highest taste one can display in the matter of a costume for afternoons. Of course, as you know, the little dog is good for afternoon wear, too. The dress is seared o'er with black jet embroidery, and has a big collar and cuffs of black skunk. They, I think, are what give it final distinction, even more than the accompanying dog. The creation is worn by a charming blonde of Paris, who is celebrated for her clothes.

The third sketch introduces you to Mlle. Fabris, who, in some chic gowns, is doing some chic dancing. The dress represents the circular movement at its most circular phase. It is developed in green and silver lame with a corded edge to the skirt—a rubber tired skirt, as somebody holds out for calling it.

Panels of green and pearl embroidery hang over it at intervals. I believe there are three in all, one going down the front. At the waist they are in the form of the wide spread of a V, and they taper into a point at the hem. The bodice is wrapped and is of the silver tissue. Ask me not how the wearer keeps it on.

Friend Vionnet has got out a new dress that is caught up right in front. The side drapery, to which you are now well accustomed, she has brought round right in the middle of the front, and draws up from both sides, instead of from one. The model here shown does not represent that creation, but made me think of it, because this one also is by Vionnet.

It is a green dress in crepe, heavily beaded in crystal. The hem line hangs in icicles. Trimmings are still inclined to go round the bodice, and so does this one in bands of the embroidery.

The accompanying cape has enormous chic, due in large measure to the huge collar. The bigger the fur collar to evening wraps the greater the smartness today. It is of gray fox and is on silver cloth.

One speculates on how long this beaded trimming can possibly last, anyway. Three months, say some. Then again comes a modification. Of course Callot and others remark that they always have made beaded gowns. Undoubtedly so, and that was all right so long as they were not fashionable. But watch out for any feature after it has been a fad and arrange not to have too much of it left on your hands.

Word comes now that beads will run for many a long day yet, but that they should come in clusters and not plaster a dress over, except after the second wearing, when they have all come off. You can judge a dressmaker's standing now by how long her beads stay on. In the manner of this new gown of Vionnet, the fashion ought to last for a long time. Never was a fashion prettier; never was one more troublesome. Did you ever undertake to pack your beaded gown—or does your maid do it for you?—carefully separating beads so that no two of them will get their horns locked?

TERMS OF PAYMENT OF OUR EXTENDED ACCOUNT SYSTEM

We think it is unfair to demand a certain amount of money to be paid at the time a customer makes a selection and the balance due to be paid within a certain period. We feel it is the worthiness of the customer rather than his money that should be given consideration.

Supposing that some one who loves a beautifully furnished home would enjoy the possession of the dining room suite illustrated on the left—and suppose that at this time, this person did not have a great surplus of money—but that he was reliable—would it be fair to deprive him of this dining room suite because he could make an initial deposit of no more than $10 or $15? We feel it would be a great injustice. In other words, arrangements can be made to suit your convenience. And, regardless of the amount of the payment or the amount of the purchase, there is NO INTEREST CHARGED.

The Wheel of Fortune

by DORIS BLAKE

Another of the series of articles by Antoinette Donnelly on "The Twelve Most Beautiful Women in America" appears in the Coloroto section of The Sunday Tribune today.

HERE is a little fortune telling game with which to while away a pleasant hour, as only fortune hunting games will while them away.

Take a large piece of paper; draw a huge circle, and divide it into twenty-five parts. Then, in order to determine your fortune, take a pin or hat pin or some sharp pointed instrument, close your eyes, strike a number on the wheel, and refer to the following table for explanation of what the gods advise or have in store for you. If you strike outside the circle, you will be unfortunate.

1. You are advised to be careful in your actions, lest one foolish move may upset the desire of your heart and get you talked about.

2. You are recommended to turn your thoughts toward earning a place in the next world, instead of being so involved in the affairs of this.

3. Your partner in marriage will be your guiding genius, so choose her or him with that in mind.

4. Do not think so much about clothes and making yourself attractive, else you will be thought vain.

5. If you will stick to one thing instead of having so many irons in the fire, you will make a greater success of life.

6. You are loved for your own sweet self and many anxious hearts will await your decision with fear and trepidation. You are vastly popular with the opposite sex.

7. Don't dream your life away. If you see some one you want for a life partner, go get him or her. Don't dream away your opportunities, nor expect the other to make all the advances.

8. You will be fortunate if you act honestly and openly, and do not carry on flirtations under cover; otherwise you are going to die a lonely old age.

9. The one you love loves you and your affection will always be returned with the same lavishness you bestow yourself.

10. If you will listen to advice and do not go recklessly along as you are doing, your chances for happiness will be greater.

11. The fates prophesy two mates for you, and a possible third, the first of which will be good and not appreciated; the second will keep you stepping lively—and the third will be a matter of deep regret.

12. You are going to have a whole houseful of children for whom you will work hard and be indulgent, but they will make it worth your while, for you will have a glorious old age.

13. The unlucky number, which means your life, will be disappointing. You won't get the mate you want nor the money you'd like to have.

14. You will marry late in life, but do not despair, for you will be abundantly compensated by your selection.

15. Luck is on your side in all things of money and business, but you will not be so fortunate in affairs of the heart.

16. The fates indicate that you are going to have a life of ups and downs and moving hither and yon, always restless and discontented.

17. Your most ardent wish is about to be realized.

18. You are likely to inherit some money, but you will go out and risk it on some foolish speculation and be no better off than now.

19. For one of your temperament married life is not suitable, so you had better stay single as long as you can.

20. Cheer up. The worst is on the way, unless you get hep to yourself and change your mode of life.

21. There is a great treasure within your reach. Whether love or gold, you must wait to find out.

22. In marriage you will be successful, for you will have more than one partner and each will provide you different interests.

23. You will marry a rich and homely person, and things will not be as soft for you as you think.

24. If your manner were not so cold you would be able to see that a certain person is madly in love with you but receives no grain of encouragement and is consequently thinking of turning to another for consolation.

25. You might try to instill a little more religion into yourself so that you will be better able to apply the golden rule to the affairs of life.

Girls! Were you ever deceived by a man? How did you catch him at it? Did another girl tell on him and did she have anything to do with it? Did everybody in town hear about it, too? Tell all about it and $1 will be paid for each letter printed. Address Deception Contest, Chicago Sunday Tribune.

Beauty Answers

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply, send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

LETTA H.: IF YOU HAVEN'T time to go to a gym, why not have the gym come to you. I have a set of twelve exercises which, if you will follow according to instructions every morning, will make you as fit as if you haunted a gym daily. I cannot tell you how many endorsements I have already received from women who have found them all that is claimed. Ask for My Youth Preservers when you send s. a. e. They are illustrated and clearly explained, and all they need is your hearty and vigorous cooperation to make a nice new shiny girl out of you.

WORRIED: AND NOW I'M TIPPED off by one of the leading modistes that the long skirt is not due for an extended life. The claim is that women refuse to look grown up, regardless of whether they are 30 or 60. I guess you just can't raise an ankle for public life and expect it to suddenly submit to retirement. But what a dizzy life, trying to keep pace with the ups and downs of a skirt length. Let's minimize our troubles by being reasonably indifferent about it.

INSOMNIA: INSOMNIA MUST BE a ghastly thing, and only those who suffer it understand. But can't you chuck your worries outside your bedroom door? If possible, walk fifteen minutes outdoors before retiring. Then with windows open breathe deeply before you get into bed and breathe deeply after you bet in. Take a lukewarm bath before retiring and a glass of warm milk.

B. G.: I KNOW A TRICK OF RESTing which has worked with me many a time when I have come home tired out and had to go out in the evening. Lie flat on your back without a pillow, draw your feet up so that the small of your back is comfortably set against the soft mattress, and so lie for fifteen minutes. You haven't any idea how refreshing this method of rest is. Do it directly you get home from work.

UNHAPPY: I SHOULD RECOMmend the facial massages in cases of poor complexions, sluggish, greasy skins, and where blackheads are noticeable. But you must give your face some care yourself, so you had better send for my booklet telling you how to treat a skin so troubled.

A FRIEND IN NEED

by Sally Joy Brown

> I want to be the medium through which the friend in deed and the friend in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy, and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

RENEWING THEIR COURAGE.

HERE is a life story that will make you feel proud of your race!

Some time ago we heard of a couple, not blessed with children, and at the time approaching their seventy-fifth wedding anniversary. In spite of three-quarters of a century of faithful service, they were without a competence for old age. The husband had lately become too deaf and ailing to continue at work; and his brave and loyal wife, at her age and without a complaint or whimper, was doing piece work in a manufacturing establishment, in an effort to prolong the sunset of their lives!

Broad visioned people—people who know the debt of man to man—were informed of the case—and what happened?

Not what so brave a couple deserved, by any means—but what people of their independence and spirit preferred far more! When they awoke to their anniversary day the weather was raw and blustering, with a driving rain that would chill any but the highest enthusiasm. But before the day was well started through the rain came a number of cheery strangers, who asked permission to decorate their little home. Then came others with fruit and flowers—enough to fill the house, as for a wedding! Clothing was there, too, and groceries—ample for the winter. Congratulations by the hundred in letters and telegrams! And the best part was, it was all in the spirit of a spontaneous tribute from people of Chicago who were resolved that lives so nobly lived should receive a "Thank you!" from the society they had served so patiently and so long.

There was a case where honest, loyal people received something of their due from a grateful society. But there are countless others to whom society owes every bit as much, who are still without this recognition. Widowed mothers, striving loyally against heart breaking odds, to rear boys and girls for the tasks of tomorrow; people fending off sickness and advancing age as they strive staunchly to carry on and provide for themselves and loved ones! While they have health and strength they shoulder their burdens without a murmur; but, living as they do "on the very edge," emergencies, sudden pinches, find them helpless, with nothing save surrender, sometimes after a life of struggle, open before them!

There, my friends, is where we come in! Many of the appeals below are from people who need just a little lift, a little token of fellowship and human kindness to give them renewed courage for the battle; others are people who out and out deserve the means of gratifying some long repressed longing for a pet, the means of pursuing a hobby, after years of patient self-denial and unremitting toil.

And when you see what simple things will do all this you'll agree that every one of us can help some one of these people. If you will look over the appeals and then think of the articles you have pushed aside in your house as not needed—or not needed much, anyhow—I'm sure you can think of something that will just meet some appeal! And what better service could that article perform, now that it has outlived its usefulness to you, than dropping in at some home and perhaps transforming some family's whole outlook upon life? Look over the appeals—check the articles you have and are done with—and let us know what family you will give this "lift" it deserves!

Help Her to Carry On.

"I am a young woman and have three children who are badly in need of clothes, especially shoes. I have been sick for some time and nearly all the money went to the doctor. I am getting better and can do my work again, but do not see how I can buy all the things they need, as I have no coal in yet. Now, if any of your kind readers have old clothes or shoes they no longer need I would be thankful for them. The children are 8½, 2½, and 1½ years old. L. P."

Think of this case—a long siege of sickness, no coal in, and cold weather here, with three little ones to care for! This mother has the courage to pull through if she is helped over this emergency. Haven't you some discarded clothing that will guard her little ones against winter and give her faith and inspiration to carry on with the rest of the task?

Grateful for Clothing.

"I am a widow with a little girl 6 years old, whom I take to work with me when I am cleaning and scrubbing, but it takes all I make for rent, fuel, and food. I wonder if some kind reader has a child's coat and some dresses—size 7 or 8. She does not need any more. I would be so thankful for them. Also I would appreciate clothing for myself—size 40 or 42; shoes, size 6-EE. I can sew and make things over. MRS. M. H. S."

You know how the child of a woman who "works out" must be quiet and not annoy people, when the others of her age romp and have a good time, as all children ought? Isn't it hard enough on this mother to see her little girl denied a child's birthright of happy play, without having to see her suffer from cold as well? Surely some one has some outgrown garments that will make the road easier for this hard working mother!

Father Deserted Them.

"I am sending you a few lines to ask if you know of some one who has some old clothes to give. I am 7 years old and my brother is 3 years old. Papa deserted us and we are very poor. Mamma came home from the hospital and can't go to work, for she is weak, and we have no warm clothes to wear. Mamma wears size 38, and she knows how to make things over. Thank you. BLANCHE."

No father, a mother just home from the hospital, and cold weather coming! This little girl has faith that the good people of Chicago will help in this emergency. Shall we disappoint her?

Books of Adventure.

"I have several adventure books for boys that I would be glad to give to some little fellow who would be willing to call for them. MRS. J. W."

Must Have Woolens.

"I am a woman in poor health, and on account of weak lungs am obliged to wear woolen clothes. These I am not able to buy. Has some one any discarded woolen underclothes, worsted dress, middy, a tam, or a woolen blanket of some sort to give me? I would appreciate it so much. "H. D. D."

Can you think of a prospect more disheartening—facing winter, not only in poor health but with a lack of clothes that all but insures what the unhappy result will be? Imagine yourself in this woman's place—then think whether you haven't something that will help give her a chance in the zero days and nights that are coming!

Offers Boy Scout Suit.

"I have a Boy Scout suite, size 12, with hat, which I would be glad to give to some boy." MRS. R. N. M."

For the Small Ones.

"I have a set of Japanese dishes for children, a blackboard, and books, some on salesmanship, which some one may have by calling. "E. W. D."

Deserve Kind Turn.

"We burned out about six years ago and have been knocking about in light housekeeping rooms ever since. We have six children. My husband has been sick for eighteen months—in the hospital most of the time—and I have been able to work only a few days ago. I have finally managed to get four rooms and have bought two beds and a cooking stove, but have no heating stove, dressers, or carpets. If you could help us we would be thankful and glad to call for it. H."

After such relentless bad fortune, doesn't this family deserve a kind turn from life for once? When they are in such need that they haven't a heating stove it should be easy to think of some discarded article that will help make life seem brighter to them..

Keeping Them Amused.

"I am a little girl, 12 years old, and there are six of us. My mamma goes out working every day, and a woman where she does washing gave her a phonograph, but we have no records. If there are some readers who have records of any kind they do not want, my aunt said she would take me to get them. Mamma works hard, but is not able to buy records for us. We would be so glad to play our music when she is working, as the hours are long when she is away. I am the oldest one. "MYRTLE."

Haven't you a lot of records that you never play? Ask yourself where they will give you more pleasure—locked up in the cabinet, or helping this little girl keep the young ones happy while her mother is out providing for them all!

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

PARCHED CORN FLAVORS.

THIS discussion might be labelled "the toast flavors" or the surface flavors. We get these, or rather we may get them, on certain breads and even on parched egg white, as we have it on omelet surprise or by the American name of baked Alaska. Saratoga chips at their most perfect stage have the parched corn flavor, and even fats crisped may have it, and roasted nuts, too, have a flavor that is nearly related to that of parched corn, when they are rightly browned.

This flavor is evanescent. Most of the foods on which it can be produced have a sort of wilting quality as does popcorn, when it grows stale. Water is dried off their surface, but what is within them soon seeks to distribute itself in crust or surface or, as in the case of popcorn, moisture is taken from the air.

Hot Rolls with Parched Corn Flavor.

Any good bread dough may be used for these rolls and made by the standard formula of one cup liquid, three cups of flour, one-eighth to one-half ounce yeast, a little sugar, one teaspoon salt, and possibly a little butter. The sponge method is always good. A finely elastic and velvety texture of dough is ideal. The making up and setting up of the rolls count, and then the baking. Our American ideal for "a good pan of rolls" is that these rolls shall all be attached. In this case the only crust they have, except for the rolls next the pan, is that on the top and bottom. The sides are soft

One way to get crust all around is to bake rolls in floured muffin tins. Another is to set them up alternately on a floured baking sheet. Take up bits of the dough, roll in a ball, set on floured tin, and when all ready for the oven—ten minutes will be long enough for them to stand after made up—wet over the surface with cold water and put into a five hundred degree oven and bake fifteen minutes. Some ovens behave a little differently from others, and if the heat is not well established, watch baking carefully. The part next the pan will taste as much like popcorn as you can imagine. The rolls may be pressed down like biscuits to get more of this surface. The nearly round rolls keep hot longer, and it is only while they are hot that the flavor of the crust is perfect.

Baking Crusty Bread.

While rolls are baked in a truly hot oven, bread baked in a crusty bread tin is perhaps most perfectly baked if put into a cold oven as soon as made up, with a small fire, which will increase heat to moderate, lighted as the bread goes in. A full hour is needed for the baking to get the real, but light brown, crust and, for perfect shaped loaves, the closed bread tin with the marcelled sides is the thing.

Suppose the bread has been made with a sponge, then flour worked into this, and the whole kneaded and raised once. Now take as large a piece of this as will fill one-half of the crusty bread tin three-fourths full. Close and fasten the tin, and put into the oven as described. Butter both sides of the crusty bread tin as lightly as possible, rubbing almost all off that you put on. These cylindrical loaves are attractive to look at or give away and the round slices of bread are attractive on a silver bread tray.

Besides, when toasted, they are an excellent substitute for toasted English muffins. Cut rather thick slices. The texture of this bread, as of all breads, depends on the character of the kneading. It would be possible to get a regular English muffin texture if the loaf were to be used for that alone.

Parched Corn.

Pick over a cup of dried sweet corn, or even dried field corn, put it in a strainer, set the strainer in a bowl and pour over the corn boiling water to cover. Let stand five minutes, drain for fifteen, wipe dry, and put into a cast iron or cast aluminum pan in which has been melted one tablespoon of butter. Stir almost constantly for twenty minutes in order to get it thoroughly and evenly browned and the grains so puffed that some will pop a little. Drain on blotting paper or wire plate and sprinkle with a tiny bit of salt or eat without.

This is recommended for Thanksgiving time for sentimental reasons, but is an excellent sweetmeat-like thing for those who have a tendency to eat too much candy. For those who fear to break a tooth in eating it, this can be prepared by putting it through a rather fine disk of the food chopper.

Pounded parched corn was mixed with maple sugar by the Indians, and the early French explorers called it praline. In the early American explorations of the west parched corn and tea was all the food some of the explorers carried with them.

I remember a tale of one of the young men surveyors connected with the early history of the state of Michigan, which concerned his traveling on horseback for ten days through the wilderness trails with no other food than parched corn. It may be used at a fine holiday meal, as an appetizer, just as salted almonds are used.

The Meaning of Corn.

All the food grains are called "corn" in most European countries, and our English Bible has that name for the wheat as does European literature in general. Our Indian corn is called maize in continental usage. In the British Isles "corn exchanges" and corn markets were places where wheat mainly was sold. So we may extend our meaning of parched corn to mean the parching of any of the grains or food seeds.

The unleavened breads of the world at their best have had that parched flavor which the best cooks get in making corn pone, English muffins, and some of the other breads baked on a griddle. A freshly made cracker may have that same parched corn flavor that is so natural and relishable. It is all very well to add nuts and raisins to our breads to bring them up to cake, and to ice them, but if we will bake them correctly and with the idea of developing that parched corn flavor, we shall get something far more appetite stimulating and safe as food than the dressed up "corn" product.

Ring Muffins on Griddle.

Formula: One egg, one cup of milk, on tablespoon of sugar or a little more, two scant cups of flour, two level teaspoons of baking powder, two tablespoons of butter added to the batter last. Use butter on the griddle, and never have the griddle hot enough so that the exposed butter will burn anywhere. Butter the muffin rings inside, put them on the griddle, and fill half full with batter made by above formula. Always remember in baking muffins in rings on the griddle that if the ring is too full the batter will spread when the muffins are turned.

Bake ten minutes on one side, turn with teller knife or spatula, and cook ten minutes on the other. Let the baked muffins stand two or three minutes in the rings, after which they will drop out readily. Here we get something much like the crusty bread and, if we desire, we can immediately toast these muffins to make them crisper.

Eggless Corn Bread.

This has always been a favorite with me because with the right baking it is at least half crust and a parched cornlike crust at that. One-half cup of yellow cornmeal, one cup of flour, one-half teaspoon of soda, one cup of sour milk. Beat sour milk well with egg beater, pour into dry mixture, beat to perfect batter, pour into baking tin in which it can be spread thin, bake twenty minutes in hot oven.

Any Toast.

Today we have too many breads with clammy crusts which must be cut off before the bread is toasted—so much wasted. These clammy crusts are often produced by baking the bread in too hot an oven, and then buttering or softening the crust in some way after the bread is out. This is an exceedingly common practice, and really a pernicious as well as a wasteful one. The crumb, moreover, is not well cooked. But of the two wastes, it is better to waste the bread than the digestive powers, therefore cut off such a crust before toasting slices. Of course, a crust that had been browned too heavily must also be removed, but there are crusts, say those of the crusty bread described, that will toast perfectly.

The bread must not brown too soon, as it is so likely to do in most electric toasters after the heat is once up. In this case the bread is merely singed. Well dried and well heated before a slice of bread commences to brown, should be the rule. Dried toast should be piled lightly, if at all, and buttered toast not piled at all. Slightly softened butter is better than hard butter for toast.

Grilled Almonds.

Plain browned almonds, really almonds slowly toasted, are more delicious than most people realize who are addicted to salted almonds, served at meals too high in calories without them. But suppose we have a meal with a light soup, fish and potatoes, nice bread; then we may add at the end some freshly grilled almonds. Although grilled with sugar, these may be used in the place of salted almonds. They have an odor that lasts better than that of some of the parched grains do.

It is not like that of parched corn, because the parched or browned sugar has been added to it. In fact, grilled almonds give off an aroma such as we could expect to come out of a box of perfection cake, and yet it has enough of the parched corn odor to stimulate a neat appetite.

To prepare grilled almonds, have ready a cup of thoroughly dried blanched almonds. Cook a cup of sugar with one-fourth cup of water till it spins a thread, or to about 238 degrees. Put the almonds into the sirup, and watch and stir a little until they become a delicate brown. The sirup should grow brown before it sugars off. Watch carefully and stir rapidly when this is about to happen, so that the almonds will get the sugar instead of being left in the pan and wasted. These keep fairly well in a tin box, but it is while they are still warm that they have the most appetizing of parched qualities.

Will-o'-the-Wisp Flavor.

An attempt has been made above to tell how one of the most delightful of food flavors is secured. It is easier to say that this particular one is seldom tasted, except from the ever and widely popular popcorn bag, popular for no other reason perhaps, since this confection is none too pleasant in the mouth and not safe eating for people with bridges and other mouth porcelains. No great amount of food is secured by eating a great bulk of popcorn, yet it seems to be satisfying, as foods of true flavor are. But in spite of this flavor, it is not generally prized or preserved. One writer possessing a great knowledge of the food writes of it:

"But flavor is an elusive thing; it foils all attempts to analyze it, to reduce it to its component parts. In fact, we may know a flavor well, yet be unable to describe it. One reason is that we think of flavor as almost purely a matter of taste. It isn't, it's a combination of taste and smell. For some reason the important sense of smell is belittled. We marvel at the keen sense of the hound, but the olfactory sense of the human is neglected. This is all the stranger from the fact that smell is perhaps the least keen of the senses—and that sense is usually most appreciated which has been partially or wholly lost. Man needs to revalue his nose."

If anybody has a keen sense of smell that person has to suffer many things, and no keener suffering comes than that from mismanaged foods. For instance, while the aroma from perfectly cooked French fried potatoes suggests that of parched corn, the odor from burned potatoes can absolutely sicken, "turn the stomach," and the other disagreeable odors that potatoes—starchy stuff—may acquire are not few. The aromas of bread vary quite as much, though not suite so positively, but how delicious the test may be!

ITCHING ECZEMA DRIED RIGHT UP WITH SULPHUR

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment and disfigurement. Sufferers from skin trouble should get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like a cold cream.

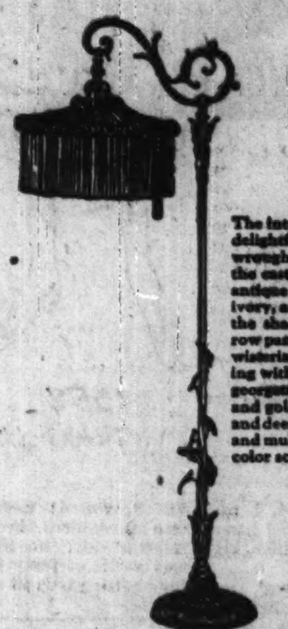
No. 2573

A particularly graceful lamp, with a hand-carved standard, finished in antique copper polychrome, rising from a black and gold marble base. The shade of putty colored georgette, combined with blue, has a handsome trimming of gold lace and linings of gold and orange.



No. 2921

The interesting features of this delightful lamp are the hand-wrought iron decorations on the cast iron base, finished in antique gold, black and bone ivory, and the novel design of the shade. It is made of narrow panels of antique lace over wisteria striped taffeta alternating with wider panels of putty georgette. A mulberry lining and gold and rose interlinings and deep fringe of gold bullion and mulberry silk completes the color scheme.

Advance Showing of Almco Lamps

This Week in the Better Chicago Stores

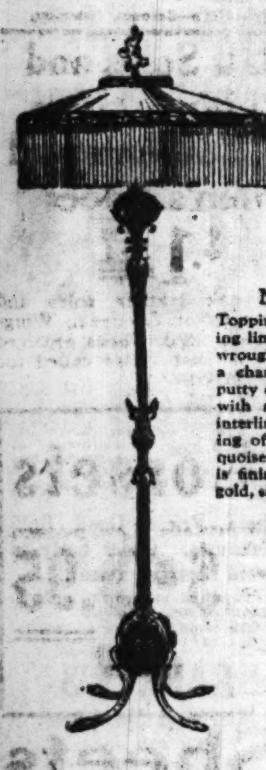
To give Chicago women an opportunity of seeing the delightful new Almco Lamp designs which have just been created for the winter season, a number of the leading stores have arranged a special Fashion Show of Almco Lamps for the coming week.

The unusual beauty and fine workmanship of Almco Lamps alone make this display a memorable one. But, in addition, the newness and individuality of the designs now on display are well worth a special inspection.

One of the distinctive features of Almco Lamps is the harmony apparent in every detail of the lamp. This complete unity of line, proportion and coloring is achieved by designing the lamps as a single unit, from the elaborately hand-carved wood or hand-wrought iron base to the blended colorings of the many-layered silken shade.

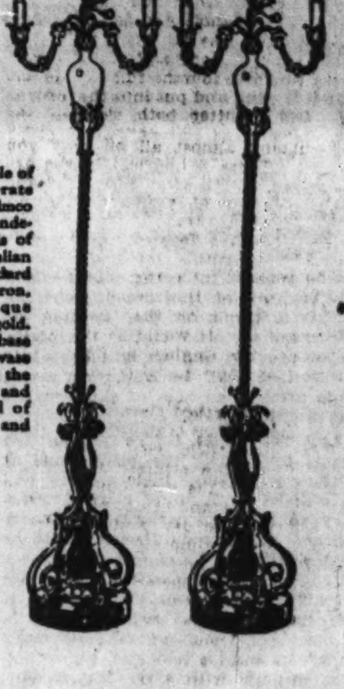
No separate shades and bases can be combined to produce such an effect; nor can Almco shades and bases be transposed without destroying their perfect harmony.

Another effective touch is found in the large amount of skilled hand work which is employed in the creation of every lamp. Clever workers in wrought iron, deft wood-carvers and nimble fingered needlewomen produce effects that no machine can imitate.



No. 3117

Topping the slim, curving lines of this hand wrought iron lamp is a charming shade of putty color over rose, with a burnt orange interlining and a ruching of black and turquoise blue. The base is finished in antique gold, silver and black.



No. 3126

A splendid example of the more elaborate effects created by Almco are these ornate candelabra. The base is of black and gold Italian marble; the standard of hand-wrought iron, finished in antique silver, black and gold. Surmounting the base is a burnt orange vase from which spring the graceful branches and interesting finial of hand-wrought iron and crystal.

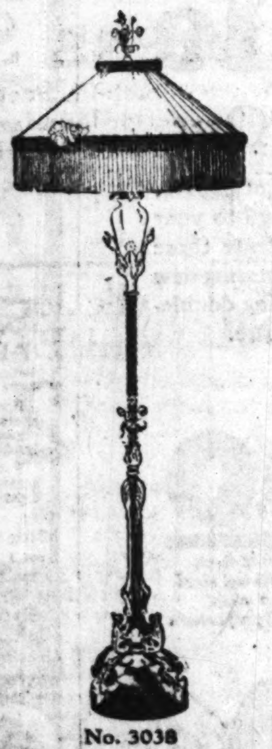
A Fascinating Exhibit of New Fashions in Lamps

In this exhibit will be displayed many charming floor and bridge lamps with wrought iron or polychromed wood bases; table and boudoir lamps in pairs, many with exquisitely colored lustre vase bases; quaint desk lamps; dignified and ornate torcheres and candelabra; and interesting novelties for living rooms, libraries, sunrooms, bedrooms and halls.

Every woman who is interested in keeping her home modern and beautiful will delight in seeing the decorative possibilities offered her in these newest Almco Lamps. The showing will be representative of the beauty and individuality which have made Almco Lamps more widely known than any other lamp, and given them the reputation of being "America's most beautiful lamps."

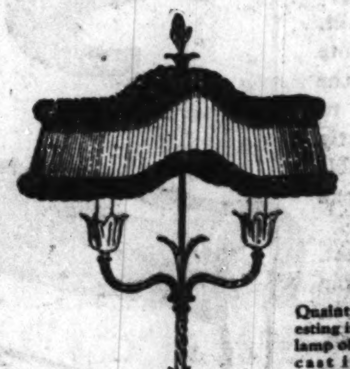
The sale of Almco Lamps is restricted to the better stores, where they can easily be identified by the Almco tag or label on the base and shade.

Art Lamp Manufacturing Company, Chicago
Wholesale Display Rooms: 1433 South Wabash Avenue, Chicago
306 Fifth Avenue, at 31st Street, New York



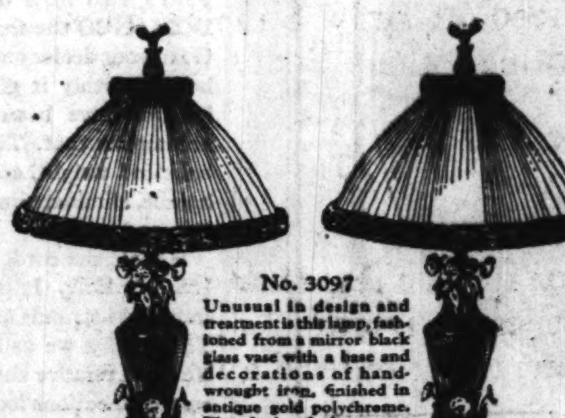
No. 3038

Beautiful in proportions and perfect in detail is this charming lamp, with a base of black and gold Italian marble and a standard of hand-wrought iron finished in antique silver, gold and black, and surmounted by a blue lustre vase. The delightful shade is of putty colored georgette, with lining and interlining of turquoise taffeta. It is trimmed with black velvet bands and flowers of silver cloth, orchid and turquoise taffeta, and topped by a graceful wrought iron finial. The lighting is of the exclusive Almco indirect type.



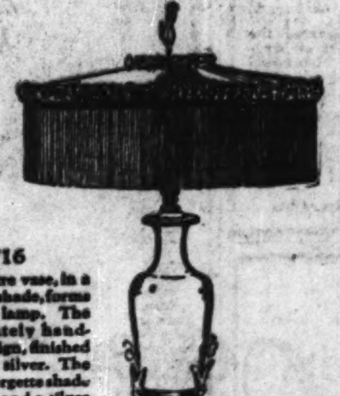
No. 2979

Quaint in design and interesting in every detail is this lamp of hand-wrought and cast iron, finished in antique silver polychrome. The shade is of putty colored georgette, with pink and gold interlinings and pink and putty lining. The ruching is black and gold. Usually sold in pairs.



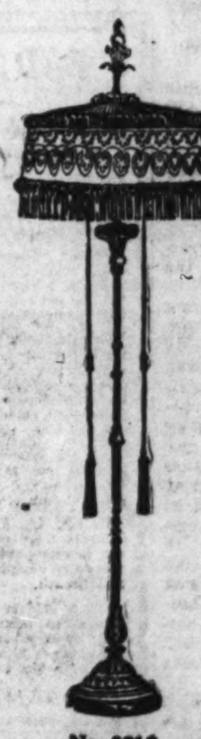
No. 3097

Unusual in design and treatment is this lamp, fashioned from a mirror black glass vase with a base and decorations of hand-wrought iron, finished in antique gold polychrome. The shade of champagne colored chiffon has a champagne lining, pink and gold interlining and ruchings of black velvet and gold cloth.



No. 2716

An exquisite lustre vase, in a lovely turquoise shade, forms this fascinating lamp. The base is a delicately hand-wrought iron design, finished in turquoise and silver. The putty colored georgette shade has a pink lining and a silver cloth and pink interlining. The lighting effect is of the remarkable new Almco indirect type.



No. 2910

Very individual is this handsome lamp, with a base of black and gold marble, a standard of hand-wrought and cast iron, and a beautiful shade of gold cloth and black net, combined with black gauze and gold lace. Gold lining and gold and orange interlining strengthen the color, and gold bullion and black fringe complete the detail.

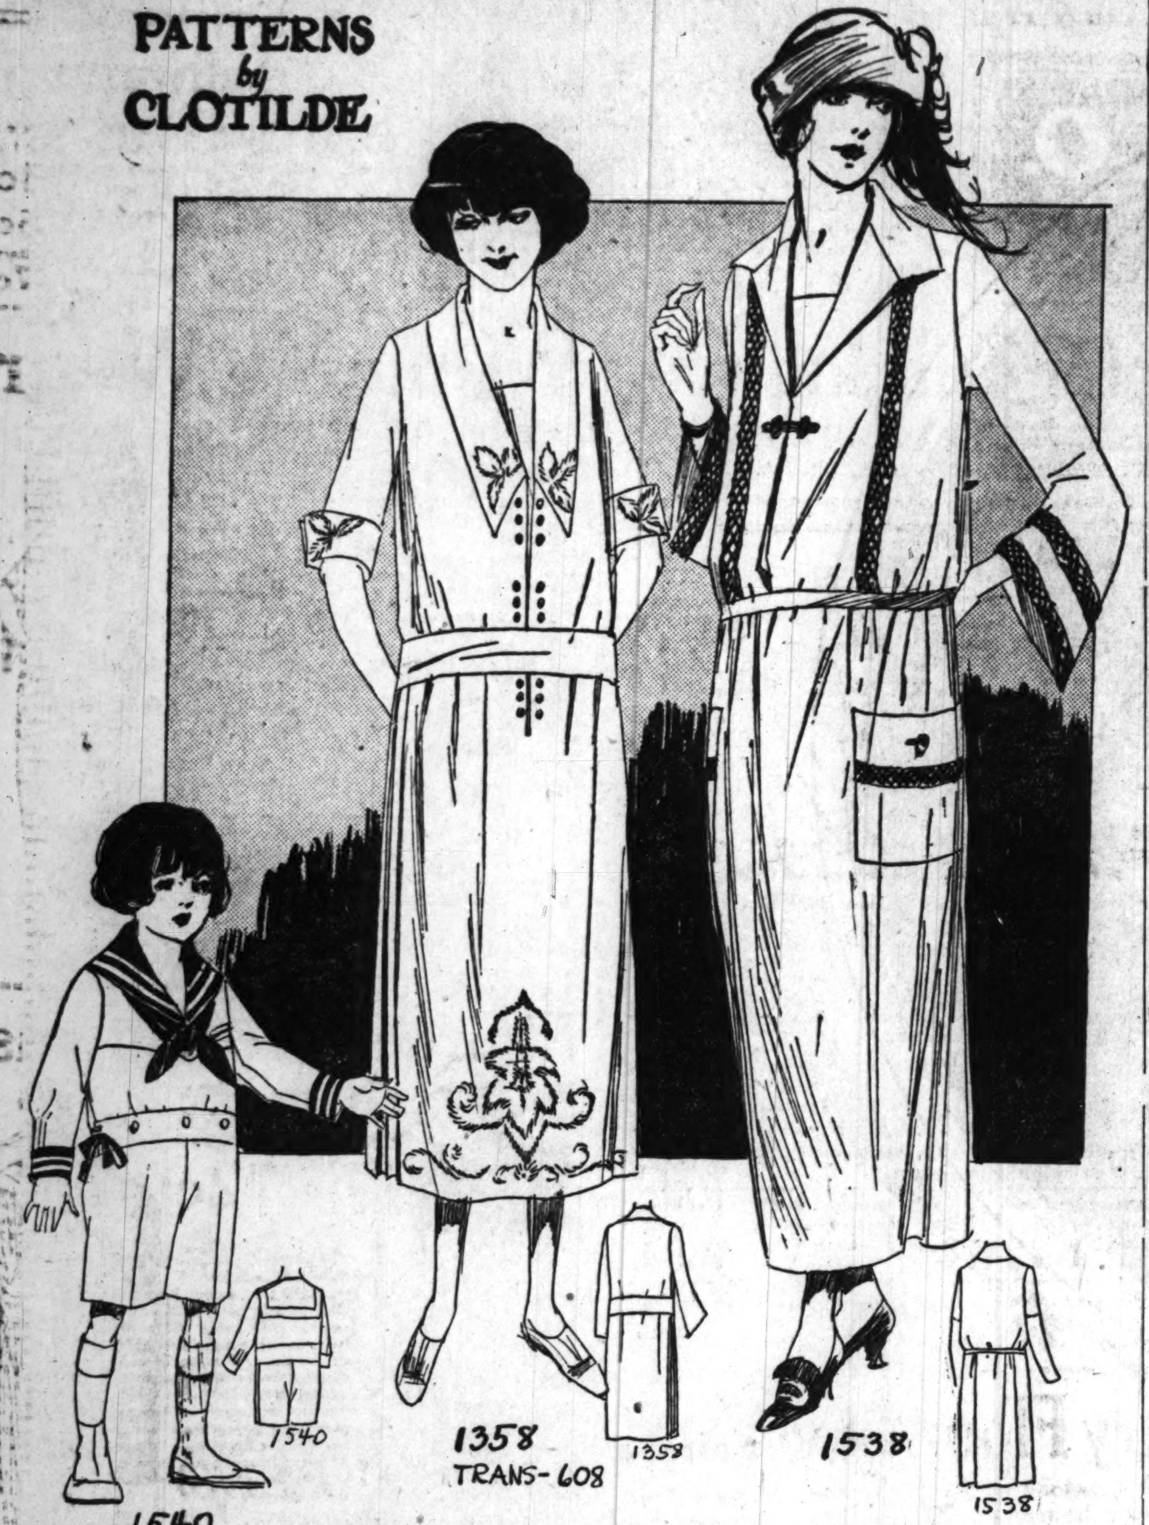
PATTERNS by CLOTILDE



1540—Boy's suit. Sizes 2, 4, 6, and 8 years. Size 4 requires one and three-quarters yards of thirty-six inch material.

1358—Woman's and misses' one one-eighth yards of fifty-four inch ma- 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires three and five-eighths yards of thirty-six inch, three and one-half yards of forty inch, or three and one-eighth yards of fifty-four inch material.

1538—Woman's and misses' one piece dress. Sizes 16 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires four yards of thirty-six inch or three and one-half yards of forty-four inch material.

How to Use the Patterns

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

THE plaits at each side of the front and back of pattern No. 1358 are becoming to every woman; and, while many one piece dresses have more or less draping to the skirt, this design with plaits is especially suitable for an afternoon dress or to wear under a coat for general wear.

The pattern is in two pieces—front and back—the skirt extending straight out from the waist line to give the necessary material to lay the plaits. These are laid and brought back into position so that the underarm seam, from armhole to hem of skirt, makes one unbroken line.

Lay the plaits before joining the seams by placing the pieces, one at a time, on a large table so they will be quite flat. It is, of course, necessary to have all perforations clearly marked, either with French chalk or basting thread. Then fold plait in position, pinning at intervals. Turn the length to the wrong side and see if the under fold is perfectly smooth. If not, release whatever pins necessary to have a smooth fold from top to bottom on both upper and under sides.

Baste each plait in position from top to bottom, and leave bastings in until the dress is finished. They will have to be ripped part way at the bottom when the hem is put in; but after it is finished, baste plaits in place again down to the bottom of the skirt.

A transfer embroidery design is shown with this dress, with instructions for using. The motifs are attractive and will add to the beauty of the dress.

This design is suitable for a great variety of materials, such as velveteen, wool crêpe, twill, or one of the lovely silks or satins. For a dress to wear in the house afternoons, wash materials would make up well—mercerized poplin, for instance, being especially pretty.

The center front of the waist is slashed from the neck line to a point a little below the waist line, and in stitching the facing on it will be necessary to run the seam off at the end to practically nothing. Care will also have to be taken not to stretch the dress at this point. Three or four shallow buttonhole stitches taken just at the bottom and at each side of the bottom will help to strengthen there. The dress must be most carefuly pressed.

Pattern No. 1540 is a decidely smart looking suit for a small boy; and if one has a dress, suit, or coat that is suitable to cut over for the purpose, it is just the thing to decide uon. The garments will have to be riped entirely apart, and all threads removed; then wash and press. The directions on the pattern envelope for cutting and making should be read carefully so as to be thoroughly understood. Velveteen would make up well, or if the small boy wears most of his suits made of wash materials, galatea, cotton duck, or mercerized poplin will look well.

Pattern No. 1538 is one of the new one piece dresses, and is cut in two pieces—front and back with separate set-in sleeves.

The front is slashed and faced—and at the neck the fronts turn back and are joined to a shallow collar that goes across the back. It is a simple, yet smart finish. There is an applied vest fastened to the right side of the opening on the under side and closing on the left.

Two ways of finishing the sleeves are given—one shows them full length and made close fitting by a dart which extends from wrist to just below the elbow; the other shows them in seven-eighths length and flaring.

Wool crêpe, wool jersey, velveteen, or duvetyn would make up attractively, and two or more rows of a narrow silk braid would make effective trimming.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.

Olive Tablet Co., Columbus, Ohio

MY MOST EMBARRASSING MOMENT

The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life." Address Embarrassing Moments, Chicago Tribune. Write on one side of the paper. No manuscript returned.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

Making It Informal.

When I was a student at college my roommate and I lived with a woman with whom verbal brevity was null and void. She was particularly lengthy when asking the blessing over meals. George and I sat side by side at the table and waited patiently for the end of the blessing, which experience had taught us would probably come some time. It was sport for each of us to hold his hand under the tablecloth, ready to slap the other on the knee at the exact instant of the eventual "amen."

Well, when Thanksgiving came my roommate went home, but I stayed on. The dear old soul, not liking to see a vacant place at the table, invited a young woman down for dinner. After a stiff and formal introduction to this stiff and formal young person we sat down to dinner, and during madam's long blessing I quite forgot who was sitting next to me. Of course, at the word "amen" I slapped first. Well, need I go on? H. A. L.

Hard to Explain.

For reasons hard to explain, I have never liked jersey dresses; so one day as a friend and I were discussing various styles and types of clothing, and the subject of the jersey gown came up, I spared no details in my efforts to convince her of my distaste for that particular garment.

It was hot in summer, cold in winter, too tight for stout women and too stringy for thin ones; cost lots and was faddy, and, altogether, I simply could not bear to see one on other girls, let alone wear one myself.

When I had finished my tirade she calmly announced that she had just purchased such a dress, and expected to wear it every day for the next season. Because she was my nearest friend, my face flamed with embarrassment for the hard works my tongue had spoken. F. B.

Getting In Wrong.

We were seated around the table when the subject of names came up.

I ventured to say, "Any mother who names her child 'Percy' has no conscience."

One of the women sitting right across from me said, "O, I don't know. I have named my youngest child Percy and I think my conscience is as healthy as yours."

The end of a perfect day ended right there and even the sympathetic glances I received during the rest of the meal did not console me. L. W.

Liked to Say "Husband."

When my husband and I were first married we lived in a town where I was considerably better acquainted than he was. Naturally I introduced him to my friends and I guess I must have liked to say the word "husband" too well. When my mother came to spend the afternoon with me we happened to meet the man who lived in the other part of the house, and I said, "Mr. Lane, I would like to have you meet my husband."

I will admit the laugh was on me, and I guess it always will be when I see them. L. V. H.

'Nuff Said.

I was entertaining guests from my home town, and we went bus riding. My guest asked me to identify various homes and institutions.

Eventually she said, "What building is this?"

I did not know, but refused to admit it. I replied, "O, that is one of our oldest cathedrals. Isn't it beautiful?"

She agreed with me.

A man sitting back of us touched my shoulder and said, "Pardon me, but that is the water works." M. B. S.

Louder than Words.

My most embarrassing moment occurred last Sunday evening. I am secretary and treasurer of Sunday school, and just before the meeting the superintendent gave me $1.50, mostly in pennies, which I had neglected to take out of the birthday box that morning. I hurriedly dropped the coins into the pocket of my coat.

We had with us that evening a welfare worker for the state penitentiary, who spoke with an appeal for financial aid in her work.

It was suggested that a collection be taken, and I said, "So many of us have not come prepared for a collection for this cause—I, for one, am not —I suggest that we appoint a committee to solicit for such funds."

I was rather nervous, having only led once before in my life, and reached for my handkerchief in the pocket of my coat. When I pulled it out, pennies rolled all over the platform, some even rolling down the aisles of the church. L. M. C.

Removing Her Bodily.

Before going on a trip I supplied myself with many new clothes, and was anxious to wear them at least once before leaving town, so I dressed up and went to church on Sunday.

This church had been cleaned the day before and the pews and kneeling benches were not exactly in place, but I remembered I had to take just one step backwards before sitting down. As I got through most of the service, reaching the seat easily each time, I became a little heedless of the step backwards each time, and then came the crash. When the other people sat, I sat—and away down to the floor, my head striking the seat and my feet many seats ahead.

Instantly three men took me out bodily, thinking I had fainted. When I reached the outside air I was ready to faint and looked much disheveled. J. L.

The Man Who Pays.

It is the custom at the bank where I am employed to refer all checks overdrawing an account to an official.

Mrs. Brown, a woman of considerable means, was careless and continually overchecking.

As I approached the president's desk with several checks I sighed, and remarked, "Mrs. Brown, as usual."

He turned to a man at his desk, then looked at me, and said, "This is Mrs. Brown's husband." M. R. C.

One She Ought to Know.

We were dining out. I am extremely short sighted, and had broken my last pair of glasses that morning, and it was Sunday.

As I entered the long drawing room, and the men arose, my host, Col. Black, said: "Mrs. C, let me present Mr. Lewis" (the guest of honor).

As I bestowed my best smile on a tall, dark man who seemed to move toward me, silence fell, but the situation was too much for the fun loving colonel—and he broke into laughter. I had formally saluted my husband in his attempt to pilot me. E. B. C.

Dover Irons are endorsed by Good Housekeeping, Tribune (N. Y.) and Modern Priscilla Institutes, the National Board of Fire Underwriters, electrical engineers and lighting and power companies everywhere.

Iron and Smile

With the Iron that Will NOT Burn Out

Here is the electric iron every housewife has wanted. The patented "Vea" No-Burn-Out heating element in the Dover-DOMANCO distinguishes it from all other electric irons with the usual unreliable, complicated mica or isinglass heating elements that deteriorate with age and use. The heat reservoir feeds the ironing surface long after the current has been turned off. It's the hot iron with the cool handle—quick heating, slow cooling.

We have been building good irons for 29 years and now offer in the Dover-DOMANCO the finest we have ever built. Go to your dealer and see for yourself. Note how smoothly it glides—the edges of the bottom have been specially designed to accomplish that. This feature, its perfectly balanced weight, and its cool, comfortable handle, eliminate ironing "strain." You can iron and smile!

Handle the cord. We are proud of that. It won't kink. It is soft and flexible even though 64 strands are woven together in it. That's why we call it a double life cord. You can remove the cord without yanking cord connections loose.

Look over the five factors of Dover-DOMANCO superiority—then go to your dealer. He will gladly demonstrate those features. Then remember this amazing new iron sells for only $5.00—including double-deck stand with curling iron feature.

THE POTTERS

PROLOGUE.

Last Sunday it was the painful duty of this chronicler to report a serious breach in the sweet communion of Mamie Potter and her handsome Red Miller—ah! a sad breach indeed, for Mamie broke off her engagement with Red, and Red, enraged, wrote her a cruel letter, which he mailed and then repented . . . followed a long distance call, Mamie hanging up on him, as shown later in this narrative, and then Red frantically caught the next train in a wild effort to head off his mean letter.

Scene I.—Potter Living Room.

(It is evening in the Potter household and the Potters are gathered in their living room . . . Ma is trying to get an account of the day's activities from Pa, who has been so busy he can't remember what he did . . . Bill is irritating the radio dials, which respond with weird shrieks and screams as of a tortured soul . . . the baby has discovered that if you rub the wall with a pencil a certain way you get delightful long zig-zag marks . . . he is enraptured by the discovery, and with all the enthusiasm of a born artist is perfecting his technique all around the living room while the fuddy duddy grownups are carrying on their comical, useless activities . . . Mamie Potter has hurried out in the hall to answer the phone, and her voice can just be heard . . . it doesn't sound happy.)

MAMIE'S VOICE (from the hall):
Yes—yes, who is it? O! (Long silence.) Yes, I'm here. (Long silence.) I don't want to ever hear from you again. Good-bye! (Bang!)

MA (as Mamie bursts into room crying):
Why, what's the matter?

PA (bewildered . . . a fellow never knows when these darn women are going to burst out crying. They cry when they're sad; they cry when they're glad; they cry when they're mad—it doesn't make sense):
Wuh, wuh, what's the matter?

MAMIE (sobbing):
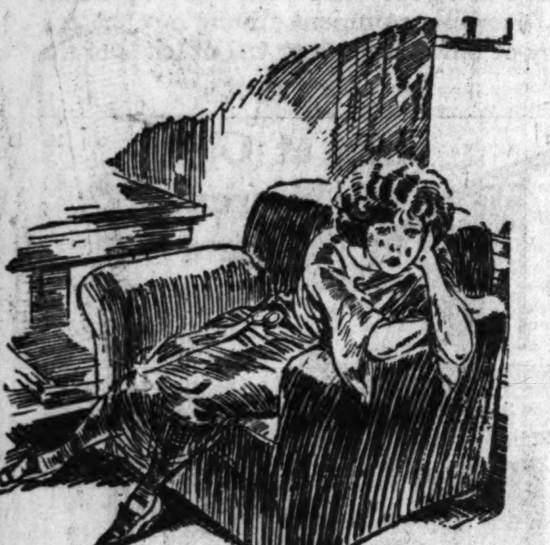
Nuh-nuh-nuh-thing.

MA: Who called? What's the matter? Who was it?



"What does anybody care?"

MAMIE: Nobody.

BILL'S RADIO (tuning up):
Blah, blah, wheeeeeeeeeee.

PA: Keep that thing quiet. What's the matter, Mame?

BILL: Sure, what's eatin' you?

MAMIE (hopelessly):
What do you care? What does anybody care?

BILL (in disgusted tone):
Bet she's had a run-in with her sweetie. What did he say to you? What did you hang up for?

MAMIE (angrily):
None o' your business.

BILL: Ho-ho. I bet he give you the bird.

MA (to Bill):
You keep your mouth shut, young man.

BILL (aggrieved):
O, very well. You're always takin' her part. I just said Red probably ditched her.

MAMIE (to Ma):
He did nothing of the kind. I found out something about him and I wrote and told him so, and he got my letter and just called me up and tried to make up with me again, and I hung up on him.

PA: Well, you wanted to hang up on him, didn't you?

MAMIE (blubbering):
Ye-es.

PA (men are such dumb creatures):
All right, then. What are you cryin' for?

MAMIE (rushing out of the room, sobbing):
You're all pickin' on me. Everybody's pickin' on me.

MA (angrily to Pa):
There; see what you did?

PA (amazed):
Who? Me? What did I do?

MA: What did you do? You made her cry. Haven't you any consideration for the poor thing when she's in trouble?

PA: I didn't do anything to her.

BILL'S RADIO:
Bluh, bluh, bluh. This is Station W-B-U speaking——

PA: Shut that thing up.

MA: Now you're pickin' on William.

PA (retreating behind paper):
All right; all right, have it your own way—all right.

RADIO (raucously):
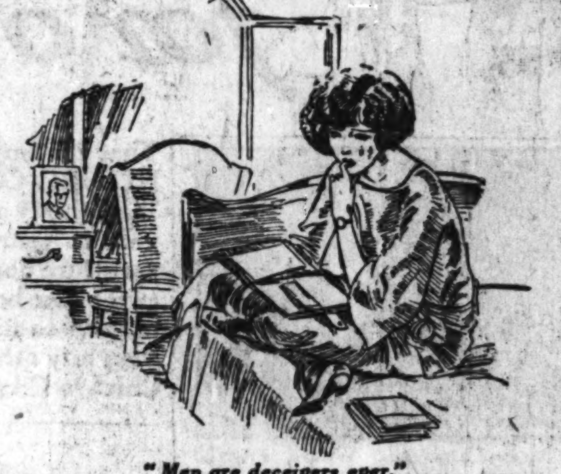
Stay, stay at home, my heart and rest;
Homekeeping hearts are happiest.
For those that wander they know not where
Are full of trouble and full of care:
To stay at home is best.

Scene II.—Mamie's Room.

(Several hours later. Mamie has gone through all the well known stages . . . anger—bitterness—despair—self-pity—doubt—indecision—more self-pity—melancholy—hope—doubt—hope—hope—tenderness—self-sacrifice—complete forgiveness . . . she has written countless letters crystallizing all these moods and, one by one, has torn them up and thrown them away, and now, in the comparative calm after this terrific emotional storm, she is confiding in her diary.)

TUESDAY NIGHT—It is near "the witching hour of midnight," dear Diary, and after a frightful struggle with myself I have decided to forgive HIM and forget the past, if I can. But can I? How do I know? To think that he could have done this to me. But when I heard his voice on the phone tonight I felt as if my heart would break. He sounded so honest and noble I couldn't believe he could have deceived me, and yet I hung up on him, dear Diary; I hung up on him, and now I can see the look of pain which must have come over his dear face. Maybe I was too hasty. Maybe I should not have mistrusted him. But what is it the poet says, "Men are deceivers ever." Yes, it is true, Diary. We believe in them and trust them, and they deceive us. "It has been always thus." But I don't think Red could have done this. Shall I "let bygones be bygones," dear Diary? Yes, my heart tells me I should, and one should always follow "the dictates of one's heart."



"Men are deceivers ever."

I will write him tonight and tell him that perhaps I was too hasty and that I believe in him and trust him "until death do us part." O, Diary, now that I have made this decision I am so happy—so happy, dear Diary, only you can guess.

Scene III.—Potter Dining Room.

(It is breakfast time the morning after, but already Mamie has hurried out and mailed the tender missive which will heal the breach between Red and herself and cause their hearts to beat in happy accord once more. Ah! how wonderful are letters . . . who will arise in our midst and sing in fitting manner the glories of the two cent stamp and the rural free delivery? . . . to think it was this same postal service that carried the fateful letter to Red, which has brought him even now to within a few miles of Mamie's home, speeding as fast as an anxious heart and a passenger locomotive can bring him. What will he say to her? What will she say to him?)

MA (bringing in the toast):
Pa, hurry up, everything's gettin' cold. (To Mamie): Well, well, what's goin' to happen. You at the table on time! (Scrutinizes her closely): You got big rings under your eyes. Didn't you sleep well last night?

MAMIE: No, but I feel better this morning. I wrote Red and made up with him again. Maybe I was wrong.

BILL: Bet Red won't even read it. Bet he'll send it back to you.

MAMIE: Is that so?

BILL: Yeh, you girls think that all you got to do is whistle and a fellow will come running like an Airedale.

MAMIE (sarcastically):
Funny you should mention Airedales. Did anybody ever tell you you looked like one?

BILL (stumped):
Is that so? (Gleefully): Serve you right if Red wouldn't answer your old letter. You think you got him jumpin' through and rollin' over and sittin' up and snappin' sugar off his nose, don't you? Say, he's just been kiddin' you along. There's lots of girls he could have. Regular girls. That look like somep'n and haven't got a disposition like a—like—like an anteater.

MA: William! Such language!
(To Pa, cutting himself in the bathroom):
Pa! Are you ever coming to breakfast? Everything's getting cold.
(Doorbell rings.)

MAMIE: Who's that?

MA: Who in the world could it be at this hour?

MAMIE (with dawning hope):
O, maybe it's Red. (Rushes to the door. Comes back waving letter, excited.) Special delivery! It's from him.

BILL: Him! Who's him?

MAMIE (gleefully):
Red, of course, you ninny. (Tears envelope open with trembling fingers and begins reading):

Dear Miss Potter (Mamie's heart sinks—Miss Potter, what—what): I have read your very silly letter over two or three times, trying to get a shred of meaning out of it. I am convinced that it is too ridiculous to deserve serious notice. I can only say that if that's the way you feel about it, suit yourself. You seem to imply that somehow you are an indispensable part of my existence. I shall continue to live and prove to your satisfaction that you are entirely mistaken. You can send the ring back or throw it in the lake for all I care. I have done nothing for you to treat me in such a shabby way. Good-by, forever.

(Signed) J. H. MILLER.

MA (solicitously):
Well, what did he say?

MAMIE (speechless with chagrin and rage):
O! . . . O! . . .

BILL (sarcastically):
What's wrong in this picture?

MA (futilely):
You look disappointed.

BILL (as Mamie furiously tears the letter into shreds):

"Where's Mamie? I wanta see her."

My! What a happy face! You look like a Greek refugee.

MAMIE (frantically):
The nerve of him! The nerve of him! I'll—I'll—wait till I see him! The brute!

BILL: Our little daughter is provoked. She is allowing her angry passions to arise.

MA (solicitously):
Why, what did he say? What did he say?

MAMIE (tearfully):
Wait till I see him! . . . I'll never speak to him again . . . I'll tell him something . . . Wait till I see him!
(Doorbell rings.)

BILL: Another letter from Red. My, he must think a lot of his sweetie. Two letters in one morning. (Rises to go to door): Or maybe it's Red himself. Wouldn't that be sweet?

MA: There, there, now, Mamie, what did he say?

MAMIE (raging tearfully):
What did he say; what did he say? Wait till I see him. (Rushes into her room, opening in hall . . . look! Coming! Quick! Hide!)

BILL'S VOICE (in the hallway):
Why, hello, Red. Well, well, well! Come in!

RED (excited):
Hello, Bill. Where's Mamie. I wanta see her.

MAMIE (frantically):
It's HIM!

(And That's That—Until Next Sunday.)

Confidence

An institution can stand only so long as the public has faith in it.

The GENERAL FURNITURE CO. has served the people of Chicago for over thirty years.

That the buying public of Chicago has implicit confidence in the integrity of the GENERAL FURNITURE CO. is unmistakably proved by the steady growth of the General over a period of more than thirty years. The General has stood the test of time, and their patronage has increased from year to year until today they hold first rank among the furniture dealers of Chicago. No other furniture concern in the city has as large a following, and the General operates more stores than any two other home furnishing dealers combined. Our Free Savings Bank Account Plan has helped materially to lift us to this high standing. It has created more favorable comment among our patrons than any other profit-sharing idea we have ever tried. Ask any of our salesmen or the officials of the Chicago City Bank and Trust Co. to explain it to you in detail.

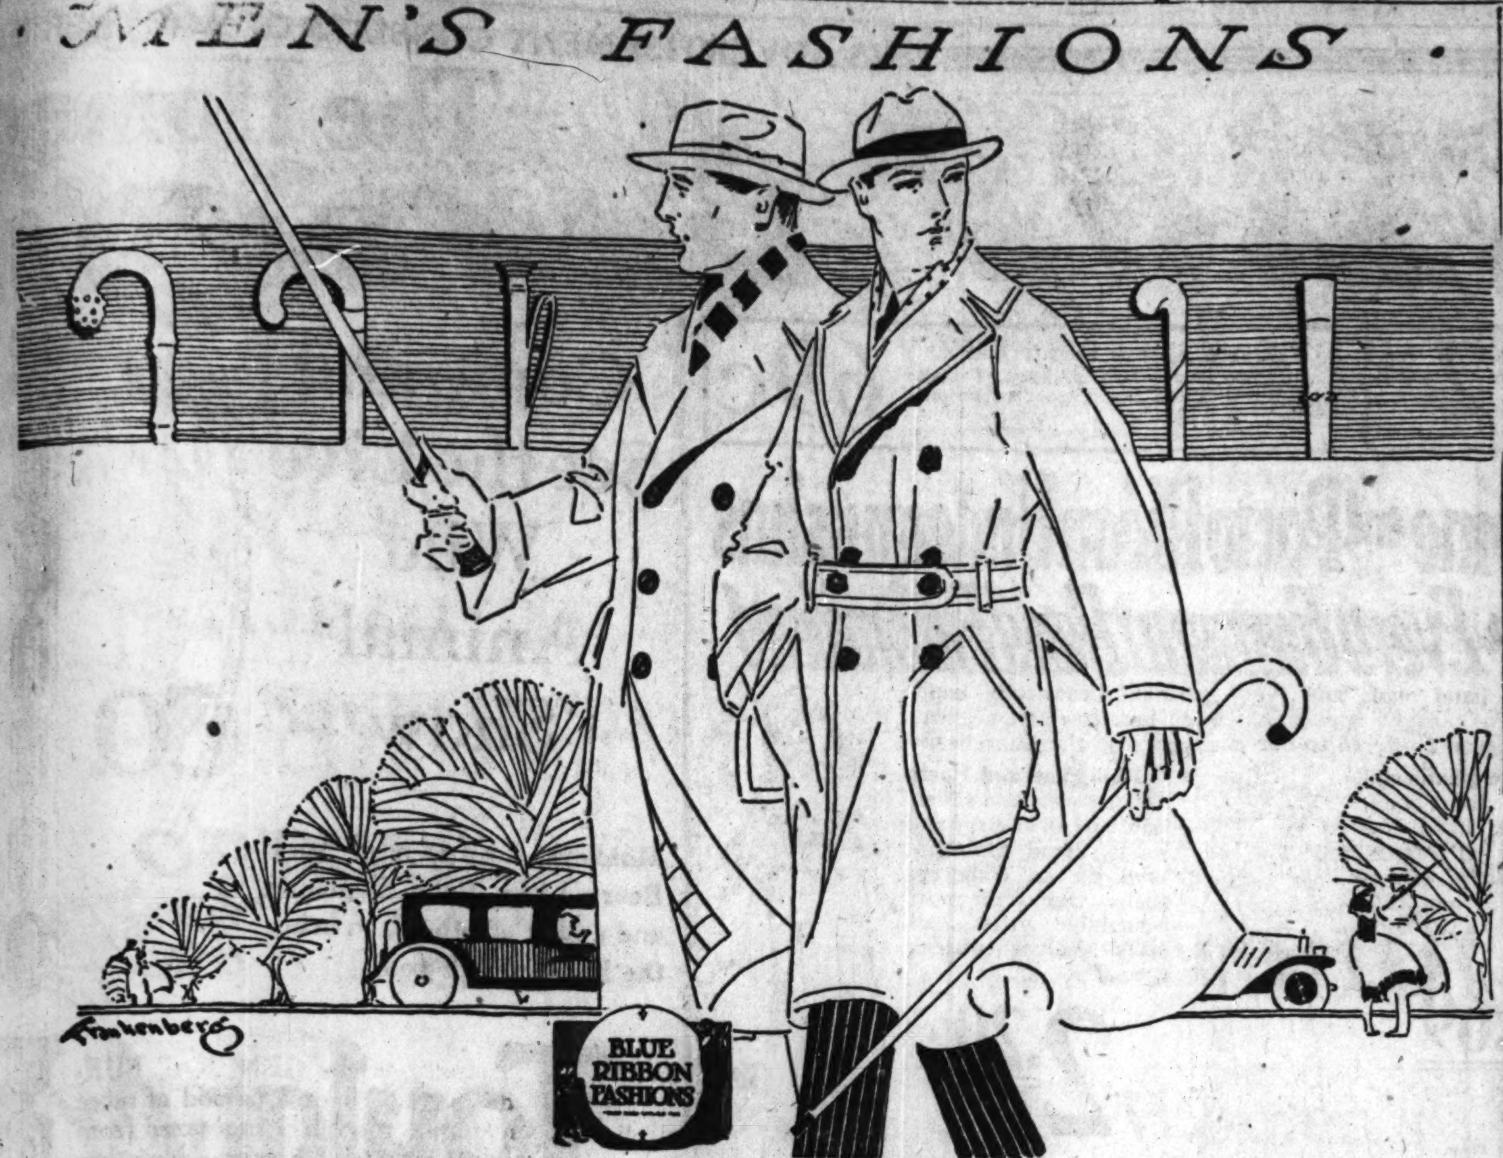
MEN'S FASHIONS



HISTORY OF THE STICK AND SOME STYLES IN MODERN CANES.

By A. T. Gallico.

[illegible] any questions regarding men's fashions and the correct thing to wear on different occasions. Address communications to A. T. Gallico, Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped addressed envelope for personal reply.

This department appears every Tuesday and Friday in The Daily Tribune.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Canes, alias walking sticks, have not yet reached in this country the universal popularity which they enjoy on the other side of the water. Perhaps this is because sticks have had such an important part down through the ages of an older civilization that they have become a habit over there, while here it is a question of gradual spreading of the custom.

The cane in these days is primarily an answer to the problem of what a man shall do with his hands and for the outlet of personality. For no man handles his stick in quite the same way, and choice of styles is most varied.

Sticks are as old as man. There is every reason to believe that the first cave man used one, not for style, perhaps, but as a weapon and a prop for old age. From earliest biblical days the stick has been of symbolic importance; for example, the rod of Moses and of Aaron. In fact, the modern cane of fashion was the outcome of several sticks of historic symbolism such as the pastoral crook, bishops' croziers, and the regal scepter.

Like the ancient glove, it has had many uses outside of fashion. There has been betrothal by the stick, and back in old England it was often used as a witness to an agreement between two people, each party making a mark with a knife on the other's stick. It was also a sign of possession, being used at the transferring of land, and was often given and received as a pledge of honor. As an heirloom, a family stick was bequeathed to the most worthy member of the family.

Still further a sign of leadership was this custom. Before putting his head on the block, if such was to be his unfortunate end, the leader of a clan delivered his staff to his nearest of kin as a symbol of authority.

There are some customs of the stick on record which seem to have neither rhyme nor reason, such as the performance of a debtor who, unable to pay and yet wishing to free himself from his obligation, in order to compel his nearest relative to take over the responsibility, had only to throw a handful of dirt at him, and then jump over a hedge with a stick in his hand.

In the development down through the latter centuries the stick has been equally useful and fashionable. It has always been a successful weapon of offense, even down to the present day, for there is always a demand upon the market for canes with heavy heads. Heavy canes were carried years ago in England for the purpose of thwarting nefarious plans of footpads. In the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries in England, walking staffs were made as high as a man's head, and were used as leading poles over bad places in roads, or to sound the depth of water which was to be forded.

It was about the sixteenth century that the stick of symbolism and usefulness branched off into an article of fashion and luxury, the heavier walking stick or staff also remaining. The Beau Brummels of London and other cities of fashion carried canes with gold, silver, or ivory heads, evidence that styles in sticks have not changed a great deal. Canes were such an affectation with some of the dandies that for fear of being taken for cripples if they were seen with a stick in the hand, they suspended the article from a button of the coat. We see in a leather looped novelty of today a cane reaching back to this style.

The stick in the eighteenth century reached greatest development. It was considered by the London gentleman almost as necessary as his coat. Besides the usual canes of varied kinds of wood, there have been from that time to this novelties. One of the most practical sounding devices is the "quizzing glasses" set in the handles of the canes used by bucks and dandies of the nineteenth century, who enjoyed watching in this way the beauties at the show.

Today we find no limit to the possibilities of designs for canes. The curved handle is the most popular, as men find it more convenient to hang a stick upon an arm than to tuck it under. For evening wear, however, many men prefer a straight stick. The curved handles are trimmed up in countless ways. In fact, men all over the world spend their lives studying designs for decoration of walking sticks. But in spite of this wide assortment of designs, the perfectly plain article is most in demand. Malacca is probably the most popular wood, but penang, pimento, and turtle ebony are also used.

A GENUINE PIMPLE REMOVER

How Stuart's Calcium Wafers Work Out to the Skin and Clear It of Pimples, Blackheads, Boils, Muddiness and Such Blemishes.

The manner in which Stuart's Calcium Wafers influence a beautiful complexion is one of nature's marvels. Their first action is to remove the sour fermentations that are apt to poison the blood and thus disfigure the skin. Then the calcium itself is a natural agency to skin health and is appropriated by the tissues for its own particular use in repair work. These effects are visibly noticeable to those troubled with a pimply skin, or one that is muddy or red or blotchy, scaly and rough and coarse. The Calcium Wafers induce a reaction to healthier tendencies and soon the pinkish complexion begins to assert itself, the blemishes fade away, the dimples seem animated and the entire appearance is one of vivacious beauty instead of unsightliness.

Get a 60 cent box of Stuart's Calcium Wafers at the nearest drug store and note the wonderful results. You will surely be delighted.

Advertising for Pencil

We want every one to become acquainted with our pencils, the most useful of all writing appliances. They make suitable gifts for every occasion.

LADY'S AND GENT'S STYLE

The illustration shows our Lady's Sterling Silver style (regular $3.50, now $3 or two for $5, Lady's or Gent's). The $5 gold (Lady's or Gent's) comes in Colonial Hexagon shape. The Henber has many distinctive features: Repelling lead device; safety clasp; chase engraved barrel; non-clogging mechanism, etc.

Read These Rules:

1. Any one living outside of Minneapolis may compete for the free prizes except employees or their relatives of the Henber Company.
2. Whoever sends in the largest number of words which correctly name the objects shown in the picture starting with "B," will be awarded first prize, and so on down the list of 50 free prizes. One point will be allowed for each correct word, and one point deducted for each incorrect word or omission of a correct word.
3. In case of ties for any prize offered the full amount of each prize tied for will be awarded to each tying contestant. The list winning first prize will be published at the close of the contest. Enlarged copy of picture will be furnished on request.
4. Your solution must not include hyphenated, obsolete, compound (words made up of two complete English words) or foreign words. Webster's International Dictionary will be used as authority.
5. It is permissible to name either singular or plural, but both cannot be used. Synonyms and words of same spelling but different meaning will count only one, but any part of an object can be named.
6. All solutions mailed and postmarked Dec. 2, 1922, will be accepted. Contestants may "qualify" under Class "A" or "B" up to midnight, Dec. 16, 1922.
7. Write words on one side of paper only, numbering each 1, 2, 3, 4, etc.
8. Three prominent people of Minneapolis will act as judges. Their decision must be accepted as final and conclusive.

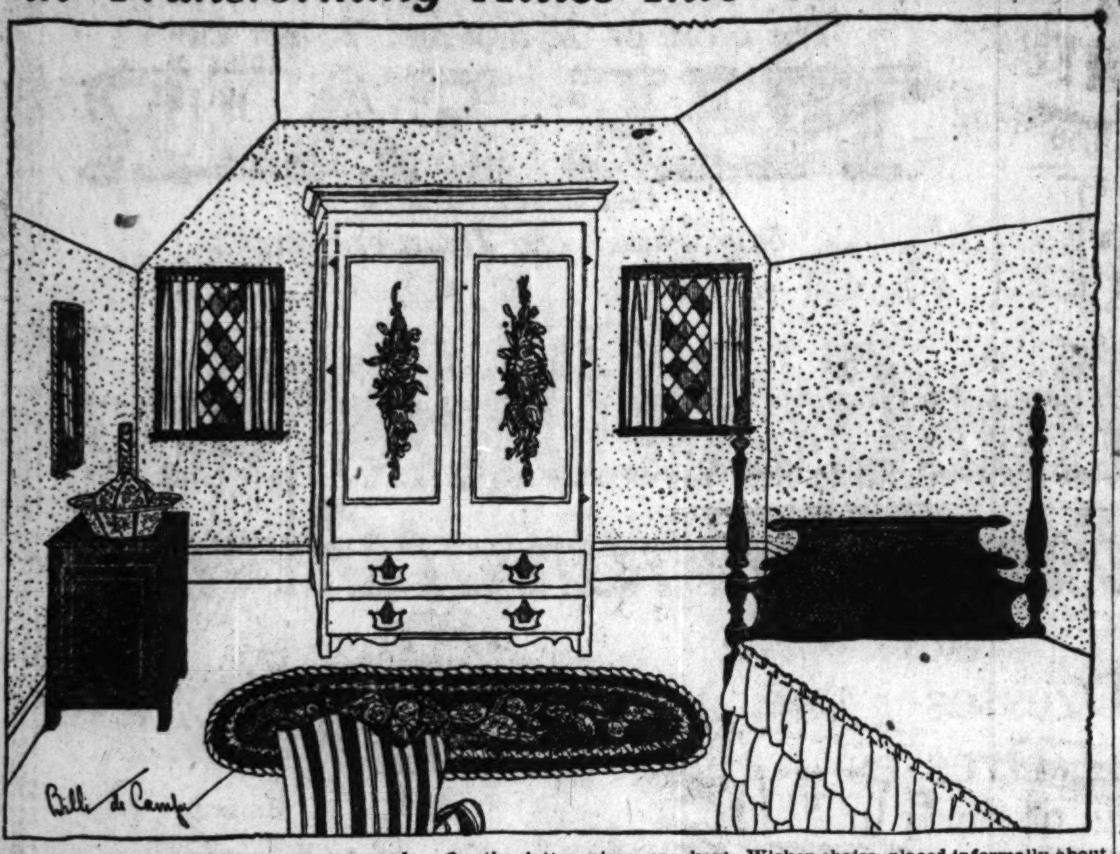
Colonial Furniture Plays Principal Role in Transforming Attics Into Guest Rooms



Anita de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to home building and home furnishing. Address your letter to Anita de Campi, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped addressed envelope for personal reply.

By Anita de Campi.

UNDER the eaves of many a house there is stored away a treasure! Its value is great, though some do not deem it so, ignoring its extensive possibilities and leaving it utterly abandoned. This treasure is none other than the attic. Into what a truly delightful and live-in-able rooms that erstwhile storage space may be converted! The slanting walls, into which dormer windows may be cut, are unusually suggestive of quaint and original arrangements.

An extra room was badly needed in a country house which I have recently visited. The hostess wanted to utilize her attic for this purpose, but having no cellar beneath her home, she found it necessary to use the attic for storage. There was a great deal more space than was essential, however, so she contrived to have the room partitioned one part for the storage and the other for her long desired guest room, which is, indeed, a pleasure to behold.

The walls are covered with pearl gray wallboard, paneled with flat strips of wood painted sage green. A dressing table, with bench, is placed before the double window at the front of the room. The twin beds have their heads against the side wall, beneath the sloping part of the ceiling. On the opposite side of the room are a chest of drawers and a quaint little desk and chair. A comfortable arm chair completes the furnishings. Casement curtains of striped sunfast, in peony pink, green, and a tiny line of black, give a note of color. The dressing table bench is upholstered in peony rep finished with gray and green upholsterer's fringe. Matching this are the covers on the beds.

Entirely suitable and fascinating for an attic bedroom is the colonial style. An interesting room with colonial furniture has pale ash green walls with French gray woodwork. The tallboy dressing table, desk, and four poster are of mahogany. Bright splashes of color show in the hooked rugs, which are supplementary to the deep dull green carpeting. Hand blocked linen, in old blue, green, black, and yellow with occasional touches of magenta, upholsters a wing chair and the seats of two little side chairs. Corn colored silk gauze curtains the many lighted windows, and a pieced quilt is used for the bed covering.

Singular colonial wardrobes supply closet space for garret bedrooms. A perfectly charming one, with an old-fashioned floral design painted in the panels of its doors, is placed between two small windows in the guest room of a New England home, pictured here. As the room is rather small, the only other articles of furniture used in it are a three-quarter width four poster, a wing chair, a ladder back, a dressing table and stool, and a rare old commode. On the latter piece are kept an antique Canton wash bowl, pitcher and soap dish. The walls are painted oyster green, the woodwork black. Rose and mauve striped casement silk is used for curtaining the windows. The flounced day cover on the four poster is of rose colored silk. Lemon yellow candles are used in the brass candlesticks on the dressing table.

Painted furniture, so colorful and gay that it would brighten any room, is used in another top o' the world bedroom. It is deep lemon yellow, edged with peacock blue and trimmed with motifs of invented flowers, done in turquoise, rust color, and olive green enamel paint. Natural colored sand plaster finishes the walls, and the woodwork is painted rust color. The little window curtains are of brilliantly colored figured silk. On the bed is a cover of peasant embroidery in a combination of olive and rust colors splashed with scarlet.

Another striking room, in which paint plays a prominent part, is one in which the furniture is black, edged with brilliant emerald green. The walls are white, the bed cover large alternating black and white squares. Silk gauze of vivid emerald green is used at the windows. Hilarious notes of accentuating color are added by means of the radiant flame colored candles. Olive green carpeting covers the floor.

Delightful living rooms, too, may be furnished in the attic space. A dark attic, atop a home on the seashore, has been most cleverly transformed into a fascinating living room. Dormer windows have been cut, affording a magnificent far-reaching view of the ever changing sea, from above the surrounding treetops. At one end of the room, where there is a chimney, an inviting fireplace has been built. Filling the remainder of the wall space, at either side of this, bookshelves are built in. The davenport, fireside and wing chair have slip covers of glazed chintz in powder blue, old gold, Du Barry rose, and sage green on a sand colored ground. The cushions for the remainder of the chairs, which are wicker, are of rep, striped in a combination of the chintz colors. Casement cloth curtains may be drawn together or left hanging straight, at the sides of the windows. The walls are sand colored and the floor is covered with a large, niggerhead brown carpet.

Studios or libraries in the attic are almost sure to be satisfactory. Quiet is usually assured in the secluded room, where reading or studying may be peacefully enjoyed without numerous interruptions from the outside world. An attic studio, which is the undying joy of its occupant, is most attractively furnished. Set into a recess, which is formed by the double dormer windows, is a good sized writing table with its accompanying chair. The remainder of the wall space on that side of the room, up to the height at which it is met by the sloping ceiling, is filled with open bookshelves. Wicker chairs, placed informally about the room, have cushions covered with hand blocked linen. The background of this is black; the figures, olive green, Pompeiian red, pale primrose yellow, and pinkish tan. Matching the yellow in the linen are the window curtains.

In a far corner of the room there is a lavatory, concealed behind a decorative screen. At the other end of the room there is a wide, open fireplace, which almost entirely fills that wall space. Placed vis-à-vis, at either side of this, is a davenport, upholstered in the same linen which covers the chair cushions. A drop leafed tea table, equipped with a primrose yellow set, stands convenient to these two, and an antique brass kettle is suspended above the hearth, in order that a cup of tea may readily be made for the welcome guest.

Some young people, who love to do a great deal of entertaining, were at a loss, upon moving to their summer home for a room allowing space enough for dancing. Ingeniously they planned to transform their garret, and now it is adjudged, by all of their friends, who enjoy many pleasant evenings there, a thoroughly satisfactory dance room. The floor, which is of rough, unfinished lumber, is entirely covered with good linoleum, in a pattern of alternating ecru and black squares. A black piano stands at one end of the room, and at the other there is a long, black refectory table, placed parallel to the wall, for the accommodation of refreshments.

Along both side walls, plain wooden benches have been built. These are painted black, and are fitted with bright henna colored boxed cushions. The window curtains are old gold. Two mirrors, in plain black frames, are hung on opposite walls. These are flanked by sconces, holding intense turquoise blue candles. In one corner of the room there is a victrola. A little powdered wax is sprinkled on the linoleumed floor prior to a party, and after one or two dances every one proclaims that the floor is "perfectly slick."

Answers to Queries.

N. L. M.: Have corn colored, shirred silk lamp shades and shields in the west front bedroom. Use a deep mauve chenille rug, with lighter mauve taffeta bedspread and covers.

Yes, you can use a pink dot grenadine in the little girl's room. Have the bedspread, covers and lamp shades match trimmings on the furniture.

Use ecru glass curtains in the guest room. Spring green sateen would be nice for the bedspread and covers. Have orchid lamp shades, interlined with rose. Use the same for the shields.

M. S.: Have the woodwork enameled French gray to match the furniture. Pearl gray and jade pink, in fine stripes, would be attractive for the wall paper.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Billie had gone over to Johnnie's to play. Mother had told him not to leave his yard. Mother finally missed him, and when she found him she told him she would have to punish him for running away.

"But, mother," said Billie, "I didn't run away. Johnnie just borrowed me."

Phillip had been absent from kindergarten several days.

The morning he returned, the teacher, having dropped his name, did not mention him in roll call.

He waited until she had finished, and then blurted out, "Teacher, I've begun to be here again." E. L. R.

Freddie had had a fight with a playmate in which he had come off second best.

That night as he said his prayers he thoughtfully concluded with: "And please bless Jimmy with the best case of mumps that a kid ever had."

The other evening I was called to the phone by Emmett.

"O, Ruffie," he said; "the telephone wants you." R. P.

Stephen had lost his dog and grieved all day.

"Are you not feeling well?" asked his mother.

"No."

"Where do you feel worst?" she again asked.

"In my memory," was the answer.

A little girl's missionary society met one afternoon for the election of officers. The woman in charge explained that they might make nominations for a president. A litle girl timidly but hopefully arose and said: "I nominate me." J. L. P.

Harold seldom got himself clean when washing, and his mother usually sent him back to do it all over again.

"I don't believe you used any soap," she said on one occasion.

"No," answered the boy; "I was economizing on soap." N. T.

I was teaching my son arithmetic and asked him what two times two was.

He replied, "Four."

"Very good," I said.

"Papa," he replied, "that's not very good, that's perfect." A. H.

Robert lost his temper and said something that hurt mother's feelings.

Mother pretended she was crying and said her little boy had offended her.

To this Robert replied: "Mamma, can't I unoffend you?" A. E. B.

Louis is the youngest, and is often addressed as "my baby" by his fond mother.

The other day she called him by that name, and he replied, "That is all right to call me when we are alone, but nix on it when there are other folks around." A. B. C.

Dorothy Jane wanted her mother to knit her a sweater, but mother didn't know how.

Dorothy Jane was astonished at this lack of knowledge.

"But, mother, haven't you a recipe for sweaters?" she asked. R. S.

Kathryn is a thoughtful child. She had heard of another little girl of her own age whose mother was her mother's friend. Kathryn knew that twins should look alike and conceived the notion that Marie and she were twins because they were the same age.

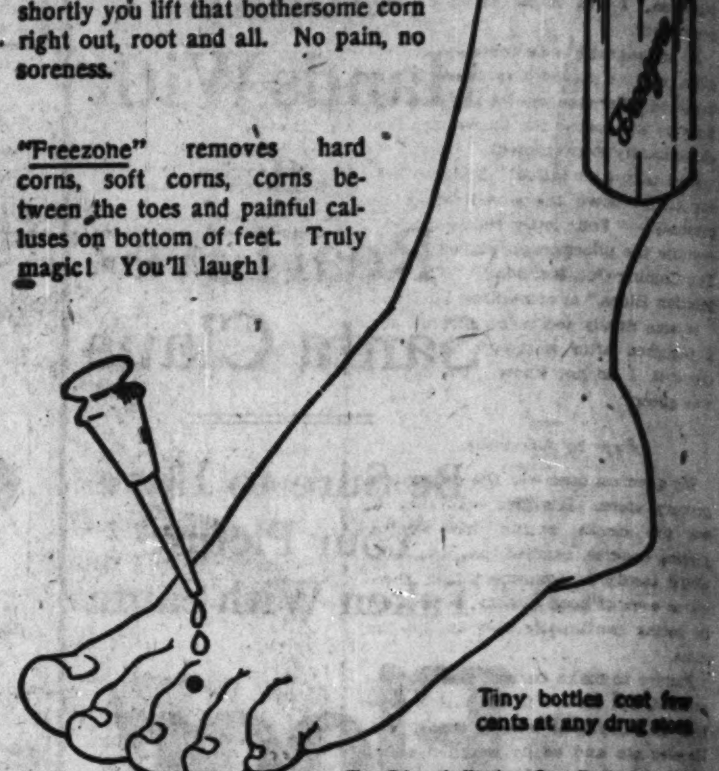
One day she met Marie. Now, Kathryn is tall and dark, while Marie is chubby and fair.

Kathryn looked her over with bewilderment; then, turning to her mother, she said sorrowfully, "Mother, we don't match!" M. C.

Marie had always seen Ronald dressed in rompers and she apparently never associated him with the big boys of the neighborhood for one day when he came out displaying his first trousers she called to her mother, "O, mother, look here! Donald is the beginning of a real man now." M. C. R.

Corns

Lift Right Off with Fingers



Doesn't hurt a bit! A drop of "Freezone" on a sore, touchy corn stops that corn from hurting, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn right out, root and all. No pain, no soreness.

"Freezone" removes hard corns, soft corns, corns between the toes and painful calluses on bottom of feet. Truly magic! You'll laugh!

Green Mountain Boy

Just naturally rich with Vermont maple flavor

NATURE, alone, can produce the exquisite maple flavor you find in Mayflower Syrup—and only in the hills of Vermont. Mayflower Syrup couldn't be as good as it is, if it weren't made in Vermont.

The maple for Mayflower Syrup is obtained fresh from the sugar camps. Then too, right there in the maple region, men who are expert in maple syrup making, blend and pack it.

Refined granulated sugar is added to make Mayflower a trifle more syrupy. Great precaution is taken, though, to add only a certain quantity so that none of the rich maple flavor is lost.

You can buy Mayflower Syrup either in cans or bottles in pints and quarts. The larger sizes are half-gallon, gallon or five gallon cans. You may never have compared the difference between a pound can of syrup and a pint, but you get a good deal more in the latter.

It takes eleven pounds of Mayflower Syrup to fill a gallon, and in a pint there is a pound and three-eighths. This and the fact that it is always full measure makes it very moderate in price. To be sure of getting full measure, buy Mayflower.

You are so careful to make your pancakes and waffles delicious, why should you use just an ordinary syrup on them—especially when Mayflower Syrup will give them the real Vermont Maple Flavor? Get some at your grocer's today.

PERHAPS you have thought it no longer possible to procure pure maple sap syrup, or maple sugar. It is rarely to be found, but if you ask for the Green Mountain Boy Brand you'll get the real old-fashioned kind—entirely the product of Vermont maples.

Soft maple sugar is also put up in cans under this name and a wonderful delicacy called Maple Sugar Cream, made exclusively by the Welch Bros. Maple Co. It is in the form of a smooth paste, with the "grain," which is characteristic of maple sugar, removed—perfect for fillings, icings and candy.

Give "California Fig Syrup"

Even Cross, Feverish, Sick Children Love its Taste and it Never Fails to Empty Little Bowels

A teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup" now will quickly start liver and bowel action and in a few hours you have a well, playful child again. Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Fig Syrup" because it never fails to work the sour bile and constipation poison right out of the little stomach and bowels without cramping or overacting.

Tell your druggist you want only the genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on each bottle. Mother, you must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

My Queerest Boss

There are good bosses and bad bosses, and then again there are bosses who are just queer. Will you ever be able to forget the queerest boss you ever had? The perplexities, and the frowns, and the laughs he caused you? Was it his attire that yielded the comedy? Some odd personal habit? Some eccentricity that reduced you to despair? Write out your story, using one side of the paper only and telling it as briefly as possible and send it to the Queerest Boss Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. One dollar will be paid for each letter published.

Talking to Music.

The queerest boss I ever worked for was the manager of a small mail order business. I was employed as his stenographer.

A phonograph was installed in his office, and he played it incessantly. It made no difference whether he had visitors or was using the phone, the machine hardly ever stopped.

And taking dictation! Imagine trying to jot down the words which he mumbled—"Your letter received and"—while the phonograph played "Ain't You Coming Out, Malinda?," "The Prohibition Blues," or something like that.

It was finally too much for me and I resigned after a month. How he stood it, I do not know. I'll say he was queer! T. D.

Pays to Advertise.

My queerest boss was the owner of a grocery store. His idea was that to see the clerks eating his apples, grapes, cookies, candies, peanuts, etc., would testify to customers that these wares were of good quality, so he kept us eating continually and he did the same.

Failure to make correct change was excused, but failure to eat and wear a look of enjoyment was a deadly sin. He also ate and as he weighed about 300 pounds I grew frightened at the increase in weight and decrease in appetite, and quit.

From reports I find he still holds to his policy and is making money, so my queerest boss may also have been my wisest. L. C.

Of an Inquiring Mind.

When working in an office on the thirteenth floor of a big building, I had as an employer a man of great merit but equally great eccentricity. One day he burst into the room, and rushing to the window raised the sash and stepped half way out on to the window sill. I was frozen to the spot, thinking I was to witness a suicide. However, after gazing around, he stepped back in, explaining he had seen a window washer out there and wanted to know what his sensations must be. N. W. U.

All the Atmosphere.

The queerest boss I ever had was when I had my first position. My boss was a lecturer. While dictating he would stand on a table and place as many chairs as he could in front of him. At the end of his talk he would shuffle his feet for quite a while and clap his hands for applause. L. R. D.

Taking No Chances.

The queerest boss I ever had was a man who did not want any of his letters dated the 13th. All letters written on the 13th had to be dated the 12th, or else, he said, would not produce the desired results.

Furthermore, when the thirteenth came on Friday, he thought sure something was going to happen. He gave me special instructions to answer all telephone calls and to be sure to get full information before referring them to him, in order to avoid receiving bad messages. M. V.

THE JOY OF EATING PIE

The Bold Buccaneers of the Table Are the Fellows Acquainted with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Every day you meet some one who says, I wish I hadn't eaten that pie or fried fish or those baked beans or hash with onions or something that soured on the stomach. Just tell 'em that one or two Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets chewed after eating prevents such trouble or relieves it if already boiling up. Get rid of the acid, sour risings and belching with these tablets. Their action is simple. They give the stomach the alkaline effect it needs, they thus sweeten the food, acidity stops, your stomach feels good and you learn to eat what you like without fear of distresses due to indigestion. Get a 60 cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at any drug store. They are the standby of thousands of the best fellows all over the U. S. and Canada.

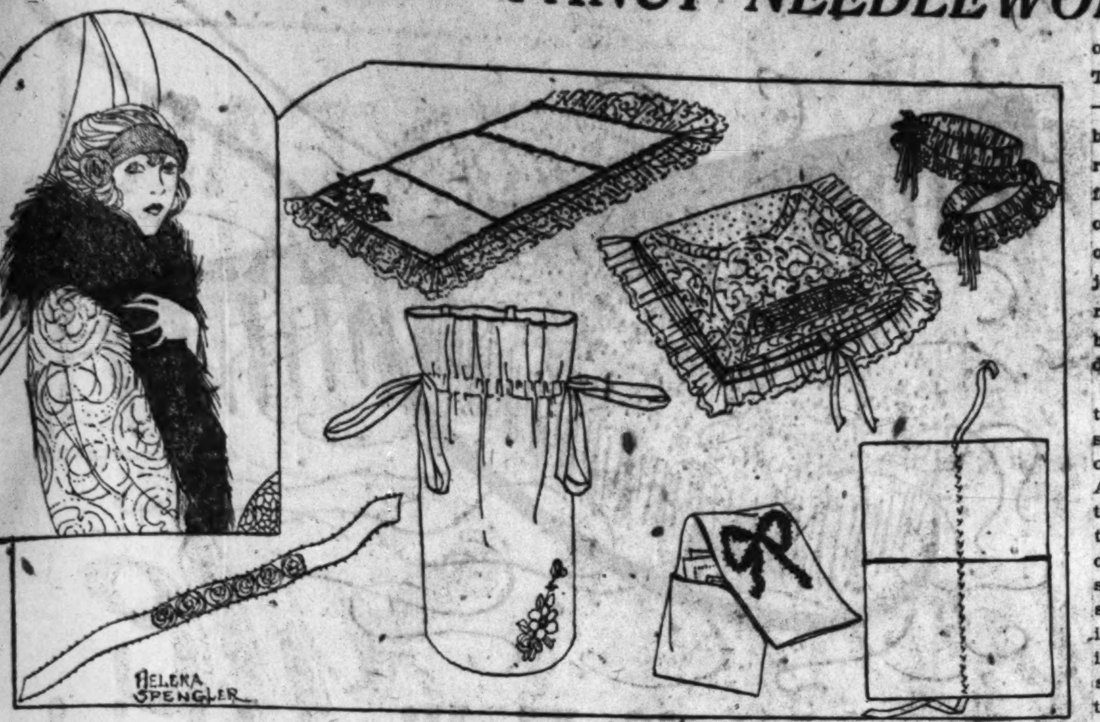
PRACTICAL AND FANCY NEEDLEWORK

BY CLOTILDE



Any questions that puzzle the woman who does her own sewing will be answered in this department or by mail if a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Address Clotilde, Chicago Tribune.

GIFTS OF RIBBON FANCIES.

WONDERFULLY pretty things may be made from ribbon—any one of which would make some friend or relative a charming gift. All sorts of cases—coming under the general title of "boudoir" cases, are easily made. There are cases for gloves, veils, handkerchiefs, corset, etc. Some prefer cases with pockets just the right size or length for the desired articles; while others make a case that may be opened out flat, and when closed is folded together just once. This is the more popular style; and the one point to be careful about is to have the case large enough to cover well when closed.

Choose good materials. Heavy satin ribbon, figured or plain, as the taste may dictate, will be used for the outside; and perhaps two widths of ribbon will be needed to make it the right width. After these are sewed together, the seam or seams should be covered with a narrow gold or silver braid.

Lay this part of the work, right side down, on something smooth and clean, and cut the batting or wadding that should be used for the interlining the right size. This should be cut on all four sides a good seam's width narrower than the ribbon. The lining may be cut from a good quality of satin the same or a contrasting color, and these two are seamed together, turned right side out, and carefully pressed. I should have said the seaming is done on three sides, leaving one side open to turn right side out. The batting should be separated and some good sachet powder plentifully sprinkled between. Then put together and slip in the case. Be careful to hold it level so the powder will not shift.

Turn in the edges of the opening, and slip stitch together. Sometimes a lace edge at least three inches wide is whipped around the edge, and after this is sewed on a half inch metallic braid—gold or silver—is sewed around the edge. It would not be a bad idea, before slip stitching the remaining edge together, to slip a hand in between the wadding and outside, and tack the wadding to the lining—doing it so that the tacking forms diamonds or squares.

The finishing touch is given to a case by sewing in one corner some single flower or a tiny bunch of those wonderful ribbon or organdie flowers that are seen in such varieties today.

Bands for the hair are easily made and as pretty as possible. When worn on bobbed hair one usually makes the band long enough to go entirely around the head; but hair that is done up usually sees a band disappear, or rather end, at each side of the head. Gold or silver ribbon, sometimes two inches wide, with a full sized rose of the same at each end, makes an attractive all around band, while another one may be made of the same ribbon, one inch wide, covered with roses that measure one inch across, and are set on from one end to the other so they just touch. Sometimes three or four different colors are used in the roses.

Round elastics for women make another pretty article made of ribbon. Tubular ribbon comes for the purpose—1¼ yards of the tubular ribbon will be needed for one pair, or 2½ yards if ribbon is sewed together. Plain or fancy ribbons are used, and sometimes one of those fascinating tiny bunches of flowers is made to perch over the joining; sometimes, beside this, a narrow edging of lace will be sewed on both edges to make them still more decorative.

Another way to put boudoir cases together is to cut the batting the desired size, then cut lining and outside one-half inch wider on all four sides. After the sachet has been put in between the wadding, lay it on the lining, turn all four edges of the lining up over the wadding, and sew down. The stitches must not show on the right side of the lining. Next, put the tacking stitches in. Then lay the outside in place and hold it there by pinning in several places. Turn in the edges of the outside and overhand carefully together. Then finish.

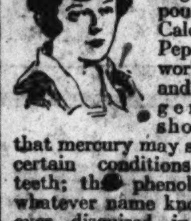
Syrup Pepsin Helps Nature Give Relief

Try it when a Laxative is needed and see the wonderful results

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

IT is not necessary to take a violent physic for so simple an ailment as constipation. Yet many thoughtless parents give mercury in the form of calomel, and coal-tar in the form of phenol when a natural vegetable compound like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will do the work equally well and without danger. People should realize that mercury may salivate and in certain conditions loosen the teeth; that phenolphthalein, by whatever name known and however disguised in candy, may cause dermatitis and other skin eruptions; that salt waters and powders may concentrate the blood, dry up the skin and cause lassitude.



You can take Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin yourself or give it to a babe in arms, as thousands of mothers do every day, with the confidence that it is the safest and best medicine you can use for constipation and such complaints. A teaspoonful will relieve you over night even if the constipation has been chronic for years. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics, and does not cramp or gripe. Every druggist handles it, and bottles are so generous that the cost amounts to only about a cent a dose. You buy it with the understanding that if it does not do as claimed your money will be refunded. The names of all the ingredients are on the package.

Mrs. A. Arceneaux of Orange, Texas, suffered from constipation for six years and found no relief until she took Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin; and Mrs. Gus Anderson of Ball, Kans., corrected her bowel trouble so that she now eats and sleeps normally. Bring a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin into your own home and let the family use it for constipation, biliousness, wind, gas, headaches, flatulency, and to break up fevers and colds.

Is This a Miracle?

Beauty Scientists Call It That

By Marion Frances

BEFORE—This girl's skin was sallow, dark, muddy. Blackheads helped make it ugly. Freckles, too, were noted.

THE SAME GIRL—TEN MINUTES AFTER—The same girl from actual photograph. Skin lightened at least five shades, blackheads gone, freckles reduced. "A miracle," say world's beauty experts.

The thrill of seeing your skin transformed before your own eyes in 10 minutes. How mysterious blending of certain plants and flowers, without clay, or artificial bleach, purges face pores and presto!—a skin like a baby's instantly.

Can you imagine a sallow skin, one even marred by blackheads and freckles, cleared up and left soft and white and lovely as a baby's in 10 minutes? It sounds like magic. And beauty scientists call it that.

The inventor is William P. Kahn, internationally noted beauty specialist, whose miraculous transformations have gained for him the title of "The Man Who Works Miracles on Women's Faces." So many thousands are adopting his method that it is said a woman with anything short of a flawless complexion soon will be a rarity.

The photographs above are living testimony. I saw them taken. Saw the girl before and after—a miracle in minutes!

Purges the Pores

The method, of which Mr. Kahn is the discoverer, is unlike any other ever perfected. Dermatological authorities say it has no parallel in the annals of beauty culture. It is a simple cream-poultice, compounded of plants and flowers, called Kantol. It affects the pores like a laxative does the bowels—cleans out the poisonous accumulations.

Containing no bleach, no harsh chemicals, no clay, it purges every pore in your face within 10 minutes. You apply it like cold cream and results are unbelieveable until you see them with your own eyes.

At the recent Beauty Congress dark-skinned women and girls, women with mottled, ugly skins were brought in for the Kantol treatment. In one application their skins were lightened from four to seven shades. Blackheads were removed — every one. Freckles and fine lines disappeared as if by magic. Beauty experts from all the world stood awed before what was done, for instant beauty, an unattractive woman transformed, had become a reality.

You could see Kantol work, could see the germ-laden oil being discharged, the blackheads coming out; radiant charm taking the place of drab unattractiveness before your own eyes.

Now at Chicago Stores

The secret preparation—Kantol—used by William P. Kahn in working these amazing skin transformations is now obtainable for use at home. In Chicago at: Buck & Rayner Stores, Public Drug Co., 26 S. State St., Boston Store, Home Drug Co.—4 Stores, The Fair, Walgreen's Drug Stores, McLean's Drug Stores, Rothschild & Co., Hillman's Department Store.

Doris Blake's Answers to Love Problems

Have you a perplexing love affair on which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, care The Tribune Chicago. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

Try Old Fashioned Way.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 17 and madly in love with a young man.

"I give him many hints that I love him, and I cannot understand whether he catches on or not. At times I think he loves me and is afraid to say so; at other times I think he doesn't understand me.

"Now, Miss Blake, what puzzles me is whether I should tell him of my love or wait and see if he tells me of his. My mother knows I care for this fellow, and she approves, as he is a nice man. L. F."

It may be that he does not want to understand. Somehow, the modern youth does not keep pace with the modern maid in her go-get-him-when-you-want-him methods. Now your system has been tried and found unsatisfactory, suppose you revert to the old fashioned theory of the male pursuing. It is not so awful old fashioned, as your brother would tell you, had you one. When you feel one of those hints attacking you, restrain yourself. Then you may be agreeably surprised. At any rate you will spare yourself some unpleasant criticism.

You're Right, Pearl.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 17 and I have known a boy for about five months, in which time I have grown to care quite a bit for him. The first two months he was anxious to come to the house and take me out, but for the last few months he doesn't seem to care. He says he hasn't got much time to get around any more, but don't you think that if he cared anything about me he would take a little time to come down? Pearl."

Yes, Pearl, bitter pill though it may be to swallow, when they begin to complain about not having time to get around any more—well, that's when the girl must take the proverbial "tumble to herself."

Step Up and Speak.

"Dear Miss Blake: I like a girl and so does she me, but the whole thing about her is that when trying to find out more about me she just spills the beans. By spilling the beans I mean she lets all her male friends do the work and when she passes with her girl friends I act in such an unpleasant way that makes her and her friends think all kinds of ridiculous things about me. What is the right antidote? "Groggy."

In that case, I should step right up and tell the girl to ask the questions direct of you and you will answer them, so she will not be forced to inquire of your character in roundabout and annoying ways.

You May Proceed.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 29 years of age and I am keeping company with a girl four years my junior, for whom I care a great deal. She is a widow and I am in doubt as to whether a man who never was married and a widow can be happy together and make marriage a success, inasmuch as she has memories of her first husband in her mind, which she may harp on. Before pressing my suit any further I will be grateful to you if you would enlighten me by giving me your ideas on this subject. Perplexed."

You can defeat any tendency to harp on the deceased first mate by being everything he was and just a little bit more in kindness and consideration. But I think that is projecting a foolish argument against the widow as a merry lifemate. She may never raise a shadow of him even. Widows, as a rule, make excellent wives, having already been through the school of not expecting the impossible of a human male.

Touched by Frost.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 27 years old, and had been keeping company with a young man my age. Three months ago he left me, for no reason. Now I often meet him at dances, and he sees me home and he promises to call me up, but never does. Every time we meet he does the same thing. I love this young man. Could you please tell me what to do about it? "Curley."

It is rather cruel to say, but I am afraid the young man is sidestepping. Perhaps he does not want to marry and feels he is in your way for other chances. His coming home from dances with you has little significance, since you go unaccompanied to the dance places, that is just an act of courtesy. But when a man begins to fail to make promised calls, a girl may just as well fade out of the picture, if she would avoid more unhappiness. The frost is on the tender plant.

She Must Like You.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have been going out with a young girl for several months whom I love dearly, but I don't know if she cares for me. Will you kindly advise me how to learn if she cares for me and, if not, how to make her learn to love me. Worried."

You may reasonably suspect she likes your company when she has been accepting it readily for three months. If you continue to treat her well, undoubtedly one of these days she will give you a hint that you are the one young man in the world for her. If you get a good three months' start, from there on it depends pretty much on just how nicely you treat a girl to have it blossom into a genuine romance.

He's Growing Cool.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am writing to ask you for advice. I am keeping company with a young man and see him every night. For the last two weeks he would make an appointment to call at my house, but at the time he was to call he would be standing on the corner, talking to his boy friends, and he would call on me after the time stated. I am fond of him and I don't want to waste my time if he has another girl. He has been queer of late and also cool. Please let me know if I should keep on going with him. "A. B."

Signs point toward an early conclusion of the romance, A. B. I think I would surprise him next time and not be there when he arrives late. You may be seeing too much of each other anyway, and perhaps a temporary separation might help.

Taking the Second Leap.

"Dear Miss Blake: Kindly tell me why a widow or a divorced woman should not wear white and a veil and orange blossoms when she marries again. "Babe."

I honestly cannot tell you why, other than it is a custom established by Dame Etiquette. A number of her customs raises whys and wherefores, but this particular one has more reason than some other well established ones, since one fling at the veil and orange blossoms has already been allotted the person or persons in question.

All Your Fault.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young fellow of 20 and am going with a girl two years my junior. We are deeply in love. I want to find out what you think of her. She does everything I say, but still she makes me jealous. She doesn't mean it, because she tells me of her love. L. J. D."

In that case, L. J. D., she does not make you jealous. You just are. Unreasonably so, too.

Just Do Nothing.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 17, in love with a fellow of 20. He seems to care for me, but of late never calls on me or even telephones. Two weeks ago he lost his mother. I wrote and sympathized with him, but I have not seen or heard of him since. What shall I do? Please tell me. R. T. G."

Now, dear, you ought to respect his silence. Naturally the loss of his mother would send him into retirement for a while. Let him alone until he shows a desire to get in touch with you.

Let Conscience Guide.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am in love with a boy who tells me that he loves me. He has asked me for a kiss many times. Will it be wrong if I let him kiss me? L. C."

You have a suspicion it might be when you make inquiries about it, L. C., haven't you? I think in your case I'll just let your conscience be your guide.

Yes, You May.

"Dear Miss Blake: A few months ago I was going with a man I loved dearly. He gave me up for another girl. The other day I met him and he said he had his lesson. He said he does not love the other girl—he loves me and wants me back again. Now, Miss Blake, I want to know whether I should go back to him, as I am afraid he will leave me again for another girl. I still love him and him only. "Anxious."

Perhaps what he says is true. And the experience a good one for both of you. Yes, I'd take him back.

Present Your Ultimatum.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 19 and am keeping company with a young man 22, and love him dearly. Should I marry him? I have just learned he is a bootlegger, and you know he is not a good American when he defies our government. But he served in France through the war—he was a Y. M. C. A. secretary. Shall I marry him. One more thing, I will not let him do is kiss me. Cathy."

Not an honorable profession to which to attach yourself, is it, Cathy? You wouldn't want to share money earned that way, I know. It's easy money, and a good and honest man or a good future mate would not be mixed up in it. I'd make him get out of it quickly if I were you; that, or you're through with him.

Dandruff-Falling Hair!

Quick! A 35c bottle of delightful "Danderine" will Save Any Man or Woman's Hair—See Dandruff Go!

Don't lose another hair! Don't tolerate destructive dandruff. A little Danderine now will save your hair; thicken and strengthen it; double its beauty. Falling hair never stops by itself! Dandruff multiplies until it forms a crusty scale, destroying the hair, roots and all, resulting in baldness.

Your druggist will tell you that "Danderine" is the largest selling hair saver in the world because it corrects and tones sick, ailing hair every time. Use one bottle of Danderine, then if you find a single falling hair or a particle of dandruff, you can have your money back.

Eatmor Cranberries

Now is the Time to Buy Cranberries for Preserving!

Then you can enjoy the delicious tart flavor of this health-giving fruit every day in the year.

Cranberries are reasonable in price. They are easily and quickly prepared—no peeling—no cores—no waste. Economical!

Try these recipes:

Cranberry Jelly

Cook until soft the desired quantity of cranberries with 1½ pints of water for each two quarts of berries. Strain the juice through a jelly bag.

Measure the juice and heat it to the boiling point. Add one cup of sugar for every two cups of juice; stir until the sugar is dissolved; boil briskly for five minutes; skim, and pour into glass tumblers, porcelain or crockery molds.

Cranberry Butter

Three pints cranberries, ½ cup water, 2 cups sugar. Cook the cranberries and water until the skins of the fruit are broken; then press through a sieve, and cook this pulp until it becomes quite thick; add the sugar and cook for ½ hour over a very gentle fire, stirring constantly. When slightly cool turn into jars, and cover closely. This makes a delicious and healthful spread on hot biscuits, bread, buttered toast, or cake.

Cranberry Sauce

One quart cranberries, two cups boiling water, 1½ to 2 cups sugar. Boil sugar and water together for five minutes; skim; add the cranberries and boil without stirring (five minutes is usually sufficient) until all the skins are broken. Remove from the fire when the popping stops.

Strained Cranberry Sauce

If a strained sauce is preferred, cook the cranberries and water; then press through the strainer, keeping back the skins; add the sugar and finish the cooking as suggested.

Cook cranberries in porcelain-lined, enameled or aluminum vessels —never in tin.

To be sure of a selection of the choicest, cultivated varieties—ask for EATMOR CRANBERRIES.

A recipe folder, containing many ways to use and preserve cranberries, will be sent free on request.

Whom would you blame if your baby eloped tonight?

Maudlin secrecy about sex matters is a conspiracy of silence, the poison of which is reaching right into the home

Your little boy or girl needs a mother—not more blue laws. A mother who knows how to tell the wonderful story of life in a way so chaste and wholesome, that the tragedy of "trial marriage" honeymoons, "puppy love" trysts, and broken blossoms will not invade the sanctity of your home.

The depth of your mother love does not save you. Nor does the wholesome atmosphere of your own fireside. Your child will learn the mysteries of life.

You can't close the door on sex curiosity

No matter how closely you watch your son or daughter, or what restrictions you place upon them, unless you guide them in their groping for sex knowledge, sex untruths will discolor their whole lives. Recent disclosures show that even in the homes of the most cultured families, even among the members of a Sunday School class, ignorance of sex and the holiness of marriage has led to the most tragic results.

It is a physiologic fact that youth is maturing faster than a century ago. The average 14 year old flapper today knows more about the seamy side of life than her grandmother ever knew.

Teachers who talk sex treated like witches

Yet our ideas of treating the subject are as moth-eaten and moss-covered as they were hundreds of years ago. Not only does our school system provide no information on these topics which so vitally concern the happiness of every individual, but the slightest allusion to the subject is rigorously prohibited. Only a few weeks ago one high minded school teacher was publicly dismissed for trying to prevent what happened recently in an Indiana town. Parents and schoolmasters act as if innocence in such matters could last for life and as if knowledge were a crime.

Sexual knowledge is not wrong

At the most emotional and plastic period of life, when new instincts are welling up and causing great mental disquietude, we withhold from boys and girls the knowledge which Nature is trying to impart, and we leave them to grope their way in darkness or seek illumination from some lewd, obscene source.

Sexual knowledge is not wrong. Its tendency is not necessarily injurious. But our mistaken methods of secrecy have undoubtedly the most unfortunate effect of stimulating the imagination to the highest point.

Are parents able to teach sex in the home?

Many urge that parents should convey knowledge upon these questions to their children. But many are not well fitted to undertake such a duty. Our language is badly provided with necessary terms, and the untrained parent, ignorant of the anatomical expressions, finds it hard to tell the wonderful story without dangerous embarassment.

How and when to tell your child

But you can easily protect your child if you yourself learn how to explain this vital subject. The eminent Dr. John Harvey Kellogg has written two volumes—932 pages filled with plain facts—that for the first time treat the subject of sex on a biologic instead of a social basis. Just how and when to tell your child are fully explained in simple, clear language any boy or girl can understand.

In these two handsome, fully illustrated books you will find every phase of sex life splendidly explained. No other book in your library will answer the questions so completely and cleanly that are bound to come to the inquiring mind of your boy or girl.

Vital facts not found in any library or bookstore

Many other facts not found in any other sex books, yet of absorbing interest, are covered by this outstanding authority. The mystery of heredity and sex, why every other child born in the world is a boy, the curious physical and mental differences in men and women—these and innumerable other subjects are carefully and authoritatively explained.

300,000 of these wonderful books have been sold already, and from readers come such expressions as these:

"I would give all I possess in this world could I have had these important facts placed in my hands when I was a lad."

"Words cannot express the gratitude I would now feel, had some kind friend imparted to me the valuable information this book contains."

Send no money

Surely, it is worth the trouble to tear out the coupon below to safeguard your child against the insidious influences of modern-day ways.

You need send no money. Simply pay the postman $4.50 when he brings the books to your door.

Regard it simply as a deposit which we will gladly refund if you are not more than satisfied that in your hands you have the one answer to the curse of silence that veils all sex matters.

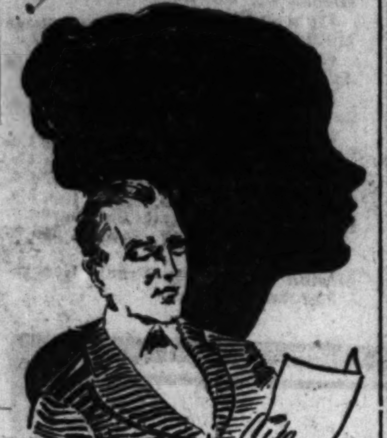
LOVE LETTERS

The Tribune will pay $1 for every love letter published. So, if you can write a good one, or if you have one in your private or family possessions you would like to enter in the contest, send it to Love Letter Editor, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago. As no letters will be returned send copies of the ones you wish to keep.



O, SAMSON!

MY DEAREST: The other night I sat watching your wonderful profile. I was drinking in all the sweetness of that last half hour with you and thinking of what an indelible impression that profile, yes, all of you, every inch of your lovable personality, has made on my mind. I said I longed to possess the art of Anacreon that I might paint that impression in words of glory. But I would possess it for a much dearer reason. For it is a fact, dearest, that I love you more than life itself. Old Anacreon could perhaps express his emotions in words, but he could not love one whit more the lady of his heart than I love you.

It is an old story, chere, but this is the first time I have ever loved you, the first time I have ever loved any one, and the only time I shall ever love any one. As the señorita said in our little love story, a Carlos loves but once. I am giving you all the love of which I am capable, and I am no Eskimo.

The proof of the pudding is in the eating, they say. And while Petrarch could extol his Laura with flaming words, Horace his Lalage, and Cicero his Tullia, when you find yourself in my arms, sweetheart, you will want no proof other than that which my not altogether weak arms tell. And then when I feel your warm lips on mine, I shall wonder why it is that one is permitted such joy outside of paradise.

Yours, dearest, SAMSON.

My Nicest Compliment

What was the nicest compliment you ever received? Was it a tribute to achievements, social gifts, learning, beauty? Was it forthright and blunt, wittily done, or something subtle? Write it out and send it to the Compliment Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. One dollar will be paid for each letter printed.

One for Teacher.

In a second grade room of a large school where children are usually anxious to be dismissed to play, the nicest compliment I ever received was given me.

The bell for dismissal rang, and several little boys and girls called out, "Aw, is it time to go home? I wish we could stay until six o'clock." E. I.

Seems to Smile.

My nicest compliment was given to me by a little boy who lives near. As I was coming home one afternoon, I met him and he said, referring to my red hair, "I like you, I do, because your hair wrinkles all up when it smiles at me." L. B.

Eyes That See Not.

One of my pupils was asked who his teacher was.

He replied: "Miss Genevieve."

"Oh," his questioner said, "she is the little cripple, isn't she?"

The dear little fellow's face clouded as he replied reluctantly: "Ye-es, she is." Then he brightened, and added, "but when you know her she isn't."

G. H.

Refuge of the Troubled.

The nicest compliment I ever received was given to me by an elderly man when he said, "If ever anybody came to me and said she needed a friend, without hesitation I would send her to you." A. B.

Music to Woman's Ear.

For about a week I had noticed a young man smile and tip his hat to me as I entered the building in which I work.

I didn't pay much attention to him until one morning he came up to me and said, "Don't you remember me, Judy?"

Now this was a pet name I had been called when I was a little girl and have long since outgrown it, so of course I was quite surprised to hear any one say it.

"You don't mean to tell me you have forgotten me," he went on. "Why, you used to come over and take care of us kids when we were little fellows. You were only a little shaver yourself, but you were like a mother to us."

That was seventeen years ago, and I asked him how he recognized me.

With a grin he said, "I'd know you in a million. You haven't grown a day older, though you have put up your hair and wear long dresses; but your smile is always there."

Time Deals Gently.

One of my high school students who confided in me her unhappiness at home appeared most elated one day when she discovered my age.

"O, you don't know how happy that makes me!"

"Why?" I asked.

"Well, you have taken the place of a mother to me for so long I've wanted to call you mater, but it seemed incongruous because I thought you were too young. Now I can really look upon you as a real mother."

And she hugged me with ecstasy.

E. S.

Mourning Their Loss.

After a delightful week's visit at the college which I attended last year, I was escorted to the station by a swarm of jolly friends. It began to rain hard just as they were bidding me good-by. As I boarded the train one of them called: "O, how we all hate to see you leave! Look! Even the skies are crying hard." B. H.

Slangy but Sincere.

Without my knowledge son asked his gang to come over for a Halloween party. Neither amusement nor food had been arranged for, but we made an impromptu party, rolled back furniture, turned back rugs, and gave them the house. I unearthed the material for Halloween games, raided the icebox, and afterward took them out to the kitchen, where we cracked nuts and made fudge.

When they said good-night, son bethought himself.

"Why, say, kids," he said, "mother did not even know you were coming. I'll say she's some Sheba!"

And the boys said, "I'll say she is!"

J. F. W.

Getting Her Reward.

I have always made it a practice to wear dainty house dresses in the morning and afternoon frocks at home no matter what happens.

When my son was 8 we moved to a small town where the women were far from up to date in dress and, to be brutally frank, not always neat.

In a few weeks son had become acquainted with other boys near his age, and had been to most of their homes.

One evening he came in as I was getting dinner.

He paused just inside the kitchen door and studied me for several moments, then blurted out: "Mom, why don't the other boys have young pretty mothers like you?" C. H.

Women the World Over

San Francisco is to have a general headquarters building for all women's organizations.

Miss Carmel Hallmeyer is head of the legal department of the Burley Tobacco Growers' association.

Girls have supplanted boys as messengers at the Women's party headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Seventeen countries now have organizations affiliated with the International Federation of University Women.

Among a membership of 16,662, the American Institute of Mechanical Engineering reports only two women.

Halide Edin Hanum, the famous Turkish poetess, is making a propaganda tour of England and the United States.

Princess Andrew of Russia has made quite a name for herself in England as a designer of dresses for both the stage and society.

There are more than 600 women chemists in the United States, most of them in New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, New Jersey, and Illinois.

One profession into which women appear to be swarming is that of statistics. Banks and investment houses especially employ many statistical clerks as well as research workers and graphists.

Doctor Says Newer Form of Iron Will Increase Strength of Many Delicate People 100% in 10 Days

In Many Instances—Persons Have Suffered Untold Agony for Years Doctoring for Nervous Weakness, Stomach, Liver or Kidney Disease or Some Other Ailment When Their Real Trouble Was Lack of Iron in the Blood—How to Tell.

New York, N.Y.—In a recent discourse Dr. E. Sauer, a New England Physician who has studied both in this country and in great European Medical Institutions said: "If you were to make an actual blood test on all people who are ill you would probably be greatly astonished at the exceedingly large number who lack iron, and who are ill for no other reason than the lack of iron. The moment iron is supplied a multitude of dangerous symptoms disappear. Without iron the blood at once loses the power to change food into living tissue and therefore nothing you eat does you any good; you don't get the strength out of it. Your food merely passes through your system like corn through a mill with the rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind. As a result of this continuous blood and nerve starvation, people become generally weakened, nervous and all run-down, and frequently develop all sorts of conditions. One is too thin; another is burdened with unhealthy fat; some are so weak they can hardly walk; some think they have dyspepsia, kidney or liver trouble; some can't sleep at night, others are sleepy and tired all day; some fussy and irritable; some skinny and bloodless, but all lack physical power and endurance. In such cases, it is worse than foolishness to take stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs, which only whip up your fagging vital powers for the moment, maybe at the expense of your life later on. No matter what anyone tells you, if you are not strong and well you owe it to yourself to make the following test.

See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of this newer form of iron known as Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained.

I have seen dozens of nervous run-down people who were ailing all the time greatly increase and even double their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of their symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time, simply by taking this newer form of iron, and this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. You can talk as you please about all the wonders wrought by new remedies, but when you come down to hard facts there is nothing like iron to put color in your cheeks and good sound, healthy flesh on your bones. It is also a great nerve and stomach strengthener and the best blood-builder in the world. The only trouble was that the old forms of iron, like tincture of iron, iron acetate, etc., often ruined peoples' teeth, upset their stomachs and were not assimilated, and for these reasons they frequently did more harm than good. But with the discovery of this newer form of iron all this has been overcome. Nuxated Iron, for example is pleasant to take, does not injure the teeth and is usually almost immediately benefi

NOTE.—The above company is known to be thoroughly reliable. Over 4,000,000 packages of Nuxated Iron are sold annually, and it has been used and highly recommended by former U. S. Senators, Members of Congress, Judges of U. S. Courts and many physicians. We are able to guarantee that if you do not obtain all and even greater benefits than you expect from Nuxated Iron, the manufacturers will promptly refund your money.

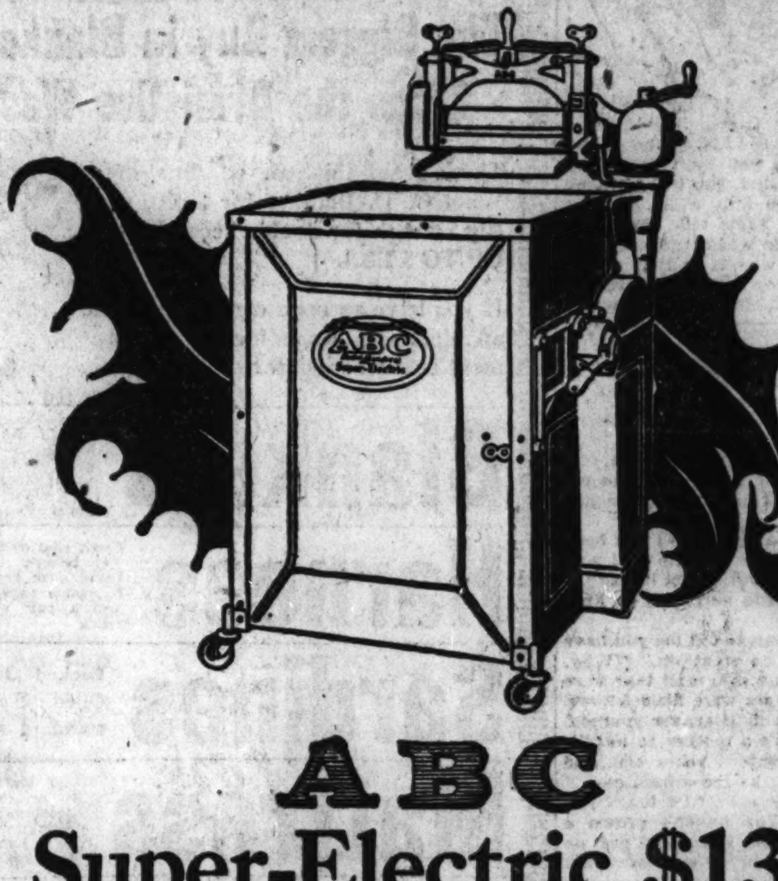
A B C

Electric Washers

Give her Smiles on all washdays!



A B C Super-Electric $135

With Copper Tub—$150

Short, easy washdays for years to come—washdays rid of drudgery and worry—washdays of smiles! What gift could she more appreciate? Surprise and delight her then, on Christmas day, with a fine, modern, new A B C Electric Washer!

By acting at once you can reserve an A B C at the present low price, have it delivered Christmas, and pay next year by the week or month.

This offer is for those who see us at once—before the rush.

We are the leading electric washer specialists located within 200 miles of Chicago.

We endorse A B C Electric Washers as the greatest values ever offered.

If you had the opportunity to know values in washers from the inside of the business as we do, you would come right in and take us up on an offer like we are making.

The makers of A B C Washers—Altorfer Bros. Company of Peoria, Illinois—are one of the biggest and oldest firms in the industry.

They have an enormous $2,000,000 plant, the last word in efficiency and modern equipment. In it they produce high quality on so large a scale that their values are positively unbeatable!

The proof is their success. Just in this last year their sales have doubled as a result of their unparalleled values!

So you can feel assured, when you select any A B C washer, that you are buying her years of smiles and satisfaction—and at the time are getting a wonderful bargain.

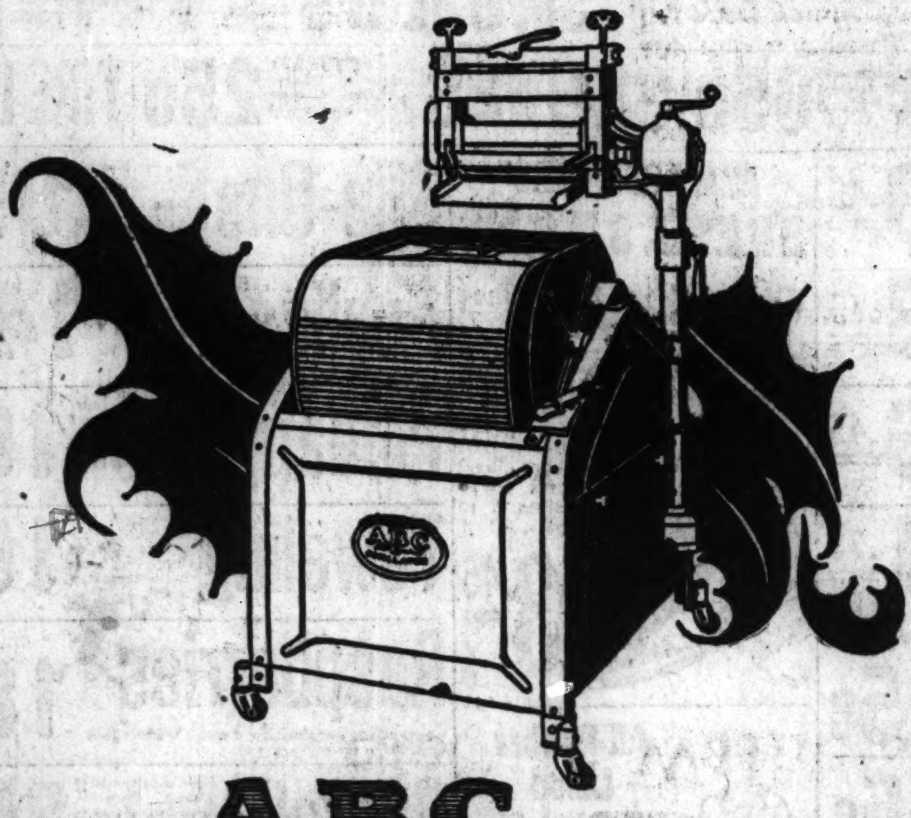
Come in and we will help you to pick out the right model for her.

Don't let this matter drag. An A B C Electric Washer will make her supremely happy. Take advantage of our limited time, before-the-rush offer and reserve one for her this week. Pay next year by the week or month.

This is the greatest offer ever made on high grade, absolutely dependable, fully guaranteed washers of established reputation. Act upon it!

$1.75 to $2.50 per week

Think of being able to buy a genuine A B C washer for as little as $1.75 to $2.50 per week—25c to 36c a day! While cash prices are quoted on this page, any one of us will gladly explain how you may reserve an A B C now, have it delivered any time up to Christmas, and pay on it next year by the week or month. These payments depend simply upon the first payment you wish to make. An A B C quickly pays for itself out of what it saves.



A B C OSCILLATOR $99

If not convenient for you to call this week, send coupon today for a copy of "The A B C of Washday." This book fully describes America's Greatest Values in Washers:

For only $99 you can get the copper tub A B C Oscillator pictured at the left. It is a marvelous washer for the money. Has a swinging wringer, a high grade motor, a cabinet that encloses all moving parts, a heavy angle iron frame and many other features found only in highest priced machines. Washes beautifully. Full family size.

For only $135 you can get the celebrated A B C Super Electric shown above—"the aristocrat of all washers." It excels in every feature. There is no finer washer at any price. Choice of zinc or maple cylinder. ($150, with copper tub.)

For only $95 you can get a single tub A B C Alco Electric, and for only $120 the double tub, twelve-sheet capacity model. These are unquestionably the best dolly-type washers ever produced. (Power models, $65 up.)

GOOD MORNING!

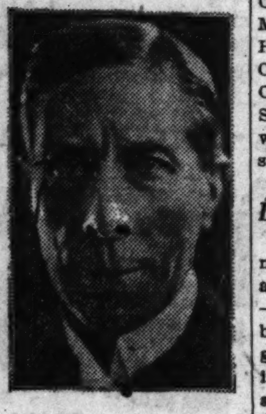
Greet me with a smile this beautiful (? got your winter coal in?) Sunday morning for, lo, I am the bearer of glad tidings! George Arliss in his latest silent drama, "The Man Who Played God," is at the Randolph, and "The Man Who Played God" is a photoplay that SHOULD sort of square the world with you and give you a happier outlook on life. It's no Pollyanic bromide, mind you. It's a drama with an idea behind it.

Gouverneur Morris wrote a story from which Jules Eckert Goodman made a play, from which Forrest Halsey wrote a scenario, FROM which Harmon Weight directed a picture. All of which faintly reminds you of something you will presently remember as the wild man of Borneo who had a dog that had a tail, etc. It is merely offered for its news value.

Mr. Arliss, of course, is the man who plays God. He is cast in the picture as a famous pianist, who, shortly after his marriage to a beautiful girl who adores him, is stricken with deafness. He is about to give a private concert before royalty when a bomb is hurled outside. No one is hurt, but in some way the noise or the intense excitement attendant upon its explosion, affects the hearing of John Arden. He endeavors to go on with the concert—but it is useless. The piano speaks for him no longer.



GEORGE ARLISS.
[Apeda Photo.]

From this time on he is a changed man. He is bitter and suspicious and voluntarily desolate. This last state comes after he has studied lip reading, for at a dinner party he reads the lips of a man who says to some one else:

"What a pity his wife is tied to him as he now is! I wonder how long she will be able to endure it!"

After that the unhappy man refuses to go anywhere and practically excludes everybody, including his wife, from his presence. The only person he tolerates is an old servant, who guards him lovingly and, in moments of black despair when he would end his life, lays a pitying, staying hand upon him.

One day the servant hands him field glasses, and calls his attention to the beautiful flowers growing in the park opposite his window. As he gazes John Arden sees something else. His eyes become riveted upon a young couple seated upon one of the benches and talking seriously. Reading their lips, he learns that the man is ill and despondent, but that the girl, while sad, believes God will bring things out all right. Then and there an idea possesses him. He will play God to these young

Wherein Composers of American Operas Will Come Into Their Own

By Edward Moore.

IF American opera does not succeed this season, it certainly will not be for the want of trying right here in Chicago. Two announcements from two organizations, reaching this department almost simultaneously, give sufficient notice that two distinct efforts in more or less friendly rivalry are on. The Opera in Our Language Foundation, Inc., which is operating with the David Bispham Memorial Fund, Inc., sends word of two series to be given, supposedly at the Playhouse, beginning Dec. 7. The American Grand Opera company, which would seem to be an offshoot from the first organization, announces the second performance of "Shanewis" for Thursday afternoon of this week at the Studebaker.

The Opera in Our Language Foundation, Inc., and its accompanying organization—why should propaganda use such ponderous titles?—will begin its proceedings with Hugo's "The Temple Dancer," which will have Edna Showalter in the title rôle. It will be given again on the third Thursday of the month as the first number in the second series. A new opera will be similarly presented twice in January, and so on until five have been given.

In addition to Miss Showalter, the list of announced artists includes the names of Mmes. Luella Meluis, Edith Allan, Morris Rosenwald, Frances Carey Libbe, Anna d'Argel, Ethel Grace Garbutt, Margaret Lester, Letitia Gallaher Princell, Nina Hall Hately, and Zoe Kendall Ames, also Messrs. Cecil Fanning, Carleton Cummings, Floyd Jones, C. C. Quast, Mark Love, Arthur Jones, Walter A. Stults, and Ward H. Pound. Osbourne McConathy will be the conductor and Charles T. N. Jones the stage director.

Dissipating Energy in Self-Pity.

Amid numerous recent pleas for the existence of American opera, one admission was made. It was that while American operas were unaccountably absent from répertoires, from the plans of producing managers, and perhaps—though this part is not insisted upon—from the affections of those who buy tickets, American operettas had taken a fairly prominent place, and some good ones had been written. To which the natural response, even though it may be in a spirit of amiable compromise, would seem to be, why not work and develop the line of American operetta? What is there about operetta, or about humor, that should seem to be ignoble?

It has been the lot of the one who writes this to examine a number of American scores and to hear some of them sung and played. In several instances they have created the impression of being rather good operettas, but with all sense of humor painstakingly avoided. Sprightly, engaging melodies, quite in the American spirit, were immensely attractive when applied to light situations and developed into hifalutin bombast when tragedy became imminent. And if any sense of humor had been used on the librettos, many painful locutions would have been avoided. No one with any affection for the English language can regard as other than appalling the line, "She is no alien nightingale," when it applies to a mezzo-soprano American Indian who is about to enter the stage.

Apparently through lack of this sense of humor much time has been lost and much good material wasted. It is not recorded in history that American authors dissipated their energies in self-pity because publishers looked coldly upon three volume novels. Instead they struck out and developed the American short story, now admitted to be a model of its kind. American composers, most of them, have not yet seen the way out, seemingly, from the fundamentally incorrect

"Merton of the Movies" Has Effect of a Hokum Sandwich

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—I don't know which interested the Monday first nighters at the Cort most—the production of "Merton of the Movies" or the appearance of the local Mertons and Mertonettes to watch Rodolph Valentino call at the box office for his seats just like any common person. They crowded and cluttered up the entrance to the theater, these eager enthusiasts, both before the play and after. The stage entrance was quite deserted. No one was interested in mere actors when the audience was cluttered with celluloid celebrities.

Who, for example, is young Glenn Hunter? Mertonette never heard of him. Yet she may someday. He, at least, is the life of the comedy the Kaufman-Connelly boys (you may recall they wrote "Dulcy" and "To the Ladies!") have extracted from Harry Leon Wilson's Hollywood classic.

It misses being a novelty by a considerable margin, being fashioned in the form of a hokum sandwich, if you get what I mean. A first act, with Merton working for Gashwhiler in the Simsbury, Ill., emporium and rehearsing with the window dummies to perfect his art as a movie actor after store hours; then a second and third act in the studios and on the lots at Hollywood, followed by a particularly good fourth act filled with heart stuff when the boy finds they have tricked him into playing low comedy with a cross-eyed man when he thought he was doing one of those finer and higher things the silver sheet needs.

GLENN HUNTER.
[White Photo.]

It is the last act, I think, which will do most to guarantee the popularity of the play. The rest is effective comedy, brightened with good lines and rather deftly touched with satire. But young Hunter plays the last act so seriously and with such fine feeling that he sends his audience away believing that he has come through a very real adventure, and they are glad of his success.

The movie acts, on the other hand, are concerned with the eccentricities of the cinema stars, their flashing egos and shallow brains; the setting and taking of scenes, and such other incidents as the stage is familiar with. They are better done for the most part than they have been done before, but they still are not new.

Florence Nash, playing the slangy Montague girl, helps Mr. Hunter as much as she can; there is a clever bit by Lynn Pratt, who appears at the last as one Wheaton, former secretary of agriculture, but now at the head of the movies, to congratulate Merton on the cleanliness and clarity of his low comedy; and there are other small parts by Romaine Callendar, John Webster, Lucile Webster, and Gladys Feldman.

"Rain" Is Shocking and Human.

Knowing missionaries to be at least "a little shy on humor," and therefore potentially a tragic group, W. Somerset Maugham put one into a story which he called "Miss Thompson," after the heroine, who was a lady under the skin. John Colton and Clemence Randolph, playwrights unknown to us, saw the story and determined to make a play of it. The result, shown at the Maxine Elliott theater this week, is a tragi-comedy that is as brutal and as gripping, as shocking and as fascinating, and as downright human and vulgar as life itself.

"Rain," they call this play, because through it tropical rains fall almost incessantly, rasping the nerves of a marooned group of Americans on the South sea island of Tutuila until they are jumpy and raw.

The Miss Thompson of the story is a fugitive from justice, having been "framed," she insists, by the police of San Francisco and sentenced to three years in San Quentin. Escaping the town, she sails for Honolulu, where she

Welcoming Mr. Collier, Apostle of Comic Gloom

By Sheppard Butler.

MR. WILLIAM COLLIER, plunging earnestly through the "Music Box Revue" in quest of "nifties" for his own edification and yours, seems worthy of some special welcome to our city in this post-harvest season. He is not at his happiest in farces by William Collier. Here, just wandering in and out as he did in the great days of the Weber and Fields shows, he is an unfailing source of mirth.

As to the nature of "nifties," he explains the matter to Mr. Solly Ward early in the ceremonies, suggesting that one can get a violin for nothing and that Mr. Ward is to ask how.

"How?" asks Mr. Ward, obediently.

"You go to a drug store and get some medicine, and when they give it to you they throw the vial in. The violin. Medicine comes in a vial, and they throw the vial in. That's a nifty."

"Yess," says Mr. Ward, dumb but interested—"yess, go on. Tell der answer."

Well, it is not so very funny in print, but it gives you the idea. Collier's is a mission of comic gloom. He moves in a dismal cloud from scene to scene, seeking some ray of intelligence which he never finds.

They engage him to rehearse a company in a somber drama, and he does it by mercilessly cutting out the actors' lines. At last the rotund "heavy" of the cast booms forth his great climax:

"Then hear thy father's curse!"

"That's where I'm going to put the song," observes Collier, eagerly. "I want a wow in there."

HENRIETTA TILLMAN,

on view tonight at Cohan's Grand.
(Bloom Photo.)

This is humor for the cognoscenti. You must know a little of the theater—must, perhaps, have seen a rehearsal or two—to get the full flavor of the travesty.

And you must know a little of the movies to find the rollicking fun in George V. Hobart's "Words Mean Nothing," which provides the peak of merriment in the second act. There is no program note to help.

In making a movie, you see, the players talk to produce a semblance of conversation. But since the camera records no words, it makes no difference what they say. Thus, in a scene of emotional despair, the heroine may apostrophize heaven with the bitter cry:

"Always—always there are six in half a dozen! Why are there always six? Why not five? Or four?"

And the villain may reply:

"Hah! Pickled turnips!"

Or, helpfully:

"After paying your war tax you can ride in much more comfort by not going."

A little esoteric maybe, but droll. Hobart works out a whole turgid play in this manner, with words that do not fit at all, and Collier and the rest act it out with solemn zeal.

ALEXANDRA CARLISLE.
coming to the Playhouse tomorrow in "At the End of the World."
(Goldberg Photo.)

It is the sort of thing Broadway loves. As to Chicago, one wonders. The sly modicum of wise cracks which permeates the "Music Box Revue" is no more than an incident of the show's magnificence, but it may have had something to do with the ordering of events at the Colonial. New York patronized the entertainment for fifty-three weeks. Chicago, its sponsors have decreed, is good for eight. What do you suppose they mean by that?

Mr. Arliss on Audiences and the Player's Fate.

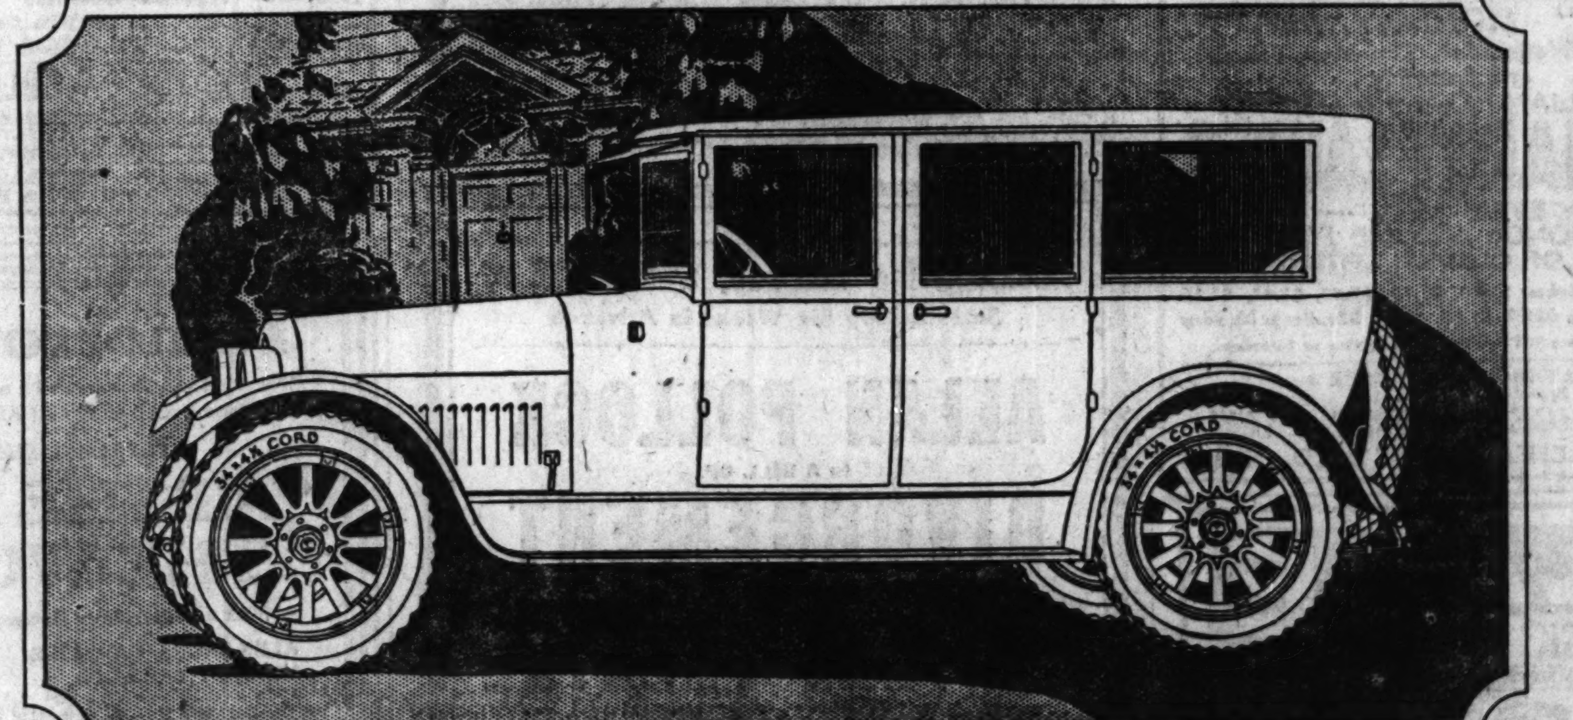
Six-Cylinder Sedan
7 Passengers



They're Here! 7-Passenger Sedan Models
Only a Few Allotted Us

Here's an enclosed car that is a rapid-selling favorite all over the country. And now we can deliver a few.

They're big, roomy cars, with a wealth of comfort and riding ease for all seven passengers.

Yet they are built with such masterly craftsmanship that they appear exceptionally smart and graceful.

This sedan is powered with a wonderfully smooth, quiet, 67-horsepower motor that performs with an exceptional thrift in gas and oil.

Balanced with scientific accuracy the car hangs tight to the road when you "open up" and the rear wheels track true after the front wheels even on high-crowned roads.

It rides tires lightly so you get long tire life and your total operative cost is but little more than that of a "four."

Uncounted care has been lavished upon it to give it every feature that the highest-priced cars offer.

There's a very exclusive quality mohair employed in the upholstery; a new Nash heater, vanity case, attractive vase, and gentleman's smoking set.

And a score of other new and important features emphasize the appeal this car makes to the experienced eye. They're bound to go quickly.

The New Plays

OPENING TONIGHT.

"So This Is London!" (Cohan's Grand)—A satirical comedy by Arthur Goodrich, said to have been embellished with some farcical trimmings by George M. Cohan. It tells the story of a clash between two Chauvinistic families, one English and the other American, picturing in a droll trick scene the uncomplimentary things which each thinks of the other. The piece is doing well in New York and is to be acted here by a special Chicago company which includes Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coburn, Lawrence Grant, Eric Dressler, Henrietta Tillman, and Minna Phillips.

"For All of Us" (La Salle)—William Hodge in a new comedy of his own authorship, wherein he appears as the foreman of a gang of street laborers, cheerily philosophical and given to the business of scattering sunshine along the way. In his company are Marie Goff, Frank Losee, Frank Burbeck, Mary Hampton, Gwyn Davis, and various others.

OPENING TOMORROW NIGHT.

"At the End of the World" (Playhouse)—An adaptation by Edward Delaney Dunn of a German play by Ernest Klein, narrating the adventures of three woman haters and a shipwrecked damsel in a lighthouse off the coast of South America. The drama is new in this country, having had its first American performance night before last in Stamford, Conn. The principal players are Alexandra Carlisle, Vincent Serrano, William Morris, Alphonz Ethier, and Emmett Shackelford.

Mr. Arliss on Audiences

worth repeating. Said Mr. Arliss to his hearers at the Great Northern:

"Ladies and Gentlemen: I hope you will not think that I am deceived as to the quality and volume of the applause which brings me before the curtain. I know that it is due almost entirely to the persistent efforts of the ushers and other officers of the front of the theater. But there is a reason. This is the six hundredth performance of 'The Green Goddess' in the United States and the ushers are anxious that I should break the monotony for them by coming out and acquainting you with the fact.

"I don't know whether they expect you to be surprised or delighted with the news. Personally I see no reason why it should concern you at all, unless it seems like the six hundredth performance, in which case I think you would be perfectly justified in going to the box office and demanding reparation. For it is the duty of the actor to have mastered the art of creating what William Gillette has so aptly called 'The illusion of the first time'—to create the impression that he has never spoken the lines before.

"I have often been asked how it is possible for us to play the same piece night after night without becoming hopelessly mechanical. Well, of course, it would be impossible if it were not for the fact that we have a different audience at each performance. No two audiences are alike. Each brings its own individual stimulus. If, for instance, you ladies and gentlemen had committed some terrible crime and you were doomed as a punishment to come and see us play 'The Green Goddess' every night for 600 consecutive times, I tremble to think what would be the consequence. Utter annihilation for us both, probably. Indeed, I have often wondered how it is that the ushers are not carried out one by one and placed in an ambulance bound for the insane asylum. I suppose they get their stimulus by discovering, as time goes on, just how bad we are and how much better they could play the parts themselves."

Frankness, wisdom, and humor there. They don't all do it as deftly.

* *

Gossip of Plays and Players.

The "Revue Russe," lately at the Playhouse, ended a disastrous American visit last night in Baltimore; the company will return to Paris. Its losses in this country are placed at approximately $100,000.

Miss Doris Keane, approaching Powers' with "The Czarina," thinks of discarding the comedy in favor of something new before the season is over.

Mlle. Alice Delysia, the perturbing protagonist of "Afgar," will transfer her talents from the musical to the dramatic stage soon in "The Lullaby," a newly completed play by Edward Knobloch. This will be shown first in London and later in America.

The Duncan sisters, Rosetta and Vivian, are safely back from London and have gone into vaudeville for a time, striving to be as patient as possible while they await their manager's word to begin rehearsals in "The Heavenly Twins," which they wrote themselves. 'Tis said that when their show is ready it may follow "Six Cylinder Love" at the Harris. 'Tis also said that the rip-roaring melodrama "Captain Applejack" may follow "Six Cylinder Love" at the Harris.

Al Jolson, a restless soul, is reported to be yearning for the concert stage and to have arranged a joint tour with Paul Whiteman and his band, to be ventured upon when Jolson's existing contracts have expired. The comedian has had great success with occasional song recitals, and suspects that he may be well equipped for a serious career in music.

Miss Margaret Anglin's forthcoming play, "The Sea Woman," is, it transpires, the work of Willard Robertson, now in New York as the actor of a minor rôle in "Whispering Wires." Those who have read the piece are loud in its praise.

The management of "Shuffle Along," at the Olympic, is addressing legal admonishments to the troupe which offered "Plantation Days" last summer at the Green Mill gardens and is now touring the middle west with the same entertainment. Several of the "Shuffle Along" numbers are used in "Plantation Days," and their originators don't like it.

Frank Craven has abandoned all hope of getting back to his Long Island home this winter and has taken a six months' lease of a furnished apartment on Sheridan road. His managers tell him "The First Year" will play out the season at the Woods.

"The Hairy Ape," instead of "Anna Christie," has been chosen as the first American play to be presented at the Odeon national theater in Paris. News of the selection reached the headquarters of the Drama League of America in Evanston last week in a cable message from M. Denier, director of the Odeon. The league, at M. Denier's request, submitted five plays, including the two named and "The First Year," "The New York Idea," and "Kindling." All will be presented, in due course, at the Odeon.

Mary Roberts Rinehart has written a play by herself—another mystery piece. Wagenhals and Kemper, who staged "The Bat," will produce it early in the new year.

Miss Helen MacKellar and Lowell Sherman are beginning rehearsals in "The Masked Woman," a new one from Mr. Woods' laboratory.

Miss Nance O'Neil, continuing her faith in the plays of Jacinto Benavente, makes known her intention of returning late this season or early next season in a répertoire of the Spanish dramatist's works. Meanwhile "Field of Ermine," departing at the end of this week, goes by way of Cleveland to New York. Benavente will arrive in this country before long to consult with Miss O'Neil concerning her future productions.

In Hodge's Play

MISS MARIE GOFF.
[Ira D. Schwarz Photo.]

She is Mr. Hodge's new leading woman this year and comes with him to the La Salle tonight to enact some sentimental adventures in "For All of Us." Her chief occupation last season was with H. B. Warner in Cosmo Hamilton's "Danger," which never reached these parts. You may, if you have a good memory, recall her appearance in a short lived play called "Never Too Late" at the Princess four years ago.

SLAMS OF LIFE

By J. P. McEvoy.

A PLEA TO THE POLITICIANS.

O, here and there askew the lea,
With curious comicality
Your faces, lithographed and plain,
Are posted in the sun and rain,
Are posted in the fog and dew—
I wonder do they look like you?

It may, alas, be true, perhaps,
That you possess such comic maps,
That yonder faces on the fence
Are likenesses of living gents—
Though hard to see, it may be true
That all those posters look like you.

But though it strains credulity
To take for granted such can be,
I willingly will bow assent
That you have but the best intent
In cluttering up conspicuous places
With what you're pleased to call your faces.

I will, in short, if pressed, allow
That mercy moved me up till now;
But vanished is election day,
So take your faded maps away.
Please take your beaks from out my heart,
Take your faces and depart.

Vaudeville Wit

RIALTO.

Crystal and Anderson:

"Have you a sweetheart?"

"I did have, but we quarreled."

"What about?"

"He accused of having stolen his watch, so he searched me."

"And did he find his watch?"

"No, sir; all he found was the ticket."

"What's your profession?"

"By profession I'm a manicure."

"Can I do anything with my hand?"

"Why, certainly. Shall I trim you close?"

"Well, you might leave me carfare."

"Where do you live—in Siberia?"

"Never mind where I live. Tell me where you come from."

"Michigan."

"What part?"

"All of me."

"So you came from Michigan?"

"Yes; wouldn't you?"

"Have you a sister?"

"No, but my brother has."

"Was your brother raised in Michigan?"

"Yes, but the rope broke."

Impending Joys

"Greenwich Village Follies" (Great Northern, Nov. 26)—Last year's production, the third of the spectacular series, numbering among its performers Ted Lewis, Joe E. Brown, and Bird Millman, the tight wire dancer, once of the circus.

"The Czarina" (Powers', Nov. 27)—Miss Doris Keane in Melchior Lengyel and Lajos Biro's comedy about Catherine II. of Russia.

Harry Lauder (Studebaker, Nov. 27)—The great Scotchman, coming for his usual week in Chicago with songs new and old.

"Spice of 1922" (Studebaker, Dec. 3)—Musical diversion from the New York Winter Garden, provided by Valeska Suratt, James Watts, and many others.

"La Tendresse" (Blackstone, Dec. 11)—Henry Miller and Miss Ruth Chatterton in a play from the French of Henry Bataille.

"Mister Antonio" (Powers', Dec. 11)—Otis Skinner in a revival of his familiar comedy by Booth Tarkington.

"Partners Again" (Selwyn, Dec. 25)—Barney Bernard and Alexander Carr in a new Potash and Perlmutter comedy.

"Shore Leave" (Powers', Dec. 25)—Miss Frances Starr in a new comedy by Hubert Osborne.

"Sally" (Colonial, Jan. 7)—The aristocrat of the musical comedies (so they say), with Leon Errol and Marilyn Miller prominently present.

"Kiki" (Powers', Jan. 22)—Miss Lenore Ulric in a French "character study" by Andre Picard.

Living Room Furniture and Lamps at special prices.

YOUR living room will be easier to live in if it's pleasanter to live in.

Most of us can't afford to leave utility out of consideration when we think of beauty. We've got to have chairs that are good to sit in; then have them as beautiful as we can. A table has to be useful as a table, as well as charming as a decoration. A lamp ought to give light where light is wanted, as well as add a nice note to the room.

You agree with us, of course. Our business as furniture people is to be of service to you in doing these things to your home, and making it as easy as possible to do them at low cost. We sell only such goods as we can guarantee satisfaction on, or money back.

The furniture illustrated here is Scholle quality; that's enough to know about the merits of the furniture.

The lamps shown are made for us by the Art Lamp Manufacturing Co.—Almco Lamps. The shades are well made; the color-combinations are carefully selected; these lamps are made as a complete unit.

We guarantee satisfaction with everything we sell; you can depend on that with any Scholle merchandise.

Putting Old Bugbear, Self Pity, to Rout

things. He does, and learns the joy that comes from giving. This takes his mind from his own sad case; and he becomes immersed in the business of making others happy.

In the end God does a good turn for his representative, and we leave "the man who played God" happy—reunited with his heartbroken wife, with great new vistas of service and pleasure opening before him.

It is needless to say that Mr. Arliss gives a polished performance. The man doesn't know how to do anything else. And it is an exceedingly human performance, too.

Ann Forrest is exquisitely lovely as the wife. She has graciousness and an air of gentle breeding with all her beauty and cleverness. The other roles are all well played. Mr. Arliss, of course, dominates the picture.

"The Man Who Played God" has been well directed, photographed, and set. Personally, I enjoyed every minute of it.

Ask Me! Ask Me!

J. B. M.: Mary MacLaren is Katherine MacDonald's sister. Richard Barthelmess is married to Mary Hay. Do I think Rodolf Valentino really loves Miss Hudnut? O, for heaven's sake—!

CHILD FAN: You must have a wonderful album. I'd love to see it. Think how your great-grandchildren are going to rave over it! Unless by that time they will be saying whimsically: "Dear great-grandmother! She was a little nutty, my mother tells me. Why, she had seventy-three pictures of one man. IMAGINE!"

ARTHUR: I do not. I will not. I care not.

QUIZ: Yes, addresses of the stars, "dope" on scenario writing, the "doubling" process, motion picture copyright laws, etc., are handed out on request at the loop office of THE TRIBUNE at Madison and Dearborn streets. If you want them mailed, however, you must come across with a stamped and self-addressed envelope addressed to me.

EMMA: Wanda Hawley's husband is a nonprofessional. In the automobile business, I understand.

PERSISTENT: If you haven't had punishment enough, there's more on its way.

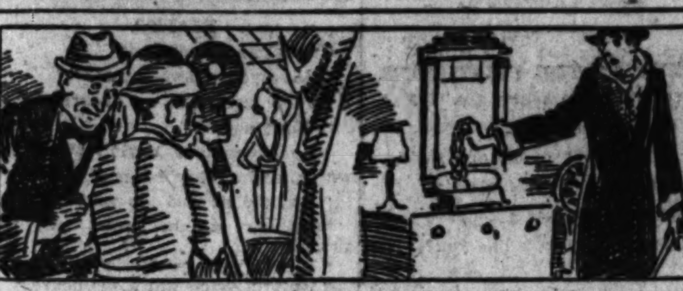
[Other movie notes will be found on page 22.]

A STAR AT LARGE

By Mae Tinee

INSTALLMENT IX.

[Unless thoroughly appreciated every installment threatens to be the last.]



"Catch that!" the assistant director whispered.

UPON advice of counsel Godfrey Goofus did not return to his wife's bed and board after being informed of the proceedings contemplated by Mrs. Goofus. The Giltwater company obtained credit for him with a large department store, whither he hastened to acquire necessaries, of necessity left at home. To these he added a passionate bathrobe and a few odds and ends of male boudoir equipment undreamed of by the Goofus before he had become a Petunia.

His final purchase was a new wardrobe trunk. Reluctantly he uttered his last "Charge and Send" then hurried forth to find a furnished room—neat but not gaudy—again following the advice of counsel.

"After your divorce we will see that you have different surroundings," said the lawyer. "But you must remember until you are free you are only a poor young 'extra' of whom it would be absurd to ask more than the smallest settlement."

As the attorney talked Godfrey felt two distinct inclinations. One was to throw his hat in the air and shout like a youngster, the other to bury his head in somebody's lap and cry like a very, very little boy. His ship of fate was putting out to sea and familiar shore a lines were growing indistinct. He could hear the twins squeal:

"Here's pop." But on the heels of the squeal came another raucous cry:

"I wisht my pop wasn't a slob;
I wisht my pop'd get a job!"

Maria had painstakingly taught them this rhyme and they recited it on all possible occasions, public and private. No—the twins awake were not Godfrey's. They were screamingly Maria's. Asleep—well—he had often slipped in to cover up a bare foot that in the morning would impishly kick his shins; to press a kiss on the baby lips that with dawn of day would open to tantalize him. It was the thought of these stolen moments that made him want to cry. As for Maria, she could have her butcher.

Had any one been interested enough to trace the Goofus ancestry back a few hundred years, he would have found stock far different from that of the Headcheeses. (Which is getting ahead of our story.)

A clean, well lighted room was discovered in the home of an elderly couple who were glad of the extra money a boarder would bring them. Godfrey was to have his breakfasts with them and his dinners also when he was able to get home. His luncheons he would eat at the café on the studio lot.

"My boy looked like you—he went—west at the Argonne," old Mrs. James whispered, her eyes dimming as they rested on Godfrey.

"I—wanted to go——" Godfrey checked himself and swallowed hard. "Tell none of your business to anybody," the lawyer had said and there he had been about to unburden himself to this dear, lavender scented old lady, of that horrible time when he had wanted to go and fight for his country, but had been forced to claim exemption because of Maria and the two brand new, screaming dead weights on his patriotism and ambition.

"I'm—sorry," he said simply in an honest small boy manner that went straight to the heart of his landlady, who patted his arm tenderly with a blue veined hand on which shone a broad wedding ring, thin from years of wearing. That pat sent Godfrey out into the world comforted and sustained and determined all over again to make good.

How wonderful it was going to be to come home each night to somebody who would listen intelligently to his stories of the day's happenings and who would rejoice with him when those stories should show progress!

"CATCH that!" the assistant director whispered to the camera man that afternoon.

"THAT" was a shy, little boy expression that for a moment shone over the face of Godfrey Goofus when, as a gentleman thief, he came across an ancient bit of jewelry.

The jewelry made him think of Mrs. James. The expression "made" the scene.

"If we don't watch out he'll be a star before this fool divorce is over with," said Barkis. "If they give that boy to anybody else to handle I'll BITE 'em!"

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Mme. X Joins Hymn of Praise to Civic Opera

By Mme. X.

IN the grand chorus of praise and thanksgiving, the feeble pipe of this lone observer and chronicler of Chicago can add only an unnoticed strain to the paeans that greeted the opening of our Civic opera last Monday night. But join the hymn of laudation we must. That evening was one of the unforgettable experiences of life. Chill shivers of pleasure ran up and down the spine as the thrilling solos and choruses filled that vast cavern of sound, our cherished old Auditorium. More shivers of pleasure pursued the same spinal highway at the beautiful scenery, while Adolph Bolm's matchless interpretation of the ballet music filled the cup of satisfaction to the brim so that it almost spilled over.

Years ago in the prehistoric period of Chicago's history, when the last mastodon had just gone around the corner, when the world was young, and the present writer one of the youngest things in it, she was introduced to grand opera by being taken to a performance of "Aïda" wherein Clara Louise Kellogg, the then famous soprano, and Anna Louise Cary, the equally famous contralto, were the two stars. It was a matinée and was, I think, given in McVicker's theater, then the finest of its kind in the west. That day began our capacity for shivering at "Aïda's" strains, for it is only the music that excites one in this piece, the story "cuts little ice."

Set in Ancient Egypt.

The composer, Verdi, wrote it on order for the then khedive of Egypt in 1871, and wrote it in record breaking time. Evidently, Verdi's imagination took fire and enabled him to compose what is today one of the most popular grand operas, both for artists and audiences. Certainly last Monday's audience, a house filler, which had braved one of the most unattractive nights ever known here, gave every evidence of satisfaction.

The only person the audience failed to call out before the curtain among those responsible for the success of the evening was Samuel Insull, the head of the opera organization and the man to whom infinite credit should be given for the fact that we have opera at all. Probably he would not have answered such a call, but it ought to have been given.

The new scenery which was the background for the triumphs of Rosa Raisa, Ina Bourskaya, Cotreuil, Formiche, Marshall, and the others, was the creation of Julian S. Dové, with the help of artists and workmen within the opera company, designed and painted under difficult conditions, and costing a sixth of what it would have done under ordinary conditions. Mr. Dové put down the floor of the Auditorium and used the big interior as a workshop. This opens up a new department of the company's activities which may become a feature of its achievements.

A debut second to none in its artistic significance was Adolph Bolm as master of the ballet. His interpretation of the dance music in the opera was novel and exquisitely artistic. The colors, the steps, and poses all showed the audience that henceforth the ballet was going to be an important part of our performances.

As the evening rolled on in triumph, the realization came that not a little of its success came from its Russian artists, Ina Bourskaya and Adolph Bolm. Long live the genius of Russia which is an inspiration to the rest of the world today, though somewhat astray in its native land!

Mrs. Ryerson on Russia.

Tonight at the Casino Mrs. Arthur Ryerson is going to tell the members of that lively little club about Russians as she saw them enduring exile, suffering, want, and all kinds of misery at Constantinople last May. Hers is not a harrowing tale, because it holds up to her hearers the picture of a people who, in the midst of their pains and privations, continue to prefer to discuss art, music, literature, metaphysics, and their hopes for Russia. She shows us the cultivated Russian as accepting the tragic present without murmuring. Instead he devotes himself to plans for a future wherein he shall be in a position to help build a new Russia. Mrs. Ryerson is a vivid and interesting speaker and has a new point of view to give her hearers as to this remarkable people.

Having rented her attractive house in Lake View avenue for the winter, Mrs. Ryerson is here only as bird of passage. She is for the present a guest of Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank. She returns to her country place, "Ringwood," on Lake Otsego in New York state, at the end of the week, where she will meet and have as house guests her son-in-law, George Patterson, and Hugh Walpole, the well known English novelist. Mr. Patterson is just returning from a trip abroad and Mr. Walpole is here on a lecture tour.

Although they love to come to this country on these remunerative talking tours, the English don't understand the psychology which makes Americans throng the halls where they speak. Were American writers or thinkers to try such lectures in England they would hardly find such a cordial and enthusiastic reception. In fact, it would be hard to drum up any sort of audience for the discourses which we delight to encourage here. Our old friend, Harrison Rhodes (known to his friends as "Hal Rhodes"), viewing the fame and funds gathered here by his British compeers, says ironically that he is going to tour the towns in West Riding, England.

Mrs. Ryerson will spend Thanksgiving at Ringwood, and later will return here for Christmas.

Lamenting Late Hours.

Last Monday morning some of the Roman matrons of Chicago, the mothers of this year's crop of debutantes, met to take measures to bring about a new order of things in the social customs of the young, gay set. The meeting was called at the residence of Mrs. John J. Mitchell, and the matter taken up was how best to bring about earlier hours at balls and evening entertainments.

Each year the habit of late hours has grown on all elements of Chicago society so that now many balls do not get into full swing until midnight. This is a feasible custom in Europe, where as a rule the guests who go to balls do not have to get up early the following day and go to business, but in this industrious land, where even millionaires are at their offices before 9 o' the clock in the morning, it is a hardship and health menace to most young men. Neither is it good for the young girls and young matrons. It is the hope of the mothers of both youths and maidens that they can bring about a better order of things.

The youths and maidens might start a club such as was established by another debutante set a decade or so ago. It was called "the half past one club," which meant that its members pledged themselves to go home at that hour and, what is more, kept that pledge. Ralph Poole, who was a member of it, used to go around and gather up the members and see that they really departed at the agreed upon time. It must be confessed that it was not a large club, nor very popular outside its own membership.

Needless Suffering All Around.

If dinner hostesses would make a point of expediting their guests to the balls instead of starting an evening of bridge or even having a little dance at home before the chief event of the evening, it would help to break up a habit which is tending to make the giving of balls a burden on would-be givers of such entertainments.

Another improvement suggested by enthusiastic frequenters of large affairs is that a buffet supper should be substituted for the sit down supper now the custom. This would allow those who did not want to eat a hearty meal a few hours after a still more abundant dinner to dance, instead of, as now, obliging them to wait while a many course feast is served. Or instead of an elaborate supper late in the evening, the hosts could give a dinner-dance for practically what it costs to give a dance and midnight supper.

It is not, however, the question of expense which is most to be considered, but some change which would lessen the discomfort of the receiving line at a ball, the luckless host and hostess or reception committee who nowadays usually stand in dreary line looking anxiously at the door for hours before the main body of their company puts in an appearance. It would also lighten the anguish of those invited ones, who, arriving on time, suffer tortures at the thought that they are among the first to appear. They feel as if it set a stigma on them of some ineradicable kind and seem to try to hide furtively until the rest of the guests turn up. It is needless suffering all around with nothing gained for any one, even those thoughtless ones who cause the misery.

It also prevents the best type of youth, the industrious, ambitious ones, from attending any balls not given on Saturday evening. This is a deprivation not only to them but also to the girls of the same social circle. So why not all of us get together and put a stop to a custom so much better honored in the breach than in the observance? One, two, three—pull!!!

Cost of Music Mounting.

A similar movement is on foot among the older element in the social world. This is set on foot, not only because of health reasons, but because the cost of music is mounting so under the benign influence of a strong union that it is a formidable obstacle to many would-be ball hosts. As I understand it, the price now paid a member of a dance orchestra is $10 an evening with an additional $1 if a tuxedo coat is worn. For every hour after midnight he gets $3 additional. Also he gets higher pay for holidays, the day before a holiday, and the day after one. Also the union has decreed that from Dec. 20 to Jan. 8 is holiday.

Altogether, it is estimated that a member of such a dance orchestra makes sometimes $25 an evening. This adds quite an item to the cost of ball giving, especially when as now guests don't arrive until midnight and insist upon staying until 5 o'clock. Mind you, I am not blaming the unions. They have the right to lay on all the traffic will bear. It is only a suggestion that those two or three ordinarily wasted hours from 9 or 10 to 12 might just as well be used by those wanting to trip it on the light fantastic with a corresponding amount cut off at the other end of the evening to the advantage of hosts and guests—even of musicians, for who among them would not rather get home at a reasonable hour to secure a good night's rest?

The governors of the assembly balls, two of the most formal and exclusive social events of the winter, are going this year to make a point of this early gathering of the clans so as to make easier the task of the receiving band of women. They are asking all who entertain before these dances to help them in this. Success to them and their attempt!

Find Buds Are Taller.

With such an unusual number of debutantes it makes an equally unusual number of balls as well as other entertainments. By the way, it is stated that this is the tallest bouquet of buds that has ever been presented to Chicago society. P. D. De Coster, who recently organized and trained a troupe of them as a part of the Service club's entertainment, "Mlle. Potpourri," is reported to have said that he had to design new and special steps and dances for them. Are the contemporary youths keeping pace with our new face of Amazons? We hope so.

The athletically minded young persons of the Amazon band will be able to develop muscle and litheness if they have some male member of the family who is a member of the new Racquet club of Chicago. This latest comer in clubdom is planning a building which shall be the final word in equipment and will include arrangements for women to use the gymnasium, swimming pool, and Turkish baths certain hours of the morning. They will be able to play squash-racquets, basketball, and other indoor games which develop brawn and so, indirectly, aid brain. It is expected that the new clubhouse, on the corner of Dearborn and Schiller streets, will be ready by this time next autumn. Among the young women who are awaiting the opening of the enterprise are the Mesdames Fred C. Letts, Austin Niblack, Lawrence Robbins, and Leander McCormick.

Getting an Eye to Eye View.

Don't forget that a week from next Tuesday is the date set for the talk from Georges Clemenceau, which will take place at the Auditorium at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Judge Jacob M. Dickinson will preside and Gen. Charles G. Dawes will introduce the great French statesman. Gen. Dawes is chairman of the reception commit-

MISS JANE SCRIVEN.

[Raymor Studio Photo.]

Miss Jane Scriven, the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Scriven of 104 Bellevue place, made her debut at a tea at the residence of her parents on Nov. 11. Miss Scriven is one of the most popular buds of the year, having inherited the charm and grace of manner which make her mother a favorite in society.

MISS FRANCES LOWDEN.

[McGymonds Photo.]

Miss Frances Lowden, youngest daughter of former Governor and Mrs. Frank O. Lowden, was introduced to society at a tea given by her parents on Friday afternoon at the Drake, where they are living this winter. As attractive as her older sisters, Harriet and Florence, and considered by many the beauty of the family, Miss Lowden undoubtedly will be a belle of the season.

THESE three debutantes and numerous others are to usher at the Bal Fantastique to be given for the benefit of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society on Tuesday, Dec. 5, at the Trianon ballroom. Mrs. Howard Linn, noted as one of the most distinctively gowned women in society, is designing the costumes for the ushers, which are to be original and snappy, according to Mrs. Charles Barney Goodspeed, who is in charge of the publicity for the ball.

MISS GENEVIEVE CARPENTER.

[Moffett Photo.]

Miss Genevieve Carpenter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter of 710 Rush street, will be presented formally to society at a musical and dance to be given tomorrow night by her parents at Orchestra hall. Rubenstein, the famous pianist, will give the musical program, which will be followed by a supper dance in the foyer. Miss Carpenter, the only child of the talented composer and his clever wife, who is noted as an amateur interior decorator, is one of the most attractive of this year's "debs."

Flannel Middies

Fifth Floor—State Street

No high school girl ever expected to find pure wool flannel middy blouses—made of Parker Wilder best flannel, at the price we quote tomorrow.

In a splendid shade of red—so popular with many—nattily trimmed with black braid or in navy blue, the everlasting favorite, smartly trimmed with gold braid.

Regulation type, as illustrated; really tailored the way you yourself would have them made; unsurpassed both for school and business wear; all sizes 14 to 22 years; we've seen them nowhere else under $4.00; better be prompt for yours at 2.95

Fur Used with Telling Effect on the New Hats of Satin

Sixth Floor—State Street

Not fur in great swirls or drapes or even fur bandings of size, but the sparsest bit of fur trimming placed here at brim or there against the crown—so these satin hats achieve distinction. The fur is usually monkey fringe, caracul, beaver, nutria or "moleskin." They relate the hat to the costume with telling effect.

Beside the fur trimmed satin hats for Monday one finds splendid groups of hats happily decked out in glycerined ostrich or in burnt goose.

Flowers and ribbon and embroidery play their part as well. The hats are mainly small or of medium size—good "suit" hats. Black and navy are strong contenders, with a sprinkling of the other favorite colors. You'll find much pleasure (and profit) in choosing from this group, the customary up to $9.00 qualities, choice Monday at 4.95

The Ways of Beauty Are the Ways of the Corset; It Must Come FIRST

Third Floor—Dearborn Street

The well dressed woman knows only too well that the corset is of the utmost importance if clothes are to hang and fit correctly. And today, in urging upon you the necessity of skillful fitting, our corset store stresses both its supreme fitting services and equally a corset which it has found to be unusually successful in meeting the needs of so many figures—the Binner corset.

Should your figure need "remodeling," whatever difficulties may attend, the Binner holds the key to that health and beauty that all women seek. Our skillful corsetieres, specially trained in fitting this corset, are at your service. Their experience, their hygienic methods, the complete stock of Binner corsets at their disposal here, in fact, every possible factor needed to bring success to the fitting and wearing of your corset, all are here provided. Though our fitting service is unrivaled, we make no extra charge for it.

We recommend for the tall, long limbed, plump figure a splendid model of Binner corset. It is made expressly for this type—comes well down on the figure, takes wonderful care of large thighs at the lower end. The ungraceful lump of flesh that now disturbs will disappear and curves, long and slender, will take its place. The bust is extremely low, with elastic inserts to control the diaphragm; cut quite low in back above the waist line; sizes up to 36, at... $9

Other Binner Corsets, $5.00 to $13.50

The Flat-o-Form Brassiere

Third Floor—Dearborn Street

Particularly do we ask your attention to FLAT-O-FORM style 4011, the brassiere that has the tailored front, holds its shape and lies neat and flat.

Fashioned of fancy flesh colored materials. Elastic at the top shoulder straps allows plenty of freedom. A band of webbing gracefully flattens the diaphragm and does it with comfort to the wearer.

Length is sufficient to permit fastening below the top of the new topless corset. The snug fitting top puts an end to uncomfortable bunching of flesh over the top of the corset; sizes up to 48, at 1.50

FLAT-O-FORM style 5013, for women of stout tendencies, was designed scientifically to fill the present fashion needs and produce a flat line from bust to waistline, and gracefully flatten the diaphragm. Its skillful design accommodates and holds surplus flesh about the shoulders and under the arms. The Flat-O-Form is made to fit any waistline size and can be tightened or loosened as occasion may require. Featured in a heavy, firm brocade material, sizes up to 54, at............................ $2

Overseas League Plans 'Armistice' Night in Paris

By Kate Webber.

"ARMISTICE Night in Paris" is the catchy title of an affair to be held on the evening of Dec. 2 at the First Regiment armory, under the sponsorship of the Chicago branch of the Women's Overseas league, assisted by the Forty and Eighth, an organization within the American Legion. The funds derived from the many attractions to be offered will be used to further the league's work for disabled ex-service men.

All the thrilling sights of that long to be remembered night will be reproduced in miniature by those who remember it from experience. Landmarks dear to American doughboys will be faithfully pictured, including sightseeing trips to the American bar, dance halls and cafés, art museums, the Pantheon de la Guerre, flower markets and street venders. Admissions will be issued in the form of military passes, which the dreaded M. P.'s will collect during the evening.

The Chicago branch of the Women's Overseas league is not yet two years old, and this will be its initial showing of organization work. It continues, in the hospitals and with the families of ex-service men, the various kinds of relief work accomplished by overseas women during the war. Miss Louise Wells of Chicago is national president of the organization and Miss Marjorie Valentine is president of the local branch.

Among the women who are actively at work on plans for Dec. 2 are Miss Sara Frances Jones, who as general chairman has secured the patrons and patronesses and assistance from Chicago business men; Miss Elsie McDonald, in charge of the Café de la Paix; Miss Esther Bendix and Miss Elizabeth G. Beyer, the canteen; Miss Miriam Heereans, sightseeing trips; Mrs. Annie Peaks Kenny, the Louvre; Miss Louise Wells and Miss Florence Royer, the flower market; Miss Cornelia Conger, Mrs. Charles J. Huston, and Miss Marion Levin, the cinema; Miss Ethel M. Hurley, occupational therapy; Miss Louise Hately, tickets; Mrs. E. J. Lyons, money exchange; Miss R. E. Rowley, fortune telling; Mrs. Roberta Chandler, the Kiosk; Miss Marie Stahl, publicity; Miss Mildred Chamberlain, poster design, and Miss Florence Lake, Le Guignol.

Members of the "Forty and Eighth" who will assist are Harold Cunningham, Pantheon de la Guerre; Capt. Fitzpatrick, the American Bar; Frank Flannery, poster distributions, printing.

Edgewater Club Seeks Legislative Reforms

THE Edgewater Catholic Woman's club, which ranks among the foremost philanthropic organizations of Chicago, will in future direct its efforts more particularly toward legislative reforms than toward the conduct of purely philanthropic work, according to the plans of its new president, Mrs. George F. Wright, and the other officers and directors of the club who are this year begininng their terms.

This does not mean that the club will abandon the various philanthropic activities it has fostered since its beginning, more than ten years ago. But it will concern itself and make its influence felt in a way which a club with so large a membership can to bring about the passage of wise legislation, particularly that which concerns women and children. In this it will cooperate and work in close harmony with the Federation of Women's Clubs.

It was the suggestion of the Rev. Dr. John Cooper of the University of Washington, D. C., who was the club's guest at its annual luncheon last spring, that brought about this new policy. Dr. Cooper, who is active as an official of the National Catholic charities, is a firm believer in and an exponent of the policy of helping the needy by giving them opportunities and facilities to help themselves. His contention is that the root of the evil of poverty and sickness is, in the majority of cases, a combination of insufficient wages, long hours, and unhealthful working and living conditions.

The work of the club for wards of the Juvenile court will continue. As in the past, well filled suitcases will be given to girls, wards of the court, who are sent out into homes to work. The club also plans to do a big work for infant welfare during the coming year. Mrs. William A. Sauer, who last spring completed her term as president, is chairman of the department of public welfare. Mrs. Kennis Brannock is the philanthropy chairman.

A new departure this year is the holding of two meetings a month instead of one as heretofore. Arrangements for programs are in the hands of Mrs. George E. Brennan. The next regular meeting will be held on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. It will be a memorial meeting of America's part in the war. Ex-service men from government hospitals, gold star mothers, and members of the G. A. R. will be guests. Anthony Matre will give an illustrated lecture on the Passion Play. Glenn Drake, an ex-service man, will be the soloist. At 1 o'clock the citizenship class of the club will hear a talk by Victor Yarros on "The New Constitution."

Mrs. Thomas F. Mullaney is chairman of the press committee. The other officers are Mrs. George F. Wright, president; Mrs. J. W. Casey and Mrs. Paul O. Young, vice presidents; Mrs. John F. Craddock, recording secretary; Mrs. Thomas Fay, corresponding secretary; Mrs. John P. Dillon, financial secretary, and Mrs. Bernard Moore, treasurer.

MRS. L. DOROTHY GARRETT.

The fifth anniversary of the Women's Advertising club of Chicago will be observed on Tuesday evening, when a dinner will be given at the Swedish club, 1258 North La Salle street. The speakers will include Mrs. Helen Carter Johnson, founder of the club, and past presidents. Mrs. L. Dorothy Garrett, chairman of the program committee, has the affair in charge.

MISS SARA FRANCES JONES.

Miss Sara Frances Jones is general chairman of "Armistice Night in Paris," a benefit to be given on Dec. 2 at the First Regiment armory by the Chicago branch of the Women's Overseas league, aided by the Forty and Eight, a men's organization within the American Legion. The proceeds are to be devoted towards making easier the lot of disabled ex-service men.

MRS. GEORGE F. WRIGHT.
[Gordon Photo.]

Mrs. George F. Wright is beginning her two year term as president of the Edgewater Catholic Woman's club. The club will pursue the policy in the future of fostering wise legislative measures, particularly toward those bettering the conditions of women and children.

Rival Companies Plan to Present American Opera

opinion that light art is necessary and heavy art good, when only too often the reverse is true.

One thing is certain. The public will not be scolded or sermonized into accepting American opera. The only thing that can save American opera is American opera, a work so good in itself and so well done that the public will enjoy hearing it. The plain duty of the two American opera companies now in Chicago is to find such a work and present it in that manner.

Opera at the Auditorium.

This week's opera at the Auditorium will begin even today to present its own special points of interest. This afternoon "Parsifal" will take the stage for the first time since the 1917 season, with Forrest Lamont in the name part, Cyrena Van Gordon appearing as Kundry, Mark Oster making his debut at Amfortas, and Ettore Panizza at the conductor's stand, bringing the tradition of Milan's La Scala to bear on the score.

Miss Garden will give three performances during the week, appearing in "Tosca," "Carmen," and "L'Amore dei Tre Re," and departing at the end of the week for a concert tour. She will be gone six weeks and will appear again at the Auditorium during the final two weeks of the company's stay.

One of the distinguished visitors of the season is bulletined for the midweek in "Il Trovatore." That visitor is Louise Homer, who last appeared in opera here in April, 1910, the time of the last trip of the Metropolitan to Chicago. Mme. Homer will sing the part of Azucena on this occasion.

Present and Future Aspects.

It is a bit too early in the season to reckon up all the assets of the Chicago Civic Opera company and point out all the elements by virtue of which the new régime has passed beyond the standards of other seasons, though the present staff of conductors and Adolph Bolm's ballet will certainly be the two first to be so counted. It is not too early, however, to begin thinking about additions and improvements for next season, and there is a bit of rumor to the effect that thought thereon is already being taken at the Auditorium.

For additions to the répertoire, the suggestion is here offered gratis that the list of Russian operas be considered. That delightful, tuneful, eye filling bit of fantasy, "Sniegurotchka," on Thursday night was a splendid start. There are plenty of others. It is admitted everywhere that the supply of satisfactory modern operas has run out. The Chicago company already has a large répertoire of standard Italian, French, and German works, though "Die Meistersinger" is still an unfulfilled anticipation. There remains the Russian school.

Russian Riches.

That interesting peripatetic Russian company showed at the Olympic theater last spring what a rich field is to be worked. With inadequate resources, with too few singers, too small an orchestra, too little scenery, their visit was still a memorable event. The list is a royal one. Name it over at random, "Boris," "The Tsar's Bride," "The Demon," "Pique Dame," "Eugene Onegin," "Coq d'Or," the last well liked in New York, and one could easily find a dozen ready to be taken over as fast as the Chicago company can absorb and produce them.

Probably they will all come out in a foreign language; if not in Russian, then in French. The public clings to a resolute belief that a language that is not understood is more artistic than one that is. Incidentally, the labors of the producing staff at the Auditorium might be lightened by spending less time on creating correct Italian and French enunciation, because it does not make the slightest difference whether it is correct or not. All that is necessary is that it be not understood.

But admitting the abysmal absurdity of the situation, the public does appreciate well sung melodies, and there are dozens, scores, hundreds of them in the Russian list.

Chicagoan Starts Discussion.

Leo Sowerby of this city, the first American composer to enjoy the privileges of the American Academy at Rome, has been in London, where he played his new piano and violin sonata with Amy Neill, another Chicagoan. As with most of his music, for that matter, as with every modernist in music with something definite to say, opinions are divided.

The London Times regards it as "obviously a case of some natural talent imperfectly trained, hence the superficial melodic fluency allied to nimble rhythm, which creates a sense of busyness and yet says nothing arresting, while of the necessary qualities—structure, balance, or intrinsically interesting workmanship—there is hardly a trace. There is a bold part for the violin which Miss Neill played with dash and technical ease."

The Telegraph critic liked it. He says: "It is a very exacting composition, both for piano and violin; throughout the sonata violinistic technique is exploited to the uttermost, and it can be said without reserve that Miss Neill was equal to all that was demanded. The composition itself is a very mature production, and never failing in interest. It is impossible to dismiss it in summary fashion, for behind it is a force which will certainly make itself felt in the futre."

Music Here and Elsewhere.

Take it from the publicity herald, something out of the ordinary is going to happen at Orchestra hall next Tuesday night, when Isa Kremer takes possession of the stage. Seldom has an approaching artist been so be-adjectived. One learns that she is styled an international balladist because she sings the songs of many nations in the tongue of each; that she has really dazzled all the cities of continental Europe, and that her two recent New York appearances amounted to a genuine ovation; that in the estimation of many who have heard her she far excels Yvette Guilbert; that her personality is tremendous, and besides being a fine dramatic artist she adds a beautiful voice delivered with fine technique.

Claire Dux, in her first recital of the season, will be in opposition today to "Parsifal," but not until 3:30. The more seats are sold for her recital the better off St. Joseph's hospital will be, and the more seats are used by the purchasers the better off the purchasers will be if they care for the art of song in the keeping of an alert and engaging mistress of the aria, the chanson, and the lied in Italian, French, German, and English. No need to tell this to the 6,000 persons who heard her with Mr. Stock in the Chicago Symphony's fourth pair of concerts Nov. 3-4, but statistics seem to show that Chicago houses at least 50,000 persons who react to fine singing. Dux will start her program today with the delectable "Voi che sapete," Cherubino's mischievous if wistful introspection from "The Marriage of Figaro," and there is nothing lovelier in all of Mozart. Incidentally one learns that when "The Marriage" is sung in Europe Claire Dux is ready to answer "Here!" when the call goes out for any of the three rôles of the countess, Suzanna, and Cherubino.

Mr. Stock has arranged the first of his literary-musical programs for the Chicago Symphony orchestra's programs this week. That is to say, he has put together a program of music inspired by an author, in this case Shakespeare. He plans to conduct Nicolai's "Merry Wives of Windsor" overture; the nocturne and scherzo from Mendelssohn's incidental music to "A Midsummer Night's Dream" the tone poem, "Macbeth," by Richard Strauss; four selections from Berlioz's setting of "Romeo and Juliet" and Tschaikowsky's "Romeo and Juliet" overture.

CLAIRE DUX.
[Moffett Photo.]

Claire Dux, well known in Chicago for her appearances in opera and concert, will sing at Orchestra hall this afternoon for the benefit of St. Joseph's hospital. The proceeds from her recital will be turned over to a fund for the construction of a new nurses' home.

"Merton of the Movies" Has Effect of a Hokum Sandwich

dances in the cabarets of the red light reservation. Out of there she sails for Apia, Samoa, and walks into the first act of the play as one of the second class passengers on the Orduna, stopped at Pago Pago by a case of cholera among the crew and held there for a fortnight just as the rainy season sets in.

The marines stationed at Pago Pago find Miss Thompson a great little trick. She treats them to her last bottle of Scotch and opens up the old portable Victrola for a dance. Whereupon the Rev. Mr. Davidson, missionary extraordinary in those parts, hears God calling upon him to interfere. He invades the Thompson room to break up the party and is promptly thrown out on his head by Handsome O'Hara, U. S. M. C. For this he swears a godly vengeance. He will save Miss Thompson's soul, whatever the cost.

She defies him at first and laughs and curses him for a meddling fool. But when he decrees that she shall be sent back to San Francisco to serve her prison term she pleads piteously to be saved from that. She will go to any other place—but not back to San Francisco. He insists. That shall be part of her atonement. She shall suffer punishment, even though she may be innocent, to prove her humility before God. At which she turns upon him and lashes him with the oaths of her kind. He is a psalm singing, Bible backed something that ought to be hung! And him calling himself a minister of a just God!

She is beaten, however, when the governor of the island, fearing the church's power, confirms the order of deportation. Then she weakens and submits to salvation. For a week the Rev. Mr. Davidson prays with her and she repents—with her hair down her back and her pale, sunken cheeks pierced by the burning eyes of a fanatic.

An Ironic Denouement.

She prays earnestly—in a lounging robe that clings tightly to her drooping figure. She mumbles of the great peace in her heart and sends "Handsome" O'Hara away when he offers to help her escape from the island in a small boat. The Rev. Mr. Davidson is strangely moved by her devotion to the new life. So strangely moved he cannot sleep o' nights, but dreams "of the mountains of Nebraska," which, as the play's philosopher points out, "rise abruptly from the plain like a woman's breasts."

Then there comes the night when the Rev. Mr. Davidson does not return from his hour of prayer with the reclaimed Miss Thompson. The next morning they find his body on the rocks by the shore, his throat slashed by his own hand. And in her room Sadie Thompson puts another jazz tune on the phonograph, repaints her face, and her lips, and is ready to leave for Sydney. "These beasts of men," she spits out, "they're all alike!" But she promises to meet "Handsome" in Sydney, and it may be she will marry him, seeing she has long wanted to go straight.

A powerful drama and wonderfully moving, for all its occasional brazen ugliness and unyielding realism. And amazingly well acted by Jeanne Eagels as the Thompson woman. It is another of those flashing hits, common to our stage, in which an impassioned ingenue tears smugness and hypocrisy to tatters and exists amid the tumultuous shouts of a sympathetic audience. Miss Eagels carries her scenes perfectly. Davidson is played a little ponderously, but very earnestly, by Robert Kelly. Fritz Williams is a philosophical doctor and there are character parts well played by Catherine Brooke, Rapley Holmes, Emma Wilcox, and Robert Ellitt.

A JAUNTING CAR IN SPANGLELAND

Boys of Chicago, members of the chapters of the Order of Builders for Boys, are bringing to the Coliseum next Tuesday night the Hagenbeck-Wallace winter circus, the pioneer three ring indoor show, for a stay of eleven days. The Hagenbeck-Wallace circus, known as the largest wild animal show in the world, comes to Chicago intact. All performances are given under the auspices of the Builders for Boys. Bee Starr, Flo Conners, and Nona Marine, aerialists, are shown in the elephant jaunting car.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

tee and George F. Porter is vice chairman.

As M. Clemenceau asks for as little commotion to be made over him as is consistent with the importance of such an event, the only arrangements made by the committee are for a military escort which, with the reception committee, will meet him at the train and escort him to the home of his Chicago hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer. It will later accompany him to the meeting at the Auditorium.

Seats, which are to be free, can be had on application at the office of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations, 35 North Dearborn street. Robert Catherwood is chairman of ticket distribution, while Russell Tyson has the sale of the boxes in charge. It is safe to prophesy that the "Tiger of France" is going to stir up something in this country. M. Longuet, a French radical, is coming over later to try to counteract the influence of Clemenceau. Those foreigners have to make us see things eye to eye with them. Perhaps in the process of trying they may also get an eye to eye view with us.

It is only to be hoped that we Americans won't get the big head at the thought of all the world trying to get our good will and support. We may come into a league of nations some time, but it will probably be only when all the military preparations are left out of the program of other nations.

Finishing Touches to Bal Fantastique.

The energetic body of society leaders planning the "Bal Fantastique" is ever "on the job," and the ball promises to be one of the most brilliant and beautiful ever given here—or anywhere else in the country, it is safe to say. Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. John Borden, Mrs. John A. Carpenter, Mrs. Charles Barney Goodspeed, Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. Edwin H. Ryerson, and Mrs. Kenneth Sawyer Goodman are Finishing Touches to Bal Fantastique. among the young matrons who are working to this end. They have the advantage of the advice and coöperation of such experienced and seasoned ball givers as Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank. These two able women know more about organizing and running a successful, smart, and gorgeous ball than any other women in America.

Getting up such an entertainment on the scale proposed for this one requires the imagination of a Roman emperor, the generalship of a Napoleon Bonaparte, and the tact of several Lloyd Georges. These qualities are possessed in full measure by these two well known and popular social leaders. While they are not initiating this affair, they are on the committee, and it is safe to say that their counsels are of great service to the younger group of matrons organizing the "Bal Fantastique."

Especial credit must be given Mrs. John Carpenter, however, for the chief event of the evening, which will be a ballet program furnished by Adolph Bolm, the Russian ballet master of the Civic opera. This will be a great adjunct and attraction, the most interesting and striking feature of which will be the performance of John Alden Carpenter's "Krazy Kat," a delicious combination of music, dance, and humor, which is sure to delight every one. The music was given last winter by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and found great favor here with both critics and public.

MRS. ADOLPHUS PEINE.
[Moffett Photo.]

Miss Mercedes Siuchninska became the bride of Adolphus Peine on Nov. 8 at the residence of W. L. O'Neill of 6250 Kenmore avenue. Mrs. O'Neill was the matron of honor, Virginia Peine the train bearer, Billy O'Neill ring bearer, and Mary O'Neill the only bridesmaid. The bride was born in Argentina, was educated in England and Berlin, and has been in America less than a year. Mr. and Mrs. Peine will live in Chicago.

There will be other ballet features. The stage is to be built at the east end of the Trianon—that charming oval ballroom—and will be visible from everywhere, including all the boxes, and will provide a strong attraction for the nondancers, who will look on from that golden row of becoming and effective vantage points. The ball will be one of the memorable ones in our social history, and every one who goes will help to make it so.

Works of Chicago Artists.

While not pretending to be an art critic in any sense of the word, this "pillar of polite piffle" feels impelled to say that the present exhibit of American painting and sculpture at the Art institute is one of the best ever shown there. The arrangement and hanging of the paintings contribute largely to this sense of satisfaction. No pictures are sky-ed as in days of yore, nor is there any of the old time crowding. Every canvas shows to its full value. The works of Chicago or former Chicago artists concerned this writer most in a cursory view of the collection.

Having always had a deep interest in the career of Cecil Clark Davis, it was a pleasure to meet unexpectedly one of her cool, dark toned portraits, and recognize it instantly. It is the likeness of a wholesome looking, pink complexioned young British officer, Capt. Lord Carnegie. The cheerful flesh tints stand out in strong contrast to the dark uniform and the still darker background. Mrs. Davis has a great gift for getting likenesses. She is Chicago born and bred, as she is the daughter of the late John M. Clark, a well known citizen here for many years.

Two other children of Chicago, descendants of Chicago pioneers, are Frederic Clay Bartlett and Abram Poole, both of whom have interesting pictures in this exhibit. The former has a study called "Writer's Corner," in which his wife is easily recognized by their friends. She is depicted as either writing a poem or composing music, both of which she does with unusual talent. Abram Poole's two canvases are called respectively "Diana" and "Mother and Child" and show him in two moods. Personally, we prefer the mood in which he painted the first mentioned to that in which the latter was done.

Setting an Example.

In connection with the hanging of the collection, to which we referred above, much credit should be given to the Arts club for the influence it has exerted, all unconsciously, over the hanging committees of the institute. For it was not until the Arts club's well displayed exhibits were an established feature of Chicago's art world that the older organization abandoned the old methods of crowding its walls with pictures, putting the good ones "on the line" and indiscriminatingly jumbling the rest of them above and below, to the destruction of the effects of all. Along came this new and young club with a passion for the latest, most distinguished way of doing things, with open minds for the modern in painting and sculpture, and set an example in many ways to older institutions, an example which included both the manner and matter of exhibits.

At present in the club's galleries at 610 South Michigan avenue there is an interesting collection of the works of a new group of artists who call themselves "The Cor Ardens" (the burning hearts). It is an international brotherhood of artists which aims to hold exhibitions without juries, prizes, or sales, to present concerts, drama, and the dance; to publish writings and compositions through the coöperation of the society so that expression may be given to those artists denied a hearing by an indifferent world. The international headquarters of this aspiring organization are at 63 West Ontario street.

Its officers are: Carl Hoeckner, president; Rudolph Weisenborn, vice president; C. Raymond Jonson, secretary; Agnes Squire Potter, assistant secretary; Bert Elliott, treasurer; William Owen Jr., assistant treasurer. Its honorary presidents are of many nationalittes and all of much fame: Roerich Hauptmann, Maeterlinck, Zuloaga, Augustus John, Gallen, Mestrovic and Rabindrath Tagore, an imposing list.

A visit to the Arts club may reveal some new star rising on the artistic firmament. It would be as exciting to be one of the discoverers of a genius as to be the first to see a new planet or an onlooker at the opening of an ancient tomb rich with souvenirs of the remote and dead past. Perhaps the Cor Ardens will give us this thrill.

Helping the Helpless.

It is thirty-one years since the Chicago graduates of Ogontz, the famous school for girls in Philadelphia, formed a society to honor the name of their alma mater and, at the same time, to benefit Chicago. Their initial enterprise was founding the first lunch club for working girls in the loop, an undertaking which later became self-supporting, leaving the Ogontz association free to establish other good works.

This they did by opening a day nursery for the babies of women who had to go out by the day to earn their own and their children's livelihood. Today the association runs a nursery at 1600 South Allport street, where daily fifty infants are cared for in the most tender and scientific way, while those in charge also look out for the neighborhood youth as far as possible.

Such an undertaking takes money to run, which is why the Ogontz alumnæ are asking you and me and the next man to take tickets for tomorrow night at Cohan's Grand, where "So This Is London" is having its real opening, though the curtain goes up on it Sunday night. Sunday evening openings appeal only to a certain element in the community, the descendants of the Pilgrim Fathers still cherishing Sabbatical traditions.

Sherman Kingsley says "that being a baby is the most hazardous pursuit known to civilization"; so help the helpless pursuers of this calling by being one of Monday night's audience. Among those interested in the success of the evening are Miss Josephine Stockton, Mrs. Walter Engle, Mrs. A. B. MacCaughey, Mrs. Phelps Hoyt, Mrs. Mabel Wakem, Mrs. M. M. Sheriff, and Miss Elizabeth Waller.

WEDDINGS

No wedding or engagement announcement will be published in The Tribune unless it bears the signature, address, and telephone number of a parent of either the bride or bridegroom. Announcements should reach the society editor not later than the Thursday morning preceding the Sunday they are to be printed.

The wedding of Miss Francelia Berenice Cannon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Cannon of the Sheridan Plaza hotel, to Carl Nicholas Wolf, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Wolf of the Edgewater Beach hotel, will take place Nov. 29 in the Fourth Presbyterian church.

The marriage of Miss Margaret Weinstock, daughter of Louis Weinstock of 1024 North Oakley boulevard, to Samuel Paddor will take place the evening of Nov. 29 and will be followed by a reception at the residence of the bride's father.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wallace Smith announce the marriage of their daughter, Dorothy Ingalls, to Rollin Thomas Chamberlain, which took place on Saturday, Nov. 11, in St. Paul's Episcopal church, Kenwood.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Mary Leahy, sister of Mrs. Frank Andrewson of Oak Park, to Dennis J. Kenney of Austin. Mr. and Mrs. Kenney will reside in Austin.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Carroll of 4439 North Hamilton avenue announce the marriage of their daughter, Sadie Agnes, to A. N. Even, son of Mrs. Theodore Even of 5041 Hutchinson avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Even are spending their wedding journey in Canada.

The marriage of Miss Edith Sherry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Sherry of 1928 Humboldt boulevard, to Robert Friedman, will take place on next Sunday. A reception at the Boulevard club, 4220 Sheridan road, will follow.

The marriage of Miss Ethel Erna Stern, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Stern of 3863 Flournoy street, to Samuel E. Klawans, son of Mrs. Dora Klawans, will take place on Thanksgiving day.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Weiss of 3456 West 15th street announce the marriage on Nov. 6 of their daughter, Lillian, to Joseph G. Gilbert.

NEW "EASY" WASHER

Why the "EASY" Because

It has the correct principle, it is mechanically right, it is attractive in appearance, it is easy to operate and understand. There are 2 levers—one starts and stops the vacuum cups, the other starts and stops the reverse swinging wringer. It is easy to move about; there is no belt; the driving mechanism is a train of gears running in oil (no worm); an overload switch automatically cuts off motor if machine is overloaded; guards cover all moving parts. The "Easy" does exceptionally fine work; the machine is practically noiseless, and it is safe in every way.

Do you know that there is just as much difference in washing machines as there is in automobiles, and that it is just as essential for you to make the right choice in the one as in the other? Well, it is, and it is well to know also that because there is a motor on the machine it is not necessarily a real washing machine; *all the motor does is to supply operating power!

A real washing machine must first of all have the correct basic principle, which is the ability to constantly separate the clothes during the washing process so that the hot suds penetrates again and again every part of every article. This can only be accomplished by the air that is forced into the water by the vacuum cups; these cups do actually do this, and we term it "air pressure and suction."

"Do your Christmas shopping early," and this year make it an "Easy." As a Christmas gift the "Easy" will bring pleasure and comfort into every home where it enters, for it banishes forever the drudgery from washing and "pays dividends of pleasure" for years to come.

The Most Beautiful Music of the Opera!

Madame Butterfly—the haunting Opera that transports music lovers to realms of sheer delight

It is for all the world as if the great pianist sat before you and reconstructed it in melody. As you listen, you fairly see his fingers as they flash over the keys. This is only one of the many wonderful beauties of

The AMPICO
IN THE KNABE

In appearance it is a beautiful piano—grand or upright. In its case there is concealed the wonderful invention which endows the piano with the services of a long list of famous artists to play for its fortunate owner.

Modern in design, the pianos are notable for their tone volume and richness, for the Ampico is obtainable in the Knabe and Fisher and Franklin Pianos. In beauty of design and perfection of tone they are eminently fitted to grace the finest homes.

Private demonstrations are given daily. You are cordially invited to attend.

PHONOGRAPHS AND RECORDS

Why You Should Have a Brunswick

Note These Exclusive Advantages

The Brunswick Ultona

This all-record reproducer plays any make of record. There are no "attachments." Nothing to "put on" or "take off." At just a turn of the hand any required playing point is presented to the record in just the proper position to play. This advantage can be had on no other phonograph. It is exclusive with Brunswick.

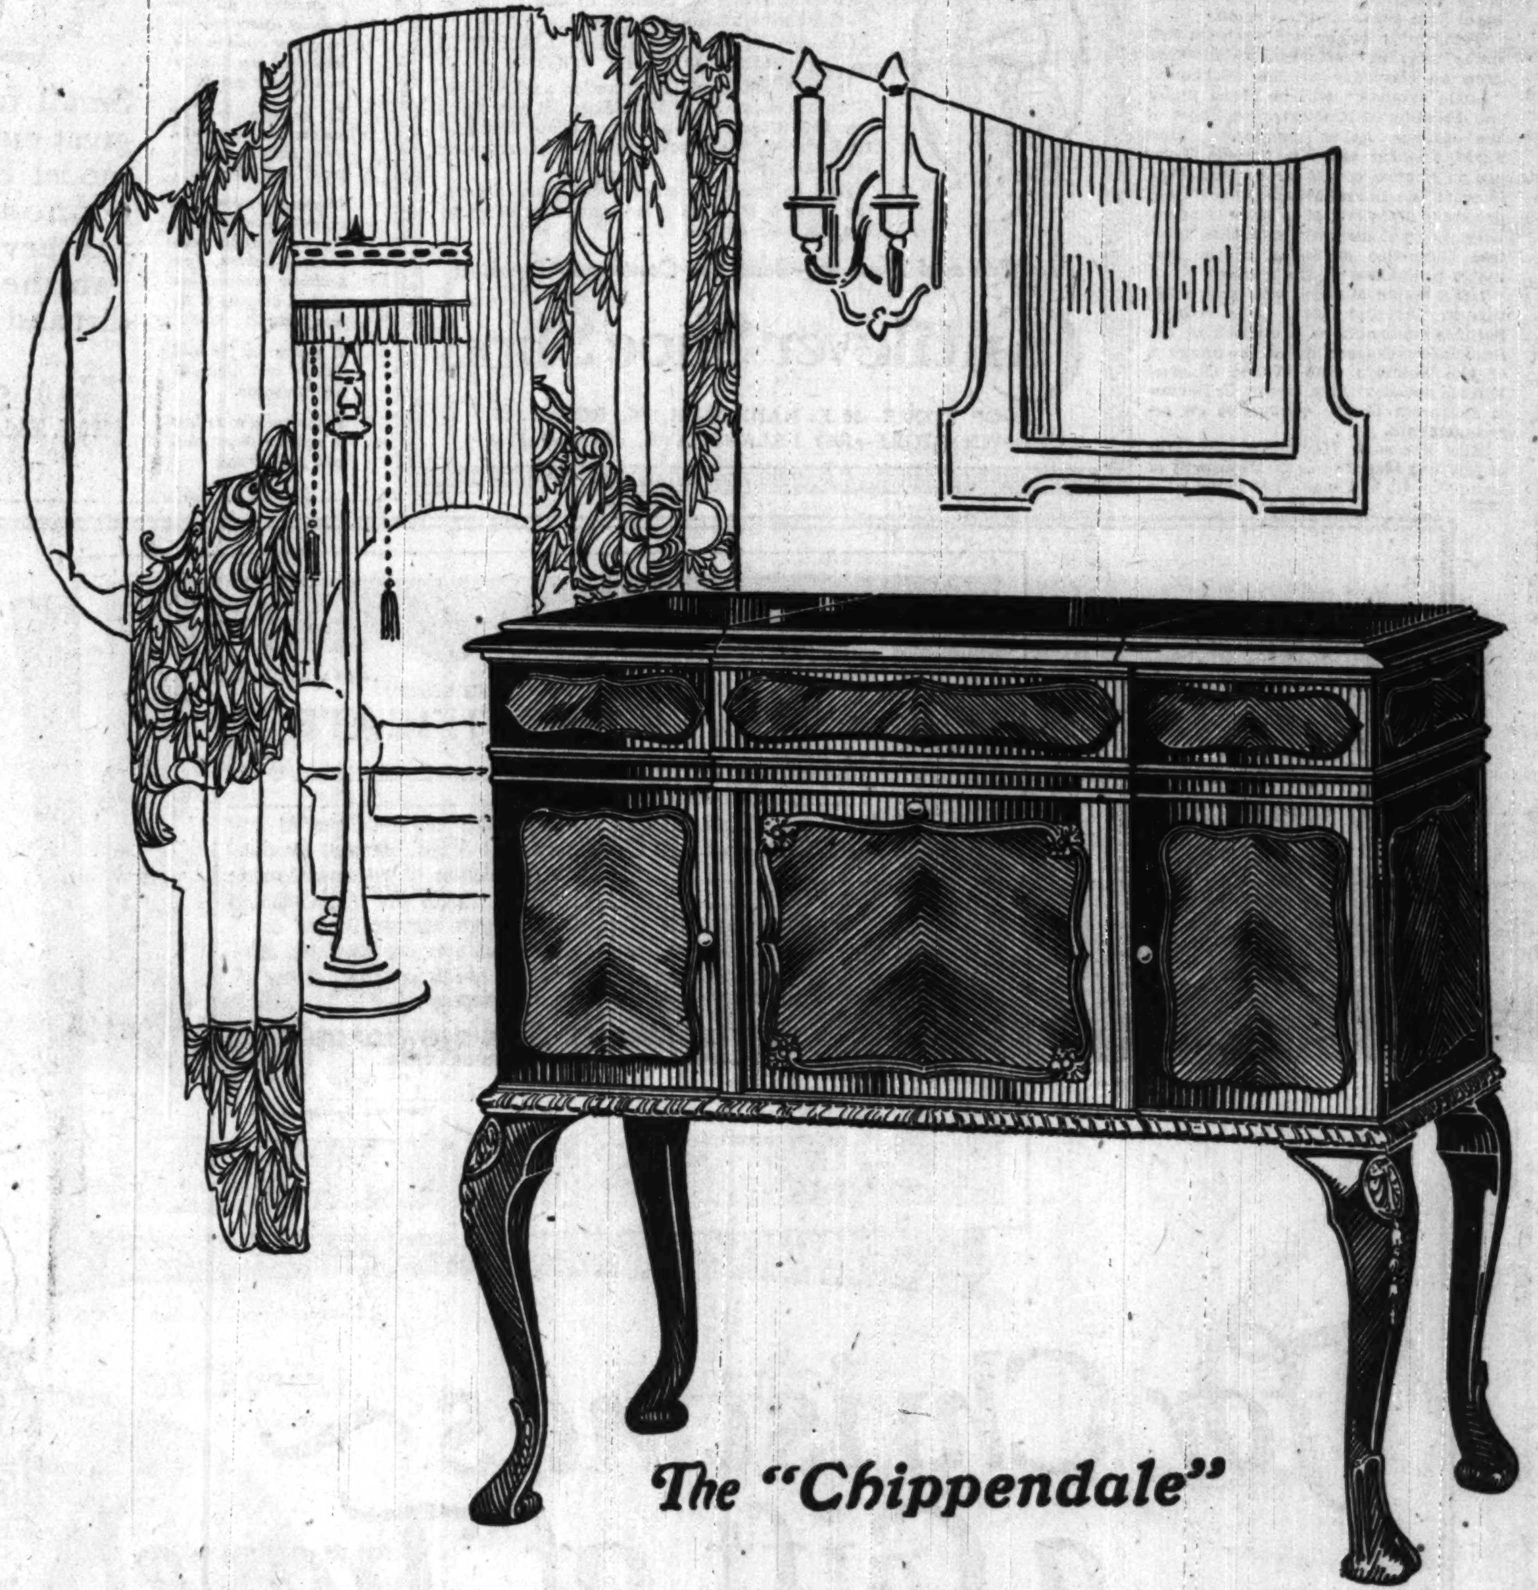
The Brunswick Oval All-Wood Tone Amplifier

Just as a fine old violin owes its value to rare woods, properly shaped and balanced, so the Brunswick Tone Amplifier—made entirely of seasoned hollywood, skillfully smoothed and rounded—gives The Brunswick the clear, mellow tones for which it is famous.

It is oval in shape, approximating that of the human throat and mouth. No metal is used anywhere in its construction. Hence, a grateful absence of that tinny, metallic accompaniment so marked in old-fashioned phonographs.

The Brunswick Balanced Tone Arm

This remarkable invention presents the proper playing point to each type of record at the precise angle required, and its delicate suspension cushions the path of the needle. The most minute tone refinements—the faintest quiver of the violin string—the most subtle inflection of the singer's voice—are faithfully reproduced. The Balanced Tone Arm also eliminates to a marked degree the so-called surface noises and saves a considerable part of the wear on the record itself.



The "Chippendale"

The Brunswick "Natural-Way" Tone Modifier

The Brunswick Tone Modifier, designed to enable you to regulate the volume of sound at will, to play a record loudly or softly, is situated where it should be—in the "throat" of the phonograph. Just as the vocal cords regulate the volume of your voice in your own throat. It is the natural way to regulate volume of sound.

The Brunswick Silent Motor

A reliable motor is absolutely essential to good phonographic music. For any variation in the speed of the turntable affects the music. The Brunswick Silent Motor has the accuracy of a watch.

The Brunswick Positive Automatic Stop

Takes only a second to set and stops the record exactly where you wish. You can leave The Brunswick playing. It stops itself automatically.

The Brunswick Automatically Balanced Top

Just a touch and it is raised or lowered, remaining where you want it, half way up, three-quarters or all the way.

The Brunswick Flexible Filing Systems for Records

Designed to accommodate a goodly number of records. Afford complete protection and records can be removed and replaced with minimum effort.

To Identify a Brunswick—Just Hear It

Prices, terms and other features being equal, you naturally want the phonograph that gives you the greatest scope for your musical enjoyment.

If you knew which phonograph would give you the greatest number of advantages and conveniences, the latest improvements and betterments in phonographic music, you would not hesitate to buy that one.

So do yourself the justice of knowing The Brunswick before you decide.

Hear The Brunswick. Then decide for yourself. It is the logical thing to do.

Free Demonstrations at Brunswick Stores Daily

Any Brunswick dealer will be glad to show you The Brunswick—without obligation. Twenty-one handsome styles to choose from—cabinet, console, period, table-top and portable models. All woods, all finishes. Prices range from $45 to $750. Convenient terms can always be arranged to your satisfaction.

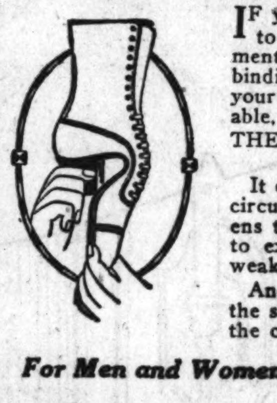
For Real Comfort and Better Health—Wear Cantilever Shoes



IF you would enjoy the best that life has to offer of buoyant strength and achievement—if you would have surcease from the binding and pain of shoes that do not fit your feet properly, change to the comfortable, helpful Cantilever Shoe.

THE ARCH IS FLEXIBLE, LIKE THE ARCH OF THE FOOT

It does not bind the muscles and impede circulation as a rigid shoe does. It strengthens the muscles by allowing them freedom to exercise, thus preventing or correcting weak arches.

And to make comfort even more secure, the shoe is built on a last that conforms to the contour of the foot.

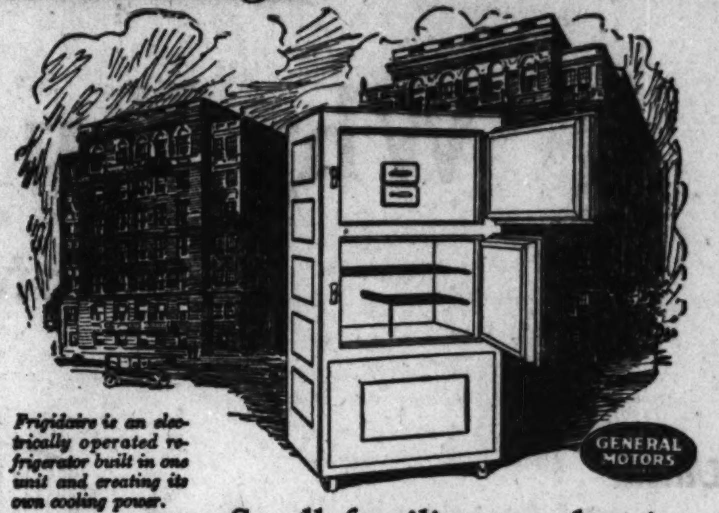
Frigidaire

CLEAN DRY ELECTRICAL REFRIGERATION



Frigidaire is an electrically operated refrigerator built in one unit and creating its own cooling power.

Its mechanism is automatic in operation, simple, trouble-proof and fool-proof.

It provides a constant circulation of cold, dry air, making possible a better, far healthier preservation of food, keeping it in fine flavor.

It makes ice for cold drinks and delicious frozen deserts.

It generally costs less to operate than what you pay for ice.

Small families are showing great enthusiasm for this B-5 model Frigidaire. It is more economical in operation, preserves food better and banishes forever the muss, dirt and inconvenience of ice.

Gordon and Delmar:

"If I'm not too inquisitive, where are you going?"

"To the insane asylum to call on a married man I know."

"An insane married man, eh?"

"Yes, and the strange thing about him is that, now he's there, he doesn't want to come home again."

"What's his name?"

"Clancy."

"Not Tim Clancy?"

"Yes, Tim Clancy."

"Did you ever see his wife?"

"No."

"Well, take it from me, he's not insane."

"Are you married?"

"Yes, I have a wife, so I'm a bigamist."

"Nonsense; a bigamist means one wife too many and you only have one wife."

"Well, that's one too many."

"Any children?"

"Two."

"Twins?"

"No; one's a boy and the other a girl."

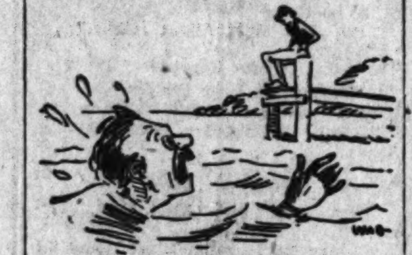
A man fell in the river and began yelling, "Help! Help! I can't swim a stroke."



"Neither can I, but I wouldn't go around braggin' about it," responded Mike. N. F.

Night School, Perhaps.

Father decided to pay a surprise visit to his son, who was in college. When he called at son's rooming house he asked the woman who answered the door, "Is Mr. Brown, a student, here?"

"Why," she replied, "Mr. Brown stays here, but I thought he was a night watchman." V. Z. M.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Crowded Jails Menace Morals, View of Church

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

TODAY has been designated by the Chicago Church federation as Jail Sunday, for the purpose of showing the effect on morals and health of an overcrowded condition in the Cook county jail and the need of better accommodations.

A study of conditions was made at the request of the board of county commissioners by the Chicago community trust, of which Clifford W Barnes is chairman. The complete survey makes a large volume, but a summary has been published which gives the essential facts. The federation in its resolutions indorsing the plan to bring the matter to the churches today, said, "The survey reveals that conditions in our county jail are highly demoralizing to the inmates and a disgrace to the community," and declares that "the churches have a peculiar responsibility in matters affecting so intimately the moral and spiritual welfare of thousands of our fellow men, of whom a large per cent are under 21 years of age."

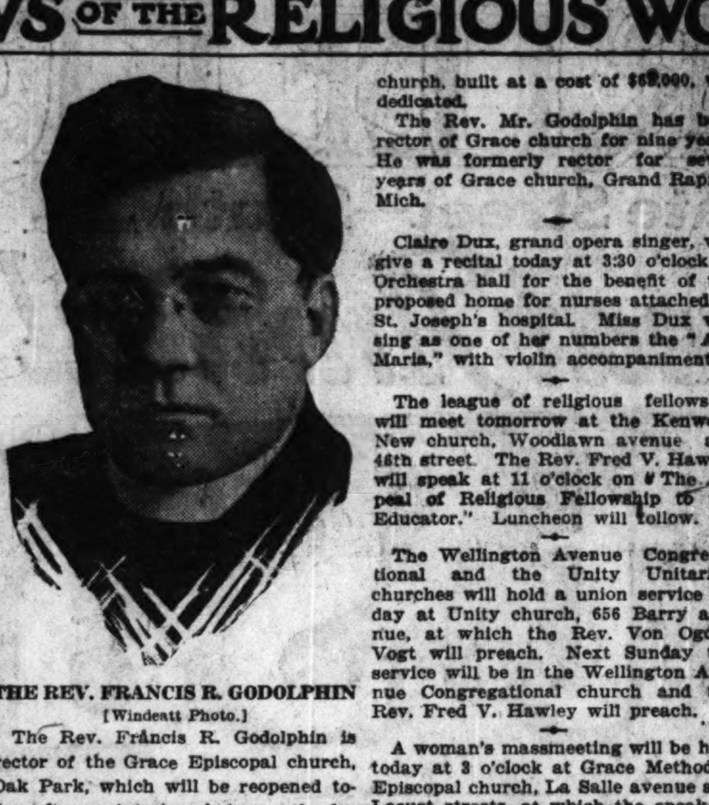
St. Elizabeth's parish, 41st street and South Wabash avenue, will celebrate today the patronal feast of the parish. The Rev. John A. McCarthy, the pastor, will be in charge. There will be high mass at 11 o'clock, with a special musical program. The sermon will be preached by the Rt. Rev. Mgr. F. A. Purcell, D. D., rector of Quigley Preparatory seminary. A dinner will be served in the parish hall, formerly the Swift clubhouse, from 12:30 to 3:30 o'clock.

A party for the benefit of St. John's church, 18th and Clark street, will be held in St. Elizabeth's parish hall next Friday evening.



THE REV. FRANCIS R. GODOLPHIN [Windeatt Photo.]

The Rev. Francis R. Godolphin is rector of the Grace Episcopal church, Oak Park, which will be reopened today after an interim of six months for improvements costing $200,000. The church was designed by the late John Sutcliffe.

The remodeled building is of fourteenth century Gothic architecture. In the tower have been installed the Charles Seabury memorial bells, which will be dedicated at the morning service at 11 o'clock. One of the decorative features of the exterior of the building is a massive figure of the Christ carved in stone. One of the special improvements which will give significance to the reopening is the newly installed Casavant organ. Five years ago the parish house of the church, built at a cost of $60,000, was dedicated.

The Rev. Mr. Godolphin has been rector of Grace church for nine years. He was formerly rector for seven years of Grace church, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Claire Dux, grand opera singer, will give a recital today at 3:30 o'clock at Orchestra hall for the benefit of the proposed home for nurses attached to St. Joseph's hospital. Miss Dux will sing as one of her numbers the "Ave Maria," with violin accompaniment.

◆

The league of religious fellowship will meet tomorrow at the Kenwood New church, Woodlawn avenue and 46th street. The Rev. Fred V. Hawley will speak at 11 o'clock on "The Appeal of Religious Fellowship to the Educator." Luncheon will follow.

The Wellington Avenue Congregational and the Unity Unitarian churches will hold a union service today at Unity church, 656 Barry avenue, at which the Rev. Von Ogden Vogt will preach. Next Sunday the service will be in the Wellington Avenue Congregational church and the Rev. Fred V. Hawley will preach.

A woman's massmeeting will be held today at 3 o'clock at Grace Methodist Episcopal church, La Salle avenue and Locust streets, at which the speakers will be Dr. Ida S. Scudder, Vellore, India; President Pendleton of Wellesley college, and Mrs. E. C. Cronk. All women are invited.

The Church Club of Chicago will give a complimentary dinner to Episcopal rectors and certain laymen next Thursday evening at 6 o'clock at Weiss' restaurant, 176 West Adams street. The speakers will be Bishop Charles P. Anderson, the Rev. K. O. Crosby, and the Rev. David E. Gibson.

The annual convention of the Chicago Young People's Luther league will be held next Friday to Sunday in Our Savior's church, May and Erie streets, the Rev. H. P. Ausan, pastor. A choral union concert, with 200 voices, will be given next Sunday afternoon. Lunch will be served between the afternoon and evening sessions Saturday and Sunday.

The corner stone of the First Austrian Jewish congregation will be laid today at 1 o'clock at California avenue and Hirsch street. A children's band from the Marks Nathan Jewish Orphan home will play. Mayor Thompson, Judge Harry Fisher, Judge Henry Horner, and others will speak. The new building, which was designed by Architect Edward Steinborn, will cost $200,000. Max Roth is president of the congregation, which is said to be the oldest on the northwest side of the city.

The offering for Peter's pence will be taken up today in all Catholic churches. In a peculiar sense this offering has the personal element in it. It goes directly to the pope, and Archbishop Mundelein considers the money not only a gift to a worthy cause but a mark of loyalty to himself. Chicago offerings in other years have stimulated giving in all parts of America.

The commission on world friendship of the Chicago Church federation, the Rev. Norman B. Barr, chairman, will meet for luncheon at the Great Northern hotel on next Tuesday at 12:30. Murray S. Kenworthy of Herbert Hoover's staff will speak.

Dean George W. Kirchwey, New York, former warden of Sing Sing prison, will speak on "The Jail and the Community" this evening at 8 o'clock at the Sunday Evening club at Orchestra hall. At 7 J. E. Kirbye will give experiences abroad under the subject, "The Near East as I saw It."

The Rev. Merton S. Rice, D. D., pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal church, Detroit, will be the speaker at the Chicago Methodist social union banquet next Thursday evening at the Auditorium hotel. Lewis E. Larson is president and R. Clarence Brown secretary of the organization.

The northeastern deanery of the Episcopal church will meet tomorrow at 11 o'clock at St. Thomas' church, 38th street and Wabash avenue. Luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock at the near by Y. M. C. A. and an afternoon session will be held at the church.

An all day and evening session of the Chicago presbytery will be held tomorrow at the Second Presbyterian church, Michigan avenue and 20th street. An automobile tour of all the missions and institutions under the church extension board will be made next Thursday.

PUT CREAM IN NOSE AND STOP CATARRH

Tells How to Open Clogged Nostrils and End Head-Colds.

You feel fine in a few moments. Your cold in head or catarrah will be gone. Your clogged nostrils will open. The air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more dullness, headache; no hawking, snuffling, mucous discharges or dryness; no struggling for breath at night.

Tell your druggist you want a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, and relief comes instantly.

It is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer needs. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable.

The Ely Cream Balm Co., New York.

PYORRHEA

The most prevalent of any diseases the human is subject to. Its beginning is simple, such as sore, bleeding or swollen gums. Margin begins wasting away and pus becomes visible. Pyorrhea progress is slow but sure. The blood becomes stagnant and forms into pus. Pus eats away the healthy tissue. Teeth loosen and elongate and your system is constantly poisoned from everything you eat or drink.

It is estimated that more than one-third of all ill health comes from unhealthy mouths. Start today using RIGGS'-O-DEAN, the message originated by a dentist. You will satisfy your own self that RIGGS'-O-DEAN should be used by the millions. Sold by all druggists or direct $1.

CASCARETS

For Constipated Bowels, Sick Headache, Upset Stomach, Colds, Biliousness, Bad Breath

Your bowels may seem regular—move every day—yet your thirty feet of bowels may be lined with poisonous waste which is being sucked into your blood, keeping you half sick, nervous, despondent and upset. Whether you have headache, colds, sour stomach, indigestion, or heart palpitation, it is usually from bowel poison.

Hurry! One or two Cascarets tonight will clean your bowels right. By morning all the constipation poison and sour bile will move out—thoroughly! Cascarets will not sicken you—they physic fully, but never gripe or inconvenience.

Children love Cascarets too. 10c boxes, also 25 and 50c sizes. Any drugstore.

Why—ENGLANDER Open Coil Springs are so much in demand—

IT IS only natural that the ENGLANDER Open Coil Spring should be so much in demand by discriminating homekeepers everywhere. The special coil construction insures the fullest comfort and body relaxation. The quality insures long satisfying service.

And besides being so sturdily built as to avoid sagging or squeaking, the ENGLANDER Coil Spring is uncovered and finished in French Gray rust-proof enamel, the keynote to their absolute sanitation. They are made to fit metal or wood beds.

Dobson Couplet Interprets Taft's 'Fountain of Time

By Eleanor Jewett.

"Time goes, you say? Ah, no! Alas—Tim stays. We go."

THESE words, which perhaps become more true with the passing of the years, were written by Austin Dobson. They are found inscribed on the great sculptural group, the "Fountain of Time," that makes more dignified the beautiful Midway which enriches our University of Chicago. The couplet interprets the meaning wrought into the great design by its sculptor, Lorado Taft. Possibly without its admonition, instant comprehension of the colossal group might be difficult.

Given the password, the various figures in the group fall easily into place. There is the monk, beyond the soldier and there the woman with a babe in her arms. Over them all—child, man and maid—towers Time, the Inevitable, a pitying taskmaster, watching with kindly eyes the hurrying children of a day.

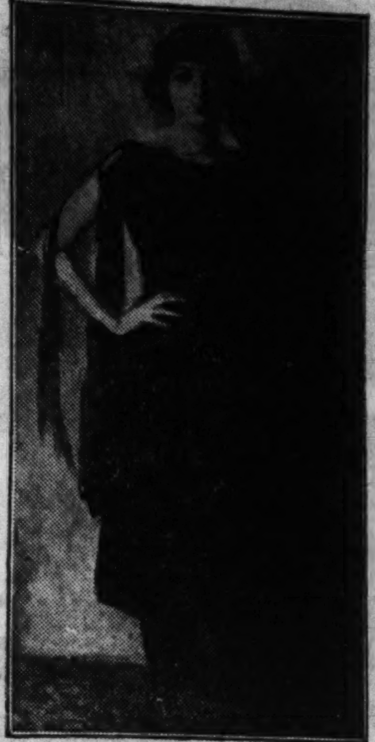
The dedication of this fountain took place last Wednesday. The date commemorates the anniversary of 100 years of peace between America and England. President John Barton Payne of the south park commission presided, and President Harry Pratt Judson of the University of Chicago delivered the address. Mr. Taft spoke a few words and then the formal presentation of the monument was made by Charles L. Hutchinson, president of the Art institute.

"The Fountain of Time," it may be noted as of interest, is made of a new material, something that may revolutionize the making of sculpture in the future. A man, John Early of Washington, D. C., has for years been experimenting with various materials that would give sufficient beauty to sculptural works and yet endure the extreme changes of temperature and the soot and grime of a city like Chicago.

Limestone, for one, cannot be used here. It is soon destroyed by the elements of our atmosphere. However, Mr. Early finally found that by taking pebbles from the Potomac river and crushing them a concrete mixture of great beauty and endurance was obtained and that the reflected light thrown off by the silica in the pebbles added greatly to the beauty value of the material. This mixture can be used in the casting of sculpture at a much less cost than marble or bronze. A replica of the Parthenon at Athens, pronounced the most perfect building architecturally, is being built of the material in Nashville, Tenn., and the Woman's Club of Illinois is financing the reconstruction in the same material of one corner of the Fine Arts building in Jackson park.

In the print room of the Art institute the etchings by Jules de Bruycker, a Belgian, have been attracting much comment and favorable attention. One hundred and thirty-nine prints were sold during the exhibition, which closed last Wednesday. The collection is soon to be sent on a round of various cities.

There is now in the print room an exhibit of early Italian engravings, about seventy-five in number, lent by Prof. Paul J. Sachs of the Fogg museum, Harvard university. One of the rarest is the famous "Battle of Nude Men" by Mantegna. The engravings show the development of the Italian artists from the craft of the goldsmiths to the fine art of pictorial illustration from steel and copper plates. This collection is unique, and has been shown but once or twice.



This self portrait of Della Shull, a former Chicago girl, lends a glow to the lamp of hope that lights the way of most of our younger artists to the east. Miss Shull has held recently in New York a successful exhibit of portraits.

Beginning Friday, the third annual exhibition of Norwegian-American art is to be seen at the Chicago Norwegian club. The exhibit will close next Wednesday.

Dudley Crafts Watson will lecture tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. George W. Dixon, 1250 Lake Shore drive, on "Nineteenth Century French Painting." The lecture is under the auspices of the Chicago Public School Art society.

The Salamagundi club announces its annual exhibition, starting Nov. 24 and closing Dec. 20.

The remarkable collection of old laces owned by Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick is now on exhibition in the Albright Art gallery in Buffalo.

A New Brassiere
(Patent Pending)
$1.50 to $5.00

Chic, Youthful Lines Easily Achieved

Slim and straight as an arrow—these are the lines of youth and style that will not be denied.

You can have these lines—have them without discomfort with the Flat-O-Form Brassiere that changes unattractive lumping of surplus flesh and gives you a figure profile of cameo-cut that can be accomplished by no other means.

The Flat-O-Form is more than an ordinary brassiere. It can be adjusted to any waistline size and gracefully flattens the diaphragm. The scientific design of the back accommodates the flesh over the shoulder blades and under the arms. The change in appearance is quite noticeable—the brassiere isn't.

Be sure and ask about this lovely garment, designed by Nature's Rival Company, at all dry goods and corset stores.

M A N

HORDES OF ANTIQUITY.

By S. A. Maxwell.

YOU remember history tells of many migrations of peoples, wild nations out of the east, who swept down and ravaged the civilizations of western Europe. The races and nations who moved were of different bloods, but the reason they moved was the same for all.

In neolithic times, or the age of polished stone, Europe attained a density of population roughly equal to that of the country on that continent today. Every man farmed a little, hunted some, and fished a little. There were trade routes along the rivers and primitive commerce in centers of population. All the tribes were about equally armed, and therefore equally balanced in power. This balance was broken by the Celts.

Celts once inhabited all the Danube valley. Then from somewhere in the east they learned the use of bronze. They soon were far better armed than any of their neighbors. They crowded on the Semites in the south, who lived in the basin of the Mediterranean sea. They pressed on the Nordics who lived north of them, in the basin of the Baltic.

Semites were then, and still are, as helpless as sheep against Aryan aggression. But between Aryan and Aryan the Nordics proved the better fighters. As soon as they had raised the level of their civilization the equal of that of the Celts, and had learned the use of metal, they turned, and all but exterminated all the Celts in the world. Those of the latter who escaped fled south by droves, into Semitic lands. As these territories were in most cases already saturated with humanity, the Celts did the most obvious thing; they laid their stratum of society over that of the aborigines. The result was the high classic civilizations of antiquity.

Two or three thousand years later Cæsar encountered some of these same Nordics, then called Germans.

Little by little Nordics moved westward into the evacuated territories. Movements of this sort were going on all during the time of the Roman empire, piling up a wave of Nordics along the frontier of Rome and creating a rarefaction behind. At length they burst through, destroyed Rome and laid the foundation of modern Europe. But in so doing they created a still greater rarefaction in the east.

The Alpine Wends, who lived in the Carpathians, suddenly found that their old enemy had deserted his home. They moved westward en massé. Then the Huns, Finns and Bulgars, who lived in Russia, moved up to fill the Slavs' place. This created a vacancy in front of the Alpine Tartars who lived in central Asia, and they moved west. The rarefaction at length reached the Mongols, a yellow race, and set them in violent motion.

Where men are torn from their homes by ethnic convulsions some of them always turn marauders. It was hordes of these professional destroyers from eastern Europe and western Asia who kept Europe in turmoil almost until the discovery of America, and whose heritage the world recognizes as the Slavic and near eastern problems.

 The final result of the row over Thrace—
The colonial plans the Fascisti are making—
 What Peggy Joyce does—these are questions, no doubt,
Of absorbing concern; but, though universe-shaking,
 They are questions I can't get excited about.

The verdict on Ganna's self-organized op'ra—
 The marvel of Statesman Gump's leap to the fray—
The tariff on Zanzibar's lizards and copra—
 The ultimate end of the mystery play—
Whether James Branch Cabell is a wiz or a pity—
 Whether Siki should sic 'em or stay safely out—
These are things of great note, but I'm framing this ditty
 To remark they are things I'm not worried about.

Can I chop down to par ere I'm fifty years older?
 Will my stomach be good all the rest of my days?
Must I buy a thick coat when the weather is colder?
 Will my income pile up till it finally pays?
If I move out of town will I mebbe grow lonely?
 What next shall I bump up against on life's route?
Such problems, affecting myself and me only,
 Are all that I ever am flustered about.

Kick Korner for Movie Fans

Dear Miss Tinée: Metro should rise in great wrath over the announcement that Selznick will produce "Rupert of Hentzau." Admitting that Mr. Lytell is a superb actor and capable of inspiring amourous heart flutterings, why, after the work that Ramon Navarro accomplished in "The Prisoner of Zenda," should Bert be featured when Navarro paved the way for public appreciation in that rôle?

I see, too, that they are importing a new sheik. We don't need him; that is, not unless the government contemplates benefiting upon subsequent duties derived from new shoe polish importations.

Why look at Europe for material when in this country we have all of the requirements necessary for bringing to the limelight's eager gaze marcelled heroes excellent enough to make all of the heart specialists in the nation prosperous?

In conclusion, let us all supplicate Brother Ingram and sincerely hope that the myopic troubles which seem to bother him be speedily removed for the betterment of "Rupert of Hentzau."
FITHIAN.

Dear Miss Tinée: I read Elba's letter concerning the Spanish phrase "mi querida" from "Blood and Sand." This person stated that "mi" was masculine gender and "querida" feminine. Correct! But "mi" is also feminine, thus making "mi querida" a correct phrase.
A. G.

[Editor's Note: Holler when you've had enough, Elba.]

Dear Miss Tinée:

O, why must the souls of us mortals
 each week
Be tortured with pictures that feature a sheik?
First Rodolf, then Milton, and now we have Tom.
No doubt we shall see him rough riding
 a drom.
Edary to rescue the beautiful maid,
Abducted by vilyuns all spangles and braid.
The desert winds whistle all night in my ears;
I dream I am chased by nine Arabs
 with spears.
I frankly admit that I like this sheik stuff,
But, honest, Mae, haven't we had most enough?

LOONEY LOUIE.

(Editor's Note: If you like the stuff, then why all the guff? Let those cry "Enough" who DON'T like the stuff.)

If Hair is Turning Gray, use Sage Tea

YOU can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

Don't cut CORNS

Don't cut corns or callouses, or fool with corrosive acids. Such methods are dangerous and don't get at the cause.

Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads, new discovery, stop hurting instantly; start healing at once. They protect while they heal! Thin; antiseptic; waterproof. Absolutely safe! Special sizes for corns, callouses and bunions. At druggist's and shoe dealer's.

Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads

Put one on—the pain is gone

RED PEPPER FOR RHEUMATIC PAIN

Red Pepper Rub takes the "ouch" from sore, stiff, aching joints. It cannot hurt you, and it certainly stops that old rheumatism torture at once.

When you are suffering so you can hardly get around, just try Red Pepper Rub and you will have the quickest relief known. Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers. Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you will feel the tingling heat. In three minutes it warms the sore spot through and through. Pain and soreness are gone.

Ask any good druggist for a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub. Be sure to get the genuine, with the name Rowles on each package.

Curling Hair This Way Preserves Its Beauty

That dull, dead appearance of the hair no longer troubles the woman who has adopted the Silmerine method of keeping her tresses in curl. The result is very different from that produced by the drying, devitalizing waving iron. The hair appears more naturally wavy and curly, and the application is really beneficial to the life and growth of the hair.

Any druggist, of course, can supply the liquid Silmerine. A small quantity should be put on just before doing up the hair, using for the purpose a clean tooth brush, drawing this down the full length of the hair from root to tip. The effect is delightfully surprising, and there is no discoloration, no stickiness, greasiness, nor any other unpleasant accompaniment. The hair is quite manageable no matter how it is fashioned. Fine for bobbed hair, too.

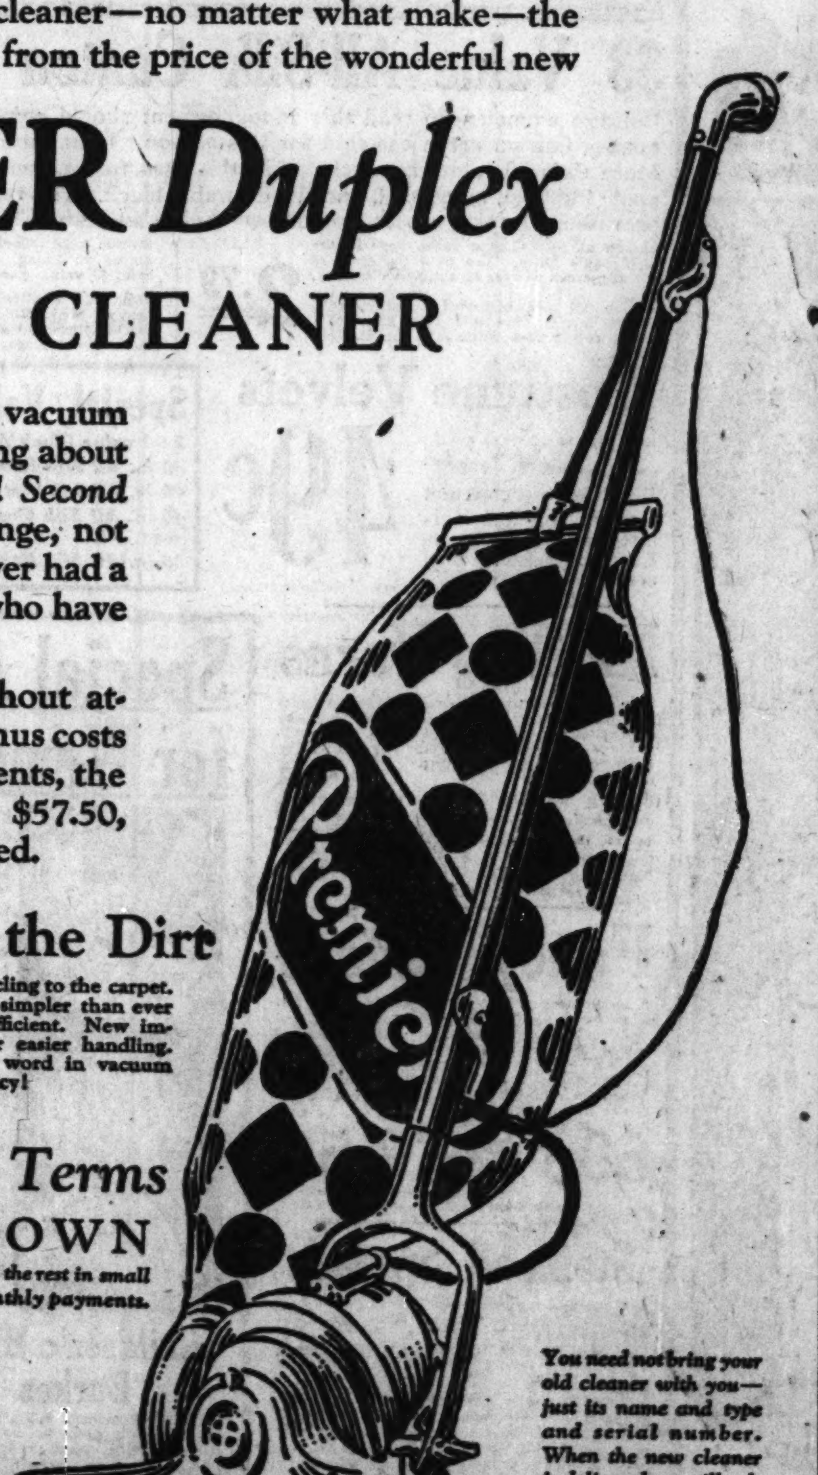
$12.50 For Your Old Vacuum Cleaner

Leiter Stores offer an unconditional allowance of $12.50 for your old vacuum cleaner—no matter what make—the $12.50 to be deducted from the price of the wonderful new

PREMIER Duplex VACUUM CLEANER

First—to introduce the new vacuum cleaner—start people talking about it—examining it—buying it! Second—to put it within the range, not only of those who have never had a cleaner, but of those, too, who have an old or inferior make.

The Premier Duplex, without attachments, regularly $60, thus costs you $47.50. With attachments, the price is $70, which will be $57.50, with the allowance deducted.



A Cleaner That Gets the Dirt

Thoroughly tried—and thoroughly proven! The new Premier Duplex makes the work easier—and does it better. Its strong suction gets all the embedded dirt. Its motor driven brush picks up lint, thread and hairs that cling to the carpet. Attachments—simpler than ever—and more efficient. New improvements for easier handling. The very last word in vacuum cleaner efficiency!

Unusually Liberal Terms

You May Pay as Low as $6 DOWN and the rest in small monthly payments.

You need not bring your old cleaner with you—just its name and type and serial number. When the new cleaner is delivered we will collect the old one.

If You Cannot Call, Mail the Coupon for Information

BOOKS

There is creative reading as well as creative writing. EMERSON.

Best Sellers of the Ages

By James O'Donnell Bennett.

Forty-eighth paper—The "Analects," or Collected Sayings, of Confucius.

The raptures of goodness are as old as history and new with this morning's sun.
(Essay on "Inspiration.") RALPH WALDO EMERSON.

Is love so far a thing? I yearn for love, and lo! love is come.
("Analects"; VII., 29.) CONFUCIUS.

'TIS the glory of the classics—those books good not because they are old but old because they are good—that they speak to us not alone with a general timeliness, but also with a special urgency in this or that crisis which we are ever ready to think peculiar to ourselves, to our own time, to our own land.

Here is a picture out of the life of Confucius, out of the China of more than four and twenty centuries ago: The Master and some of his disciples are passing by Mount T'ai. They hear the wailing of a woman. "Go, my son," says the old man to one of his followers, "and learn what grief is here." Returning, the follower says, "The woman, Master, weeps for her son whom a tiger has killed, even as a tiger killed her husband, even as a tiger killed her father."

"Then why," asked Confucius, "why does she dwell in so dreadful a place?"

"Because here is no oppressive ruler."

"Scholars," said the Master, "remember this: oppressive rule is more cruel than a tiger."

Thus may a community oppressed and afflicted by the most tigerish gang of thieves since the days when Tweed was locked away from plunder take to itself as urgent the wisdom of a man born half a thousand years before Jesus.

I would like to retell in this little paper the story of that sweet, grand, calm, wise, fruitful life that began seven centuries and a half after the life of Moses and half a century after the life of Buddha, that was contemporaneous with the life of Pythagoras, and that closed a decade before Socrates was born. The life of Confucius was a life of countless endearing aspects, of scores of quaint, human, brotherly stories, and of all the attributes and virtues that, could we share them in the fullness with which he possessed them, would make this world the abode of peace and of happy toil. Everything concerning him is pleasant to linger upon, from that story of how his mother, who is said to have taught him wisdom while his father was away a-soldiering, used to call him her "Little Hillock" because of the curious bump on his forehead, to the story of him as an old man going crooning about his garden with his flute, pausing now and again to talk with the disciples and pupils, whom he called his "boys." But concerning all those matters, the reader of this little paper may refresh his memory by means of one of the better encyclopedias—the Britannica article is capital. The purpose of this sketch is different. What I mean is that to write again what hath a thousand times been better writ is especially inutile business when Confucius is your topic and an occidental your reader. For occidentals, as their way with the ancient masters is, take Confucius pretty much for granted. Once O. Henry, in a short story, pretending to quote him, called him "the inventor of wisdom." The occidental accepts him as such, and lets him go as such. To us his name is a shining one—and his words little known. To clamor then on a bit of paper 21¾x4¼ inches that is to get itself reproduced nearly 900,000 times and that is going to pass through more than 4,000,000 pairs of hands—to clamor, I say, about how good and great a man was and his sayings are when one might get the sayings recorded on a million bits of paper, is that to serve wisdom? The obligation not to clamor is sobering. Here, therefore, shall Confucius teach again.

Begin with a dozen of his briefest things—all from the "Analects," the book put together by pupils of the seventy-two disciples of Confucius:

> The fault is to cleave to a fault.
> When a man of forty is hated, it will be so to the end.
> I have found none who love good as they love women.
> Yen P'ing was versed in friendship. Familiarity bred courtesy.
> The superior man thinks of virtue; the small man thinks of comfort.
> If in the morning I hear of the right way, and in the evening die, I can be happy.
> Chi Wen thought thrice before acting. On hearing this, the Master said: 'Twice, that is enough.'
> Look at a man's acts; watch his motives; find out what pleases him: can the man evade you? Can the man evade you?
> Without truth I know not how man can live. A cart without a crosspole, a carriage without harness, how could they be moved?
> Yu, shall I teach thee what is understanding? To know what we know, and to know that we do not know what we do not know, that is understanding.
> Listen much, keep silent when in doubt, and always take heed of the tongue; thou wilt make few mistakes. If thy words are seldom wrong, thy deeds leave little to rue.

Now what, specifically, did Confucius teach? Book VII., verse 24, of the "Analects" says:

> The four things the Master taught were culture, conduct, faithfulness, and truth.

He taught, indeed, every aspect of the humane life in the relationships of citizen, officer of state, and member of family. He taught, above all, love—taught and retaught it in its every expression, except the sensual; defining it now one way, now another, and always extolling it as the cement and solace and salvation of human society. He was a religionist without rancor and hence without despair. The outstanding difference between pure Confucianism and the "orthodox" Christianity which Christendom is slowly ameliorating, is that orthodox Christianity believed in original sin and Confucius believed in original virtue. He taught "the right way"; not a credo. He considered himself no innovator but a conservator. When they asked him whether they ought to return good for evil he said, "No, return good for good; for evil return justice." He treasured silence, believing with his contemporaries, the Pythagoreans, that it is requisite to be silent or to say something better than silence. This you will find in XVII., 11, of the beautiful little English edition of the "Analects"—firm paper, large type nobly spaced, and generous margins—which Messrs. Longmans, Green & Company got out in 1909, under the title of "The Sayings of Confucius," and which any bookseller will obtain for you for $1.40:

> "Courtesy, courtesy," is the cry: but are jade and silk the whole of courtesy?
> "Harmony, harmony," is the cry; but are bells and drums the whole of harmony?

And at the bottom of the same page Confucius says:

> I hate a sharp tongue, the ruin of kingdom and home. I long for silence.
> Tzu-kung said: 'If ye, Sir, were silent, what would your disciples have to tell?'
> The Master said: 'Does Heaven speak? The seasons four revolve, and all things multiply. Does Heaven speak?'

Confucianism was, and was meant to be, less a theology than a code of personal conduct, a philosophy of life as it ought to be lived. The Master did not clutter his mind or his speech with speculations on the supernatural or the future state. "We know not life," he said; "how can we know death?" yet gathered all his fame."

In Whittier's letters I came on some suggestive lines about Confucius:

> No wiser soul (the Quaker wrote) ever spoke of right and duty, but his maxims have no divine sanction, and his pictures of a perfect society have no perspectives opening to eternity.

The claim to such sanction and the attempt to define absolutely such perspectives would have seemed impious to Confucius. "Thou knowest all," an overweening youth once said to him—"how many stars are there in the sky?" "I mind only things near me," the sage replied. "Then how many hairs in thine eyebrows?" "That is not worth minding," said the sage. The story was a favorite with Carlyle.

Confucius, though he would have it that virtue, not sin, was the "original" attribute and the commanding impulse of mankind—knowing full well that if it were not so the race would long since have exterminated itself—had no infatuated confidence in the inevitability of human goodness. He accepted the doctrine of free will, saying—

> Three armies may be robbed of their leaders; no wretch can be robbed of his will.

But he also said ["Analects" IV., 25]—

> Virtue is no hermit. It has ever neighbors.

By perfect love among mortals he believed the celestial could be attained: believed all could be compassed, all spanned. Once ["Analects" IX., 30] he heard a lover singing, who sang—

The flowers overhead are dancing in play;
My thoughts are with thee, in thy home far away.

"Her thoughts," Confucius mused, "her thoughts were not with him, or how could he be far away?"

The "Do unto others" apothegm often has been credited to Confucius as antedating Jesus' utterance of the same thought. The man of Shantung did utter it five centuries before the man of Gallilee did, but we know now that it also antedated Confucius by several centuries. That he probably did not know. In "Analects" XII., 2, comes his shaping of the thought:

> Chung-kung asked, What is love?
> The Master said: 'Without the door to behave as though a great guest were come; to treat the people as though we tendered the high sacrifice; not to do unto others what we would not they should do unto us; to breed no wrongs in the state and breed no wrongs in the home.'
> Chung-kung said: 'Dull as I am, I hope to live by these words.'

He had that beautiful forbearance in small matters and that serene tolerance in large which is the beginning of love. Exquisite is the laconic bit in "Analects" V., 9:

> Tsai Yü slept in the daytime.
> The Master said: 'Rotten wood cannot be carved, nor are dung walls plastered. Why chide with Yü?'

And again—"Analects" VII., 28:

> A lad having been admitted, the disciples wondered.
> The Master said: 'I allow his coming, not what is to come. Why be so harsh? If a man cleanse himself to gain admission, I admit his cleanness, but go not bail for his past.'

He was humble. Routine acquiescence irked him and adulation he dreaded. That he would sharply reprove homage amounting to worship which a third of the population of the planet is said now to accord him is almost certain. Of his favorite disciple he once said:

> I get no help from Hui. No word I say but delights him.

He accounted as a blessing that which most irks most men—to be caught in an error. He said:

> How lucky I am! If I make a slip men are sure to know it!

Of the megalomania which has been the curse and undoing of many an otherwise consecrated spiritual leader he seems to have been utterly free. He said:

> How dare I lay claim to holiness or love? A man of endless craving I might be called, an unflagging teacher; but nothing more.

Boastfulness he loathed, and therefore loved this story of an illustrious Chinese hero, lord—and a native like him—of the land of Lu:

> Meng Chih-fan never bragged. He was covering the rear in a rout; but when the gate was reached, he whipped up his horse and cried: 'Not courage kept me behind; my horse won't go!'

Just one more: Fan Ch'ih, a disciple, asked Confucius to teach him husbandry, but the Master said, 'I cannot rank with an old husbandman.'

[Next Sunday—"The Book of Ser Marco Polo."]

BOOK NEWS from LONDON

By Sidney Dark.

[Editor of John o' London's Weekly.]

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—From inquiries I have made, I understand that Mr. Lloyd George had finished the second chapter of his war book before his resignation. He is not likely to write much of it during the next three or four weeks, but after the middle of November, he will have more leisure than he has had for sixteen years, and the book ought to be finished early in 1923.

I have referred to the sarcasm of English reviewers of Mr. Van Loon's "The Story of Mankind." It is only fair to say that the "Spectator," the most highbrow of all English weeklies, is emphatic in its eulogy of the book. It refers to Mr. Van Loon's "delightful humor" and his "broad and sane outlook," and it says: "We are not surprised to learn that 50,000 copies of the book have been sold in America, and we strongly advise everybody, young or old, by fair means or foul, to get hold of the book without delay." And this is not wrote sarkastik! Arnold Bennett's new novel, "Lilian," by the way, has been generally condemned as being unworthy of its author's skill and reputation. Like other eminent English writers, Arnold Bennett has become obsessed by the improper young woman.

[Central News Photo Service.]
ELINOR GLYN.

Elinor Glyn declares that she does not mind in the least what the critics say of her books. She has confided to an interviewer: "For twenty years English critics have always tried to belittle or abuse me. And if I did not sell my books in hundreds of thousands their attitude would, of course, break my heart. As it is, I remain calm." Other popular novelists have not been so philosophic. The late Charles Garvice was very angry when superior critics failed to appreciate his work, and many other English writers of established reputation (Arnold Bennett is one of them) are childish in their resentment of criticism. Yet it is curious how little the reviewer affects sales. On the whole, I suppose, Ethel M. Dell is the most constant "best seller" here and certainly her books are not applauded by the critics.

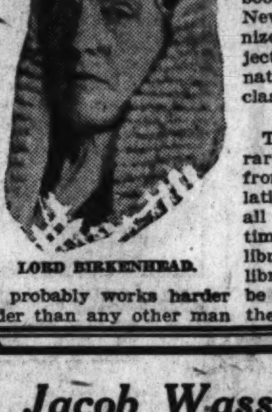
PHILIP KERR.

During the Paris peace conference in 1919 Lloyd George's principal secretary was a tall, aesthetic looking young man called Philip Kerr, who was for some years editor of an interesting political quarterly called "The Round Table," and who, if he lives, will one day be the Marquis of Lothian. In Paris, Philip Kerr was Lloyd George's mentor as well as secretary, and it is interesting, in view of recent events, to recall the fact that he was closely and constantly in touch with that successful intriguer, M. Venizelos. Philip Kerr has recently been in America, and as a result he is writing a book about Christian Science, which was apparently the most interesting thing that he discovered in the United States.

For many months extracts from the diary of one Farington, who, at the end of the eighteenth century, was the secretary of the Royal academy, have been appearing in the London Morning Post and the diary in volume form is among the most interesting of forthcoming volumes. Farington naturally knew all the great painters of his age, and he also met most of the men prominent in the worlds of letters and public affairs, and his diary adds to one's knowledge of the intimate life of his time. The diary was only recently discovered and was bought by the Morning Post for £100. When it is remembered that it has supplied a column and a half a day for nearly a year, it will be admitted that Farington's diary is the cheapest "copy" on record. And it has still to earn its book profits.

Van Wyck Brook's "The Ordeal of Mark Twain," in which the author suggests that Mark Twain was a humorist against his better judgment, is one of the American books that is being read and discussed in London.

Lord Birkenhead, whose collected essays, "Points of View," have just been published here, is one of the most remarkable of contemporary Englishmen. He is just 50 years old. He was appointed to the office of lord chancellor at an unprecedentedly early age, his career has been entirely self-made, and he probably works harder and lives harder than any other man in the world. Lord Birkenhead was married when he was 29 and while he was still only earning moderate income at the bar. In order to find the money for his honeymoon he wrote two books in two months, one a history of Newfoundland, which is now recognized as the standard book on the subject, and the other a treatise on international law, which has become a classic.



LORD BIRKENHEAD.

The novel reading public in England rarely buys its novels; it borrows them from one or other of the large circulating libraries which have branches all over the country. It has been estimated that these circulating libraries, together with the municipal libraries, which do not allow books to be taken away, purchase 95 per cent of the fiction sold here.

EDUCATIONAL EDUCATIONAL
We TEACH COMMERCIAL ART
Meyer Both Company, the Largest Commercial Art Organization in the World, offers you an unusual opportunity for practical training. This method of instruction is created and conducted by the nationally known Meyer Both organization, who have been successful for twenty-two years—and who are this year selling to advertisers over eighteen thousand commercial drawings. Inside knowledge resulting from actual dominance of the field forms the foundation of the Meyer Both course.
Our teachers give you the double advantage of being themselves noted artists in the most modern art-producing company—and are instructors of proven ability as well. Meyer Both instruction is the difference between successful fact—and experimental theory.
Commercial Art is a highly paid, intensely interesting vocation—equally open to men and women. Home study instruction.
Get Facts Before You Enroll in Any School
Make sure that your course is founded on recognized success—not merely individual opinions. Inquire regarding us among the art buyers—on State Street—in the wholesale districts—among advertising managers generally. Visit the College if you can—it will be time well spent. Write for our special book, "YOUR OPPORTUNITY"—sending four cents in stamps to cover one-half the cost of postage.

COMMERCIAL ART
Taught by Improved Methods
We have analyzed high grade commercial art and searched out the principles that produced it. We are presenting these principles in easy-to-understand instruction form. Our instruction has been tried, and proven successful. Our instructors are "top-notchers" and are actively engaged in producing commercial art now. Most of them are earning over $10,000 per year each. Few top-notch artists are good instructors. No one art organization is big enough to furnish competent instructors for all branches of commercial art. By searching through many studios we have found them.
A Master Course Is Offered
Either Class Room or Home Study Instruction
Endorsed as the official training school for leading commercial art houses, employing hundreds of artists. A corps of nationally known commercial artists offers students the benefit of 20 to 30 years of high grade experience.
Only the best instruction is good enough for you. Students finishing half of this unusual course can secure and hold desirable positions. Course can be made to pay for itself many times while studying. Ask the big employers of commercial artists about us.
If you like to draw, let's talk it over. Call at the Academy or write for our big book, telling all about Commercial Art and the opportunities it presents AS WE TEACH IT. Send 6 cents in stamps.

BOOKS

No entertainment is so charming as reading, nor any pleasure so lasting. LADY W. MONTAGU.

BRITAIN'S STAGE AND AMERICA'S

By Fanny Butcher.

"MY LIFE AND SOME LETTERS," by Mrs. Patrick Campbell and "My Years on the Stage," by John Drew, are felicitously published almost simultaneously. There are no two people in the world of the stage whose books of memories might contain more of interest than these—the one the patriarch of a family which has been devoted to the art of the theater and the other a flaming meteor of dramatic genius from the unknown who has left still in the sky the glow of her brilliant presence there. To any one interested in the theater I can imagine no books which would be—in anticipation—more alluring than the memoirs of John Drew and Mrs. Patrick Campbell. They might be read together—a review of the drama for the last twenty-five years.

It is because you will all open them with such enormously high hopes that I hasten to remind you that to write charmingly is the greatest possible trial on the actor or actress. It is the one mode of public expression where their personalities are subservient and their actual skill pitilessly exhibited. There isn't one of us who hasn't heard a thrilling, stirring political speech (to make an example) who hasn't gone home with the most exaggerated ideas of the mental brilliance of the orator and who hasn't, after he has read the speech the next morning, sans the voice and humors of the speaker, found it dull claptrap. Personality is, I think we all agree, two-thirds of the so-called intelligence of prominent "brilliant" men and women. If that is true of orators, how much more true of actors and actresses must it be. An orator, theoretically at least, must use his brilliance in the preparation of his speech. An actor, a good one, perfects himself in his technique and then lets his personality do the work. When they are met on a purely intellectual basis—on a sheet of unfeeling paper, splattered over with type—they are usually foundered in a technique which they do not know and they find that their personalities are of little use to them.

It is only fair, therefore, not to expect books of great charm from even the most gifted of the profession. (Though I must admit right here that Louise Closser Hale does, in some way, break down the barrier and write herself as charmingly as she plays herself.) The kind of books we may expect, however, are books full of incident, a sharing of the romance of lives which, however prosaic they may seem to those who live them, are full of glitter for those who sit in the audience.

These two books are not books of great charm. Mrs. Campbell's has more than Mr. Drew's, but Mr. Drew's, on the other hand, has a naïveté and a simplicity that is absent from Mrs. Campbell's. They are, however, books of great interest. They cover almost the same period of time and they show, with amazing clarity, the difference between the art of mime in England and in America.

In Mr. Drew's book you can almost feel the mushroom growth of the theater in America. The last twenty-five years have seen many innovations besides electricity and extravagant productions. They have seen what we might call the nationalizing of the theater in America. The middle west provinces had no theaters, no actors of note—their lives, so far as the drama was concerned, were frontier lives. That was not true in England. The drama was an old art there, a definite part of the national life.

Mr. Drew's book has, as I said before, a quality of naïveté that makes it pleasing. Never, even for a moment, do you feel that he is saying, "See what a great boy am I." His principal fault in the book is a reticence about the things he did—other than the series of plays he was in—the people he knew, and the places he went. He must have lived a life apart from his long succession of popular successes. A certain shyness—it seems—has kept him from sharing that life with his readers. The book is a complete list of all the parts he played, the men and women he played with—always spoken of with gentlemanly kindness—and only an occasional hint at the life that was lived outside the green room.

That, I think we may say, is the trouble with all autobiography. The person who writes never tells the truth about himself or herself. Margot Asquith's autobiography was to those who suffered from its brambles a shocking thing and in poor taste, but to the world it was at least an attempt at a biography of herself by herself. As a vivid example of the reticences of autobiography, there is not one word in the Calvé autobiography (just out) about a man who, the world says, was her lover for eight years, and who certainly played a most important part in her life at the height of her career. Her life, written with no reference to that influence, is, naturally, false.

The trouble with Mr. Drew's gentlemanly history is that when you've finished it, although you've been amused with some of the incidents and although you feel as if you'd had an excellent survey of the American theater during the last quarter of a century, you haven't the least feeling that you know the man, Mr. John Drew, who lives inside the correct tailoring of John Drew, the actor. It's rather a shame, too, because Mr. John Drew, the man, must be some one really worth knowing, or he wouldn't be so beloved by every one who does know him, and have such a beautiful foreword written about him as Booth Tarkington writes.

Mrs. Campbell shares more of herself with her readers than does Mr. Drew, but her fault is that she takes for granted that most of her affairs outside her plays have been common gossip for so long that she has little to say of them except to explain them. There is an atmosphere of "publicness" about her book, as if the private life had been so public that merely to record a sentence would refresh the mind of her readers as to the facts. Perhaps that has been in England. Certainly here the mysterious references to the infelicities and harsh gossipings of the Cornwallis-West menage, for instance, bring little light to the casual reader.

Mrs. Campbell has tried, I believe, to write an honest history of her life. There is a frankness about the book that is refreshing, but it is, like Mr. Drew's book, most of the time little more than a series of playbills and retelling of critics' praises and blames. It is, like his memoirs, the record of the life of an actor, not of a person.

JOHN DREW.
[Lewis-Smith Photo.]

MRS. PATRICK CAMPBELL.
[Apeda Photo.]

There are moments, however, in her life when she ceases to be the actress and becomes the person. The story of her constant illnesses, her periods of utter depression, her struggles to keep her two children happy during the sickening period of her husband's long and fruitless journeys about Africa, her philosophic acceptance of the tumbling of her dreams for her children, her passionate devotion to Sarah Bernhardt, her indefatigable energy to pay back the sum which her syndicate had lost, her occasional frank hates, all show that she has honestly tried to write about the woman and not the actress. But she has succeeded only in part.

Of course, the most amusing part of the book is the group of letters which were written to her by George Bernard Shaw—whom she called Joey (imagine!)—and which have caused so much bitter discussion in England as to the good taste of their being printed. They are, one must admit, as soppy as most of the letters found on the defendant and gleefully reproduced the next morning in the press. They are, of course, amusingly written. As for instance:

"There are such wonderful sorts of relations and close togethernesses and babes-in-the-woodsinesses, besides being in love, which, as you point out, my diet and feeble nature forbid. I may have moments of being in love, but you must overlook them. And now, having expressed myself with carefully punctuated moderation, I shall shall go to bed quite calmly and sign myself, O, loveliest, doveliest, babiest,
Your gabiest,
"G. B. S."

And after a series of letters of that brilliant and high scholarliness of tone, Mrs. Campbell says, "His wildest letters I do not give." Do you wonder that that part of her autobiography is upsetting London?

The nicest letter of all is one from Sir James M. Barrie in which he gives her permission to print two letters which he had written her years ago. It is one of the nicest letters any one ever read anywhere. Most of the "Some Letters," however, are from her admirers among the honorables and sirs and ladies and in praise of her acting or in commiseration for her repeated illnesses. It is evident that London thought she was one of the greatest actresses of time, and that she didn't wholly disagree with London.

Gigolo

With a title which no one knows the meaning of, Edna Ferber whets the curiosity of her readers. Her publishers satisfy it with an explanation on the jacket that Gigolo is French slang and that it means—but that would be, as they say, telling. Gigolo is the first book of Edna Ferber's stories to appear since her fine novel, "The Girls." They ought to show some influence of that novel, which was done in a different manner than anything she ever did before. They ought to show a mellowness, a sort of gentle philosophic calm, a complete discarding of the claptrap of short stories, which, usually in their popular form, always come right and always have just so much plot and a climax and a denoument.

EDNA FERBER.
[Bachrach Photo.]

There are eight stories in "Gigolo" and of them there are two which are as fine as the finest parts of "The Girl" and as rich in character as the first half of "Fanny Herself," which was, to the minds of most of us who read books for a living, a remarkable genre picture of a Jewish mother. Those two stories are "Old Man Minick" and "The Sudden Sixties," both of them, strangely, about old age; the one about an old man, suddenly bereft of his fussy, loving little wife, who goes to live with his son and daughter-in-law and has nothing to do but sit in Washington park and argue about the state of the world with other unwelcome fathers; and the other about a woman who, quite suddenly, after a life so bustling with work that she didn't realize the passing of the years, finds herself in the sixties.

There is something at once pathetic and beautiful about those two stories, and real. That, of course, has always been the point about Edna Ferber's short stories; they are about the people every one sees every day; the little girl who stands for eight hours on her feet matching ribbons, the paper man on the corner of 53d street and Lake Park avenue whose name nobody knows but whose smile nobody forgets, or the newsboy on the corner of Broadway and Clark or wherever. It's the essential boy or man or girl or woman that she writes about, and not the special, queer, highly brilliant or stupidly dumb person whom she plucks out of life to hold up for us to look at. That's why her stories have such a definite appeal to the many.

Of the other six stories there is one that is as light and delicate a tale as you could imagine—and about a boy who works in a garage! He is, though neither he nor his somewhat heavy "lady friends" know it, a creature of fancy and the story is called "The Afternoon of a Faun." It is merely the record of the afternoon off of Nick, but an afternoon so natural and yet so fantastic as to leave even Nick with a feeling that perhaps his technique of life isn't so effective as he has suspected. And it has a jolly ending, too, inveitable, but surprising.

Plays for Children.

"Helga and the White Peacock" is a fairy play by Cornelia Meigs, which was written for a real little girl and which was acted successfully at the Poughkeepsie Community theater by children between 8 and 10.

"Plays for School and Camp" by Katherine Lord, was written for some special demand, among them "The Raven Man," an outdoor play in which girls can show skill in water sports.

"Kris Kringle Makes a Flight" is a Christmas play for the Sunday school.

Of the plays in "The Fairy Doll and Other Fairy Plays for Children," by Netta Syrett, four are suitable for small children, and one is that always sought for thing, a Christmas play. It is called "Christmas in the Forest."

"The Three Golden Hairs" is the title of Ethel Sidgwick's delightful dramatization of the two fairy stories of the Brothers Grimm. Ethel Sidgwick is the author of "Duke Jones" and of "Madam"—a year or so ago—and is a young lady of real literary ability.

Books for Girls.

"Little Women" is a book that, like kind words in the song we used to sing, "will never die, never die, never die." The "new popular illustrated edition" is merely a reprint of the one which used to cost exactly twice as much. It is being brought out this year in this way because the copyright runs out. The illustrations are by Jessie Wilcox Smith. It is really a lovely book.

"Memoirs of a London Doll," written by herself, and edited by Mrs. Fairstair, was popular in England nearly a hundred years ago. It has long been out of print, and only a fortuitous fact brought it to light and to a republication. Clara Whitehill Hunt discovered a copy of it on the shelves of the Brooklyn library during a move, read it, and immediately brought it to the attention of the publishers, who have brought it out in a duplication of the type, but with modern illustrations.

Katherine Adams, who enjoys, I believe, the generous patronage of children's librarians, has written the story of "Wisp—a Girl in Dublin." Miss Adams' popular "Mehitable" had a background of Paris; "Midsummer," of Sweden. Experts, however, think that "Wisp" isn't quite so good as the previous two. Miss Adams lived in Dublin for many years, while her father was American consul there, so the background is authentic.

◆

Belle Bacon Bond has written a story of a little Boston girl of the '60's who was lonely and lived almost entirely with her dolls. It is called "Drusilla and Her Dolls." There is an introduction by Mrs. Dallas Lore Sharp.

"The Turned About Girls" is a book which Beulah Marie Dix wrote for her own little girl of 11. It is about two little orphan girls who met on the train which was taking them both to visit relatives whom they dreaded. One girl persuades the other to change places with her and despite the trick, everything comes right for both of them.

◆

"Including Mother" is the title of Margaret Ashmann's book for older girls. It's about the simple problem of making both ends meet in a new town by a little family, consisting of a rather helpless but pretty mother and two girls.

Flavia Camp Canfield, the mother of Dorothy Canfield Fisher, has written a story of girl life in the sixties which is called "The Hop Pickers."

Katherine Haviland Taylor, who is looked upon with favor by librarians and given to growing girls by careful mamas, has written this year "A Modern Trio in an Old Town," which is the story of Jane Jones, the daughter of a country physician, who is sent by a fairy godmother [in human form] to study music in Florence.

◆

"Housekeeping, Cookery, and Sewing for Little Girls" by Olive Hyde Foster is an excellent book about the rudiments of housekeeping. It contains simple recipes and patterns for doll dresses. It is a book which any little girl would feel proud and grown up about owning.

* *

Books for Boys.

Probably as important a book as any for boys this year is a life of Daniel Boone by Stewart Edward White. It has a lot of dash and thrill and romance to it for boys, but it is an excellent biography for adults as well as for younger readers.

◆

"Dan's Tomorrow" is by William Heyliger, author of the High Benton stories, to which boys are devoted.

◆

"Skippy Bedelle" is another Lawrenceville story by Owen Johnson, destined for grownups, but sure to stray naturally into the hands of boys—who'll love it.

"The Boy Scouts' Year Book, 1922," the eighth volume, edited by Franklin K. Mathiews, chief scout librarian, is officially published by the Boy Scouts of America.

"Black Wolf Pack" has a special interest because it is the first story book that Dan Beard has written, yet his name is probably more widely known than that of any other American writer for boys. This story makes one hope he will go on writing boys' stories.

◆

"Blackbeard Buccaneer," by Ralph Paine, is a story of a boy of Charles Town colony who, on his way to England to finish his education, was captured by Blackbeard, a famous pirate. Mr. Paine writes a story of the sea with gusto. Boys ought to like this one very much.

◆

"The Inca Emerald," by Samuel Scoville Jr., is a tale of mystery and adventure, and his "Wild Folk" is a book about racoons, black bears and other animals.

◆

"David Ives" is a story of St. Timothy's and Harvard and of David's launching into life. Arthur Stanwood Pier always writes honest boys' stories—the stories are always honest ones as well as the boys. His books are highly recommended.

◆

"Coxwain of the Eighth" is another boarding school story by Ralph Henry Barbour, as is "The Turner Twins," also by the polific Mr. Barbour.

For Both Boys and Girls.

"Days of the Colonists" by L. Lamprey and "Children of Ancient Rome" are both excellent books with an historical background. Miss Lamprey vivifies the past, and her books are always recommended with enthusiasm by specialists in children's reading.

"Real Americans" is a series of short biographies by Mary H. Wade. They include the lives of Theodore Roosevelt, Herbert Hoover, Leonard Wood, John Burroughs, Mark Twain and Edward Everett Hale.

"The Book of Giants" is a quaint and interesting book of facts and fancies about giants gathered from every legendary source by Henry W. Lanier, the son of the famous Sidney.

◆

"The Flower of Fortune" is a story of the Dutch and English of old New York by those favorites, E. B. and A. A. Knipe.

"The Swiss Twins" by Lucy Fitch Perkins is the latest of the popular twin stories. "Twin Travelers in China and Japan" by Mary H. Wade is another tale of twins. Mrs. Perkins writes about twins on their native heath. Miss Wade writes about an American boy and girl who travel.

CONFESSIONS

[Eugene Hutchinson Photo.]

When I asked Sherwood Anderson what book he would rather have written than any other he replied:

Dear Fanny Butcher:

As I am an American and a story teller I suppose I would rather have done that marvelous piece of story telling called "Moby Dick," by Herman Melville, than anything else I can think of.

Sincerely,

Sherwood Anderson

BEST SELLERS of the WEEK

AT THE LIBRARY.

Six books most in demand last week at the Chicago public library were:

- "This Freedom," by A. S. M. Hutchinson.
- "If Winter Comes," by A. S. M. Hutchinson.
- "Babbitt," by Sinclair Lewis.
- "The Mind in the Making," by James Harvey Robinson.
- "Atolls of the Sun," by Frederick O'Brien.
- "Self Mastery," by Emil Coué.

Creative Thinking Has Put the World Where It Is

The trouble with most of our thinking is that it is not thinking at all. We believe what we have been used to believing, and what we want to believe. "The result," says James Harvey Robinson in The Mind in the Making, the startling book which is today changing the thinking of the world, "is that most of our so-called reasoning consists in finding arguments for going on believing as we already do." This can get us nowhere. Civilization has never been advanced one step by this kind of thinking. It is creative thinking—the product of the comparatively unusual mind—which has carried the world forward.

WE STARTED WITH A SAVAGE MIND

The primitive human mind is ever with us. This savage inheritance is always working in favor of things-as-they-are. We have to fight for every step we make ahead in the scale of civilization. And to fight successfully we must understand what it is we are struggling against. Such scholars and thinkers as H. G. Wells, Dr. Frank Crane, and Professor John Dewey have found enlightenment in The Mind in the Making. Are you thinking creatively? Do you know the obstacles you have to overcome? Have you read The Mind in the Making?

SIMON CALLED PETER
By ROBERT KEABLE, Author of
"The Mother of All Living"

Few books of this year are being so seriously discussed.

The New York Evening Post calls it: "A 'significant' novel in the best sense of that word."
Life. "A good book that deserves to be widely read."
Philadlephia Ledger: "Strong and illuminating . . . Something that will make most of its readers gasp a little—that is, if they were not in France themselves."
New York Herald: "Well worth reading . . . a graphic and undoubtedly veracious picture."
The Boston Herald: "A novel of real distinction, both in its manner and its matter."
The Boston Transcript: "His situations are true, vivid and unexaggerated."
The New York Times: "Whatever one may think of the conclusion, there can be no doubt of the interest of the description of life behind the lines, whose general dissoluteness the author in his preface blames upon war."

GIGOLO
Pronounced "zhigolo"
By EDNA FERBER

". . . a book of short stories of Edna Ferber's, easily the best ones ever she wrote, in especial 'The Afternoon of a Faun,' 'Old Man Minick,' and 'Home Girls,' as good as ever I read."

From the Pepysian Diary of F. P. A., N. Y. World.

What a Lyon & Healy Apartment Grand means to you

It is the answer to those who wish to own the supreme form in pianos. The beauty of the grand has always been the subject of universal admiration. Its elegant, graceful form is a constant inspiration to home builders. The Lyon & Healy Apartment Grand has all the nobility of line that one could desire. It is exquisitely finished in mahogany and walnut. Furthermore, it occupies so little room that a corner five feet square will contain it. Dainty and beautiful, it adds new distinction to your room. It marks the home which contains it as being one of culture.

But if in beauty of design and construction the Apartment Grand is distinguished in musical qualities it is even more so. There is in these a fusion of clear, sonorous tones. They indicate the highest quality materials. A voice of rare sweetness sings under the fingers. The most delicate touch calls forth rich, colorful notes, so responsive is the action. There is surprising volume to the tone. In resonance and carrying power, it pleases the most discriminating. Priced at only $900.

Special Features

Three special features of the Apartment Grand Piano make it an unusual value. They are the latest expression in piano design. This piano is one truly designed for modern homes.

The Junior Pedal

This is a most ingenious device. It practically revolutionizes the piano. Great pianists and music teachers are delighted with it. It permits new tonal effects. No longer need the playing of the child be without expression. The Junior Pedal permits the little student to understand and use the pedal, beginning with the first lesson. In appearance, it seems the usual pedal but it unfolds to a height where the feet of children can reach it.

The Candelectra

This feature consists of twin electric lamps which flood the music desk and keyboard with illumination. Its convenience will be immediately appreciated by those whose pianos are placed in dimly lighted rooms. The wiring of the lamps is concealed, being placed through the frame of the piano and running to concealed sockets for wall connections.

The Silento

Designed so as to permit one to practice without being heard in another room, the Silento softens the music of the piano without affecting the touch. It is a device welcomed by students.

Time Payments You need pay only a small sum down and the balance in 30 months. Old musical instruments taken in exchange at a liberal valuation.

The Lyon & Healy Reproducing Piano—

An Apartment Grand with a Fine Reproducing Action

This is a most fascinating instrument. It brings the music of the great pianists to your home. It places at your command, whenever you wish, the art of the masters. It reproduces their playing in life-like fashion. Such gifts are brought to you by this instrument. They are obtainable in the Apartment Grand which gives them greater appeal. It is offered at an unprecedented price—$1950. Upright Lyon & Healy Reproducing Pianos are from $990 up.

ESTEY REED ORGANS—FOR CHURCHES, chapels and lodgerooms. The single manual instruments do not require the services of a skilled organist.

Large double manual models possessing a big volume of tone cannot be equaled except by pipe organs of identical registration. From a standpoint of tone and durability they are superior to a cheaply constructed pipe organ. Moreover, they represent an investment about 1-3 that of a pipe organ of equal quality.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

Singers! Forget the Failure of yesterday! Make use of the partial scholarships offered this week to first 7 applicants and learn how to sing like Galli-Curci or McCormack by studying their method of singing with the incomparable voice specialist, Mme. La Capria. Indorsed by the late Lombard, Italy's most celebrated singing master. The best training is the cheapest, as it insures the greatest results in the shortest time. Public appearances triple money invested. Hearings held daily and evenings. Phone Kenwood 1431 for appointment. Studios, 4318 Grand-blvd.

EVERY PERSON

Interested in their voice should come up and have a talk with me. I will give you a real voice test, tell you the truth, without charge. You can come up knowing you will not be asked to study. When your visit is over you can rest assured you will know where you stand on the voice question. If you should desire to study I teach the old Italian method at the unusual rate of $1.50 for private lessons. 72 Auditorium Bldg.

WOMEN'S WEAR OR DEPARTMENT STORE PUBLICITY WOMAN WITH A "NOSE FOR FASHIONS."

This advertisement is being published by a large advertising organization to find a department store or women's wear store that can very profitably use the services of publicity woman of rare capabilities. She is peculiarly fitted for special assignments or feature work; has the journalistic sense of perception in catching the spirit and trend of fashions and dramatizing them in print; is old enough and experienced enough to appreciate the difference between sound merchandising in journalism and the flub-dub of fine writing; is capable of shouldering responsibility; has initiative; has a highly developed fashion sense and the creative vision of a designer. Having been a home manager, and living in the best circles, her talents are reinforced by an exceptional background; is a tireless worker and loves department store publicity work.

If you can use such a woman on your regular staff or in a special way, we will give you further information. Address C F 112, Tribune.

WANTED—MALE HELP.

Professions and Trades.

MECHANICAL ENGINEER—AN OLD ESTABLISHED responsible company has an unusual opening for a mechanical engineer of proven ability. We desire a man whose fundamental engineering education is unusually thorough and who has a successful record in the past for machine design. The product requiring consideration is chemical engineering industry with full recognition of the possibilities of the application of electricity to some of the problems involved. We desire a man to take charge of this department of our business and his work would call for the redesign of a great deal of existing machinery. As the department is a relatively small one he must be able to accommodate himself to a great deal of preliminary difficult work. The future possibilities are sufficiently attractive to engage the services and attention of a successful broad gauge engineer, who is not afraid of hard work, but desires to succeed and make a position for himself. Fundamental requirements are: Protestant, Gentile, and not over 40 years of age. Position to start would pay approximately $300 per month. Address C F 305, Tribune.

Learn the Art of Selling in Free Evening School.
Any man of average intelligence can learn salesmanship and become a successful salesman if he has ambition and will take training.
We teach you salesmanship in our evening school. No charge, no expense to you. We start a new class Monday evening, Nov. 20, at 7:30. The basic, fundamental principles of salesmanship clearly outlined and explained by trained instructors. Class conducted through a course of three evenings.
If you are a small wage earner and you want to get out of the rut and improve your condition, attend this school. You can attend without interfering with your present work. During the last three months we have helped scores of men to get started on the road to larger earnings.
This school is conducted by one of the large manfacturing corporations of the United States. We manufacture a necessity. To men who show potential ability and ambition we can offer permanent positions as salesmen. Men who entered our employ three weeks ago are now earning $45 to $75 per week. Older men as high as $125 per week. You can do the same. We are rapidly opening branches in Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin, and branch and district managers for these branches are taken from the ranks of our sales force.
Come Monday evening. Remember, you are not obligated in any way. Avail yourself of this excellent course. You will be welcome whether you connect with our organization or not. You have much to gain, nothing to lose by so doing.
If earnings of $50 to $125 per week interest you, come to 35 N. Dearborn, Suite 510, at 7:30 Monday evening.

A large Chicago corporation has exclusive territory in Michigan which contains from 3,000 to 4,000 prospects. Business increased last year 27 per cent and shows greater increase for 1922. Inaugurating campaign of national advertising in leading publications and direct mail to 125,000 executives. Large percentage of unsolicited renewals. Full commission paid to salesmen on all business from his territory which includes renewals and mail orders, as well as personal business. Its salesmen are earning from $6,000 to $18,000 yearly on straight commission basis. 85% of salesmen accepted have produced business their first day, earned over their quota their first week, are still with organization, and showing steady increase. Large bonus for first orders, highest type mail and personal co-operation, sales helps, sales contests, and bonuses constantly given. To a salesman of proven ability this is a real opportunity with large future. Little traveling; immediate action necessary. Do not answer unless you are in the $6,000 class and can earn over that amount with proper connection. Give complete outline of your experience in first letter if attention expected. Give address and phone number. Address C F 317, Tribune.

2, 3, AND 4 ROOMS.

FULL SIZE BEDROOMS.

HERE are a few exceedingly desirable apartments—small and economical but with the space of a big home, a world of closet space—in a building like a fine hotel.

From a pretty court you enter a carpeted lobby with choice furniture. Carpeted terrazzo corridors, well lighted and ventilated, and elevator service [illegible] living rooms, regular sleeping chambers, and complete but simplified housekeeping facilities. THE BUILDING OF SUPERIOR DESIGN

EDGEWATER COURTS IS NOW READY.
5019-35 Winthrop-av. [Near Argyle.]
3 and 4 room apartments.
RENTS, $90 TO $125.

For a number of years, on account of the popularity of small units, the builders have turned their attention to two, three and four room apartments, with the result in many cases, on account of lack of experience in planning and lack of knowledge of the provisions essential to the comfortable occupation of apartments of this type numbers of buildings have fallen short of public requirements.

The Edgewater Courts is the result of years of careful study and experience on the part of the builders, coupled with the services of one of the most able firms of architects in Chicago, who in planning and building were given free rein to produce apartments that would satisfy the most exacting tenants.

The Difference Between Happiness and Tragedy, Success and Failure, Good Health and Sickness, Independence and Dependence, Inspiration and Gloominess, Competence and Poverty, Householder and Tenant, Exuberance and Weariness,

A LIFE THAT IS WORTH WHILE, OR ONE WITHOUT VISION OR HOPE, DEPENDS ON OPPORTUNITY.

HERE IS YOURS.

To start on the road to prosperity and have all the good things of life.

ON $1,500 DOWN.

All prepared, ready waiting for you to choose or dangle it away at 7925-7951 Clyde-av.; the opportunity of one's lifetime to secure income, home, and profit, that gives one the nerve to fight the battle of existence successfully; you cannot construct these bldgs. today for $1,000 a rm.; construction costs and bldg. material and wages are advancing every day, and by next spring these properties should show a good profit to any present purchaser; compare them for light, air, sun, with plenty of yard space on all 4 sides, which saves doctor's bills and guarantees good health; with any other 2 flat or apt. renting for from $75 to $125 a mo. Do you know that you cannot afford to build a 2, 6, 12, or large apt. bldg. today and rent it for less than $20 a rm.—and make it pay? These bldgs. were contracted for early in the year and held up on a big deal or they could never be secured at these low prices; they are pressed brick front, with sun parlors, all oak floors, mah. finish, trim, elec. light; strictly mod. plumbing; 5-5 large rms.; cement basement; steam heating and hot water plants; they are substantially built with plenty of space and yard room between them; lots are 35x125 ft. to alley; and the ground is advancing in value every day; price each, $11,000; terms $1,500, bal. $100 a mo., which includes all interest and principal; no mtge. claims, or trust deeds on any of them; they are one block east of Jeffery-av. and Our Lady of Peace school and church; the location is healthy and desirable, and is near the new South Shore Drive Subdivision; bldgs. are open every day, including Sun., from 10 to 5 p. m.; every fortunate buyer will reap a good profit by spring, as this advancing real estate market has not even made a good start as to what you will finally pay for such property as this. SACRIFICE.

If you have $35,000 to $45,000 cash and are a principal interested in obtaining the biggest bargain on the North Side, answer this advertisement. I own two bldgs. and must raise cash. One is a high grade, 2 yr. old, 48 apt. located on Pine Grove-av., renting for $45,000 annually; price, $230,000. Will arrange 6% mtg. on balance. The other is a high grade, 36 apt. located on Sunnyside-av., east of Sheridan-rd., renting for $33,300 annually; price, $172,500, cash, will also arrange 6% mtg. for balance. Don't waste your time or mine if you have not that amount of cash to invest and are a principal, as I can't afford to pay commission on the prices asked. Brokers need not deceive any one by replying on their own stationery at home, as no attention will be paid them. Address N H 277, Tribune.

NEED MONEY, WILL SACRIFICE PARK RIDGE CORNER.

I paid $2,200 two years ago for the northwest corner of Elmore and Center-sts. This lot has 160 ft. on Center-st., which is paved, and 88 ft. on Elmore. St. has sewer, water, and sidewalk in. I have paid out over $300 on assessments and interest. If you know Park Ridge you are aware that this property has increased 25% in the last year, and this lot is easily worth $3,000. I must have money this week and will sacrifice for $2,200. Must have half cash. Address B O 502, Tribune.

WONDERFUL OPPORTUNITY.

How would you like to own a Dutch colonial 5 or 6 rooms, built according to your own plans, including hardwood floors, tile bath, real fireplace, full sized basement, bookcases, laundry tubs, fruit cellar; on a lot 50 x178; near schools, stores, N. W. R. R. transportation and bus line. 60 trains daily; occupancy in 60 days or spring delivery; in the most desirable location of Park Ridge; small down payment, balance like rent. If you are interested answer at once. Address S H 136, Tribune.

105X650 FT., DES PLAINES RIVER ROAD

SITE FOR OIL STATION, ROADHOUSE, or PRIVATE CLUB. Large lot, 105x650 ft., with riparian rights on Des Plaines river. Located south of the town of Des Plaines, fronting 105 ft. on River-rd. [boulevarded]. Thousands of machines passing daily. This is one of the best buys around Chicago for any one in market for location as above noted. Price of $4,000 is right and can be bought on very easy terms. For full particulars address B L 258, Tribune.

A MODEL HOME.

Dutch colonial or bungalow, brick or stucco, all modern, built-in features, bookcases, buffet, tiled bathroom, hot water heating plant, oak floors, birch trim, full basement, with fruit closet. California.

FOR SALE—CALIFORNIA STATE LANDS. The State Land Board of California has for sale 87 irrigated farms at Ballico near Merced in San Joaquin Valley on main line Santa Fe Railway. The State makes it possible for you to own one of these farms, only requiring 5 per cent of purchase price, remainder in semi-annual installments extending over 36½ years with 5 per cent interest annually. Here is an opportunity to become a home owner on terms as favorable as renting. It will be a long time before any more land will be available under such generous provisions. Money advanced on improvements and dairy stock. Those already located very enthusiastic. You can farm all year in California. All deciduous fruits profitably grown. Alfalfa a paying crop. Ideal conditions for stock and poultry. Many persons long some day to make their homes in California, with its winterless climate, plenty of sunshine, seashore and mountains, fertile valleys, paved highways, very efficient marketing, excellent schools. State Board's pamphlet, also Santa Fe folder describing San Joaquin Valley mailed free on request. C. L. Seagraves, General Colonization Agent, Santa Fe, 901 Railway Exchange, Chicago.

LAND FOR YOU.

The Swigart Land Co. gives one an opportunity to obtain some of the best agricultural land in Michigan. They have helped many families to get farm homes of their own. Their twenty years in business has acquainted them with the needs of homeseekers. The contract they give is the most liberal that can be given by a responsible company. It provides many safeguards for the purchaser. Payments are suspended in case of sickness, lack of work or other misfortune and the privilege is given to borrow money on one's contract if needed. Free insurance is provided for his family in case of the purchaser's death or disability. The contract calls for warranty deed and abstract showing clear title and has other excellent features.

FERTILE clay loam lands are now offered by the Swigart Land Co. in tracts of 20, 40 or 80 acres on terms as low as $10 to $50 down with long time on the balance to meet one's circumstances. Their settlers are making good. Such crops as wheat, oats, barley, rye, corn, clover, timothy, alfalfa, potatoes, vegetables and fruits are grown successfully. No better clover lands can be found. The clay loam land offered by this old established firm when developed and properly farmed will assure a man and his family a good living and a money making opportunity.

Write today for 48 page illustrated booklet. It describes the lands, the environments and all features in which a homeseeker is interested—just facts, in plain words. This booklet is free for the asking. Send for your copy today.

FRANKLIN

WINTON 1921 TOURING. Any one desiring a high grade, roomy 7 passenger car should be interested in this offering. It has been used by one family, has had very little use for a car of this type, and is equipped with 6 exceptionally fine cord tires, bumper, spotlight, motometer, wheel lock, and other extras. Mechanically it runs like new and will give new car service. The paint is fair, but will paint this car any color you desire. This is a real bargain. $1,350.

FRANKLIN 1920 SEDAN. We have overhauled this car in our shops, and it is in first class mechanical conditoin. The upholstery is like new. Refinished in Franklin green, and is equipped with 5 demountable rims, 2 spring bumpers, Gabriel snubbers, wind shield cleaner, and a good set of cord tires. Zero weather will soon be here. Bring in your old car and exchange it for a Franklin—it will give you real comfort and service in cold weather. Price, $1,650.

HOLMES 1921 4 PASS. COUPE. This car has had very little mileage and is in first class mechanical condition. It is repainted in royal blue and is equipped with 5 white wire wheels, 5 excellent cord tires, seat covers, bumper, wind shield cleaner, sun shade, motometer, clock, and tools. Body is by Walker-Wells and full aluminum. This is a high grade air cooled car on a 126 inch wheel base, with full elliptic springs; easy riding, easy to operate, and is equipped with the famous "Holmes Air Duct." A bargain in an extremely attractive coupe that will please the most exacting. Price, $1,250.

FRANKLIN SERIES 9 TOURING. A light, economical 5 passenger, ideal for winter use; has set of winter sides; refinished, renickeled, and in excellent mechanical condition. This is a bargain at $650.

CASE 1920 TOURING, 7 PASS. Just received from our Paint Shop. Refinished beautiful maroon. Mechanically excellent. Top and upholstery very good. This is the popular "sturdy Case," with Continental engine and equipped with a good set of cord tires. $250 down and $40 a month.

COLE OWNERS Go to CALIFORNIA and FLORIDA for the Winter

TURN IN REAL VALUES THAT YOU CAN NOW BUY AT BIG BARGAINS

A great many of our customers go away for the winter months and turn in their cars to us to be sold at this time of the year, taking new cars upon their return in the spring.

We probably handle more of this business than the average dealer, because each year we solicit our regular customers on these trades, as it saves them storage and depreciation. All kinds of models come to us at this time, such as

Coupes Sedans
Limousines
Sports Roadsters
Tourings

and in most cases in very good condition and can be sold at either in their present condition or at slight added cost of repairs and paint.

BARGAIN PRICES

TIME PAYMENTS

Many wonder how we can afford to grant the exceptionally fair plan of financing that we offer and we are going to let you in on the secret.

We haven't a dollar invested in any of the cars turned in to us on the above plan, as we simply issue a credit memo to the owner against the purchase price of a new car in the spring.

In the meantime, when the car is delivered to you, payments start, and by spring the car in most cases is more than half paid. So in reality before delivery of the new car is made in the spring we have collected on the used car from you up to the point where our equity in the deal represents at most only our profit on the transaction, with an agreement with you of final payment of same monthly.

GUARANTEE

We guarantee these automobiles after having passed through the hands of our inspectors and their recommendations acted upon to be entirely satisfactory to you with the agreement to if not satisfactory. We have operated on this latter plan all of this year and the names of over one hundred satisfied owners are available to you for investigation.

RESPONSIBILITY

We operate our own 4 story service and rebuilding plant, in which we have installed the latest time-saving machinery, a complete paint and upholstery shop, electrical room, machine, welding, and blacksmith shops, manned by competent men.

Inspect these today.

CADILLAC'S SPECIALS

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 59, VICTORIA COUPE. The Victoria, a 4 passenger enclosed car, has for a number of years been one of the most popular Cadillac models. This particular car presents an unusually fine appearance, the dark Cadillac blue paint has a fine luster, and the upholstering and inside fittings are like new. Mechanically the car will bear rigid examination. Fenders and running boards are clean and free from marks. Natural wood wheels form a pleasing contrast to the blue of the body and the black of the upper panels. Equipment includes spare tire, front bumper, and other Cadillac accessories. We present this car as an unusual bargain because it is only at rare intervals that we are able to offer so fine a piece of merchandise at such a ridiculously low price—$2,200.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 59, PHAETON. Here is a snappy 4 passenger sport model Cadillac, presenting an unusually fine appearance, which we are able to offer at an extremely low figure. The upholstery shows practically no signs of wear and the very fine condition of the paint marks it as having had careful treatment. The cord tires are excellent and an Alemite system has been installed on the car to facilitate oiling and greasing. It is not often that we are able to offer a car of this character at the ridiculously low price of $1,700.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 61, TOURING CAR. This is one of our latest series 7 passenger touring cars and it is in such condition that it cannot be distinguished from new. It was turned in by the original owner who purchased a "61" Suburban. It is painted Berkshire green and is first class in every particular. Equipped with cord tires, spare, spring bumpers, seat covers, spotlight, and many other extras. The actual mileage of this car is less than 4,000 miles. It will carry our new car warranty and is a splendid chance to buy a Cadillac of the latest series at a considerable saving. Cost new, as equipped, about $3,500. Special at $2,850.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 61, SEDAN. This is the current and latest series 5 passenger enclosed car. Because of its compact passenger compartment and smartness and distinction in appearance it has proved one of the most popular cars of the Cadillac enclosed line. Standard equipment includes aluminum kick plates and protection bars, as well as a trunk rack for luggage. This particular car has been repainted a beautiful Cadillac gray, the upholstering is like new. A heater is installed in the rear passenger compartment. Equipped with 5 excellent cord tires, tire cover, wind shield spotlight, spring covers, step plates and bumper. A worth while purchase at $3,750.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 55, 7 PASSENGER TOURING. This car will interest any one who is looking for comfortable and dependable transportation at a very low cost. It has been turned in on one of our new enclosed models and still retains many, many thousands of miles of excellent service. The paint and upholstering are in good condition. Equipment includes spare tire, bumper, and other accessories. A bargain at $400.

WILLS SAINTE CLAIRE 1921, 5 PASSENGER TOURING CAR. To a person looking for a small, light car capable of speed and comfort for cross country driving this car will make an immediate appeal. Mechanically it is in excellent condition. Equipment includes 5 disk wheels with excellent cord tires, set of wind shield wings, automatic wind shield wiper, special motometer, rear vision mirror, Pine's Winter Front, and 2 bumpers. Condition and appearance of this car are such that it will move quickly at our price of $1,750.

BUICK K-49, 7 PASSENGER TOURING. The appearance of this car is such as to warrant the attention of any one interested in a dressy looking passenger automobile at a low price. It is equipped with a set of winter sides for cold weather comfort and both paint and upholstering have been preserved in unusually fine condition. There are 5 excellent cord tires, bumper, and other accessories. This car is far above the average and represents a profitable investment at our price of $750.

MERCER SEDAN 6 PASS. 1922 MODEL. This car is in first class mechanical condition, has been driven very little, and will render new car service. The paint, which is a pleasing combination of London Gray and red running gear, is like new. Upholstered in imported broadcloth which has been covered with seat covers since original delivery. Equipment unusually complete and consists of 6 practically new cord tires, 2 ramspring bumpers, De Luxe motometer, wings and lock, nickeled radiator shell, headlamps, heater, Alemite greasing system, and much other extra equipment. You can duplicate this roomy luxurious high grade Sedan today for approximately $6,000, delivered Chicago. Our price, $3,000.

WILLS STE. CLAIRE 1921 SPORT TOURING CAR. Mechanically perfect. Painted gray with black fenders and running gear—a striking combination. Has 2 spotlights, 2 bumpers, 2 automatic windshield cleaners, and many other extras. Specially upholstered. Price, $1,750.

COLE 1921 AERO 8, 7 PASS. SEDAN. This car has come into our hands in first class condition, as the owner has given the car the best of care and used it only 11 months. Car is unusually equipped, having 2 Biflex bumpers, Westinghouse shock absorbers, heater, and many other extras. We have refinished the body in a London Fog Gray with wagon wheel red wood wheels. It will be well worth your time to investigate this car. A real buy at $2,250.

6 Bargains AT THE Peerless

FACTORY BRANCH.

CADILLAC 8 TYPE 57 SUBURBAN SEDAN. This is a very late Double Letter Cadillac Sedan that has just been turned in to us on one of our new Peerless enclosed cars, and is one that has been privately owned and driven and always had the best of care. It has been refinished standard Cadillac Blue. Mechanically it is exceptionally fine. It is equipped with an excellent set of cord tires, 1 extra, Westinghouse shock absorbers, bumper, seat covers, and much other extra equipment. This car at the price we are offering it represents an exceptional bargain. You will have to act quickly if you would avail yourself of it. Specially priced at $1,850.

STUDEBAKER SPECIAL SIX TOURING. A light, economical, yet powerful touring car that we are offering at a price that is way below its market value. It has not seen a great deal of driving and is in very fine condition throughout. It is equipped with a set of glass sides and other equipment that go to make up a complete and well equipped car. Would suggest your seeing and riding in this car if you are interested in purchasing an automobile the equal of which we do not believe you can duplicate. It is being sacrificed for $675.

CADILLAC 8 SPORT PHAETON. A late model snappy 4 passenger Sport Car that we have taken in trade on one of our new Peerless Sedans. It is a wonderfully well kept car and if you could see it, it will bear out our statement. It is painted a dark green with white wire wheels. Has an excellent set of cord tires, bumper, spotlight, seat covers, vision mirror, simplex lock, and other extras. This car has not had the average use that you would expect in a car of this type and we are offering it at a price that is way below its market value. See it and ride in it today and be convinced. It is being sacrificed for immediate disposal. Price, $750.

PEERLESS 8 COUPE, 1922. This is a car that was owned by a factory official at Cleveland. We doubt if you could tell it from a new one. It originally sold for over $3,750. It has hardly been used enough to limber up the motor. Paint, tires and velour upholstery show practically no wear. Mechanically this car will carry our standard warranty. This is the roomy 4 passenger coupe that has been so popular with us during the spring and summer. Do not let the low price we have put on it scare you or influence your judgment. We must reduce our stock of used cars regardless of price. $2,650.

PEERLESS 8 TOURING CAR. This is a late model 7 passenger Touring Car that we are offering as one of our Special Bargains for today. We cannot describe it fully in this ad in a way that will do it justice. It has everything that you would expect in a high grade touring car and we know that at the price we are offering it, it will not remain in our possession long. Come in and look at this car, compare it with others and see if you can duplicate the condition, quality or value in any other make of car. Do not let the price we have put on it influence your judgment, because this is a real car—not junk. Specially priced, $575.

DODGE TOURING 1921. Picture in your mind a nice little 5 passenger touring car that looks like new in every detail. The tires are brand new, has brand new set of seat covers and other extras that put this car in a class above the average car of this type. It has very few miles on it and the motor runs exceptionally smoothly and quiet. Don't fail to see this unusual bargain if you are interested in a light, economical 5 passenger touring car. It is priced specially for today's sale at $550.

PACKARD

STEARNS-KNIGHT SEDAN, 1922 MODEL. This is one of the current model 4 cylinder 7 passenger sedans. It has not seen a great deal of service and has the appearance of practically a new car. It is most completely equipped, including spare tire, bumper, windshield cleaner, etc. This is an opportunity seldom presented of purchasing a current model car at less than 50% of its original cost. Price $1,750.

PAIGE BROUGHAM COUPE, 1920 MODEL 6-55. This high class 5 passenger enclosed car can be purchased at an extremely reasonable figure. We have thoroughly overhauled the motor, repainted the entire car in dark green, and it is ready to put into immediate service with no additional expense. The tires are all in first class condition, the upholstery is protected by seat covers, and the equipment includes front and rear bumpers, 2 spotlights, spare tire, etc. Price $1,000.

CHANDLER ROYAL DISPATCH. This is the very latest product, delivered new this year. It has individual fenders and aluminum step plates. It is painted dark maroon and is equivalent to a new car in every thing except the price. Equipment includes spare tire, bumper, spotlight, etc. Our price represents an exceptional saving. $1,200.

PACKARD SINGLE SIX ROADSTER. This is an ideal car for a physician or city salesman, as the operating expense is very low and the car can be depended upon for service 365 days in the year. Through a fortunate combination of circumstances we are able to offer this high class roadster at the exceptional price of $1,400.

PACKARD TWIN SIX CABRIOLET. This is a current model Packard chassis and has mounted on it a custom built 3 passenger cabriolet body by C. P. Kimball & Co. of Chicago. This is a very high class and exclusive car and will appeal particularly to the man desiring something out of the ordinary. It has every appearance of new throughout and will be sold with the standard Packard warranty and service. It is painted in dark Brewster green and equipped with a new set of Royal cord tires. We are offering this car at the remarkably low price of $4,000.

PACKARD SINGLE SIX TOURING. This has been the personal car of the president of our company here. It is, of course, in perfect mechanical condition. Has been refinished in dark blue and is most completely equipped, including wire wheels, Lovejoy shock absorbers, bumper, spotlight, neutral lock, glass winter sides, motometer, etc. It represents a rare value at $2,000.

HAYNES

BUICK TOUR., 1922.

1922 Buick 7 passenger touring car. There is a pride of possession in the ownership of an automobile of this kind. The recent owner took such exceptionally good care of it and it has such a low mileage that the original paint, fine grain leather upholstery and the top are equal to that of any new car. The motor is in excellent condition, and you no doubt know of its dependable, durable qualities. It is equipped with 5 cord tires, used only a few hundred miles; bumper, motometer, aluminum step plates, and windshield visor. Inspect this car early. Price $420 down and $53 a month for 10 months. Discount for cash. Our guarantee given.

JORDAN

1921 JORDAN BROUGHAM, 4 to 5 pass. Just received from the original owner, who gave it such careful attention that it would be a waste of money for us to touch it. This enables us to offer it to you at a lower price than we have ever placed on a car of this type and model. Has 5 practically brand new cord tires, bumper, motometer, automatic windshield wiper, tilt wheel and lock, snubbers, etc. Will demonstrate as quietly as any car in the city. Terms. $1,850.

1920 ESSEX SEDAN. A thorough 5 passenger enclosed car for very little money. Absolutely in first class mechanical shape and completely equipped, with 2 bumpers, windshield visor, cleaner, motometer, snubbers and Goodyear all-weather cord tires. At our price you will effect a saving of at least $150 on this car. Price, $850.

JORDAN 1921 SEDAN, 7 pass., full aluminum custom built body by Walker-Wells. Finished in a beautiful Royal Blue to conform with blue worsted upholstering. This is an exceptional opportunity to secure a high grade sedan for comparatively very little money. Priced specially at $2,000.

STEARNS-KNIGHT 5 PASS. TOURING. This is the "Little 4" model that has attained popularity because of its sturdiness and economical upkeep. Finish, tires, upholstery, and top in exceptionally good condition. A value impossible to equal from the standpoint of mechanical service. $400.

JORDAN, 1922 TOURING, 5 PASS. As close to a new car in appearance and mechanical condition as any car we have ever seen. Equipped with bumper, spare tire, motometer, and lock, transmission lock, clock, stop light, etc. The finish is Crane Simplex Gray. $1,600.

1919 MARMON TOURING, 7 PASS. Finished in a beautiful Fleetwood blue. Has wire wheels and cord tires. Excellent condition throughout. This car was rebuilt and purchased with a new car warranty less than 60 days ago by the former owner. For quick sale, $1,050.

SERIES "5" MERCER "SPORT," 4 PASS. This is a car that we are absolutely sure cannot be duplicated in model, condition, or appearance within $400 of our price. Finished in English Coach colors, full black with red running gear, 6 practically brand new cord tires and wire wheels, nickeled headlamps, bumper, motometer, spotlight, clock, etc. The mechanical performance will amaze you. $1,600.

$2,250

1922 Phaeton, Model 61—We are offering you this opportunity to get a 1922 Cadillac at an unusually low figure. Because of our size and purchasing power we can offer extraordinary values. It is painted the Cadillac midnight blue and has been thoroughly overhauled and tuned up. It carries a low mileage and the recent owner took exceptionally good care of it. The equipment includes trunk rack, wheel lock, spotlight, rear vision mirror, wind shield wiper, and because of its rare condition we give the new car guarantee.

CADILLAC COUPE,
$2,250

1921 Cadillac Coupe, Model 59—In the very best of condition. We have rebuilt this car completely and refinished it in the Cadillac midnight blue color. The perfect velour upholstery can only be compared with that of a new car, and the equipment consists of 6 new tires, 2 tire covers, wheel lock, bumper, motometer, clock, windshield wiper, and rear vision mirror. This is only one of three Cadillac Coupes we have to offer. New car guarantee.

PACKARD
"Rebuilt Packards."

RENDER NEW TRUCK SERVICE.
Carry new Packard warranty and service.
SAVE YOU MONEY EVERY MILE OF USE.

"Rebuilt in the great Packard shop," has a distinct and specific meaning that reflects itself in the daily service and satisfaction given by the great many "Rebuilt Packards" in Chicago. Every unit is entirely removed from the frame and dismembered. Every unit is rebuilt to Packard New Truck Standards. This rebuilding covers engine, steering gear, clutch, transmission, rear axle, universal joints, torque arm, brace rods, brakes, spring shackles, etc.; in fact, every wearing part is rebushed or fitted with new bearings. Every rebuilt motor has either a new cylinder block or one that has been reground once and will stand another regrinding. Every "Rebuilt Packard" has brand new tires, complete lighting system, and a set of tools.

Rebuilt and Guaranteed PACKARDS.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

CHICAGO YACHT CLUB TO HAVE FLOATING HOME

Unique Craft to Be Moored in Lincoln Park.

BY AL CHASE.

CLARK C. WRIGHT.
[Lewis-Smith Photo.]

A bottle of real champagne is now resting peacefully in a safe deposit box in a certain loop national bank not a hundred miles from the corner of Dearborn and Monroe — and Commodore Sheldon Clark of the Chicago Yacht club has the key! to prevent commodore from being annoyed by supersensitive federal officials, we hasten to add that, although he admits he's going to use it within a few weeks, it'll take more than Mr. Volstead's amendment to stop him. In fact, we doubt if even the most arid dry advocate will raise even a whisper of protest against the way the commodore is going to use that bottle.

For the commodore, or maybe some pretty girl acting for him, is going to smash this glass container of precious bubbles over the steel hull of Chicago's most unusual craft as it slides into the water from a South Chicago shipyard and say: "I christian thee 'the club ship of the Chicago Yacht club.'"

Clubhouse to Be Towed North.

Then the "club ship" will be towed up to the Lincoln park yacht harbor, anchored where the old "Carrier" now stands at the foot of Belmont avenue, and workmen will finish making this strange craft into a luxurious clubhouse for the Chicago Yacht club.

Some time ago the Chicago Yacht club decided to build a magnificent club house in Lincoln park, following the consent of the park commissioners. But when the question of guaranteeing the title to the site, the Chicago Title and Trust company balked. It was pointed out that some citizen might bring suit after the club house was completed and gum up the entire project for several years.

Call on Col. Wright.

And then Rear Commodore Clark C. Wright, a member of the architectural firm of George C. Nimmons & Co. and colonel in the late war, was called on to solve this architectural-nautical problem. And apparently he's solved it with the contemplated floating club house. It'll stand on water and not land, so there's no question about fees and leaseholds and other realty problems. Sketches have been submitted to the park commissioners and have received their O. K.

The steel float on which the club will be built will be 150 feet long and 50 feet wide, with a total area of 14,800 square feet. In the "basement," or hold, will be an oil burning heater. The lower deck will be given up to accommodations for sailors and all those interested in canoeing, swimming and water sports generally. It will have sail and clothes locker rooms, showers, toilets, etc.

Upper Deck for Pleasure.

The upper deck will be given up entirely to the pleasure and comfort of club members. The lounge will be 30x36, separated from the dining saloon by a partition, but arranged so the two can be made into one large room 36x62 for dancing or extra large dinners.

The open promenade deck at the forward end will be 48x50, with passages extending aft along either side of the lounge and dining saloon, still further emphasizing the shiplike arrangement of the deck. There'll be ladies' locker and toilet rooms on this deck. Above will be the quarter deck, 35x50, covered with a gay colored awning.

To Be Ready Next Season.

Col. Wright says the new "club ship" will be completed during the coming season. Contracts will be let within a week. The estimated cost is $100,000.

The Chicago Yacht club was founded 1875 and now has 1,700 members, making it one of the largest in the world. Sheldon Clark is commodore; Samuel Insull is vice commodore, Clark C. Wright is rear commodore, Richard G. Jones, treasurer, and Harold Bradley, secretary. The directors are Laurance Armour, Dr. W. L. Baum, George O. Clinch, Charles R. Francis, Leonard J. Lambin, Ogden T. McClurg, E. C. Webster, Bertram M. Winston.

Widow Zander's Attorney Uses Fee for Wedding Gift

Maj. Ednyfed H. Williams, famous as the attorney for the Widow Zander in her suit against Uncle Bim, so 'tis said, was married in October and his wedding present to the bride, Edna B. Williams, was the three story building at 51 East Division street. Yesterday two deeds were filed, one from Mr. Williams and his wife to John Foster, and the other from Mr. Foster to Mrs. Williams, conveying the property at No. 51. These conveyances carry out the promise and conveys title to her, states Attorney Rufus F. Robinson.

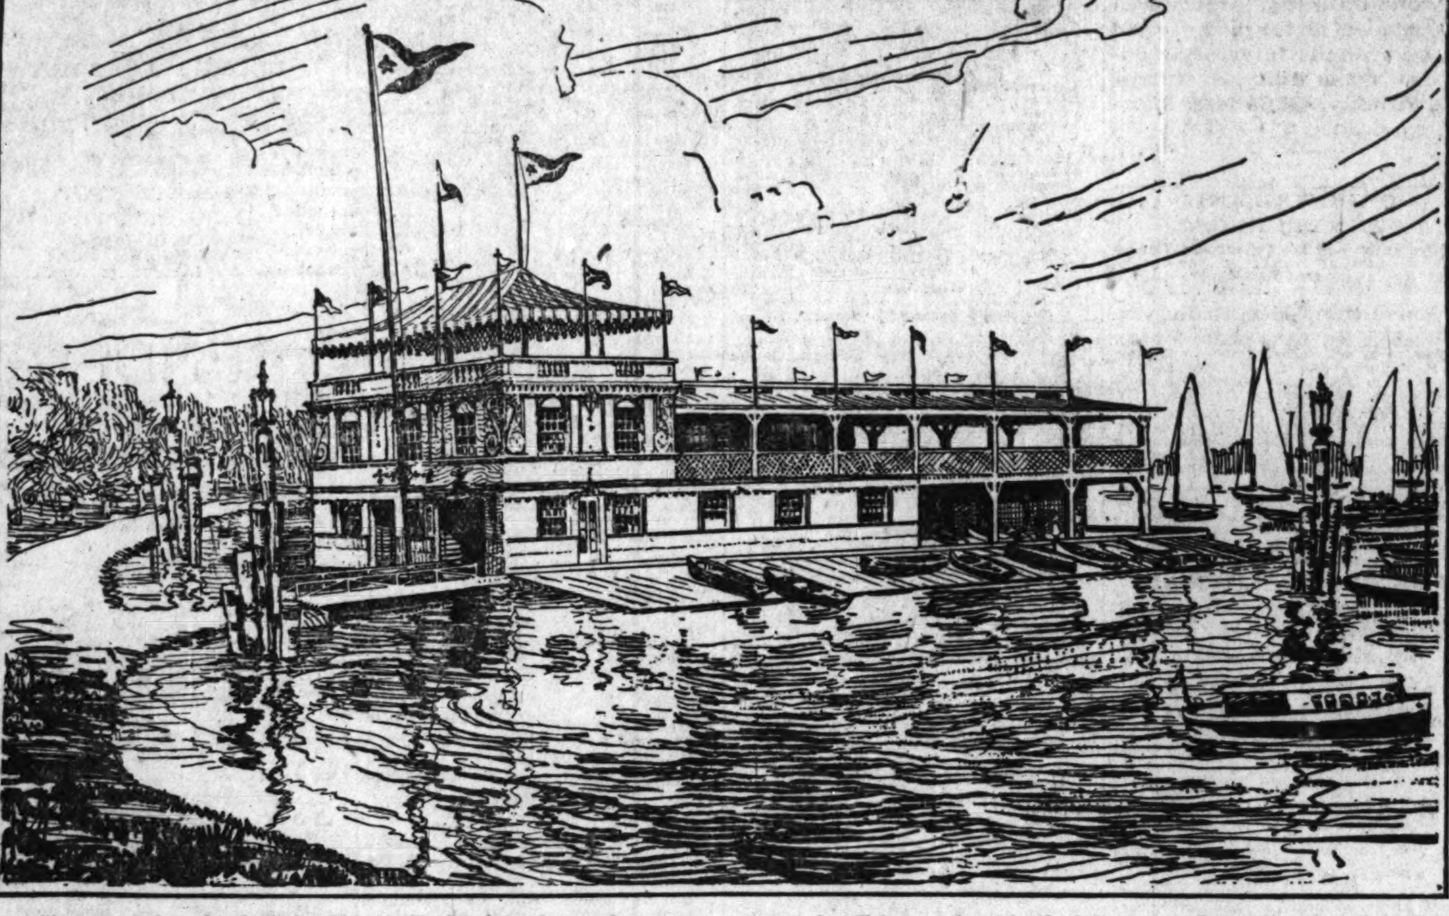
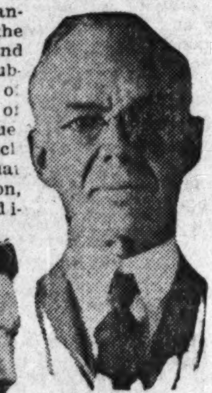
Here's Newest Wrinkle in Club Houses—It Floats



The new "club ship" of the Chicago Yacht club, shown above, was designed by Col. Clark C. Wright, rear commodore of the club and a member of the architectural firm of George C. Nimmons & Co. It will float in the Lincoln park yacht harbor at the foot of Belmont avenue, where the club's famous old ship, the Carrier, is now anchored. The Carrier, it is expected, will be towed out in the lake and used for target practice when the new "club ship" is completed next summer. The location is much handier to reach than the proposed one out on the peninsula, where the permanent building was to have been built. More is told about this new and unusual floating clubhouse in another column.

JOHN R. ROBERTSON HEADS NEW BOND AND MORTGAGE COMPANY



JOHN R. ROBERTSON.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

DOUGLAS B. ROBERTSON.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

In 1891 John R. Robertson started in the real estate business. The first property he handled was in the South Lynn and Drexel Park subdivision, south of 63d and east of Western avenue. He was struck with the fact that this subdivision, although subdivided in 1871, did not have a building on it in 1891, twenty years later.

He decided then that he would only subdivide and sell such property as he could build up. As a result, the firm has financed a house on about every lot they've sold. Many of their subdivisions have a home on every lot. This has made necessary the carying on of a growing loan department to handle the mortgages to finance the buildings.

Now the mortgage and bond business of John R. Robertson & Co. has increased so rapidly that the members of the firm have incorporated the Robertson Bond and Mortgage company to take care of it. The new company, with offices at 35 North Dearborn street, is under the management of Douglas B. Robertson. The officers of the new concern are: John R. Robertson, president; Douglas B. Robertson, vice president and treasurer; Willard C. Robertson, secretary.

STATE REFUSES REALTY LICENSE TO MADDEN BROS.

Madden Brothers, real estate dealers in the Marquette building for more than thirty years, have been refused a state license by the Illinois Real Estate Brokers' License commission.

The commission based its action on testimony given by Sam Best, Alexander Jamieson, Jacob Steinberg and Francis A. Hinckley and concluded from the testimony "that Michael S. Madden and Mark F. Madden were guilty of making false promises of a character likely to influence, persuade or induce; and failing to account for and to remit moneys coming into their possession which belong to others; also, that they have demonstrated unworthiness and incompetency to act as real estate brokers or salesmen in such a manner as to safeguard the interests of the public."

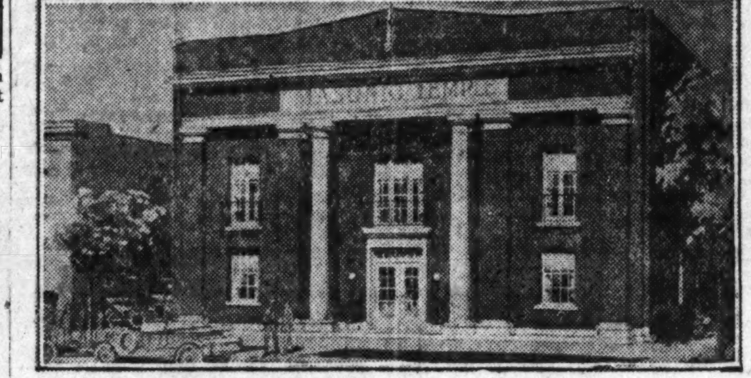
A. M. Shelton, director of the department of registration and education of the state of Illinois, has acted on the recommendation of the commission and not only denied Madden Brothers' application for a license but returned their fees. This automatically bars Madden Bros. from operating as realty brokers and state inspectors, Attorney Max Murdock announced, will see that the ruling is carried out.

Madden Brothers' attorney, James V. O'Donnell, stated that he would mandamus the state to furnish his clients a license.

Build $125,000 Plant in Healy Industrial District

Voigtmann & Co., makers of metal windows, now at 445 West Erie, have bought 65,535 square feet at the northwest corner of Schubert and Keeler avenues, in the Healy industrial district, for $32,767 and are erecting a one story plant of 43,000 square feet to cost $125,000, after plans by Mundie & Jensen. The Phipps Industrial Land trust was seller. J. H. Van Vlissingen & Co. represented both parties.

Start Work on Austin Masonic Temple



Ground has been broken for a $70,000 Masonic temple at Waller avenue and Division street, to be built by Laurel lodge No. 1057, A. F. & A. M. The corner stone was laid yesterday. The architects are Knehans, Gieseler & Meles. The temple will be 50x101, two stories, and is only a unit of the building that eventually will cover the entire lot, 110x132. A dining room for 300, kitchens, parlors, and cloakrooms will be on the first floor. The 42x60 lodge room will be on the second floor and will accommodate 450. The lot is paid for and the temple's cost provided for by a bond issue taken up by members. Harry W. DeJarnette is master of the lodge, which was instituted in March, 1921, with 212 members. It now has 313.

Brokers' Notes

The North Side Realty company, subdividers and home builders, has moved from 1245 Devon avenue to new offices in the Tribune building, suite 1532. Its new phones are Dearborn 6733 and 6734.

Ralph B. Baker and Wallace A. Fleming have formed a partnership under the name of Baker & Fleming, and have opened an office at 5624 North Clark, near Bryn Mawr, for general real estate. Telephone is Ravenswood 8818.

H. H. Harper & Co. have added to their organization Merrill W. Humphrey, son of Wirt E. Humphrey, president of the Hamilton club.

The Elwood Williams company announces that it will open offices on Dec. 1 at 6755 Sheridan road, where it will conduct a general real estate business.

Owing to unusual activity in Woodlawn business, McKey & Poague have found it necessary to enlarge their new building and are adding a two story building at the rear of their lot to house private offices, conference rooms, and rest rooms. They also have built a two story building on the forty feet immediately west of their office. at 1168-70 East 63d, from plans by Weary & Alford, one store of which has been opened as a Piggly Wiggly store. The McCormick business college will occupy the second floor.

Building Permits

Twenty building permits for a total valuation of $266,800 were issued yesterday, among them being the following:

Lawndale-av., N., 4709-11, three story brick flats; M. Perlent and M. Kaplan, owners; B. Albert Comm, arch.; Rubin, mason; M. Perlin, carp.	$ 70,000
Western-av., N., 5045, one and two story brick bakery; Maier & Roedel, owners; K. Griesser, arch.; M. Neff & Son, masons and carps.	65,000

Will Build Seventeen One Story Stores on 47th St.

Seventeen one story stores are to be erected on the south side of 47th, between Vincennes and Forrestville, on vacant bought by Nathan Edenburg from the Thomas Edmund Wells estate for $61,500. Levey & Klein are architects. The contract has been let for $85,000. Maurice H. Berkson of the General Realty company represented the seller and Charles Spare the buyer.

Realty Briefs.

The men who were instrumental in giving Illinois its real estate brokers' license law are much pleased over the recent decision of the United States Supreme court upholding the constitutionality of the brokers' license law in Tennessee, especially so in view of the fact that of the several states now having such a law Tennessee's was considered the weakest.

J. E. White, subdivider and builder, plans opening a branch office at 745 East 75th street to handle his south side building project. He recently completed his first unit of brick bungalows at 84th and Vernon and now has twenty more under construction between 84th and 86th. He owns twenty-four acres between St. Lawrence, Vernon, 84th, and 86th. Mr. White announces that he will allow prospective buyers to make a small initial payment to hold the bungalow till completion, which will be no later than May 1, 1923.

NEW NATIONAL BUYS SITE FOR $400,000 HOME

The site for the proposed building of the newly organized Portage Park National bank has been purchased by Russell J. Paull from Emil H. Bengson on Irving Park boulevard, 141 feet east of Milwaukee avenue, and extending through to Milwaukee, for $75,000. Mr. Paull then transferred the property to Abe R. Peterson of the law firm of Atwood, Pease, Loucks & Peterson, which is handling the deal. A $400,000 bank building, with entrances on both Irving Park boulevard and Milwaukee avenue, is contemplated.

APARTMENTS FOR DANTE AVENUE.

Architect Jacob Lewis has drawn plans for an eighteen apartment building to cost $72,000 for the southwest corner of Dante avenue and East 69th street, to be built by Thomas F. Cuff.

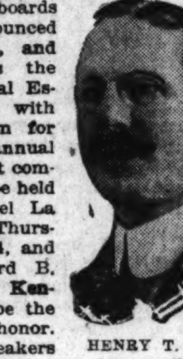
Board Jottings



HENRY T. CARR
[Gugnon Photo.]

It's getting near the open season for realty banqueting. The Evanston and Cook County Real Estate boards have announced their plans, and now comes the Chicago Real Estate board with the program for its fortieth annual affair almost completed. It'll be held at the Hotel La Salle on Thursday, Dec. 14, and Gov. Edward B. Morrow of Kentucky will be the guest of honor. Other speakers will be announced by Henry T. Carr, chairman of the banquet committee, later.

Sale of banquet tickets for the Cook County Real Estate board's banquet in the gold room of the Congress hotel on Dec. 9 opens Tuesday, Nov. 28, at 4 p. m.

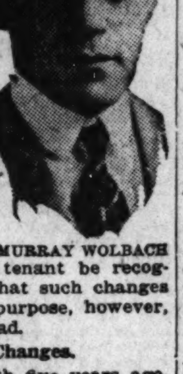
The following committee has been named to select officers for 1923 for the Cook County Realty board: J. F. Hecht, R. E. L. Brooks, Paul Schwarzlose, Richard W. Wolfe, Cornelius Teninga, George W. Walker, Daniel J. O'Connor, Albert Wahl, Charles W. Novak, D. A. Friel, A. J. Brockman, Paul Schroeder, Charles H. Brandt, A. W. Stanmeyer, and Roy E. Knauer.

SELLS ARTESIAN AVENUE FACTORY.

Frederick E. Hummel & Co. have erected and sold to the National Copper and Steel Tank works the one story brick factory at 455-61 North Artesian avenue, 75x125, for a reported $25,000.

FIND WHAT THE PUBLIC WANTS, WARNS REALTOR

Then Start Building, Says Murray Wolbach.



MURRAY WOLBACH

"Find out what the public wants" is the suggestion to prospective builders of all sorts made by Murray Wolbach, realtor investor and builder, in his lecture on "Building" before the realty class of the Y. M. C. A. School of Commerce on Tuesday evening.

"Introduce innovations as soon as they prove their worth," said Mr. Wolbach, "as it is right and proper that contrivances that will add to the convenience of the tenant be recognized. Make sure that such changes will serve a useful purpose, however, and not be a mere fad.

Sees Few Changes.

"As compared with five years ago, there has been no advance of great consequence in the art of constructing office buildings and apartment buildings. At that time, already, the advantage of building large rooms with adequate light and air was fully recognized. Neither since that time have there been any important changes in our building code. In other words, aside from the usual wear and tear, apartment buildings and office buildings constructed five years ago are fully as up to date as the ones now under construction.

Says Chicago Leads.

"I believe that considerable progress, however, is being made in the bungalow and home. These buildings bear not only outward but inward evidence of an appreciation of beauty and harmony in design."

Mr. Wolbach declared that Chicago leads in the art of apartment house construction. "Our builders," he stated, "are way ahead of the builders in other towns."

Arnold Woodrich of Woodrich Bros. will speak on "Exchanges" next Tuesday evening.

Claims Honor of Being the First Waller Bldg. Tenant

Adolph Weiss claims the honor of being the first tenant of the new Waller building, now nearing completion at the southwest corner of Upper Michigan and Chicago avenue. A lease to a yet unnamed concern was reported last Sunday as being the first. Mr. Weiss, who operated a men's furnishing shop for fifteen years at 105 East Chicago avenue and is now temporarily at 715 Upper Michigan, states that he rented the Waller building shop at No. 748 last May. His lease calls for $45,000 during the ten year term. E. C. Waller was broker.

Plan 20 Brick Bungalows at Merrill Ave. and 81st

Kelly Brothers, builders, have bought the block of vacant on Merrill between 80th and 81st streets from Roswell Ackley and intend to improve with twenty brick bungalows to sell for around $9,000 each.

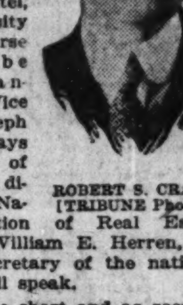
EVANSTON REALTORS TO HAVE BRIDGE AND JAZZ AT BANQUET



ROBERT S. CRANE.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Fox trotting and bridge are going to put regulation speech making somewhat in the background at the coming annual banquet of the Evanston real estate board, to be held next Tuesday evening at 6:30 at the North Shore hotel, in the university town. Of course there'll be speeches, announces Vice President Joseph W. Work. He says W. H. Ball of Philadelphia, a director of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, and William E. Herren, national field secretary of the national association, will speak.

But they'll be short and as soon as they're over the jazz orchestra will begin thumping its call for the trotters, while for those who prefer bridge to trotting, there'll be tables.

Of course, you've surmised by this time, if you've read this far, that the Evanston board has changed its banquet rules and invited the wives and friends of members, a step long ago made by the Cook county real estate board and one which has proven extremely popular. It's been discussed by the Chicago real estate board, but can't seem to get farther than the talking stage.

President Robert S. Crane of the Evanston real estate board will preside at the banquet, which will start at 6:30. Speaking will be over by 8:30, it is promised by Mr. Crane.

STEEL BELT'S FINEST HOTEL PLANNED FOR HAMMOND; $500,000

Hammond, Ind., is going to have what is claimed will be the largest and finest hotel in any city of the entire Hoosier steel belt. Architects C. Howard Crane and H. Kenneth Franzheim of Chicago have completed plans for a four story steel construction fireproof hotel building to contain 225 rooms and twenty shops, representing a total investment of $500,000.

It will be called the State-Hohman, taking its name from those two downtown streets, and is being built by the Hammond Hotel and Improvement corporation, the incorporators of which are James P. Bereolos, Gust P. Bereolos, and William J. Whinery, all of Hammond. A $250,000 bond issue has been underwritten by the First Trust & Savings bank of Hammond, of which Peter W. Meyn is president. Work will start at once, with completion date set for about next August.

BERWYN ACRES CHANGE HANDS.

Joseph K. Cass of Irvington, N. Y., has sold fifty-five acres at the northwest corner of 31st street and Home avenue, in Berwyn, to Fred H. Thwing of Kansas City, Mo., for $75,000.

BRINGS BIG HAT CONCERN FROM N. Y. TO CHICAGO

A. C. Thompson Gets the Regal Co. to Move.

Chicago can thank A. C. Thompson for bringing one of the largest manufacturing and wholesaling hat concerns in the country from New York to this city. Mr. Thompson is a director of the Regal Spear company, which has been operating a factory in Gotham employing between 200 and 300 in making hats and caps. Through his influence the eastern plant has been moved to the middle west where it has been divided into several smaller factories, one at Kankakee, one at Princeton, Ill., and the main factory at Chicago.

The company, which has been recently reorganized and renamed the Regal Hat company, has bought the eight story structure at the southwest corner of Market and Van Buren, 158x105, and will rename it the Regal building. Duckworth Bros., architects, are drawing plans for remodeling it.

The Regal Hat company also has leased the ground for ninety-nine years from the Seipp Realty trustees, at a rental to average about $25,000 annually. Dibblee & Manierre represented all parties. The Regal concern will use a large portion of the building, with occupied by wholesale concerns, with its offices, sample rooms, and wholesale department.

Plan 15 Acre Subdivision for Negroes on South Side

M. E. Wolfsohn and Eli Goldstine have bought the fifteen acres between State, Indiana, 92d place and 93d place, and will open it as the Booker Highlands subdivision, named after Booker T. Washington, selling 30x162 lots to colored people. No homes less than $5,000 will be permitted and the new owners will finance the building of homes. The Foreman Bros. Banking company took title to the property, known as the Watson farm. George G. Newbury & Co. represented the sellers. This is only a few blocks south of the Chicago Housing association's project.

Pays $110,000 for Flat Building in Oak Park

William J. Kalish, who believes so firmly in Oak Park realty that it is said he has bought in the last three months more than $250,000 worth along Madison street alone, in that suburb, yesterday paid $110,000 to August Dombrow for the twenty-five apartments at the southwest corner of Lombard and Pleasant, Oak Park. The lot is 100x171. Rathje, Wesemann, Hinckley & Barnard were attorneys for the buyer.

PLANS TEN TWO FLAT BUILDINGS.

F. D. Bredehorn has bought 250x125 of vacant on North Kolin avenue, west front, fifty feet north of Le Moyne avenue, from D. J. McMahon, and intends erecting at once ten two flat buildings to cost $150,000. John S. Clark was broker.
